MONUMENT UNVEILED

Statue in Memory of George Washington Unveiled at Philadelphia By President McKinley.

Great Gathering of Civic and Military Notables in Honor of the Event.

Graceful and Eloquent Tribute Paid By the Last President to the First.

Philadelphia, May 15.—Here, in the city which first placed on his brow the laurel crown of achievement, the memory of George Washington, the soldier, the statesman, and the man was honored today in monumental bronze. The cord which released the flags from the figure of the first ruler of the republic was drawn by its latest ruler. Surrounding him were men in whose veins runs the blood of those first patriots who battled shoulder to shoulder with Washington, and with him made possible the scene enacted today—a scene conceived and planned by those very comrades in arms; executed by their sons in peace.

The purpose of years, evolved by a handful of warriors to do honor to their chieftain, and carried through crosses and adversity by their sons and their sons' sons, was consummated. But the consummation was beyond the brightest dreams of those first few war-stained Americans. The union which they formed has grown to a mighty organization, whose membership stretches from ocean to ocean, under the name of the Society of the Cincinnati, while the magnificence of the memorial itself, reared at the gateway of the greatest park, and in the most intensely American city of the land, far surpassed their highest hopes.

It was a notable gathering, and representative of the country, including the president, vice president, and the cabinet officers, its defenders in the officers and privates of the army and navy, and its best blood, in the direct descendents of the moulders and makers of the nation. Maj. William Wayne president of the Cincinnati who formally presented the monument to the city, traces his lineage straight to Mad Anthony; and William W. Porter, the orator of the day, is a grandson of David Rittenhouse Porter, twice governor of Pennsylvania, and a great-grandson of Gen. Andrew Porter, who was on Washington's staff in the revolution.

Thus no historic interest was wanting to stimulate enthusiasm. The unveiling ceremony was impressively simple. Bishop Whitaker opened with prayer, and Maj. Wayne followed with an appropriate address. Then came the unveiling by President McKinley, and the resultant clamor, augmented by the national salute of twenty-one guns by the artillery, and by the foreign and American war vessels in the Delaware. This concluded, President McKinley spoke briefly.

The oration was then delivered by President Porter. The formal presentation of the memorial by the society to the city was made by Maj. Wayne to Maj. Warwick, with short addresses by both, and then the mayor transferred it to the Fairmount park commission, which body exercises jurisdiction over the great pleasure ground.

President McKinley and his distinguished companions reviewed the military parade, and the crowd, while not forgetting the troops, reviewed the president and his party. The night will be devoted to various phases of celebration, apart from the dinner. The wheelmen's parade, with nearly 20,000 in line, will be the principle feature. Illuminations from the monument, the city hall, the Union league, and other points, will add to the brilliancy of the jubilee, and close the day in a veritable blaze of glory. At sunrise this morning the boom of cannon from the batteries of the United States troops camped in Fairmount Park, aroused the city to the greatest day in its history. It was not long after that until steady streams of people began to flow along every byway leading from the Green street entrance to the part where the monument stands. In spite of the heavy downpour of last night, the day broke under clear skies.

The decorations throughout the city were lavish, but, of course, the greater labor and attention had been devoted to the Washington dignitaries. Both the Hotel Walton, where the president and several members of the cabinet were housed, and the Lafayette, which entertained the vice presidential parties, were literally swathed in flags and bunting. The archways of the vast city hall a few blocks away, were liberally clothed in the tricolor, and Chestnut street was a fluttering mass of red, white and blue. Stands were erected all along the line of march. The ceremonies proper began at noon, when the parade moved from Broad and Spruce streets, under command of Maj. Gen. Snowden, and at the park it passed in review before the president.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Eloquent Speech Delivered By President McKinley.

Philadelphia, May 15.—Following is the speech delivered by President McKinley at the unveiling of the Washington monument:

"Fellow citizens: There is a peculiar and tender sentiment connected with this memorial. It expresses not only the gratitude and reverence of the living, but is a testimonial of affection and homage for the dead. The comrades of Washington projected this monument. Their love inspired it. Their contributions helped to build it. Past and present share in its completion and future generations will profit by its lessons. To participate in the dedication of such a monument is a rare and precious privilege. Every monument to Washington is a tribute to patriotism. Every shaft erected to his memory helps to inculcate love to country, encourage loyalty and establish a better citizenship. God bless every undertaking which revives patriotism and rebukes the indifferent and lawless.

"A critical study of Washington's career only enhances our estimation of his vast and varied abilities. As commander-in-chief of the colonial armies from the beginning of the war to the proclamation of peace, as president of the convention which framed the constitution of the United States and as the first president of the United States, under that constitution Washington has a distinction differing from that of all other illustrious Americans. No other name bears or can bear such a relation to the government. Not only by his military genius—his patience, and his sagacity, his courage, and his skill in whose hands was the destiny of our government then and now.

"Masterful as were his military campaign, his civil administration commands equal admiration. His foresight was marvelous; his conception of the philosophy of government, his insistence upon the necessity of education, morality, and enlightened citizenship to the progress and permanence of the republic cannot be contemplated even at this period without filling us with astonishment at the breadth of his comprehension and the sweep of his vision. His was no narrow view of government. The immediate present was not his sole concern, but our future good his constant theme of study. He blazed the path of liberty. He laid the foundation upon which we have grown from weak and scattered colonial governments to a united republic whose domains and power, as well as whose liberty and freedom, have become the admiration of the world. Distance and time have not detracted from the fame and force of his achievements, or diminished the grandeur of his life and work. Great deeds do not stop in their growth, and those of Washington will expand in influence in all the centuries to follow.

"The bequest Washington has made to civilization is rich beyond computation. The obligations under which he has placed mankind are sacred and commanding. The responsibility he has left for American people to preserve and perfect with accomplishment are exacting and solemn. Let us rejoice in every new evidence that the people realize what they enjoy and cherish with affection the illustrious heroes of revolutionary story whose valor and sacrifices made a nation. They live in us and their memory will help us keep the covenant entered into for the maintenance of the freest government of earth.

"The nation and the name of Washington are inseparable. One is linked indissolubly with the other. Both are glorious, both triumphant. Washington lives and will live because when he died it was for the exaltation of man, the enthronement of conscience, and the establishment of a government which recognizes all the governed. And so, too, will the nation live victorious over all obstacles, adhering to the immortal principles which Washington taught and Lincoln sustained."

MAJ. WARRICK, OF PHILADELPHIA.

A FINE MONUMENT.

Description of the Memorial Dedicated Today.

Philadelphia, May 15.—The magnificent memorial dedicated today with such pomp and pageantry has a history almost as full of interest and "moving accidents" as that of the hero whose prowess it commemorates.

On the Fourth of July, 1811, more than eighty-five years ago, the Society of the Cincinnati, which still had among its members officers who had fought in the revolution, met in Independence hall and adopted a resolution to erect a monument to the memory of George Washington. The society had not then acquired its peculiar distinction as an organization of patriots of opulence and leisure, dedicated to the worship of ancestry. They were not unlike the legions which have grown out of the civil war, and Washington was as near to them as Grant is to the veterans' organizations of the present day. A word about its formation by the band of warriors who led our hosts to victory and something of its history will be said presently. At this meeting a committee was appointed, made up of Maj. D. Lenox, Judge R. Peters, Maj. W. Jackson, "Mr." Biddle, a descendant of "Nick" Biddle, the doughty commodore of the revolution, and Horace Binney. They appealed for funds to the people of Pennsylvania, and $200 came in. From this small beginning the fund has grown to $250,000, although the original purpose was to raise only $150,000.

The monument, which is the design of Professor Rudolph Siemering, a celebrated sculptor of Berlin, is about forty feet high. From an oblong platform, reached on four sides by thirteen steps, symbolical of the thirteen original states, rises a pedestal bearing an equestrian statue in bronze of Gen. Washington. The father of his country is represented in the colonial uniform of the American army, a large military cloak being thrown around his commanding figure. At the four corners of the platform are fountains, served by allegorical figures of American Indians, representing four rivers, the Delaware, Hudson, Potomac and Mississippi. On the sides each of these fountains is guarded, by typical American animals, eight in all. At the front and back of the pedestal are two allegorical groups, the former representing America seated, holding in one hand a cornucopia; in the other a trident, and having at her feet chains just cast off. She is in the act of receiving from her victorious sons the trophies of their conquest. Below this group is an eagle supporting the arms of the United States.

The group in the back represents America arousing her sons to a sense of their slavery. Below are the arms of Pennsylvania. On the sides of the pedestal are two bas-reliefs, one representing the march of the American army, the other a western-bound emigrant train. On one side the pedestal bears the inscription: "Sic Semper Tyrannis," and "Per Aspera ad Astra;" on the other, "Westward the Star of Empire Takes Its Way." Surrounding the upper portion of the pedestal is the legend, "Erected by the State Society of the Cincinnati."

The Society of the Cincinnati forms an interesting historic link connecting our times with the revolution. Later wars have produced other societies which are composed of actual participants in the events which they commemorate; whereas the Cincinnati, conceived by Washington's fellows in the field, now includes only their descendants. President General Wayne, elected last year, is a direct descendant of Mad Anthony. The vice president general is Winslow Warren, of Massachusetts; the secretary general is Asa Bird, a retired army officer, and his assistant is Nicholas Fish, while the treasurer and assistant treasurer are R. M. McSherry and H. T. Droune.

TAWNEY IS INDIGNANT.

He Strongly Opposes the Senate Sugar Schedule.

Washington, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Tawney, in common with other members of the ways and means committee, is indignant at the manner in which the senate has tinkered with the tariff bill which was sent from the house. In speaking of the matter today he said:

"The sugar schedule adopted by the senate finance committee is particularly objectionable. It is exactly what the trust wanted and what they demanded of our committee. We refused to give them ad valorem rates, as it is contrary to the Republican policy. Under an ad valorem rate on sugar, endless confusion will arise in collecting the duty, and in each case the trust will have the best of it. I do not believe the house will accept any tariff bill which comes from the senate that includes the sugar schedule as it now stands."

MESSAGE ON MONDAY.

President Will Prepare One on Cuban Matters.

Washington, May 15.—The definite announcement was made at the capitol today that a message on the Cuban situation will be sent to congress by the president next Monday. It will deal specifically with the question of the deprivation to which American citizens are subjected in Cuba, and it is understood that it will recommend an appropriation for their relief.

ORDERED TO SEA.

Sudden and Secret Orders For the New York.

New York, May 15.—Orders have been sent to Rear Admiral Sicard to have his flagship, the New York, made ready to go to sea from New York at a moment's warning, according to a Washington dispatch to the Herald. She is to fill up with coal to her full capacity. The haste with which she is to prepare for sea may be judged from the fact that, although she needs only about 170 tons to fill her bunkers to their full capacity, this amount of fuel will be hurried on board today and tomorrow.

The New York's engines have been taken apart and she is undergoing a general overhauling of her motive machinery at her moorings off Tompkinsville, S. I., but the engineering force of the cruiser is doubtless already at work putting the engines together and it is believed that she will be ready for sea by Monday next. Concerning the flagship's destination nothing can be learned at the navy department, but that her departure from port has any bearing on the Cuban cause is denied by the secretary.

The belief among navy officers is strong that the New York is to be held in complete readiness to go to Key West at a moment's warning.

JOLLY CONDUCTORS.

Combining Pleasure With Business in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—From present indications the convention of the conductors will not adjourn until next Tuesday. There is considerable business to be transacted, but the delegates are in no hurry to leave, having determined to couple pleasure with their labor. Many of the delegates are discussing the question of the place for the next convention of the organization. Many favor Detroit, but a great deal of the electioneering has been going on in favor of Minneapolis. St. Paul has also staunch friends and it is thought the convention will go to one of these cities. The chairman of the jurisprudence committee presented and recommended a number of amendments to the laws of the order. The discussion of these occupied the latter part of the session.

The grand ball held at Hazard's pavilion was a brilliant affair. Besides the delegates and members of the order in whose honor the ball was given, there were fully 1000 residents of the city present. The feature of the ball was the Huntington flood drill. The evolutions were executed by eighteen lady members of Chicago division No. 100, who came to the convention for the sole purpose of illustrating this fancy drill. One thousand covers were laid for the banquet at midnight, which was an elaborate affair.

Mrs. J. H. Moore, of Toledo, Ohio, will serve for another two years as president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Order of Railway Conductors. Several other grand officers were re-elected. The headquarters of the ladies' auxiliary will remain in Toledo, where they have been for the past two years.

MURDERER AHVOTE KILLED.

Needles, Cal., May 15.—Murderer Ahvote was pursued by a Piute Indian Sam, and overtaken forty miles from Eldorado canyon, at Cotton Island, in the Colorado river, on the Nevada side, and killed. He was shot through the body twice.

THE TREASURY CONDITION.

Washington, May 15.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $229,151,219; gold reserve, $147,655, 229.

Turkish Garrison at Prevesa Offers to Capitulate to the Greeks.

Place Has Been Besieged Almost From the Outbreak of War.

Turkey Will Demand a $16,000,000 War Indemnity From the Greeks.

Athens, May 15.—A private dispatch from Arta just received here says that the Turkish garrison at Prevesa, at the northern entrance of the gulf of Arta, which has been besieged by the Greek land and sea forces almost from the outbreak of the war, has sent the Greek archbishop and five notabilities of Prevesa to the commander of the besieging Greek army with a message saying that the Turkish force is ready to capitulate to the regular forces of Greece.

TURKEY'S INDEMNITY.

Said She Will Demand $16,000,000 From Greece.

Constantinople, May 15.—The sum of $16,000,000 (Turkish) is mentioned here as the amount of the indemnity Turkey will demand from Greece.

Placards have been posted in the Stamboul quarter protesting against the shedding of Mussulman blood, on the ground that the sacrifices imposed upon Turkey by the war are out of proportion to the advantages she can gain.

MATT WEISS ARRESTED.

He is Under Indictment For Forgery.

Sheriff W. C. Sargent received a telegram this morning from New Paynesville, Minn., notifying him that Under Sheriff John R. Melning had arrested Matt Weiss at that place on a bench warrant issued under an indictment returned by the grand jury last Thursday morning. The charge is forgery in the first degree, and the indictment was withheld at the time because the defendant was not in custody.

A peculiar feature of the case is that Lawrence Pecarish, the complaining witness, is now serving sixty days in jail. He was sent up about three weeks ago for contempt of United States court. The men both live at Tower, and some time ago County Treasurer Whipple issued a treasurer's check for $5 on the Tower bank, payable to Pecarish. Matt Weiss got hold of the check at Tower, and stating that he would hand it to Pecarish at the county jail he took it to Duluth with him. He is accused of forging Pecarish's name on the back of the check and getting it cashed at the First National bank in Duluth, all of which constitutes forgery in the first degree. With the proceeds Weiss left the city, and was arrested this morning at New Paynesville. He will be brought back tonight.

PROGRESS OF WORK.

What is Being Done on the Water Plant.

The big 42-inch valve at the pump house is in place in the trench and the work of laying the pipe at this point will begin Monday. The pipe-laying here will begin with the placing of an elbow, the most difficult part of the work. Mr. Hugo's men have been delayed by having to transfer a good deal of broken rock from the trenches, which has been piled on both sides of the trench in many places.

The work of riveting west of Lester river has been progressing rather slowly, there having been but three or four double lengths completed since the work began a week ago. The work will progress faster, it is expected, when the men become accustomed to the work. It is the design to rivet the lengths in pairs before lowering into the trench, the double lengths being riveted after the pipe is in place. So far no pipe has been placed in the trench.

There will be thirteen big 42-inch valves similar to the one at the pump house, distributed at intervals averaging half a mile along the force main from the pump house to the low service reservoir.

THE DISTRICT COURT.

Judges Are Still Busy With Personal Injury Cases.

Yesterday afternoon Judge Ensign granted the defendant's motion to dismiss in the case of the Duluth Title Insurance company against A. L. Ordean, on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to make out a cause of action.

Judge Ensign then took up the case of Lena Olson against the city to recover $5000 for a broken arm.

Gets Her Alimony.

The case of Anna L. Allan, who seeks for a limited divorce from William H. Allan, came up before Judge Ensign in special term this morning on the plaintiff's application for alimony during the pending of the proceedings. After a hearing Judge Ensign made an order allowing the plaintiff $45 a month alimony, $150 for attorney's fees, $50 for expenses of litigation, and $50 for immediate wants. There was no appearance on the part of the defendant.

LONDON

Queen's Presence in the City Gave Society a Great Impetus.

Diamond Jubilee Preparations Receive the Sanction of Her Majesty.

Interesting News Bits From Royal, Diplomatic and Stage Circles.

London, May 15.—(Copyright 1897, by the Associated Press.)—The few days which Queen Victoria passed in town gave a great impetus to the season. The crowds which assembled whenever her majesty drove out exceeded all records in point of numbers. The queen seems remarkably well and takes the greatest interest in the preparations being made to celebrate her diamond jubilee. Her majesty's outings were not confined to drives in the parks; but in an open landau with postillions and an equerry on either side of her carriage she drove down the Thames embankment almost to the city and through Trafalgar square, the Haymarket and other streets not often frequented by the sovereign. During her drives the queen wore dark spectacles.

The drawing room on Wednesday last at Buckingham palace was the most largely attended and the most brilliant which the queen has held since 1887. Contrary to her custom for years past, Queen Victoria not only received the members of the diplomatic corps, but remained for over an hour receiving the general crowd. All the Americans presented, much to their delight, were personally received by the queen, and her majesty was especially gracious to Mrs. Hay, wife of the United States ambassador, Col. John Hay, and to Miss Hay.

The festivities mapped out for the jubilee have now received the queen's sanction. They will begin on June 20, the date of her majesty's accession to the throne sixty years ago, with a relief service at Windsor, the site of the mausoleum erected to the memory of the prince consort and the queen's mother, the late duchess of Kent. The queen and the royal family will be present. On the Monday following, June 21, the court will move in semi-state to London and that evening there will be a banquet at Buckingham palace in honor of the royal guests. It will be followed by a reception for the members of the diplomatic corps and the special envoys.

On Tuesday, June 22, the royal procession through the streets of London will be the great feature of the day and it will be followed by illuminations at night. On Wednesday there will be a garden party at Buckingham palace, to which thousands have been invited. The court on Thursday, June 24, will move in semi-state to Windsor. Troops will line the route to Hardington's station. Her majesty will leave the train at Slough and will drive with an escort of the Life Guards, by way of Eton, to Windsor, taking this route in order to enable the boys of the Eton public school to receive her majesty. On Friday there will be another banquet at Windsor, and on Saturday will take place the naval review at Spithead, which the queen will not attend.

The sultan of Turkey is now rivalling Emperor William of Germany as a sender of telegrams and as a patron of the arts. Abdul Hamid sent a dispatch to President Faure expressing sympathy with the families of the victims of the charity bazar fire and the sultan has now instructed Edhem Pasha, the Turkish commander in Thessaly, to take special care of the works of antiquity in Greece and to prevent his soldiers from doing any damage to them. The Turkish general was further instructed to dispatch all the movable articles of value immediately to the Ottoman museum at Constantinople.

The sultan of Turkey proposes to send his son, Mehemmed Selim Effendi, to represent him at the queen's jubilee. If his majesty carries out his intention it is more than likely that there will be some exciting scenes during the procession through the streets of London. The Liberal newspapers are furious at the suggestion, and the Daily Chronicle protests against the "desecration of the queen's peaceful festival by the presence of the representative of murder."

The Star is flooding London with startling placards announcing coming articles on the "Standard Oil Trust," and says: "The Paris horrors are surpassed. Men, women and children here are roasted alive in order to put money into the pockets of the American trust. Rockefeller has obtained absolute control of the oil trade of Great Britain by forcing retailers to sell the refuse oils prohibited in America and is responsible for the terrible series of lamp explosions." The Star urges the government to legislate in the matter.

The prince of Wales has been busy during the week. His visit to Mr. Gladstone at Hawarden, with the princess of Wales and Princess Victoria, on Monday, has attracted much approving comment. The Daily News remarks: "It is but one more sign of the generous sense of the duties of their position which has endeared the royal pair to all classes."

The theaters are booming, and the Strand is overrun with American actors and managers. During the past week Charles Frohman has been much exercised about the conflicting dates for the premiere of "Secret Service," and the opening of John Hare's season at the court theater, both of which are announced for tonight. Mr. Frohman states that the members of his company are exceedingly nervous about the first London appearance. They arrived here last Thursday, and the tension consequent upon postponing the opening until Monday is very great.

The largest sum ever paid a pianist in London will be given Paderewski for one performance in Queen's hall, during the present season. He will receive 1500 guineas. A similar fee has been offered to Mme. Patti to sing three songs at a summer concert.

The date for the first production of Sir Arthur Sullivan's ballet at the Alhambra has been definitely fixed for Tuesday, May 25. The title of the production is "Victoria and Merrie England." The stage setting is most elaborate.

Travelers shudder with horror at the thought of the train-wrecker who stealthily undermines the supports of a railway bridge and precipitates a passenger train with its load of precious human freight to a horrible death by fire and water. There is a deadlier enemy than the train-wrecker that menaces not only travelers but stay-at-homes. Its name is indigestion. It slowly undermines the supports that hold up the bridge of life and yearly precipitates untold thousands into the dread valley of consumption. If people will only take the right precaution they can avoid this calamity and even remedy it after it has occurred if they will act in time.

All cases of indigestion and every disease that has its inception in indigestion or faulty nutrition are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It cures wasting diseases. It is an unfailing remedy for nervous prostration. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, and nerve tonic. Thousands have testified to its merits. There is nothing else "just as good." Druggists sell it.

"I beg leave to inform you," writes Mrs. J. Shely, of No. 1701 Thomas Place, Minneapolis, Minn., "that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cured my trouble in my neck—Goitre. It went away in three months. At the sixth bottle it began to grow smaller. Before, it had grown larger very perceptibly. I am very grateful for the cure."

Healthy babies. Healthy mother. Healthy father. These are what you find in the homes that have a copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. Send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. Cloth binding, 31 stamps.

QUEENSLAND'S OFFERS.

Good Cheap Lands and All Sorts of Minerals.

San Francisco, Cal., May 15.—John D. Russell, commercial agent of the Queensland government, is here on behalf of the colony of Queensland, and hopes to induce a goodly number of farmers and skilled artisans to emigrate.

"We have several millions of acres of the finest land that ever lay outdoors," said Mr. Russell last night, "and we can raise everything, from sardine cans to sugar and mangoes. What we want is for people of the middle classes, with experience and some capital, to emigrate to Queensland and develop the natural resources of the country. There is an abundance of good government land that may be rented or purchased for a song. Out of 668,487 square miles of land in the colony, the government has only sold thus far 22,205 square miles. Over 450,000 square miles have been leased, and there remains nearly 200,000 square miles open to settlement.

"The mineral deposits in the country are rich and varied. We have tin, copper and precious metals in abundance, and the mines only await development. During year 1896 we exported 1800 tons of tin valued at £64,000, and our other exports may be given as follows: Wool, 34,000 tons; 30,000 tons of tallow; 70,000 tons of sugar, only a portion of which was exported and brought $422,000; skins, $1,000,000; hides, $1,200,000; fruits, $300,000. In any and all of these districts people with experience and small capital can make a better living, in my opinion, than in any country in the world."

IMPORTANT TO SUFFERERS.

How You May Obtain a Lasting Cure for Piles.

No Surgical Operation, No Pain, Trifling Expense—A Simple, Harmless Remedy, But it Does the Work.

There are some people who have piles as frequently and regularly as other people have colds.

Any little bowel trouble will bring them on, any extra exertion, as in lifting, will produce them, and in fact will often appear without any apparent provocation. Piles, however, are much more serious than a cold, as the tendency is always to grow worse until the trouble becomes deep seated and chronic, or develops into some fatal rectal disease.

While there are many pile remedies which give relief, yet there is but one which not only gives instant relief, but at the same time makes a permanent cure, and that is the well known Pyramid Pile Cure.

This remedy is composed of simple, harmless, vegetable ingredients, but combined so effectively and act so promptly and thoroughly that it cures every form of piles whether itching, blind, bleeding or protruding.

In long standing cases the Pyramid Pile Cure has proven to be the only certin cure except a surgical operation, and its advantages over an operation are many, as it is painless, causes no delay, or interference with daily occupation, and last, but not least, it is cheaper than any surgical operation could possibly be, costing but $1 a package at any drug store.

The cases that the Pyramid Pile Cure will not reach are so few that physicians are doing away with operations for piles and depending on this cheap but effective remedy to accomplish a complete cure, and it never disappoints except in cases beyond the reach of medical skill.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is prepared by the Pyramid Drug company, of Albion, Mich., and for sale by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. Each package contains a treatise on cause and cure of piles, together with testimonials from every section of this country.

RESUME

Mines at Leadville Have Reached an Agreement on Pumping Matters.

Work of Pumping Out the Properties Will Commence Next Week.

Thousands of Miners Will Secure Work By This Arrangement.

Leadville, Col., May 15.—An agreement having been reached among the owners of the principal mines in the down-town district to resume pumping, which was stopped last winter, while the strike was on, the work of unwatering will be begun next week. The arrangement for pumping which will go into effect Monday will result in the employment of from 1000 to 1500 men, with a strong probability that the number will reach 2000 within the next six months.

It is estimated by some of the mine owners that it will require thirty days of pumping before any men can be put to work. It is thought that by Aug. 10, the upper levels of the working mines will be sufficiently dry to permit the introduction of men, and from that time on men will be continually added to the working force until all the properties are in full operation.

It is not thought that any of the properties have been seriously damaged, though it is believed that many repairs will be necessary on account of the swelling and crushing of the timbers occasioned by the extra weight of the water. There is a general feeling among the mine owners that the definite settlement of the pumping question now practically accomplished is the first step toward developing a territory which is believed to be one of the richest in the Leadville district. More than 2000 acres are included within the boundaries.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

At Helena, Mont., Secretary of the Senate John Bloor was convicted by a jury of having accepted the "salary bill" to prevent its passage and the punishment was fixed at one year's imprisonment. The bill had passed both houses the last day of the session, but was never signed by the speaker of the house. It would have cut down the salaries of the county officers and the number and salaries of the deputies 25 per cent.

A serious encounter has taken place in Fortune Bay, Newfoundland, between a band of smugglers and the crew of the revenue cruiser Fiona. The officers endeavored to arrest the smugglers for carrying venison to St. Pierra. The smugglers resisted and succeeded in driving off the officers. Reinforcements are being sent by the revenue authorities and it is feared that the disturbance may assume serious proportions.

The obsequies of the late Duchess D'Alencon took place yesterday in the Church of St. Philip Du Roi in the Rue Du Faubourg, St. Honore, Paris. The interior was hung with black dotted with shields bearing the arms of France and Bavaria. In conformity with the desire of the duchess, expressed at various times during her life, no flowers or wreaths were sent. The Duc D'Alencon was present. Cardinal Richard, the archbishop of Paris, pronounced the absolution.

The Cunard line steamship Lucania, Capt. McKay, which left New York May 5, arrived at Queenstown yesterday after a passage of 5 days, 14 hours and 54 minutes, during which over the distance steamed, 2939 knots, she made the best time on record, 21.80 knots per hour. During two days steaming the Lucania maintained an average speed of 22 1-3 knots per hour. The long distance steamed was due to the fact that the steamer ran pretty far south to avoid ice.

At Rosebud, Texas, Thursday night, three negroes, Dave Cotton, Henry Williams and Sabe Stewart, were taken from the officers of the law and hanged. They had been confined in the jail here several days on a charge of attempted rape, their intended victim being a daughter of William Coates, white. Thursday evening Williams made a confession.

A terrible railway disaster befell a military train Thursday evening between Rockenhof and Eliva on the Valki Jurjev line in Russia. Sixteen cars were smashed. Two officers and nearly 100 soldiers were killed and sixty others were seriously injured.

Off Brigeport, Conn., yesterday, the United States gunboat Nashville covered the sixty-mile course on her official trial in 3 hours, 25 minutes and 29 seconds, averaging 16.7 knots and winning a bonus of about $80,000 for her builders.

President Woodmansee has issued a call for a meeting of the executive committee of the National Republican league at the Auditorium hotel, Chicago, Thursday, May 27. Final arrangements will be made at this meeting for the Detroit convention July 19.

At Reno, Nevada, a severe shock of earthquake was felt last evening about 6 o'clock, lasting several moments. The vibration was from north to south.

Recent mail advices from Uruguay state that the revolution has been checked after a bloody battle at Trest Arbales, in which a large number of revolutionists were killed and their leaders driven to the frontier.

A. P. EDGERTON DEAD.

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 15.—Hon. A. P. Edgerton, civil service commissioner under President Cleveland during his first term, died last night at his country home at Hicksville, Ohio, where he has resided for the last several years, at the age of 84 years. He was at one time a member of the Ohio legislature and also of the Indiana senate, and served in congress during the fifties. He was quite wealthy, owning large landed estates in this state and Ohio.

MAY PROVE A MURDER.

Milwaukee, May 15.—The dead body of N. B. Clark, of Grand Rapids, a member of the Michigan bank and lumber company, was found on one of the residence streets along the lake shore this morning. There were two bullet wounds, and a revolver was found at his side. Diamonds and jewelry were found on his person, but no money. The location of the wounds makes it rather doubtful whether it is a cause of suicide. When Clark left his hotel last evening he said he was going for a walk. He was 59 years old.

PROFESSIONALS TO WED.

New York, May 15.—The marriage of Gerald Du Maurier, son of the author of "Trilby," and Miss Sylva, an actress, will take place during the summer. Both made their American debut as members of Beerbohm Tree's company last fall. Prior to joining Mr. Tree's force Miss Sylva sang in comic opera. Mr. Du Maurier is 28 years old. He was Zou Zou in the London production of "Trilby."

Terrible, Yes

but how many people there are who drag through weary days, oppressed with weak, tired languid feeling.

To overcome this unhealthy, debilitated condition there is nothing better than which stirs up and enriches the blood, restores lost energy and invigorates the whole system. It tones up the digestive organs, makes sound, healthy flesh and drives away tired, miserable feelings. Its effects are speedily shown in bright looks, increased strength and improved health.

All grocers and druggists keep it.

THE TRADE OUTLOOK.

Dun Sees Conditions That Are Encouraging.

New York, May 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade today says: Speculators have enjoyed an advance in wheat, corn, cotton and some other products, although obliged to sell wool and sugar at lower figures in order to realize. Stocks have advanced 7 per cent per $100 and trust stocks lost 38 cents, without enough demand to constitute a market. Imports of merchandise, $18,362,019 for the week at New York alone, are 94 per cent larger than a year ago, making the increase 37 per cent for the past six weeks, and have affected the exchange markets and helped further shipments of gold, which amount for the week to $2,750,000, but are practically balanced by receipts from the interior and cause no serious apprehension of financial disturbance. Men feel that present conditions are only temporary, although they tend to prevent immediate improvement in general trade and hinder immediate investments. The government estimates the cotton acreage at 6 per cent less than last year and is considered encouraging because so slight a decrease from the floods may easily be made up. Prices have advanced an eighth on the Liverpool speculation, with nothing here to warrant the rise. The winter wheat report which is supposed to indicate a yield of 297,000,000 bushels, is contrasted with state reports much better or much worse, but is distrusted mainly because all department estimates of acreage for years have been wildly erroneous. Exports of corn are still large, 5,586,555 bushels for two weeks, against 3,004,181 last year, and in part account for the smaller demand for wheat.

The output of pig iron for the week ending May 1 was 170,528 tons against 172,279 April 1, and the stocks unsold, exclusive of those held by the great steel making companies, increased only 8,808,000 tons. Several furnaces, especially those producing foundry iron, have stopped production for this month, but no important changes appear in pig iron, which is quoted at $8.25 for grey forge at Pittsburg, $9.25 for Bessemer and $12 for No. 1 at New York, though only $10.25 is asked for Southern. Reduced Southern freights here have not altered the market materially and at Chicago also the local prices have been reduced. The demand for finished products is below the capacity of works in operation and the award of the contract for the Montreal bridge which is said to be at 90 cents for beams against $1.55 demanded from consumers in this country, has occasioned trouble in the beam association and there are reports that it has been dissolved. Angles are quoted at 95 cents per 100 pounds, a shade lower, and steel plates are quoted lower here than at Philadelphia.

Copper is active with large sales of lake at $10.35 and tin plates are quoted 10 cents below prices fixed by the association and 50 cents below prices of the same grades of foreign plates.

Nothing new can be said of the cotton manufacture, which still lacks demand enough to lift print cloths above the lowest point ever known and prices of other grades of cotton do not improve. In general the sales of cotton products are but moderate.

Woolen goods are doing better than for weeks past and yet there is not enough demand to create enthusiasm or to raise prices, while there is great uncertainty regarding the future of the market. Sales of wool have sharply decreased and for the week barely exceed a week's consumption, while prices are weaker at Eastern markets, according to some reports nearly 1 cent per pound at Philadelphia, and at the West the heavy buyers for speculation have begun to sell at some concessions with good reason.

Failures for the week were 264 in the United States against 224 last year and thirty-one in Canada against thirty last year.

WHAT BRADSTREETS SAYS.

New York, May 15.—Bradstreet's today says: The unexpected falling off in the request for staple goods within a month results in a period of comparative calm at a time when a general revival in demand had been looked for.

Wholesalers report that the volume of business consists of filling in orders, even Chicago not claiming more than to have held its own volume of goods distributed. Interior merchants continue to buy for nearby wants only, and in many directions farmers are too busy with field work to supply their wants at the country stores.

The continuer subsidence of the floods in the Lower Mississippi River valley has encouraged wholesale merchants in that region; grocers report an unusually large distribution of canners' goods West and Southwest, and the extreme depression in pig iron prices is followed by large Western purchases. Wholesale dealers announce an increased demand for groceries and hardware at Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Memphis.

Exports of wheat—flour included as wheat—from both coasts of the United States and from Montreal this week, amount to 2,183,875 bushels, compared with 1,799,000 bushels last week, 1,980,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 2,397,000 bushels in the week two years ago, 2,420,000 bushels three years ago and as contrasted with 3,885,000 bushels in the like week of 1893. Exports of Indian corn amount to 3,096,834, as compared with 3,127,000 bushels last week, 1,963,000 in the week a year ago, and 1,210,000 bushels in the week two years ago.

There are 251 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 228 last week, 265 in the corresponding week a year ago, 210 two years ago, 187 three years ago and as compared with 225 in the like period of 1893.

There are thirty-one failures reported from the Dominion of Canada this week, against thirty-nine last week, thirty-four in the week a year ago, twenty-eight two years ago, and as contrasted with twenty-five in the like week of 1894.

MAILS TO TAHITI.

San Francisco, May 15.—The French authorities are arranging a monthly mail service between this port and Tahiti. The officials at Papete have sent specifications here for a 200-ton steamer. Shipowners and builders are invited to bid for the construction of a vessel that could be used in the service.

MRS. McGARVER DEAD.

Tacoma, Wash., May 15.—Mrs. Julia McGarver, widow of Gen. M. McGarver, the founder of Burlington, Iowa, Sacramento, Cal., and the city of Tacoma, died last evening of old age. She was born in St. Charles county, Mo., Nov. 19, 1825, and leaves nine children, all daughters. She came to Oregon in 1842, settling in Oregon City and to Puget Sound in 1868. Gen. McGarver died in 1872.

TOOK ACID

Iver Satter Takes His Own Life in a Horrible Manner.

Drank Nitric Acid and Then Jumped From a Boulevard Bridge.

Went Home Afterward and Lived Almost a Day---No Reason Found.

Iver Satter, residing at 2205 West Fifth street, and employed by the Scott & Holston company, died shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the effects of a dose of nitric acid, taken with suicidal intent. The drug was taken about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Satter, after taking it, attempting to supplement its effects by jumping from the boulevard bridge, over Coffee creek. The fall to the rocks, twenty feet below, failed to accomplish the desired purpose, and the dose of acid was so heavy that, after the jump, a fit of vomiting ensued, which had the effect of enabling nature to fight off death for a time.

After lying on the rocks in the creek for two hours or more, Satter was able to make his way home. The people living in the house where he resided, on seeing his condition when he returned, sent for Dr. Tufte. Satter's mouth and throat were raw and his head was cut. On further examination, his back was found to have been injured by his fall. Antidotes were at once administered, but it became apparent yesterday morning that the poison would prove too much for Satter's vitality. When death occurred, Coroner Eklund was summoned, he deciding that an inquest was not necessary. The remains were taken to C. O. Nelson's morgue.

Satter said he bought the poison at Shesgreen's drug store, 2002 West Superior street, several days ago, with the intention of using it to take his own life. He went up to the bridge, drank all of the contents of the bottle, and then jumped. He gave no reason for the act beyond saying that he had for some time felt it was the best thing he could do. Satter was 30 years old and unmarried. He was a Norwegian, and had lived in Duluth about seven years. He was temperate and industrious, and had accumulated quite a little property, owning a farm near Cloquet and the house where he lived. He had been employed at the Scott & Holston mill since the opening of the sawing season.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Peter and Thomas Hillestad, the two sons of Knute Hillestad, who were taken to the Arvilla hospital after being nearly killed by August Normand two weeks ago, are improving rapidly. Thomas, who was struck in the head with a hammer and was not expected to live, will be able to go to his home in a few days. The other boy has an ugly razor wound on his neck, but it is healing rapidly. The recovery of the boys will be a surprise to those who saw them on the day of the murder. While at Towner deputy marshals had a long talk with Normand, in which he confessed a murder a few years ago. The victim was a railroad section man in Kansas. Normand stated that he saw the man draw and cash his check and afterward killed him. He secured $45 and a gold watch. The body he hid under some brush and then made his escape. Normand is working the insanity racket very hard and this story is probably a part of it. Nobody believes it.

Farmers of Mekinock township have petitioned Judge Fisk of the district court at Grand Forks to call a special grand jury for the purpose of looking into matters in connection with the recent assignment of the North Dakota Milling company. The signers are holders of wheat tickets given by the milling company.

Blind pigs have flourished near Grand Forks lately and numerous petitions have been signed asking that a special grand jury be called for the purpose of looking after them. The jury will probably be called for June 1.

In spite of some very warm weather during the past six weeks in many places in the country near Reynolds are the remains of the monstrous drifts which buried North Dakota last winter. A vigorous snow storm prevailed for two hours Friday.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Judge Jones at Sioux Falls, quashed the indictment against Rev. T. Howell Richards, of Deli Rapids, for keeping a house for immoral purposes. Richards pleaded not guilty and his attorneys moved to dismiss on the ground that the name of one of the witnesses examined before the grand jury was omitted from the indictment. The motion was granted. This will probably dispose of the case, as it is understood Richards will leave the country.

John Reber, a prosperous German farmer, living fifteen miles east of Aberdeen, was arrested Thursday night, charged with making whisky. A small still was found in his granary. Other arrests will follow for the same offense.

TRAVELING IS EXTRA HAZARDOUS

If the tourist is unprovided with some medicinal resource. Changes of temperature, food and water of an unaccustomed or unwholesome quality, and a route that lies in the tropics or other regions where malaria exists, are each and all fraught with danger to one who has been improvident enough to neglect a remedial safeguard. The concurrent testimony of many voyageurs by land and sea establishes the fact that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters enables those who use it to encounter hazards of the nature referred to with impunity and that, as a medicine adapted to sudden and unexpected exigencies, it is peculiarly valuable. Disorders of the liver, the bowels and the stomach, fever and ague, rheumatism and nervous ailments, brought on by exposure, are among the maladies to which emigrants, travelers and new settlers are most subject. These and others yield to the action of the Bitters promptly and completely.

EXPORTS AND IMPORTS.

Government Issues Its Monthly Statement For April.

Washington, May 15.—The comparative April statement of the exports and imports of merchandise, gold and silver of the United States, issued by the bureau of statistics, shows as follows: Merchandise, domestic exports, $76,176,997, increase as compared with April, 1896, $6,775,000. Imports, $101,305,131, of which nearly 50 per cent was free of duty. As compared with April, 1896, there was an increase in dutiable imports of over $20,000,000 and of over $22,000,000 in non-dutiable merchandise. For the ten months the exports of domestic merchandise exceed those of the same period of 1896 by over $151,000,000. The imports of merchandise during the last ten months, however, were over $95,000,000 less than for the same period last year.

The amount of gold exported during April was $6,629,419, and the imports, $619,452. During the last ten months the excess of gold imports over exports was $38,482,106. The exports of silver during April amounted to $4,896,895, and the imports $587,124. For the last ten months the exports of silver exceeded the imports by $42,313,692.

A TEN-POUND BOY.

How proud every mother is of her large, strong baby boy. Especially the first one. More especially if, like Sarah of old, she had begun to doubt whether such happiness was in store for her. No miracle was wrought in this case, except the miracle of a remarkable cure.

Mrs. E. E. Thomas, Alpha, Mo., writes in a recent letter to Dr. Hartman as follows: "I have used your Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin. I had been doctoring for several years, but kept getting worse. One day a neighbor woman brought me your book "The Ills of Life," and wanted me to take your medicine. I told her that I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I had tried so much medicine. My neighbors thought I was nearly dead with consumption. Finally I concluded that I would make a last trial. So my husband got me a bottle of Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin. I commenced taking them according to directions. That was two years ago. A year ago last November I gave birth to a 10-pound baby boy, who is well and hearty; and I am doing my own housework. I can never give Pe-ru-na too great praise. I think it the best medicine I ever heard of."

A PIUTE QUARREL.

Different Chiefs Engender a Fatal Fight.

Caliente Cal. May 15.—News has just reached here that Piute Indians are at war with one another near William Shipsey's ranch, which is in the foot hills of Piute mountains. One Indian is reported killed and it is not known how many more are dead. There are two small Indian villages in the Piute range of mountains, and the redskins are divided into two factions.

Two chiefs have been rulers, and it is said one tribe for several years past has sought to kill the other. Their more intelligent chief is said to be dead. The fleeing children of one tribe reported the difficulty to Rancher Shipsey, who fears that the weaker of the tribes will be annihilated before a force of militia can be sent to subdue the angry passion of the braves.

MONSIGNOR MARTINELLI'S TRIP.

Washington, May 15.—Monsignor Martinelli, the papal delegate, will leave Washington Tuesday next for a trip covering the balance of the month. On the 19th he will attend the meeting in New York city of the alumni of the American college at Rome. On the 22rd he goes to Albany to participate in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of that institution, and afterwards to Washington. On May 30 he will join the Franciscans at Butler, N. J., to celebrate the anniversary of the pope's becoming a member of the third Order of St. Francis. About June 2 the monsignor will return to this city, and until then no decisions in the Bonacum case and other pending questions will be announced.

CALIFORNIA WINES SOLD.

San Francisco, May 15.—By an agreement reached yesterday between A. Marshall, of New York, representative of A. Marshall & Co., wine dealers, and the directors of the California Winemakers' corporation, the sale of the bulk of all the California wines made last year has been effected. Pursuant to its terms the New York company and California dealers friendly to the corporation agreed to take 2,500,000 gallons of wine, with the option of 1,000,000 additional. The price agreed on is 18 cents a gallon.

MR. WILLARD DRUGGED.

New York, May 15.—J. A. Willard, president and treasurer of the Standard Fiberware company and Mankato Knitting Mills of Mankato, was found suffering apparently from the effects of some drug at Broadway and Twenty-sixth street late Thursday night. He was taken to the West Thirtieth street police station. Mr. Willard came to this city about a week ago, and took a room at the Hotel Metropole. On Monday he disappeared, and the hotel people notified the police. When he was found he had $25, but his cuff buttons, watch and chain and other jewelry were gone.

DECLINED

Wheat Prices Suffered a Decline Today, After Opening Fairly Strong.

Liverpool Cables Said to Be Responsible For the Early Rise.

Realizing and Short Selling Combined to Force Down the Price.

Wheat opened strong and higher this morning from the same influence that has prevailed in the market all week, the Liverpool cables. That market was unchanged, which was considered bullish in view of yesterday's American decline. Argentine shipments amounted to but 8000 bus. At the opening advance, realizing and short selling began on a liberal scale, helped by the non-appearance of frost last night and the market gradually weakened. Northwest receipts, 346 cars against 283 last week and 337 last year. The quantity of wheat taken for Eastern shipment from Chicago yesterday was in the neighborhood of 400,000 bus, and early in the forenoon today 70,000 bus were reported in addition to yesterday's business. The shipments abroad of flour from both coasts this week were equal to 2,138,875 bus, against 1,799,000 bus in the week before and 1,805,000 bus on the corresponding week last year. It is not probable that India reported any wheat, whereas her shipments a year ago on the corresponding week were 468,000 bus.

Trading was fairly active on the Duluth board, July wheat opened 5c higher at 76c, but later weakened and sold down to 75¼c. It reacted but soon lost the little strength and declined to 75¼c. The close was with buyers at 75¼c, an advance of ¾c for the day. The elevators bought about 50,000 bus at ¾c over May for round lots and the May price for car lots. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 77¼c; May, 77¼c. No. 1 northern, cash, 76c bid; May, 75c bid; July, 75¼c bid; September, 69¾c bid. No. 2 northern, 71¾c. No. 3, 70@71c. Rejected, 63¾@68¾c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 77¼c. No. 1 northern, 77¼c. Rye, 35c. No. 2 oats, 21½c. No. 3 oats, 21c. Flax, 75¾c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 161; oats, 29; rye, 1; barley, 12; flax, 22. Receipts—Wheat, 19,418 bus; oats, 61,250 bus; rye, 3296 bus; barley, 20,285 bus; flax, 7928 bus. Shipments —Wheat, 105,000 bus; oats, 162,144 bus; flax, 21,855 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of R. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 15.—Wheat opened stronger because Liverpool came unchanged. After the early strength the bears had full control, and the market declined to the put price, the decline being aided by the weakness in other pits. Weil was credited with excessive short selling, and the load of wheat with which the market was slugged was sufficient to counteract the very bullish news which came later. The shipping account continued active, and we think the total day's business will amount to at least 200,000 bus. Clearances were light, but a fair amount of new business was done at the seaboard. The items which helped the weakness were the decline in Paris equal to about 2 cents a bushel, and the forecast for showers on Pacific slope. We have private advices, however, that there are no indications of rain in the wheat-growing regions of California. May wheat weakened both here and at New York on the increased deliveries. The elevator people cannot cover their May shorts, so they deliver out the wheat. We still advise purchases on all weak spots like today.

Corn and oats had a sharp break with little demand when the longs tried to sell. The sentiment is bearish, but the market is so narrow that reactions are easy from present low prices. Receipts continue very small.

Provisions weak and the only support came from shorts.

THE MAYOR'S DISCOVERY.

Finds That Much Illegitimate Pawnbroking is Done.

The mayor says that there is a great deal of business being done nominally in the chattel mortgage loan line which is, practically, in the nature of pawnbroking. He has submitted the question to the city attorney and will, if possible, make those engaged in the business pay a pawnbroker's license. These people he says, make larger and more profitable loans than are made at the licensed shops. The collateral is usually diamonds or other property of value and easily converted into money. A mortgage is given, but it is only a blind; it is never filed, and the mortgagee takes possession of the pledge when the money is loaned.

Have Encountered Sewers.

An obstacle to pipe laying in the force main trench has been run across in the shape of the sanitary sewer at Sixty-first avenue east, which intersects the trench. Men were at work yesterday ascertaining the grade of the sewer preparatory to sinking it below the bottom of the trench. It is expected that several other sewers will be encountered in Lester Park and Lakeside.

There is already quite a Duluth colony in and about Fruithurst. Among those who have decided to make investments with the ultimate object of living there permanently are T. W. Thompson, Herman Lake and Frank Palmer.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., central time, May 15, 1897.—Light showers in the lake region and the Upper Mississippi valley have been followed by fair weather, which is now general in all reporting districts.

Decided changes to warmer are noted in the Canadian Northwest and the districts west of the Mississippi valley, where the pressure has decreased generally, and is now lowest in Saskatchewan. In the Mississippi valley and the lake region the temperature has remained nearly stationary.

Frosts occurred last night at the following named stations: Duluth, Moorhead, Sault Ste. Marie, St. Paul and North Platte.

Local forecast for Duluth, West Superior and vicinity: Fair and warmer tonight and Sunday; light easterly winds veering to fresh southwest.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, May 15.—Weather forecast until Sunday: For Wisconsin and Minnesota: Generally fair and warmer tonight and Sunday; variable winds shifting to southerly.

THE SENTIMENT GROWING.

It is gratifying to learn that a strong sentiment has developed in the East in favor of the establishment of postal savings banks. There has been no question for a long time in regard to the views of the West on this subject, as it has frequently made itself manifest in favor of the postal savings banks, and the growth of the sentiment in the East leads to the belief that the day is not far distant when they will be established. It is announced that Chauncey M. Depew contemplates publishing a letter favorable to such banks, and it is stated that two at least of the former presidents of the Clearing House association have recently expressed the warmest approval of the proposition. It is also said that some of the members of the administration have, in a private and informal manner, expressed the belief that the establishment of a postal savings system would be of vast financial benefit to the government as well as to the people. The New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Press says there will be an influential demonstration made in favor of postal savings banks at the regular session of congress.

No one can be better pleased than The Herald with this evidence of a growing sentiment in influential quarters in favor of a policy which it has advocated for several years, believing that it would be of inestimable advantage to the government and the people. As the Omaha Bee says, every practical and common sense consideration is in favor of a postal savings bank system. It has been highly successful wherever established under proper conditions, and there is no reason why it should not be successful in the United States. One most valuable effect it would have would be to increase the thrift of our people. Thousands would save who do not now do so if they could put their savings in a postal bank, knowing that they were secured by the wealth and credit of the nation. It is not to be doubted that the great majority of the people are favorable to postal savings banks. The opposition has come from selfish interests, but it has been steadily growing less formidable. That the system will be ultimately established there can be no doubt, and there are few matters more worthy of the serious consideration of the present Republican congress and administration.

Not only would the system increase the determination of our people to save their money for "rainy days," but it would supply the government with a fund always available for an emergency, and giving depositors the best possible security. From every standpoint, therefore, the enactment of the bill would prove highly beneficial to the people. It is probably impossible to have such a measure passed at the present session of congress, but the next session should not adjourn until provision has been made for the establishment of these banks.

AGAINST HEALTH AND DECENCY.

A San Francisco dispatch says: "W. D. Bradbury, a local millionaire, has been sentenced to twenty-four hours' imprisonment in the county jail for violating a civic ordinance prohibiting expectorating on the floor of street cars. This was Bradbury's second offense. He claims the privilege of spitting when and where he pleases, as an inalienable American privilege, and will make a test case of his punishment."

No American has an inalienable privilege to make himself a nuisance, and it is likely that the appellate courts will promptly confirm the decision in Mr. Bradbury's case. It certainly cannot be seriously contended that any person in this country has the legal right to indulge in practices that are opposed to health and decency, and expectorating in street cars and other public places is such a disgusting and filthy practice, so offensive to decency, and so dangerous to the public health, that the law will properly class it under the head of illegal practices.

In other cities as well as in San Francisco there are civic ordinances prohibiting expectorating on the floors of street cars and in other places where people assemble, and they are being enforced. Duluth should have such an ordinance, and the vile practice should be stopped, even if it be necessary to increase the police force in order to do it. In all the cities where such ordinances are now in force and being enforced, the boards of health have been largely instrumental in securing them, having protested on sanitary grounds. Let us have an ordinance to prohibit spitting in public places, and then compel the street car expectorator to refrain or get out of the car and walk.

A PIONEER GONE.

One of the oldest and most respected citizens of Duluth has passed from earth. John C. Hunter, whose death occurred on Thursday evening, was one of the pioneers of this section of the country. Coming here nearly thirty years ago, he was an active participant in the early struggles to create a city which would be the leading business center of the Northwest, and he had the pleasure of seeing the city finally experience a remarkably rapid growth in business and population. Duluth had no more loyal citizen, and no one had a deeper interest in everything pertaining to its welfare.

For many years Mr. Hunter took a leading part in municipal politics, being a member of the common council and also being the first Republican candidate for mayor. He was honored by Governor Merriam with an appointment as a member of the board of state prison managers. As a merchant and later as a banker he was highly successful, and he gained and held the esteem and confidence of the business men and the citizens generally. His demise is deeply regretted, and sincere sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.

THE "OLD ROMAN" ON GOOD ROADS.

There are certain names that always attract attention, names that belong to men whose judgment has weight and an account of whose deeds is always interesting.

Among such names, in this country, is that of the late ex-Senator Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio, the "Old Roman," or, as his associates and political friends delight in calling him, "the noblest Roman of them all." He served in high state offices in Ohio and for a long time in the United States senate. In 1888 he was the candidate for vice president with Mr. Cleveland. Few men so long in politics had so many personal friends, or whose judgment was so often referred to.

It is interesting at this time, when there is so widespread a sentiment in favor of good roads, so general that it extends to all portions of the country, to know what this great statesman, who for fifty years was in public life, thought of the efforts being made in that direction. A few months before his death a zealous member of the League of American Wheelmen was talking with Mr. Thurman on the subject, and went away delighted at what the "Old Roman" had said, which was as follows: "I have been in public life for nearly a half century and have taken part in the discussions of many great questions, have helped to solve many vexed problems. Were I a young man again and in public life, the matter which I would give my most earnest and constant attention would be the securing to this country, to the farmers, the cities, people of all classes, the best possible system of good roads. There is an opening in this line, for the right kind of a man, to make himself a great name, if, indeed, not president of the United States. I both congratulate and thank you young gentlemen for the part you are taking in sentiment building in behalf of good roads. The country needs them; the city needs them; everybody needs them."

When a man like Senator Thurman, known and respected from one end of the country to the other, by men of all nationalities, all religions and all politics, thus expresses himself, there certainly is ample excuse for the best minds of all classes to lend aid in the accomplishment of that which he deemed so important to accomplish.

WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

Philadelphia was the scene today of an event of great importance—the unveiling of the monument in memory of George Washington. A full description of the interesting ceremonies attending the dedication, which was attended by many prominent men, including President McKinley and most of his cabinet officers, is given in the telegraphic columns. The monument, which has been erected by the Society of the Cincinnati, represents nearly a century of patient work on the part of the Quaker City people. It was in 1810 that the first subscription was opened, but the project lagged until 1890, and since that date the fund grew steadily until it touched the quarter of a million mark, which is the cost of the completed statue.

Gen Washington was the first president general of the Society of the Cincinnati, and it is largely for this reason that the monument was erected by this order, which is still a flourishing organization, and thus furnishes a link between the present and the past.

The opposition to Sunday street cars in Toronto has inspired a bard in that city to the following effect:

"Toronto the good would become Toronto the bad
If the liberty of running Sunday cars could be had;
The saloons would be opened and the theaters would follow,
And our Sabbath would be likened to one in Chicago."

It must be difficult for the puritanical Toronto people to decide which is worse—this "poem" or Sunday cars.

The duke of Teck, having asked the Canadian government to allow him and his chartered company to govern the Canadian gold regions in the Yukon River territory the British Columbian Press says: "This is the most paralyzing proposition ever presented to any modern government—to hand the government of Canadians and Americans over to a chartered company as if they were so many Hottentots." The duke will discover that Canada is not Africa.

The Colonial society of Pennsylvania has published a reproduction in facsimile of the American Weekly Mercury from its first issue in 1719 till its last in 1752. It required the collections of six or seven libraries and societies to make this reproduction complete. The Mercury was the first newspaper published in the middle colonies and one of the first in America. The edition is limited to 250 copies at the rate of $5 a copy and more than half the edition is already subscribed for.

An exchange says that pol, which always takes a prominent place in the fascinating stories which have been written of Hawaiian life, is being imported into this country. It has always, or for some time, been served in hotels and private houses at Honolulu, where it is used as cornstarch or cornmeal. It is said to be very delicious and nourishing. Political "pol," however, still remains the favorite dish at Washington.

The coming visit to Mexico of the ex-Empress Charlotte, "poor Carlotta," as she has been called for years, is of touching interest. It is expected that she will arrive soon in New York and proceed, surrounded by luxurious care, to the scene of her youthful happiness in Mexico. Her condition is no longer violent, and it is hoped that the sea journey may benefit her health.

An Arizona correspondent of the Chicago Times-Herald says that Whitelaw Reid, of the New York Tribune, who has spent three winters in Arizona, "becomes during his retirement what is known as the sage—the sage of Arizona. On my hinting as much he suggested that it was a congenial region for the sage. The desert was full of them."

Ex-Ambassador Bayard, it is said, will bring back with him to this country an enormous lot of English goods. His personal baggage consists of 208 pieces, with many more to follow as freight. He also has four dogs; also an English accent that would set an Anglomaniac delirious with joy.

In nominating ex-Governor Northen of Georgia for vice president of the Southern Baptists' convention, now in session in Baltimore, Dr. William Jones said he nominated a man who, while diligently attending to his duties as governor, always found time to attend prayer meeting.

Yerkes, the Chicago street car man, attributes the defeat of his bills, known as the Humphrey bills, to the newspapers. There is no doubt he is right. The publicity given to the vicious measures and the popular feeling aroused thereby killed the bills.

The Buffalo street car companies are now receiving 5000 horse-power daily of electricity from Niagara Falls, at a cost of $36 per horse-power a year. Some day the Duluth cars will be run by electricity generated from the dalles of the St. Louis.

A portrait of the prince of Wales by Julian Story has a place in this year's Royal Academy, and a critic says it "brings out in the face a royal dignity and distinction of manner." Certainly the prince is old enough to be dignified.

Patrick Egan, who was minister to Chili during the Harrison administration, is said to have been booked by President McKinley for the same place or "something equally as good." The Irish patriots will feel pleased with his recognition.

A St. Louis paper gives this advice in anticipation of a school election there: "The way to keep politics out of the schools is to see that politicians do not get onto the school board." It is good advice for every place.

Figures have recently been published showing that insanity is increasing in London, and simultaneously the statement is made that the bagpipes are becoming very popular in the British metropolis.

The exposition at Nashville is said to be a genuine surprise to all visitors. No one who can afford the time to take a pleasure jaunt this year should fail to visit the Tennessee capital.

A cashier in a San Francisco bank attempted suicide the other day because he was 1 cent short in his accounts. He will never be a financier. His nerve is too weak.

Maj. Baldwin has returned from Washington with his official head intact. But there is a hungry pack at his heels, and he may yet be sacrificed to satisfy them.

The Triple alliance has been renewed for another six years. Austria, Germany and Italy appear to understand each other, if the other nations do not.

The salary of the mayor of Greater New York will be $15,000 a year. But it is safe to assert that the office will cost him more than this amount annually.

Bradstreet's trade review this week reports an increased demand for groceries and hardware from Duluth jobbers. This is certainly a hopeful sign.

It is the shrewd storekeeper who addresses all his married women customers as "Miss."

Prince Constantine is as good a fighter on paper as Gen. Weyler.

THE PASSING OF BAYARD.

Washington Post: Mr. Bayard didn't mind the absence of Americans on the occasion of his farewell dinner. As long as Mr. Bayard can wallow in English adulation he will be supremely happy.

New York Tribune: Mr. Bayard will be welcomed back to the United States most cordially; not so much because of his late ambassadorship as because of the personal qualities that commend him to the respect and affection of all who know him.

Washington Times: Never again let any man be caught saying our British cousins are devoid of humor. The appropriate and parting present of a golden pumpkin bearing the likeness of the ex-ambassador is a joke about as neat and apposite as any we have yet encountered in this vale of tears.

Philadelphia Record: Mr. Bayards farewell to England was made notable by a banquet in his honor, at which he was presented with a gold loving cup, and at which the broad feeling of admiration and respect for his character likewise found expression in some felicitous speeches, the best of them having been that of his successor, Ambassador Hay.

Denver Republican: The address of Ambassador Hay at the banquet given to Mr. Bayard in London was well expressed, and it contained a few words that can hardly be looked upon as other than suggestive of the course he intends to pursue. He said: "Certainly no immediate successor of Mr. Bayard would be so injudicious as to attempt to rival his brilliant career or to replace him in the regard of the English people." This sounds very much as though Col. Hay does not attempt to gain British approval by abusing the American people, or prattling sentimentality about the bonds of friendship which unite Great Britain and the United States.

New York Mail and Express: Ambassador Hay acquitted himself with commendable frankness as well as with diplomatic dignity at the farewell dinner to Mr. Bayard in London. His speech, most cordial in tone and happy in phrase, gave his hearers to understand that Col. Hay regards his predecessor as the ambassador to the English rather than to England, and that he disagrees with Mr. Bayard on "almost every matter of public concern upon which men of good will may differ." Ambassador Hay has again proved that he can be courteous without letting it be forgotten that he is an American and a Republican.

THE MINERAL LAWS.

Their Application to This State a Necessity.

Vermilion Iron Journal: The action of some members of the Duluth jobbers' union who instructed Secretary Buchanan to inform Congressman Morris that the application of the United States mineral laws to Minnesota was unnecessary, will not meet the approval of the mining districts. That homestead and timber and stone rights are sufficient to encourage exploration is a position hardly to be maintained by any considerable number of people. To acquire land under either law requires a distinct denial on oath of any indications of minerals and it is impossible honestly to obtain title to lands for mineral purposes under either of them.

As The Duluth Evening Herald remarks, the mining laws in Ontario are largely responsible for the rapid development of that region and the United States laws in that respect are not widely dissimilar. It can scarcely be doubted that as valuable deposits exist south as north of the international boundary, yet the rush for properties is confined almost exclusively to the Canadian side. Nothing but the liberality of the Canadian land laws can account for this, and nothing but the application of a similar mining law to Minnesota will all the development of the mining resources of the state. It is extremely unlikely that the application of the United States mineral laws to Minnesota would induce many litigation and vexatious delay than the present land laws as many who have made original filings on lands which are of all valuable can testify.

Whether the capitalist could acquire mining properties more cheaply under the present system in Minnesota is, perhaps, the question, but there can be little, if any, doubt of the fact that the explorer, who does the hard and rough work in the hope of "striking it rich," would have a better chance under the application of the mineral laws to this state. It is to be hoped that Congressman Morris will not be deterred in his efforts to secure that application by the opposition of a small section of his constituents.

CENTRAL PARK.

New York Thinks it is Worth Fully $95,000,000.

What is the value of Central Park? If you owned it, what would you sell it for? To what extent would you be willing to loan money on it, if the city desired to mortgage it? asks the New York Journal.

These are the questions that have been racking the brain of several real estate experts in New York city lately. And they have been racked to no very satisfactory purpose, apparently, for the results arrived at are so various as to be rather startling.

The occasion of forming their estimates was an investigation by the street railway commission. One appraiser guessed that the park is worth $2.85 per square foot; another announced that the value was at least $6.60 per square foot; while a third, rather more liberal, raised the limit to $20 per square foot.

These estimates were all based on values of the adjacent property at different points, but it will be at once seen that this method was as bad as useless, for the purpose of arriving at any satisfactory approximation of the value of the park, and for this reason: All of the property bordering upon the park is especially valuable for the very reason that it does border on the park. If we cut the park into building plots, run streets through it and put up flats and houses and other structures, there would be a tremendous decrease in the value of surrounding property, and the new building property thus formed would be valued on this new basis.

As a matter of fact no appraiser can reduce the value of Central Park to figures. Its worth as a park cannot be calculated. As land for building upon, there is nothing to form a basis for comparison. The uselessness and even absurdity of attempting to appraise the land in the park by the method usually employed—that of rating it at the same average value with the adjoining property—is shown by the fact that in one case it brings out a total of nearly $52,000,000. This is more than 40 per cent of the entire valuation of the whole city for 1896, on the supposition that it is assessed at 60 per cent of its real value.

The official valuation of Central park is that fixed by the tax department, and is $25,000,000. That estimate was made almost three years ago, and still stands. The method adopted for arriving at this result was by running imaginary streets through the park and counting up the number of lots created, and estimating their value according to their location.

It is possible that the time will come when Central park will be eventually abandoned to the mercies of real estate speculators and builders, though extremely improbable. And until it is all built up and assessed by an experienced appraiser it will never receive a valuation that is not millions of dollars out of the way.

WHEN IS A WOMAN OLD?

This query on my mirror hung:
"When is a woman old?"
It clings to me and long has clung.
The answer must be told.

Ah, some are old before half way,
And some are never old,
For these but laugh life's cares away.
While those both fret and scold.

And yet it is no easy task,
However well controlled,
To answer one, if she should ask,
"When is a woman old?"

The graceful ones are all still young.
And those alone are old
Who try to make themselves look young
When age has taken hold.

The oldest ones of all the old
Are those who would look young,
For they will always fret and scold
When age's sign is hung.

As long as women cling to youth
And disregard their age
They never can be old, forsooth,
Their youth fills up the page.

Yes, some are old before their time—
Old age usurps their youth—
And some are young beyond their prime Unless they hide the truth.
—Washington Post.

A BACHELOR'S REFLECTIONS.

New York Press: No woman with a beautiful soul ever had an unlovely laugh.

A man is as fat as he looks, and a woman as fat as she wants to look.

A girl's idea of sympathy is to look grieved and pat a man's hand.

Men may talk a lot about close corsets being unhealthy, but if a girl is wise she'll wear one.

Fortune may knock at every man's door, but it is general gone by the time he can get his coat on.

Every woman keeps a list in her head of people she won't invite if she can ever afford to give a party.

HOW THE TWINS SALUTE.

Martin County Sentinel: The popular salutation of leading citizens of the Twin Cities is: "Hello! been indicted yet?"

PLEASING TRIFLES.

Philadelphia Record: "The man who never makes a hit," say the Manayunk Philosopher, "is the one who is always striking his friends."

London Tibits: "Where's that son of yours, Mrs. Mulrany, that went to London?"

"Well, sir, they tell me 'e's carrying all before him."

"Indeed! What is his profession?"

"He's a waiter, sir."

Cincinnati Tribune: "Miss Smiley has a retreating forehead."

"Yes, it's quite Grecian."

Indianapolis Journal: The commanding general of the first battle of the next war struck a Napoleonic attitude. "Men," rang out his clarion voice, "this day and hour forty kinetoscopes are looking down upon you!"

Courier-Journal: Jaysmith — Ricketts what do you say to cocktails?

Ricketts—When a cocktail is present, my dear sir, I never waste time with words.

Washington Star: "People who see airships are not so numerous as they were a short time ago."

"Yes," replied the victim of chronic skepticism, "but just you wait till the lightning bug season comes in."

Boston Transcript: Stranger—But I hear that your New England climate is exceedingly variable.

Native—Not a bit of it; quite the contrary, it is pretty much the same all the year round; continually changing.

Detroit Journal: "Oh, I've had quite enough of her."

"Way, what's the trouble?"

"She didn't give me her whole heart."

Some men want the earth, others, again, are satisfied with something equally as good.

Pittsburg Chronicle: "There is a distinct difference between the East and the West at present," observed the spruce drummer, who had just read reports of big dinners and big floods.

"Go on," replied the horse editor, who knew that escape was impossible.

"In the East there are banquets, and in the West there are wet banks."

The following remarkable epitaph is from a tombstone in one of the rural districts of Georgia:

"He kept a grocery in the wood
Until by death surprised;
His patrons always found his goods
Just as he advertised."

THE WILD ROSE STATE.

Davenport Democrat: Wild rose and he official. It is the flower of Iowa. The corn stalk remains the staff upon which the people of the state will continue to lean.

Kansas City Star: The legislature of Iowa has declared the wild rose the state flower, and the Iowa editors who visit us today should be decorated with wild roses, and if they are not procurable, then the Kansas substitutes can be used. The wild rose is fortunate in being selected as the symbol of a great and beautiful state.

Minneapolis Tribune: The Iowa legislature has adopted the wild rose as the state flower, which is just too lovely for anything. To judge from the fragrance emanating from the vicinity of the Illinois legislature, where a Lexivist approached the wrong man and gave away methods behind the notorious Humphrey bill, a skunk cabbage would be an appropriate emblem for the "sucker" state.

Davenport Republican: The wild rose is triumphant in Iowa. It has been declared the state flower. Of all blossoms the rose is the queen, of all roses the delicately tinted wild rose, which grows by the wayside on the Iowa prairies and in the outskirts of every wooded patch, is the most beautiful. The question of a state flower may not be a very weighty one, but it is one of sentiment and one that perhaps bespeaks the taste and character of the people as well as any of the thousand and one trifles that make up what are termed characteristics.

Sioux City Journal: The rose is one of the oldest flowers known and it has been cultivated in Asia and Europe since the beginning of gardening, in Eden or thereabouts, and the variety of cultivated roses is almost numberless. But the wild rose of Iowa is probably not greatly different from the wild rose of ancient times. It is now, as then, ever ready to accept the hospitality of the gardener and to reward his labors. Our native flowers are all too much neglected as we go seeking new and rare plants from other countries. A garden filled with flowers native to Iowa soil might be made a thing of beauty. Some of them are so common that we forget how beautiful they are. Others so rare that we hardly know what they look like. Put the wild rose, the golden rod, the cone flower and the wild aster in the lawn border and put it also in the Iowa gardens along with other native flowers.

GERMAN RETALIATION.

Indianapolis Journal: The American people do not look to the reichstag for the protection of American interests, and the Germans have no right to look to congress.

Chicago Tribune: The proposition made in the German reichstag to retaliate on the United States in tariff provisions evoked "great applause from the left," but it must be remembered that at present they are badly "left."

Minneapolis Journal: Some of the German statesmen are at a white heat over the willful discrimination to German trade, especially beet sugar. Their complaints are amusing considering the frantic efforts of German agrarian leaders to keep our meats and breadstuffs out of Germany.

Milwaukee Sentinel: We imported 450,000,000 pounds of German raw sugar last year. No wonder that Germany evinces immediate alarm over a move to foster competition in this country with the German beet sugar industry. The Germans protect this industry by bounties, yet they object to a policy of protection in this country.

Brooklyn Eagle: No treaty exists between the United States and the German empire, although there are treaties of former times with individual German states, especially that of 1828 with Prussia. In one sense, of course, the independence of both sides is restricted, inasmuch as no nation can permanently reserve a foreign market for its products if it closes its own markets to the foreigner. If, however, it comes to a game of euchre, Germany will be likely to find out that she by no means holds the winning hand.

Philadelphia Ledger: Count von Kanitz's speech in the German reichstag in favor of a retaliatory tariff policy against the United States may have been a better weapon than he knew. It cuts the American congress both ways, or, to change the simile, puts it between two fires. The chief articles to be affected, the agrarian leader said, were sugar, petroleum, maize, copper, cotton and the products of the hog. Of these sugar and petroleum are notoriously controlled by trusts in the United States, while pork products are handled by a few large houses which have the features though not the form of another trust. The trade in the other articles, with the exception of cotton, is of comparatively small account. If, therefore, congress protects American commerce with Germany, it must protect the trusts, which, in other respects, it is supposed to be legislating against. The paradox, however, is more apparent than real. There are ways of defeating the trusts without destroying American commerce in order to do it.

ONE GOOD LAW.

Morris Star: One of the amendments to the new election laws will hereafter put a stop to the practice of an early call of conventions in counties favorable to particular candidates, as the law now requires that all county conventions for the election of delegates are to be called by the state central committees for the same day. This law will be especially hard on Heinemin's eleventh hour see-which-way-the-cat-jumps conventions.

ONE SMART POP.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The recent junket of congressmen to attend the dedication of the Grant monument, developed an amusing situation wherein a Populist congressman who was being patronizingly coached by some apparently more sophisticated members, distanced them all in style, in being the recipient of honors and finally wound up by beating the whole outfit at their own game—poker. This might suggest to the old party brethren that a Pop very often is smarter than he looks.

SHOTS AT THE PULPIT.

Chicago Chronicle: Ian Maclaren having passed through a heresy trial is now in position to add an interesting chapter to his Drumtochty annals.

Chicago Times-Herald: A Kansas City clergyman says he "would rather see whisky given away than sold from licensed saloons." A great many persons would rather see it given away than to see it sold under any circumstances.

Minneapolis Journal: A local minister jumped on a brother for allowing a marriage to be performed in his church by a minister of another denomination. The parson jumped on, however, was loaded for he had obtained the consent of the bishop to the affair and the first brother stirred up strife for nothing. As the Scripture saith: "Brethern, let us go a little slow."

Boston Advertiser: Last Sunday another All Saints church was dedicated. Pretty soon there will be hardly a city or large town in the country without one of them. Yet saints are not the people who have the most need to hear the gospel preached. What is needed is some idea, here in Boston, for instance, to erect and dedicate an All Sinners' church?

Chicago Chronicle: Dixon, the theologian at large, the hog hallaballoo of New York city, has taken to braying again. This time he announces from the pulpit that "men have renounced religion; the ministry is in its decadence." He added that in that city only 35,000 men go into Protestant churches. He may be right, but if he is it is because there are too many Dixons in the pulpit preaching politics, preaching bicycles, preaching anything but the old faith of the fathers. It is little wonder that men and women, tired of the ramblings of the pulpit, take their bicycles on Sunday and wheel off to the country.

Puck: Rev. S. N. Sexton—My dear, I am dreadfully perplexed about securing a subject for my next Sunday's sermon. I want something new and novel; some subject that I have not preached on before. Can you suggest anything?

Mrs. S. N. Sexton—How about preaching a sermon on "Religion?"

WILL INTEREST HUSBANDS.

Mankato Review: A Duluth judge has decided, and it goes upon record in Minnesota, that for a husband to compel his wife to split wood is not "cruel and inhuman conduct." It is something to have the fact passed upon and husbands can govern themselves.

INDIA CURRY.

The use of that wholesome condiment, curry powder, in the average American family is becoming greater every year. This powder has been in general use in England since the days of Warren Hastings, and Englishmen have become very fond of it, some sprinkling the curry from a holder as an American would pepper upon his food. People living where the heat of the climate makes it necessary to use stimulating condiments in their viands learn quickly to like a curried dish or anything with this powder in it. Perhaps it is not generally known that slices of cold meat or fowl heated in a well-seasoned curry sauce and served for luncheon on a hot summer's day are better for the stomach than the cold meats alone. A curry powder is used with great success in seasoning fish sauces and vegetables as well as meats, and a little of this powder in soups adds to their flavor, says the New York Sun.

A curry powder is pulverized very fine and smooth, and usually is prepared with the following spices: Twelve ounces of tumeric, one ounce of cayenne pepper, half an ounce of black pepper, the same of paprika, six ounces of ginger, half an ounce each of cardamon seed, cummin seed, mace and cinnamon, and eight ounces of coriander seed. A bottle of the best imported India curry powder may be purchased at a small expense and will retain its strength for a long while if kept closely corked, rolled in thick paper, or put in a dark place.

In the East Indies, where curries are so successfully made, an acid fruit is commonly and cocoanut is always used with the other ingredients, which would seem unusual to us, who are accustomed to associating cocoanut with delicate cakes and dainty puddings.

Here is one recipe for Indian curry: Break open a cocoanut, save the milk and grate half the nut meat. Pour over this half a cup of fresh milk and the cocoanut milk, and let them stand in a cool place several hours. Take a boiled fowl and cut it into pieces of the proper size, removing the skin and bones and sprinkling the flesh lightly with salt. Cut a good sized onion into small pieces and put it into a frying pan with three table spoonfuls of butter; cook them five minutes, add half a chopped green pepper, and cook five minutes longer; stir in two tablespoonfuls of flour and two teaspoonfuls of curry powder and stir until it is frothy; slowly add one qint of the liquid in which the chicken was cooked, after removing the grease carefully. Now press the milk from the grated cocoanut and add it to the other ingredients with a teaspoonful of sugar. Allow these to cook slowly ten minutes. Put into a saucepan the prepared meat and strain the curry sauce over it; add the juice of half a lemon; cover the pan, and let the contents just bubble for twenty minutes; then serve. A few raisins or pieces of apricots are frequently added with the other ingredients; then the sugar and lemon may be omitted.

A MYSTIFIED REPORTER.

The other evening the head of the news staff of a local daily was standing in front of the Palmer house. An elegantly dressed young woman suddenly stopped before him and with evident embarrassment inquired the way to the Casino. The direction was given and the newspaper man added that the place was closed, says the Chicago Times-Herald.

"Closed?" echoed the woman in surprise.

"Yes; it hasn't been open for several months."

"Oh, well," she continued, "I guess it is all right, anyway. I am a stranger in the city; a gentleman and his wife from New York asked me to meet them at 8 o'clock in front of the Casino to go to the theater. I supposed we were going to the Casino. My friends evidently are going to some other theater and asked me to meet them where they thought would be most convenient for me."

She thanked him, gave him a smile which he remembered afterward, and passed on. A minute later the newspaper man threw away the remnant of his cigar. A bit of ashes, caught by the wind, fell upon his coat lapel. In brushing it off his hand accidentally touched his cravat. The scarfpin which had nestled there a moment before was gone.

"It wasn't worth a dollar, anyway," he said to himself, consolingly, "and she's welcome to it; but I'd like to know how she did it. There's a great story in that woman if I could only find her again and make her talk."

His intended visit to the theater was given up forthwith, and he began patrolling the down-town streets in search for that story. An hour later he came face to face with the woman he was looking for. She evidently had seen him first, but she made no attempt to avoid him.

"I want you," he said bluntly.

She laughed. "Well," she said, "I suppose all of us sometimes want what we can't get."

"And some of us," he added, "it seems, help ourselves to whatever we want."

"Oh, did you miss it, really?" she asked, smiling like a houri. "I couldn't help taking it, you know; really I couldn't. But it wasn't worth keeping, after all. You'll find it in your left-hand overcoat pocket."

And he did. "Come," he said, "there's a restaurant across the street. I owe you a dinner."

When the last particle of the broiled lobster had been washed down and she had told a fairy story which he mentally concluded would make at least a column, they arose to go.

"Do you know," she said, "you were pretty lucky tonight? Well, you were. When I was talking to you on the street I tried for your watch. Your coat was buttoned, and it covered the pocket so tightly that I couldn't get the watch without your noticing it. See," she continued, pointing to his tightly buttoned outcaw, "I couldn't get my hand under there without your knowing it. Notice how tight the coat is over that pocket. There's a pointer for you—always keep your coat buttoned in a crowd. Then you're safe."

The newspaper man offered to escort his companion to her hotel. She declined. He insisted. She hailed a passing hansom, jumped in, and was whirled away. He lighted another cigar and strolled toward the theater. He wondered if he would be in time to see the second act.

What he said when he reached for his watch couldn't be printed.

ORIGIN OF MEDICINES.

The fact that certain herbs and plants produce certain effects upon the human system and alleviate or cure certain ills dates back to time immemorial, says the New York Journal. Perhaps the most ancient of medicines—properly authenticated that is—is hops, which was used in the dual capacity of an intoxicating beverage and as a medicine 2900 B. C. This is attested by pictures of the plant on Egyptian monuments of that date.

Creosote was discovered in 1830 by Reichenbach, who extracted it from the tar of wood.

Potassium was discovered in 1807 by Sir Humphrey Davy.

Alcohol was first distinguished as an elementary beverage by Albueasis in the twelfth century.

Schiele discovered glycerine in 1789.

Nux vomica, which is nearly as old, is the seed of a tree indigenous to India and Ceylon.

Peppermint is native to Europe, and its use as a medicine dates back to the middle ages.

Myrrh, which comes from Arabia and Persia, was used as medicine in the time of Solomon.

Hemlock, the extract of which killed Socrates, is a native of Italy and Greece.

Iodine was discovered in 1812 by Courtois and was first employed in a hospital in London in 1857.

Ipecac comes from South America and its qualities are first mentioned in 1648 by a Spanish writer who refers to it as a Brazilian medicine.

Ergot is the product of the diseased seeds of common rye, and is one of Hahneman's discoveries.

Aconite grows in Siberia and Central Asia, and was first used as a medicine by Starck in 1762.

Hasheesh, or Indian hemp, is a resinous substance produced from the tops of the plant in India. It has been used, as has opium, since Indian history began.

Caffeine, the active principle of coffee, was found by Runge in 1820. Ordinary coffee contains about 1 per cent, Java coffee 1 2-5 per cent and Martinique 2-5 per cent.

Arnica hails from Europe and Asia, but the medicine is made from artificial plants grown for that purpose in Germany and France.

In Duluth's Social Circles.

There is no sign of an awakening of interest in social affairs. There has been little or nothing doing this week, and less in prospect for the next. A large number of Duluth people will be in Minneapolis the first of next week in attendance at the May musical festival, for it offers a treat such as is not often afforded. For the young people the coming event is the ball by Company G, at the Armory, which it is declared will be the nicest thing Duluth has ever seen. Decoration day is supposed to mark the opening of the picnic season, and little parties for that day are already being planned.

An art club is a recent addition to Duluth associations for improvement and culture, and the lines upon which it has been organized and is being carried out indicate that it will be of great interest and value to all of its members. The club will meet every second Wednesday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Westen, on East Superior street. The members bring something which they have drawn or painted during the interval between meetings. These are displayed and criticized by the critic of the club. Then at each meeting someone is selected to pose, and the members sketch that person. Their productions are then hung upon the wall, and the critic discusses each one in turn. Of course a great deal of the success of such a club must depend on the critic, and in this case the members are most most fortunate. David Erickson, the well known artist, fills that position. He is a man of wide experience, and has attained considerable prominence. His criticisms will be of vast assistance to the members. They are all workers, and the club is composed of members who intend to follow the work. There is no formal organization, and no officers and no dues.

These present and working last Wednesday evening were: David Erickson, Miss Alice Cook, Mrs. Walter Turle, Mrs. Westen, Mrs. Titcomb, Mrs. R. P. Dowse, Mrs. F. W. Paine, Miss Comstock, Miss Bull, Miss Clara Bull, Dr. Schlidt, and Mrs. Mahon.

For the men who were there as visitors Dr. Westen provided pipes and tobacco, and a thoroughly Bohemian air was given to the gathering. The members are all enthusiastic, and the club is sure to be a permanent one.

The Young Ladies' Card club met Monday afternoon with Miss Minnie MacLean, of 3 East Fourth street. Euchre was played and the prize was won by Miss Ames. It was a handsome bonbon spoon. Those present were: Misses Fitzgerald, Bradley, Ames, Schwood, Comstock, Strayer, Spencer, Simonds, Frazer, Dickinson, Martha Peyton and Living-stone.

The High School Musical society gave its annual party at the high school, and as usual, it was a very pretty and interesting event. The hall and assembly room were charmingly decorated with the colors of the school and of the different classes. The first number of a very enjoyable program was a piano solo by Miss Hilda Willoughby, after which a chorus gave Ashworth's "Blue Bottle's Fate." Miss Marion McMillan performed Blake's "Valse Song" in a spirited manner and responded in an encore. H. G. Gearhart gave a bass solo, the quartet of the society gave the "Blue Danube" waltz and the program concluded with a chorus, "The Miller's Wooing." Dancing closed the evening.

The minstrel performance to be given by the young ladies of the High School Musical society on Friday next, promises to afford a novel and amusing evening's entertainment, and will interest the young people especially. Those who saw the performance given by these young ladies last summer will remember what a success it proved to be, and what a high-class entertainment it was in every way. The utmost care has been taken in the preparation of the program and in the selection of the songs and jokes. Nothing that is the least questionable will be permitted, and the music, all new, and of the best class of minstrel productions, will be rendered by a carefully trained chorus of thirty voices. The fun will be enhanced by the fact that all the participants will appear under "noms de plume," thus mystifying their "sisters, cousins and aunts" in the audience. The following songs and chorus will be among those rendered: "Kentucky Babe," "The Frog Song," "A Leaf of Shamrock," "Elsie from Chelsea," "Baby Asleep," and other new songs. "Some remarks" will be made by R. H. Cox, and musical specialties will be given by C. W. Benson. The closing event of the evening will be a cake walk of a high order, in which five couples will take part. Great interest is being displayed by the high school scholars and their parents, and especially by the members of the senior class, for the benefit of whose paper, "The Zenith of '97," the performance is to be given.

In addition to these ships there are 32 torpedo boats, 22 of them being sea-going and of a speed ranging between 18 and 26 knots. To this must be added 8 small gunboats and 18 steamers of the volunteer fleet, capable of transporting a large body of troops. This figuring is certainly far below the real standing of the Russian southern fleet, but Russia is a country where it is next to impossible to obtain accurate information.

For the present the Russian naval forces in the Mediterannean are limited to five ironclads, the Navarin, Nicolas I. Alexander II, Admiral Scniavino and Grosiostchy, with a gun vessel and two torpedo boats, the Sirol eVliky being disabled and under repairs in the French yard at La Seyne, near Toulon.

Is Still Uncertain.

The grand jury yesterday afternoon reported three indictments to Judge Moer, after which it adjourned until Monday morning. It is now uncertain when the jury will conclude its labors. Two of the indictments returned were against De Ward Kennedy for forgery in the second degree. The third indictment was not made public, as the defendant is not yet in custody.

BLINDNESS

Brought About by the Excessive Use of Coffee.

It is well known that the Moors are inveterate coffee drinkers, especially the merchants, who sit in their bazars and drink coffee continually during the day. It has been noticed almost invariably when these coffee drinkers reach the age of 40 their eyesight begins to fail, and by the time they get to be 50 years old they become blind. One is forcibly impressed by the number of blind men that are seen about the streets of the city of Fez, the capital of Morocco. It is invariably attributed to the excessive use of coffee. This opinion has been confirmed by the opinion of European physicians living there. The noted chieftain, Mohammed Ben Zaed, the most powerful vassal of the Moorish sultan, is a striking example of the effect of excessive indulgence in the use of the bean. He is 52 years old. When he was about 41 his eyesight began to fail and by the time he reached his fiftieth year he was utterly sightless. He visited Fez to consult the European physicians there. They could do nothing for him. Then he was advised to visit Madrid and consult the famous oculist, Don Manuel de Escobedo. This experi, though he had gained a wide reputation as a specialist in eye diseases, was puzzled with this case which was not capable of pathological solution upon the basis of his past experience. He knew that the effect of coffee was of a decidedly stimulant nature and to a great extent toxic, that the excessive use of it would severely affect the nervous system and bring about conjunctivitis and keititis. Mohammed Ben Zaed was obliged to return home without having received any relief.

The most common effect of coffee poison is shown in stomach and bowel diseases.

Some people are so sensitive to this kind of poison that a single cup of coffee each morning for three or four mornings will produce some derangement of the body. If life and health are of any value, it would seem wise to stick to good nourishing food and avoid the poisons. Over at Battle Creek, Mich., a great factory is daily turning out tons of Postum Cereal Food Coffee, which has all the brilliant deep clear brown color of the Arabian berry and changes to a rich golden brown with the addition of cream. It tastes like the mild and costly grades of Java and can be digested by the weakest stomach while its ingredients are from the pure cereals, rich in albumen, gluten and the phosphates needed by nature to rebuild the gray matter in the nerve cells.

Grocers sell Postum Cereal Food Coffee. The words "just as good as Postum" are intended to deceive the public. See the red seals on the package. "It makes red blood."

SEASON OPENED TODAY.

Laws Permit Black Bass to Be Caught Now.

Today, according to the laws of the state of Minnesota as amended and remodelled by the late legislature, is the first day of the open season on bass in Minnesota waters, and that member of the piscatorial tribe is now removed from the protection of the law. Naturally the bass are now in considerable danger, particularly the black bass, for not only is that fish a particularly fine flavored fish, but he is gamy, and he is possessed of fighting proclivities that make his conquest a very exciting affray. Therefore he is especially sought after by local disciples of Isaak Walton.

The bass lives in considerable number in the small lakes of Minnesota. Those at Deerwood and elsewhere are said to be more than ordinarily well stocked this year. How this fact has been ascertained by the men who offer it, before the open season began, is unknown, but they are willing to swear to it, nevertheless. They also say that the bass will develop an extraordinary appetite for bait this year. They explain this by stating that the high water has interfered with the growth of the vegetation upon which the bass usually feeds. This drives them to shallow water to feed, and when they see a hook adorned with a tempting piece of bait they will come for it in shoals. One man says that it will be necessary to carry a club to keep them off the side of the boat, but as he has been known to exaggerate on occasions that statement is probably overdrawn.

It is certain, however, that there are plenty of bass this year, and the war of extermination will begin about tomorrow. It is regarded as a very clever thing in the law to have the open season begin on Saturday, as this permits a good many business men to leave Saturday and be among the first at the fishing grounds, at the same time allowing them to get back to work Monday morning. To be sure, this proceeding is not strictly in line with the principles of some Sabbatarians, but a large number of people started off this afternoon for the fishing grounds, though in many cases the destination was disguised.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Plans Made For a Celebration This Year.

The various Societies of the Revolution met at the Spalding last night to consider plans for celebrating the Fourth of July. The societies represented were the Sons of the American Revolution, Greysolon du Lhut chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Daughters of Liberty chapter of Duluth Daughters of the American Revolution. C. E. Lovett was made chairman and Mrs. Julia M. Barnes secretary. The sense of the discussion which took place was that a celebration should be held. It was decided to empower the chairman to appoint committees to take charge of the preparations as follows: Committee on finance, program, speakers, decorations and prize essay. Two cash prizes will be offered for the best essays by high school pupils on a patriotic subject to be selected by the committee. Some prominent speakers will be secured for the orations.

IDAHO ARSENAL ROBBED.

Wardner, Idaho, May 15.—Lieut. Linck, commanding Company F, Idaho National Guard, stationed at Wardner, has received a telegram from Mullen that a steel house where the guns and ammunition of the state military at Mullen are kept, was entered at midnight by a band of masked men who stole seventy-five guns and 800 rounds of ammunition. Lieut. Linck has wired Governor Steunberg for instructions. Linck will go to Mullen to try to recover the guns and ammunition. It is feared by many that this may be the prelude to another fierce labor war in the Coeur D'Alenes.

SOUTH AMERICAN CITIES.

Doubt has often been cast upon the claims of certain Asiatic cities, particularly Chinese cities, to the large population which has been ascribed to them, and recently there has been much reason to believe that some of the claims made for South American cities in respect to population are equally unsubstantial. The population of Buenos Ayres has, through immigration, chiefly Italian, been largely increased during the last ten years, and an enumeration made of its inhabitants in the month of January showed its population at that time to be 663,850, that of Rio Janero, heretofore regarded as the most populous city in South America. These figures cannot be effectively compared with those of any city in the United States, for it is a somewhat curious fact that by the returns of the federal census of 1890 there was no city in this country having a population between 500,000 and 800,000. The four chief cities of the country—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Brooklyn—had more than 800,000 population each; the next group, St. Louis, Boston and Baltimore, had between 400,000 and 500,000, but between 500,000 and 800,000 there were no American cities.

The municipal officials of Rio Janeiro claim for it at the present time a population of 800,000, and do not seem to be at all inclined to acquiesce in the claim of the Argentine Republic. There has been no official census of the cities of Brazil since 1890, at which time Rio Janeiro was returned as having 522,000 inhabitants. It was the first year of the new republican government in Brazil, following the abdication of the emperor in November, 1889, but how far it may be accepted as a trustworthy census is a question, for by the same enumeration the other large cities of Brazil, Bahia and Pernambuco, were returned as having respectively 200,000 and 190,000 in habitants each, though it is obvious that even numbers are rare in census returns and are an almost certain earmark of official guess work. If, however, this enumeration be accepted as thoroughly accurate, it is difficult to see how, since that time, the population of Rio Janeiro could have increased to the present figures claimed, 800,000. There has been, relatively, little immigration to it. The government is not altogether a stable one, and since the overthrow of the empire the importance of Rio Janeiro as a capital has somewhat declined. Buenos Ayres, on the other hand, has had its population steadily increased by the stream of Italian immigration. New York city and Buenos Ayres being the two foreign ports to which, chiefly, Italian emigrants go when leaving their own country, and Italian emigration is now almost at its flood in consequence of the economic conditions which exist in the home country. Buenos Ayres, it may be reasonably concluded, is entitled to the distinction which is claimed for it of being the largest city in South America. The City of Mexico, the largest city in Central America, had by the last census a population of 329,000.

DEPT. OF INTERIOR.

Chief Donoghue Also Benefited by Paine's Celery Compound.

Washington, May 15.—In all the departments at Washington Paine's celery compound has become the office expression for an ideal invigorator when one is "run down" by overwork, confining duties, or any of the many causes that result in ill health.

Here is what a prominent official in the department of the interior says of Paine's celery compound:

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office.

It affords me much pleasure to state that Paine's celery compound has been to me an excellent spring remedy, and particularly beneficial to the nervous system and digestive organs. I cordially commend its use.

M. F. DONOGHUE,
Chief of Contest Division.

Among the thousands of voluntary letters of acknowledgment for benefit derived from Paine's celery compound, there have already been published in the Washington papers testimonials from men representing every department of the national government—not only from many of the best known congressmen, but from hosts of hard-working clerks unknown outside of their immediate circle of friends. Some of them who have voluntarily endorsed Paine's celery compound are:

celery compound are:
Congressman Powers, of Vermont.
Congressman Meredith, of Virginia.
Congressman Bell, of Colorado.
Congressman Neill, of Arkansas.
Congressman Wilbur, of New York.
Congressman Grant, of Vermont.
Congressman Otey, of Virginia.
Mr. Carlisle's private secretary.
Hon. William R. Smith, superintendent United States botanical garden.
Maj. Gen. Birney.
Commodore Howell.
Lieut. C. A. McAllister.
Hon. F. H. Stickney, United States navy.

Paine's celery compound builds up the "run down" health in a sure, uninterrupted, steadfast fashion from which there can be no relapse. It wipes out unhealthy humors from the blood, opens up the skin and makes it do its full share in purifying the blood. This cleansing the blood through and through is one of the unfailing accomplishments of Paine's celery compound.

From a life-long contact with the many forms of nervous debility and impure blood, Professor Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D., of the Dartmouth medical school was led to the discovery of Paine's celery compound as the crowning achievement of an extraordinarily active and successful professional life.

No acceptable substitute for Paine's celery compound exists. Each year further accumulates evidence of the unequaled capacity of this greatest of all known remedies for restoring health and vigor.

Now that spring has come, nerves, blood and vital organs cannot remain clogged by poisonous humors nor starved by overwork and lack of sleep without great risk. Paine's celery compound is the most intelligent, wisest means anyone can employ for driving out disease and restoring healthy tone to the entire system.

ARRIVED AT LAST.

About half a dozen men were engaged in removing a safe out of a jewelry store, says the New York Journal.

Every few minutes some of them would anxiously look up from their work and around at the crowd.

Evidently they were expecting the appearance of some person upon the scene, but as yet he had failed to appear.

One of them spoke finally and said: "It must be that he isn't coming." Then he glanced at the other men to hear the remarks they might make.

"If he doesn't come, it will be the first time in many years," remarked another, and then once more he looked around at the crowd.

A third man contented himself with saying: "Well, it's the first time in my experience—"

He stopped short, for just at that instant an excited individual broke through the crowd that was standing around and in an authoritative voice shouted to the men: "Steady there, steady. Now you have it—no—hold on there. Now this way a little—pull that way. Steady there—Now!"

The man, though it is none of his business, who insists upon giving directions for the removal of anything from a parlor stove to a railroad bridge, had at last arrived.

LOVE'S REASONING.

I would not write unto her eyes,
'Tis not for those I love her—
I like their bright and steady blue;
They're like the skies above her,
They're full of soft and slumbering fires;
They're sweet as ere the May day,
They're coy too,
I love their blue—
The sweet bewitching lady.

I would not write of only eyes
'Tho' eyes are heart are soulful.
I love her sweet and winning ways
I love her spirit joyful.
I love her hand, so soft and true;
So full of warmth and feeling—
It touches mine,
So soft and fine
Confidingly appealing.

Oh, dearest mine, I cannot think
Of your sweet self dissected;
Or just, perchance, your soft brown hair
Upon my heart reflected
And sweetheart, were I to imply
That you were not perfected
You'd scorn a kiss
From love like this
And I would be rejected.

NO GOOD

Indictment in the Bornemann Manslaughter Case Held to Be Invalid.

Fault Is Technical and a New Indictment Will Be Brought.

Witnesses In the Swenson Case Are Subpoenaed For Monday.

Judge Moer this morning sustained a demurrer to the indictment against Charles and Eureka Bornemann, accused of manslaughter in the second degree. The case was remanded to the present grand jury for a new indictment. The demurrer was entered by C. O. Baldwin, attorney for the Bornemanns, and the technical ground was that the indictment did not state facts sufficient to constitute a public offense. The particular objection was that the indictment neglected to state that the alleged offense was not justifiable or excusable, and after a brief argument Judge Moer sustained the objection, and returned the case to the grand jury, continuing the bond now in force.

De Ward Kennedy was arraigned upon two indictments for forgery in the second degree, and was given until Monday morning to plead. John Conway, accused of assault, pleaded not guilty.

C. O. Baldwin, acting in place of the county attorney in the investigation cases, has subpoenaed witnesses in the Swenson bribery case, to appear Monday morning, and he will be ready for trial at that time. John Williams, Swenson's attorney, will move for a continuance to some other time.

For the present, at least, the conspiracy case against Moses Cook, Hymen Cohen and W. M. and Isaac Abrahamson, will not be taken up again. Mr. Baldwin said this morning that he had decided not to take the case before the present grand jury.

Compliment For Mr. Ely.

The Herald has been shown a copy of a collection of art studies completed by C. Hetherington. These studies are taken from the leading photographic studios of the country. Mr. Hetherington is well known to every photographer in America, and no man is better competent to judge of the artistic and beautiful in photography. Mr. Hetherington gives Duluth a representation in his beautiful work, Cook Ely, the well known Duluth photographer, having a page. A group of children "watching the circus pass," a bit of work by Mr. Ely, is shown, and it is certainly very clever. When it is known that the "studies" selected by Mr. Hetherington are from such studios as those of Morrison, of Chicago; Falk, of New York; Baker, of Columbus; Dupont, of New York, and others, the compliment to Mr. Ely will be appreciated.

Coon will fill your order for a large size upright piano as low as $155.

The ladies have for some time been working on a silk crazy quilt, which will be sold then.

Tessie Foster, an inmate of Annie Ray's place on St. Croix alley fell from her bicycle at the Bethel corner yesterday afternoon sustaining a fracture of the arm.

The case of Alfred Johnson, charged with slaughtering animals on his premises without a permit, was dismissed by Judge Boyle yesterday afternoon on the ground that proof of the killing of one animal did not prove a practice of killing, as alleged.

Miss Jones, of Maynard hall, will entertain President Harper of Chicago university, of Chicago, on his return from the Mesaba range.

The Duluth Ministerial association will meet next Monday at 10 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. parlors. The topic will be "Authority of the Scriptures," and Rev. Robert Grieve will be the speaker.

Jesse Norton, assignee for R. D. Arundell, has filed a petition containing a report of his administration and asking that a date be fixed for his hearing and discharge. He reports total receipts of $167.29, and total disbursements, past and future, of $329.08, leaving a balance of $168.21 for the creditors. Judge Moer this morning made an order setting the hearing for June 7.

THE CITY BAND IN A PROGRAM OF POPULAR MUSIC AT PAVILION SUNDAY AFTERNOON AND EVENING. ADMISSION FREE. TAKE THE INCLINE.

Mr. Thompson's Lecture.

The indications are that a large audience will greet S. A. Thompson at the First Presbyterian church next Wednesday evening, when he gives for the second time in Duluth his lecture, "What I Saw in Venezuela." The lecture itself has been greatly changed and improved since its previous delivery here, one specially interesting new feature being a discussion of the Venezuela-British Guiana boundary line dispute. It is illustrated with an entirely new and superb set of stereopticon views, showing the strange scenes of those Southern lands in all the vivid beauty of tropical color.

He is Enthusiastic.

W. E. Seelye, of Brainerd, came in today from Mine Center. Mr. Seelye recently sold some valuable mining property in the Seine River district and still has large holdings there. He is very enthusiastic as to the future of the gold fields and predicts that within two years it will be conceded to be the most important gold-producing country on the continent. He visited the Foley mine last week and saw the stamp mill at work. He says that in a three days' run it turned out $1500 worth of the yellow metal when it was forced to shut down for repairs.

A Challenge.

The men residing in the Ashtabula flats have issued a challenge to the men residing in Chester terrace for a game of baseball, to be played within thirty days, the proceeds to go to the Women's and Children's home. Both buildings have some good players. The residents of Ashtabula are inclined to believe, however, that the Chester terrace crowd are only alleged ball players, and that wind composes their principal ability. Professionals are strictly barred. The game will probably be played on Decoration day, and a small admission fee will be charged.

SOLD TO BONDHOLDERS.

West Superior, May 15.—The property of the Duluth & Winnipeg railroad was this afternoon sold on a mortgage foreclosure, being bid in for $475,629 by a representative of the bondholders. It is supposed Jim Hill is thus given a hold on the property.

Excursions to Grand Marais.

The steam yacht Nautilus will make regular trips to Grand Marais and north shore points, commencing next Monday, going up one day and returning the next. This will make a delightful excursion or fishing trip for pleasure seekers, as the Nautilus is especially fitted for this purpose, and Duluthians will be glad to learn this dainty craft will be available for excursion trips.

The Pavilion Concerts.

The usual Sunday concerts will be given at the Pavilion by the City band tomorrow afternoon and evening, and if the weather holds good and the indications are that it will, the attendance will undoubtedly be immense. An excellent program has been arranged, a prominent feature of which is Dalby's descriptive fantasie, "Twenty Minutes on the Midway Plaisance." The piece starts in duly at the Irish village, the first exhibit from the entrance to the fair grounds and ends with Hagenbeck's menagerie, including a ride on the Ferris wheel.

Adverse to Reed.

City Attorney Richards is expected to render opinion in the Reed case this evening, and it will probably be against Mr. Reed's right to take the office of city engineer, in that case it is expected that the board will reorganize Monday and that Mr. Reed will then resign and be recommended for city engineer by the two remaining members and elected Monday evening.

ABOUT SNOW BOATS.

A new sport for some parts of the Northwest is snow boating, which last winter has become a favorite pastime in many localities, says the New York Sun. Snow boats are built on the same plan as ice boats, only instead of the sharp runners these have broad bearings, something like the Norwegian skis. The prairies are filled so level with snow that these boats make great headway and sometimes travel from thirty to fifty miles an hour. Where the snow is reasonably hard they go with great velocity in almost any direction. In parts of Dakota and the more northern portion of South Dakota snow boats are recognized means of conveyance, and but for them there would be much suffering in distant and isolated sections. The boats are usually built with a knife attached to the under side of the rear runner for use in steering, and the three runners are each twelve to fifteen feet long. Equipped with the knife the boats can be sailed very close to the wind.

So deep is the snow for hundreds of square miles that straw stacks, barns and dwelling houses are no obstacles to these boats, which glide over the top of all. Numerous instances are reported where snow boat navigators have sailed up to the stove pipes and chimneys sticking out of the roofs and called to the dwellers below.

These snow boats were first used some years ago in Northwestern Nebraska, where a number of incoming settlers from Yankeedom were caught by the approach of winter and imprisoned in a few little villages south of Pine Ridge. They stayed quiet for some weeks, but as soon as the snow grew deep the inventive faculty of the immigrants set in motion an idea that soon bore fruit. Prairie schooners were fixed on runners, and settlers gayly bore away over plains toward their destinations all their possessions, their families and the horses comfortably riding inside of on platforms. This was only possible because of the solid crust on the snow, which was unusually early and exceedingly hard.

FIVE GUINEAS FOR A PLANET.

The elder Herschel was a man of kindly disposition, but, like most persons who have risen out of early difficulties, he was extremely careful of money and became wealthy, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. A traditional anecdote of his domestic life, however, shows that he could be good-naturedly generous on occasions. An old servant named Betsy was with him at the time of constructing his telescope, and his first act, on discovering the planet Uranus, was to give her a guinea, adding: "You shall have five guineas, Betsy, when I discover another."

The poor woman accepted the offer in all seriousness, and great was her interest in all her master's subsequent labors. Planets, however, even to a Herschel, are not to be discovered every day, and Betsy's hopes were long deferred. One day Herschel received a friend, to whom he had previously told the story, with the exclamation: "I have paid my five guineas."

"What!" exclaimed the friend, "have we to rejoice over another discovery?"

"No," replied the astronomer, with a benevolent smile, "I have simply paid poor Betsy in advance. You see," he added, as his visitor looked puzzled, "I often pursue these researches long after the poor woman has retired to rest. How is Betsy to know that I do not discover new planets clandestinely, and keep from her the knowledge with a mean determination to save my money? Better to pay at once."

PASSION PLAY.

How it is Produced at Coyoacan, Mexico.

The version of the Passion Play as witnessed yesterday at Coyoacan was somewhat marred by the rain that came on in the afternoon, which necessitated the crucifixion being held inside the church instead of on the artificial Calvary in the churchyard, but the preliminary procession took place as usual in the open air, says the Mexican Herald.

The character of this procession is well known to all old-time residents of Mexico. An image of the Savior, dressed in a purple robe, crowned with thorns, and bearing His cross, is carried on a platform round the churchyard, surrounded by Roman soldiers, Jewish priests and crowds of the faithful bearing lights. On the same platform with the Savior are the Cyrenian, a part taken yesterday by a young boy, Cruz Rivas, dressed in crimson and white, and three little girls representing angels, dressed in white muslin with silver gossamer wings, they had handkerchiefs to one eye, as if grieving over the sorrows of the Redeemer, while with the other they calmly surveyed the crowd in front of the procession walked two bands, the first performing the monotonous music of the indigenous race, consisting only of the beating of the drum and the piping of the chirimila, the second rendering modern selections in excellent style. Only these selections were somewhat incongruous, such as waltzes, polkas, etc.

During the procession the three falls of the Savior are represented. It is a tradition among Catholics that Jesus fell three times under the heavy weight of the cross on his way to Calvary. The image is constructed with hinges, so as to fall forward when desired. At this time a sermon was being preached by Father Avila. At the times when the images halted near the pulpit, which was placed under an umbrageous ash tree, he addressed the Savior or His mother, who was dressed in purple, with the sword of grief transfixing her breast, in the most earnest and pathetic terms.

The churchyard at Coyoacan is well shaded with trees, and the procession, as it wound under them, made, with the entire setting, the venerable and weather-stained old church building and the motley and picturesquely attired crowd, a most effective and impressive spectacle. The dresses of the Roman soldiers were of purple, green, scarlet and yellow, generously bespangled, and they were furnished helmets with enormous plumes of the brightest colors. The white-bearded Jewish priests wore their gorgeous vestments with horned mitres, and over the procession waved flags of black, orange, purple, white and vermilion. Yet coarse as these components may be, taken singly, they made an effective scene taken altogether.

Madam Calderon de la Barca, who saw the Coyacan Passion Play fifty-six years ago, thus notices this general harmony of effects:

"Everything looked gaudy when near, but as the procession wound along under the broken arches and through the green lanes, and the music became fainter upon the ear, and the beating of drums and the tolling of bells and the mournful chant were all blended into one faint and distant harmony, the effect was beautiful. I thought of the simple service of the Scottish kirk, and of the country people coming out after a sermon, with their best Sunday gowns on, and their serious, intelligent faces, discussing the merits of their minister's discourse; and wondered at the contrasts in the same religion."

After the procession the people formed in two long lines in front of the pulpit, and the crier, Manuel Rivas, on horseback, careered backward and forward, thundering forth the sentence of Christ. At times his horse became unmanageable, and as it started to bolt, his words were almost lost in his efforts to rein it in. The people at this juncture made no attempt to repress their hilarity.

Apolonio Rivas, the manager of the representation and one of the most substantial residents of Coyoacan, kindly gave the text of the sentence to the Herald representative. The following is the translation of a part: "I, Pontius Pilate, president of Lower Galilee and governor under the Roman emperor, do judge and sentence Jesus of Nazareth as a seditious man and an enemy of the mighty Emperor Tiberius Caesar. And I determine that his death be on the cross, fixed there with nails, in the manner customary with criminals. For, gathering around him many men, both rich and poor, he has not ceased to provoke tumults throughout the whole of Judea, proclaiming Himself the Son of God and King of Israel, and prophesying the downfall of Jerusalem and the destruction of the Temple of Solomon. I decree that the first centurion, Quintus Cornelius, shall lead him through the streets of Jerusalem to be a scoff and a byword. After having been scourged he shall be dressed in mock state so as to be known by all, and the cross to which he is to be nailed he shall bear on his shoulders. And he shall walk through the most frequented streets between two thieves, who have been condemned to death for robbery and murder. And I, furthermore, ordain that, as an example to malefactors, he shall issue from the Antonine gate, preceded by a public crier, who shall proclaim all his misdeeds, and on arriving at the hill of Calvary, where evil doers and other miscreants receive their meed, he shall be nailed to the cross, and over his head shall be placed an inscription in the languages most widely spoken, viz: Latin, Greek and Hebrew, saying, Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews."

After Manuel Rivas had vociferated this sentence he handed it to the priest in the pulpit, who, as in Madam Calderon's day, "received it with a look of horror, tried to read it and threw it on the ground with an air of indignation."

Owing to the shower that came on very soon after the crucifixion, the casting of lots for the seamless coat and other incidents of the Passion Play were represented inside the church. Each episode as it passed before the eyes of the people was explained by Father Avila, who occupied the pulpit. When the figure of Christ was taken down from the cross it had grown quite dark and the procession of people carrying candles and accompanying the body to the tomb made the most picturesque feature of the entire ceremony, especially as seen from a distance.

NEW YORK'S SEAL.

Two Hundred Years Old and Will Be Laid Away.

In September, 1685, Thomas Dongan, governor of the province of New York, wrote to England that "a new seal of this province was very much wanted, and ye people extraordinary desirous to have ye King's seal to their patents and other papers that concern them." Notwithstanding this recommendation, no seal was provided for the province of New York until Aug. 11, 1686, two years later, when a warrant was issued for it by King James II, says the New York Sun. The seal in this warrant was described as "engraven on the one side with our royal effigies, on horseback, and arms, over a landskip of land and sea, with a rising sun and a scrole." On the other side were the royal arms with the garter, crown, supporters and motto with this inscription on the circumference, "Sigilum Novi Eboraci." Such was the seal of the city of New York during the period of the English supremacy, but prior to that time the original and now restored seal was used—the Dutch seal of Dutch New York. It had its origin in Dutch times when the chief commercial activity of the townsmen of old New York was displayed in the purchase of furs from the Indians and nothing was so potent in bringing about a truce as gunpowder, whisky or beads. The contracting parties were sailors and Indians. Hence there are on the seal a sailor and an Indian, representing the traders, and two beavers and two barrels, representing articles traded in. The windmills of Holland, celebrated in the seventeenth as well as in the nineteenth century, also are represented, and the four arms serve for the quarterings. An eagle surmounts the shield.

The first seal for New Amsterdam, was granted in 1654, the city having been incorporated the preceding year. For this the seal of the duke of York was substituted under Governor Nicolls, in 1669, and it was continued in use until 1686, when the first acknowledgement of the Dongan letter was made from London, the warrant authorizing the seal following the year after. When Thomas Dongan resigned his office he turned over the seal of the city to Sir Edmund Andros, who afterward filled with the colonial secretary of state in London an extract from the published direction of James II. Though antiquarians do not observe it, grammarians will remark that the spelling of this otter of instruction is somewhat primitive particularly as regards the word "we."

"And, whereas, since our accession to the crown, wee have appointed a new seal for our Colonies of New England, as also another seal for our Province of New York, which being now united under one government, Wee do hereby direct and require that the seal appointed for the said Colonie of New England, be hence forth made use for all that our territory and dominion in its largest extent and boundaries aforementioned, and that the Seal for our Province of New York be forthwith broken and defaced in your presence."

Such was the ignoble end of what was known as the English seal of New York and here on the Dutch soil was restored, but it is now a question whether, for the Greater New York it will not be necessary to establish a new seal for the new city. Though Brooklyn was originally settled by Hollanders, as New York was, Brooklyn makes no claim to the Knickerbocker descent and there has recently been some talk of the establishment of a Greater New York seal designed to have representation upon it of the two large cities in the new municipality and perhaps some representation for Queens and Richmond counties.

Indictment in the Bornemann Manslaughter Case Held to Be Invalid.

Fault Is Technical and a New Indictment Will Be Brought.

Witnesses in the Swenson Case Are Subpoenaed For Monday.

Judge Moer this morning sustained a demurrer to the indictment against Charles and Eureka Bornemann, accused of manslaughter in the second degree. The case was remanded to the present grand jury for a new indictment. The demurrer was entered by C. O. Baldwin, attorney for the Bornemanns, and the technical ground was that the indictment did not state facts sufficient to constitute a public offense. The particular objection was that the indictment neglected to state that the alleged offense was not justifiable or excusable, and after a brief argument Judge Moer sustained the objection, and returned the case to the grand jury, continuing the bond now in force.

De Ward Kennedy was arraigned upon two indictments for forgery in the second degree, and was given until Monday morning to plead. John Conway, accused of assault, pleaded not guilty.

C. O. Baldwin, acting in place of the county attorney in the investigation cases, has subpoenaed witnesses in the Swenson bribery case, to appear Monday morning, and he will be ready for trial at that time. John Williams, Swenson's attorney, will move for a continuance to some other time.

For the present, at least, the conspiracy case against Moses Cook, Hymen Cohen and W. M. and Isaac Abrahamson, will not be taken up again. Mr. Baldwin said this morning that he had decided not to take the case before the present grand jury.

Compliment For Mr. Ely.

The Herald has been shown a copy of a collection of art studies completed by C. Hetherington. These studies are taken from the leading photographic studios of the country. Mr. Hetherington is well known to every photographer in America, and no man is better competent to judge of the artistic and beautiful in photography. Mr. Hetherington gives Duluth a representation in his beautiful work, Cook Ely, the well known Duluth photographer, having a page. A group of children "watching the circus pass," a bit of work by Mr. Ely, is shown, and it is certainly very clever. When it is known that the "studies" selected by Mr. Hetherington are from such studios as those of Morrison, of Chicago; Falk, of New York; Baker, of Columbus; Dupont, of New York, and others, the compliment to Mr. Ely will be appreciated.

THE CITY BAND IN A PROGRAM OF POPULAR MUSIC AT PAVILION SUNDAY AFTERNOON AND EVENING. ADMISSION FREE. TAKE THE INCLINE.

Mr. Thompson's Lecture.

The indications are that a large audience will greet S. A. Thompson at the First Presbyterian church next Wednesday evening, when he gives for the second time in Duluth his lecture, "What I Saw in Venezuela." The lecture itself has been greatly changed and improved since its previous delivery here, one specially interesting new feature being a discussion of the Venezuela-British Guiana boundary line dispute. It is illustrated with an entirely new and superb set of stereopticon views, showing the strange scenes of those Southern lands in all the vivid beauty of tropical color.

He is Enthusiastic.

W. E. Seelye, of Brainerd, came in today from Mine Center. Mr. Seelye recently sold some valuable mining property in the Seine River district and still has large holdings there. He is very enthusiastic as to the future of the gold fields and predicts that within two years it will be conceded to be the most important gold-producing country on the continent. He visited the Foley mine last week and saw the stamp mill at work. He says that in a three days' run it turned out $1500 worth of the yellow metal when it was forced to shut down for repairs.

A Challenge.

The men residing in the Ashtabula flats have issued a challenge to the men residing in Chester terrace for a game of baseball, to be played within thirty days, the proceeds to go to the Women's and Children's home. Both buildings have some good players. The residents of Ashtabula are inclined to believe, however, that the Chester terrace crowd are only alleged ball players, and that wind composes their principal ability. Professionals are strictly barred. The game will probably be played on Decoration day, and a small admission fee will be charged.

The Pavilion Concerts.

The usual Sunday concerts will be given at the Pavilion by the City band tomorrow afternoon and evening, and if the weather holds good and the indications are that it will, the attendance will undoubtedly be immense. An excellent program has been arranged, a prominent feature of which is Daby's descriptive fantasie, "Twenty Minutes on the Midway Plaisance." The piece starts in duly at the Irish village, the first exhibit from the entrance to the fair grounds and ends with Hagenbeck's menagerie, including a ride on the Ferris wheel.

Adverse to Reed.

City Attorney Richards is expected to render an opinion in the Reed case this evening, and it will probably be against Mr. Reed's right to take the office of city engineer, in that case it is expected that the board will reorganize Monday and that Mr. Reed will then resign and be recommended for city engineer by the two remaining members and elected Monday evening.

ABOUT SNOW BOATS.

A new sport for some parts of the Northwest is snow boating, which last winter has become the greatest pastime in many localities, says the New York Sun. Snow boats are built on the same plan as ice boats, only instead of the sharp runners these have broad, flat bearings, something like the Norwegian skis. The prairies are filled so level with snow that these boats make great headway and sometimes travel from thirty to fifty miles an hour. Where the snow is reasonably hard they go with great velocity in almost any direction. In parts of North Dakota and the northern portion of South Dakota snow boats are recognized means of conveyance, and but for them there would be much suffering in distant and isolated sections. The boats are usually built with a knife attached to the under side of the rear runner for use in steering, and the three runners are each twelve to fifteen feet long. Equipped with the knife the boats can be sailed very close to the wind.

So deep is the snow for hundreds of square miles that straw stacks, barns and dwelling houses are no obstacles to these boats, which glide over the top of all. Numerous instances are reported where snow boat navigators have sailed up to the stove pipes and chimneys sticking out of the roofs and called to the dwellers below.

These snow boats were first used some years ago in Northwestern Nebraska, where a number of incoming settlers from Yankeedom were caught by the approach of winter and imprisoned in a few little villages south of Pine Ridge. They stayed quiet for some weeks, but as soon as the snow grew deep the inventive faculty of the immigrants set in motion an idea that soon bore fruit. Prairie schooners were fixed on runners, and settlers gayly bore away over plains toward their destinations all their possessions, their families and the horses comfortably riding inside of on platforms. This was only possible because of the solid crust on the snow, which was unusually early and exceedingly hard.

FIVE GUINEAS FOR A PLANET.

The elder Herschel was a man of kindly disposition, but, like most persons who have risen out of early difficulties, he was extremely careful of money and became wealthy, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. A traditional anecdote of his domestic life, however, shows that he could be good-naturedly generous on occasions. An old servant named Betsy was with him at the time of constructing his telescope, and his first act, on discovering the planet Uranus, was to give her a guinea, adding: "You shall have five guineas, Betsy, when I discover another."

The poor woman accepted the offer in all seriousness, and great was her interest in all her master's subsequent labors. Planets, however, even to a Herschel, are not to be discovered every day, and Betsy's hopes were long deferred. One day Herschel received a friend, to whom he had previously told the story, with the exclamation: "I have paid my five guineas."

"What!" exclaimed the friend, "have we to rejoice over another discovery?"

"No," replied the astronomer, with a benevolent smile, "I have simply paid poor Betsy in advance. You see," he added, as his visitor looked puzzled, "I often pursue these researches long after the poor woman has retired to rest. How is Betsy to know that I do not discover new planets clandestinely, and keep from her the knowledge with a mean determination to save my money? Better to pay at once."

PASSION PLAY.

How it is Produced at Coyoacan, Mexico.

The version of the Passion Play as witnessed yesterday at Coyoacan was somewhat marred by the rain that came on in the afternoon, which necessitated the crucifixion being held inside the church instead of on the artificial Calvary in the churchyard, but the preliminary procession took place as usual in the open air, says the Mexican Herald.

The character of this procession is well known to all old-time residents of Mexico. An image of the Savior, dressed in a purple robe, crowned with thorns, and bearing His cross, is carried on a platform round the churchyard, surrounded by Roman soldiers, Jewish priests and crowds of the faithful bearing lights. On the same platform with the Savior are the Cyrenian, a part taken yesterday by a young boy, Cruz Rivas, dressed in crimson and white, and three little girls representing angels, dressed in white musin with silver gossamer wings. They held handkerchiefs to one eye, as if grieving over the sorrows of the Redeemer, while with the other they calmly surveyed the crowd in front of the procession walked two bands, the first performing the monotonous music of the indigenous race, consisting only of the beating of the drum and the piping of the chirimia, the second rendering modern selections in excellent style. Only these selections were somewhat incongruous, such as waltzes, polkas, etc.

During the procession the three falls of the Savior are represented. It is a tradition among Catholics that Jesus fell three times under the heavy weight of the cross on his way to Calvary. The image is constructed with hinges, so as to fall forward when desired. All this time a sermon was being preached by Father Avila. At the times when the images halted near the pulpit, which was placed under an umbrageous ash tree, he addressed the Savior or His mother, who was dressed in purple with the sword of grief transfixing her breast, in the most earnest and pathetic terms.

The churchyard at Coyacan is well shaded with trees, and the procession, as it wound under them, made, with the entire setting, the venerable and weather-stained old church building and the motley and picturesquely attired crowd, a most effective and impressive spectacle. The dresses of the Roman soldiers were of purple, green, scarlet and yellow, generously bespangled, and they wore burnished helmets with enormous plumes of the brightest colors. The white-bearded Jewish priests wore their gorgeous vestments with horned mitres, and the three runners are each twelve to fifteen feet long. Equipped with the knife the boats can be sailed very close to the wind.

So deep is the snow for hundreds of square miles that straw stacks, barns and dwelling houses are no obstacles to these boats, which glide over the top of all. Numerous instances are reported where snow boat navigators have sailed up to the stove pipes and chimneys sticking out of the roofs and called to the dwellers below.

dents of the Passion Play were represented inside the church. Each episode as it passed before the eyes of the people was explained by Father Avila, who occupied the pulpit. When the figure of Christ was taken down from the cross it had grown quite dark and the procession of people carrying candles and accompanying the body to the tomb made the most picturesque feature of the entire ceremony, especially as seen from a distance.

NEW YORK'S SEAL.

Two Hundred Years Old and Will Be Laid Away.

In September, 1685, Thomas Dongan, governor of the province of New York, went to England that "a new seal of this province was very much wanted, and ye people extraordinary desirous to have ye king's seal to their patents and other papers that concern them." Notwithstanding this recommendation, no seal was received for the province of New York until Aug. 11, 1686, two years later, when a warrant was issued for it by King James II, says the New York Sun. The seal in this warrant was described as "engraven on the one side with our royal effigies, on horseback, in arms, over a landskip of land and sea, with a rising sun and a scrole." On the other side were the royal arms with the garter, crown, supporters and motto with this inscription on the circumference, "Sigilum Novi Eboraci." Such was the seal of the city of New York during the period of the English supremacy, but prior to that time the original and now restored seal was used—the Dutch seal of Dech New York. It had its origin in Dutch times when the chief commercial activity of the townsmen of old New York was displayed in the purchase of furs from the Indians and trading was so potent in bringing about a trade as gunpowder, whisky or beads. The contracting parties were sailors and Indians. Hence there are on the seal a sailor and an Indian, representing the traders, and two beavers and two barrels, representing articles traded in. The windmills of Holland, celebrated in the seventeenth as well as in the nineteenth century, also are represented, and the four arms serve for the quarterings. An eagle surmounts the shield.

The first seal for New Amsterdam, was granted in 1654, the city having been incorporated the preceding year. For this the seal of the duke of York was substituted under Governor Nicolls, in 1669, and it was continued in use until 1686, when the first acknowledgement of the Dongan letter was made from London, the warrant authorizing the seal following the year after. When Thomas Dongan resigned his office he turned over the seal of the city to Sir Edmund Andros, who afterward filed with the colonial secretary of state in London an extract from the published direction of James II. Though antiquarians do not observe it, grammarians will remark that the spelling of this otter of instruction is somewhat primitive particularly as regards the word "wee."

"And, whereas, since our accession to the crown, wee have appointed a new seal for our Colonies of New England, as also another seal for our Province of New York, which being now united under one government, Wee do hereby direct and require that the seal appointed for the said Colonie of New England, be henceforth made use for all that our territory and dominion in its largest extent and boundaries aforementioned, and that the Seal for our Province of New York be forthwith broken and defaced in your presence."

Such was the ignoble end of what was known as the English seal of New York and here on the Dutch seal was restored, but it is now a question whether, for the Greater New York it will not be necessary to establish a new seal for the new city. Though Brooklyn was originally settled by Hollanders, as New York was, Brooklyn makes no claim to the Knickerbocker descent and there has recently been some talk of the establishment of a Greater New York seal designed to have representation upon it of the two large cities in the new municipality and perhaps some representation for Queens and Richmond counties.

SHOCKED

Rev. C. H. Patton Greatly Disturbed Because of the "Girls' Minstrel Show."

Has Entered a Protest With School Authorities, Calling it Demoralizing.

The Scholars Feel Insulted at the Reflections Made Upon Them.

Rev. Cornelius H. Patton, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational church, learned through the papers recently that a girls' minstrel show was to be given in the High School Assembly hall next Friday evening. The idea conveyed to Mr. Patton's mind by the title of the proposed entertainment was apparently something decidedly off color, for he immediately became shocked, and decided to enter a protest, with most excellent intentions undoubtedly.

He did enter a protest. He went to John Loman, principal of the high school, and to R. E. Denfeld, superintendent of the Duluth schools, and laid his protest at their feet. It was a strong protest and Mr. Patton utterly and absolutely objected to the giving of a girls' minstrel show in one of the public schools of this city. He besought the public school officials whom he approached to place a veto upon the project. He argued it; begged that it would never do, that it was demoralizing; that it would be a disgrace to the school system of Duluth, and to the fair name of Duluth itself. He intimated that an exhibition of the kind proposed could be nothing short of vulgar, and that the moral sense of the community would revolt at it.

He alleged, furthermore, that the pupils who were to take part in it were doing so without the consent of their parents, who would be as sternly opposed to it as he if they knew all. He also asserted that the participants were to appear under assumed names, so that their identity might be concealed.

This is true, but from the premises the reverend protester argued that this course was taken because the performers were ashamed of their actions, and did not want to have the public know that they were taking part in such scandalous doings. This Mr. Patton urged in support of his objections as proof that the performers themselves were aware of the reprehensibility of their conduct in taking part in a girls' minstrel show."

These and other objections Rev. Cornelius H. Patton urged upon the school officials, and asked them to veto the performance. He alleged that minstrel shows are uniformly offensive to good taste and good morals, and he said that a minstrel show given at the Lyceum recently was exceedingly unseemly, if not worse, and if not deserving of more scathing adjective qualification. It does not appear that his objections moved the officials to whom he presented them. They had entirely different ideas of the performance to be given, and they endeavored to convey those impressions to Mr. Patton. He insisted upon his protest, however, and it is stated that it was his intention to go before the school board tonight and ask it to revoke its permission for the use of the Assembly hall for the entertainment.

Mr. Patton is in Minneapolis, to remain until some time next week, so he could not be seen by The Herald representative who called at his house this morning for the purpose of hearing his side of the story. As he is not in the city we will not be before the board tonight, but we may present his views in a written communication.

These high school pupils who are to take part in the performance next Friday night are decidedly indignant at the assertion that there is to be anything offensive to the most delicately sensitive morals in their entertainment. Beyond the fact that they will appear in burnt cork complexions there is nothing at all startling about the performance. There will be a regular old-style, first part, with bones, tambo, interlocutor in jokes, songs, etc., but the projectors of the entertainment have not even dreamed of introducing into the program anything in the least degree objectionable.

Upon hearing that Rev. Cornelius H. Patton had stated that their parents had not given their permissions, each and everyone of them straightway proceeded to obtain written permissions. The entertainment is to be given to pay the expenses of publishing the Zenith, the annual publication of the high school.

SIX-DAY RACE.

Lady Riders Will Start Next Monday.

H. O. Messler, who has charge of the ladies' six-day race next week for the rink management, has everything in readiness, and at 8:30 o'clock Referee Philip Pastoret will give the word "go" that will start all the champion lady riders of the Northwest on their six-day grind. The race is to include the 12-hour championship and there will be two hours' riding each evening. The riders arrived in the city yesterday and are stopping at the Hotel St. Louis with their managers and maids. They include all the stars: Miss Dottie Farnsworth, the Minneapolis whirlwind; Miss Lizzie Brooks, Miss Minnie Hokenson and Babe Wellington, of Minneapolis; Miss Helen Baldwin, known as the queen of the Wheel, of San Francisco, and Miss Lillie Harp, of Chicago. A. A. Hansen, the well-known cyclist, "The Nail-marker," as Miss Farnsworth's manager, while Otto Wartensoin, the well-known trainer, looks after Miss Baldwin's interest.

Manager Wray is to divide $300 in five prizes with the riders riding 200 miles and over during the race, and will also give an additional $100 purse to the winner for the breaking of the 12-hour record. The girls tested the track last evening taking an hour's spin, and pronounce it very fast, and no doubt some new records will be established in the coming race. The rink is to be beautifully decorated and the city band has been engaged to furnish music. Seats will be provided for 3000 people.

FARE 50c ROUND TRIP.

Many Want Work.

There was a crowd of applicants for work at the office of the board of public works this morning, all of whom had to be notified that all places had been filled. The great majority of those who have applied are deserving, but, it is stated by some of the city officials that there are a good many who have let other opportunities go by and have waited in idleness for weeks to get on the work because they thought the work was easy and the pay good.

THE SMALLEY CONCERT.

Finest Ladies' Quartet Which Has Been Here.

The Smalley Concert company did not have a large audience last evening at the First Methodist church, but those who were there had a treat. The quartet is a magnificent one, the best ladies' quartet ever heard here. Their voices blend perfectly and there is an artistic finish in their work which tells of the training and cultivation which they must have had. They sang eight or nine numbers, responding to encores very generously.

The solos were excellent. Miss Esther May Plumb, the first contralto has a voice of unusual richness and sympathy. Miss Marie Louise Perrine has a brilliant soprano which she uses admirably. Miss Gertrude Sprague has a wonderful voice. It is called a contralto, but it really goes to baritone in some of the tones. She controls it perfectly and is a very artistic singer. All of the selections were admirably chosen.

Miss Carruthers, the reader, did not make so good an impression. Her style is a little too much on the effervescent, overflowing order. Her best number was the "Gypsy Flower Girl," which was well done.

Plans For Their Stay.

If the American Institute of Mining Engineers finally decide to come to Duluth next July, they will be taken to Ely on a special train over the Duluth & Iron Range railroad and return the same day to Tower, where the night will be spent. The next day the trip will be concluded by a run over the Mesaba range. On returning to Duluth the party will divide up, part of it going west to Montana and the remainder going to Michigan to see the copper mines. The officers of the Duluth & Iron Range, Duluth Missabe & Northern, Minnesota Iron company and Consolidated mines are using their influence to secure the Institute for Duluth, and the prospects are that their efforts will prove successful.

Class Adopts Resolutions.

The freshman class of the high school, at a special meeting held this week, adopted the following:

"St. Clair Nicholls, our dear schoolmate, who passed beyond this life, has left a deep impression of worth upon the friends who remain to mourn her, and the memory of her sweet but short life will always be tenderly cherished.

"Therefore be it resolved, that we express our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family of her who was called from our midst after long and patient suffering to be gathered into the arms of her loving Savior."

Stockholders' Liability.

J. J. Letourneau, a judgment creditor for $110.90, yesterday began a suit to enforce the statutory liability of the stockholders of the Duluth Title Insurance company. He alleges that the defendant is insolvent, that its debts exceed $2000, that the capital stock is $500,000, but that only $25,000 has been issued. The stockholders are alleged to be as follows: W. A. Pryor, H. A. Wing, Charles Hamlin, G. L. Gorton, C. P. Craig, N. J. and A. J. Miller, C. H. Graves, C. R. Normandy, N. J. Upham, J. D. Stryker, A. M. Pierce, G. W. Buck, L. M. Manley, W. O. Pealer, Cash & Williams, O. P. Stearns estate. Dibell & Reynolds are the attorneys.

Is Being Abandoned.

The Minnesota Iron company's ore shaft No. 5 at Soudan is being abandoned, the ore in it having been exhausted. The pumps and mining appliances are being removed and the shaft is to be taken down.

No New Cases Reported.

There have been no cases of typhoid fever reported thus far this month. Last month quite a number were reported, and various theories have been set afloat to account for the falling off. One is that the immunity this month is due to the fact that there have been no prolonged blows from the northeast. The theory is borne out by the records of the health department, it appearing from them that more cases are reported in periods of continued northeast gales.

Stealing Barbed Wire.

James Coad, living at Carlton lake, has reported to the police that his place was robbed several days ago, for the third time within a few months. This time the thieves got away with 100 pounds of barbed wire, 75 pounds of fish, a plow, 15 bushels of potatoes and a lot of ammunition.

M. Pastoret has also reported that about 100 pounds of barbed wire was stolen from his place near the poor farm recently. The wire was missing the next morning after it had been strung.

Chicken Thieves Abroad.

The residents of Duluth Heights are faced with the alternative of keeping their chickens in the house, building chilled steel hen houses with time locks, or giving up chicken raising. Chicken thieves are abroad there every night. Whole flocks are taken at once, and there is not a chicken fancier in the locality who has not been the victim of foul play.

DID A GOOD JOB.

Christ Nelson's Assailant Battered Him Well.

Christ Nelson put in an appearance at the city hall yesterday afternoon with a countenance that looked as if it had been run through a sausage machine. The effect was produced, he alleged, by a shovel in the hands of Robert Heney, a watchman at the Ironton Structural Steel plant. Nelson had lost two teeth, but was long on scars, having a gash over the left eye, one on the scalp and several cuts in the face. He also had got it in the neck, there being a deep gash just below the ear, evidently made by a corner of the shovel. Nelson said that he was standing on the sidewalk near the works when Heney came out and assaulted him.

Heney, who was brought in on a warrant this morning, says that Nelson was the aggressor, first assaulting him with the shovel. Heney pleaded not guilty of assault and his trial was set for Tuesday morning, he being released on his own recognizance.

Health Officer Murray says that it may be possible that no teams will be needed for general cleaning of streets and alleys this year, owing to the fact that the work is being generally done by the property owners. The result has been rendered possible, he said, by the comparatively large number of inspectors employed. In any event there will not be over a tenth of the work for teams that there has been heretofore.

DULUTH EVENING HERALD.

SATURDAY, MAY 15, 1897.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Across the Tea Table.

Spring is no longer a dream of hope, but a realization, though each day this last week has been suggestive of "the uncertain glory of an April day." However, that is a blessing, the showers have been productive of so much good. The seeds sown some weeks ago have sent forth their green heralds, the soft rolls upon the trees are unfolding into leaves, the grass is a beautiful glorious green covering for the brown earth and the dandelions—well, the dandelions are exquisite. But, oh, what a nuisance! It is only in the first sense of welcoming the color and life of spring that we can realize how beautiful they are. They have become a serious menace to our lawns and gardens, and only by a concerted effort on the part of everyone are we going to be rid of them. They should not be allowed to seed. Owners of vacant lots should see to it that the neighbor next door whose lawn has been newly sodded does not suffer by reason of the crop of dandelions raised near there, and the woman in need of exercise and fresh air and sunshine will find nothing more healthful that the effort to rid her lawn of these. Armed with the proper utensils, a long sharp gardener's fork, a pair of heavy, old gloves, a broad sun hat and energy and ennuity to the dandelion, a good morning's work will prove a blessing to quite a large plot of ground. Dandelions will, I fear, have to be licensed to grow hereafter by municipal sanction. We will yet see the city fathers taking the matter in hand, and each owner of a crop of dandelions gone to seed will have to pay a fine, just as each owner of a dog without a brass tag will merit the strong arm of the law to bring him to a realization of his duties to the community.

One is tempted to dwell upon the nuisance of dogs. Dogs and dandelions are sometimes more than lovers of flowers and laws can stand. Dogs to trample over the tender seeds, to lie down on the cool freshly watered garden beds, to bury a bone beneath the soft shade of some loved shrub. Well one must confess there are things in life which bring greater joy to one's neighbors than the ownership of a dog. We take down our fences and enclosures because municipal action allows no straying pigs and cows in the street. Why are dogs any more to be commended than these? They are quite as ill mannered, quite as productive of harm, quite as much of a nuisance and terror to many people as either of the above named domestic animals. The long suffering patience with which we endure dogs is purely American, I believe, and to hear the tales of woe poured forth by those whose soul is not attuned to dog worship is enough to make those who listen and hear registered a vok to enter upon a dog crusade. Owners of dogs probably are very fond of them. They have a right to be. Certainly the friendship between dog and man is sometimes very beautiful. But owners of children do not inflict them upon the care and homes of others without tacit consent on the part of these and wherefore should dogs be allowed to roam unmolested, to jump upon visitors calling in their best spring outfit, to growl and bark at intruders and generally make themselves obnoxious. I confess it would be joy to many to see the dog catcher abroad, and to have some action taken whereby owners of dogs should know and feel some responsibility in regard to their possessions; to teach them the rights of other people and to have them acknowledge as they should, that if they own a dog he should be taught to behave himself and keep within his own domain.

In reading Smalley's article in the May Harper on "English Country House Life," there seems to be one little warning which stands out as if written in letters of fire. This phrase might well be written out as a rule for the conduct of life everywhere; it might serve as a copy-book axiom to be instilled into the mind of youth for future benefit in after life. It is, "Never take a liberty." It is the foundation of all genuine friendship; the unwritter law which should govern all refined social intercourse; the positive command which insures respect and dignity between husband and wife, sisters and brothers, father and mother and children. So long as we respect the rights of mine and thine, the dignity of each other's personality, just so long is the relation existing pleasant and agreeable. When one takes a liberty with another's belongings, hours, habits of life, plans and mode of living, not to speak of personal belongings, then intercourse is not a mutual pleasure, but a constant protest on the part of one at least against encroachments of the other. Familiarity everywhere, not alone in England, will ring the death-knell of friendship. Most women who have been reared amid refined surroundings have been taught to resent and protect themselves against intrusion of any kind; but sometimes occasions arise when protest seems useless, even the voicing of a protest seems like making a great matter out of a very small one, and the only thing to do is to bury one's resentment and let it go; but one cannot help thus feeling more strongly against those who are guilty of want of delicacy and generosity. A novel, which made more impression on me than I can ever realize, was Charles Reade's "Put Yourself in His Place." Not so much for the story, which is certainly stirring enough, but for its suggestions. It is not alone the ignorant who refuse to see the rights of others, and the little subtleties of conduct which mark intercourse between all truly refined people, but the selfish. These last are the great offenders, and against them there is no appeal; they are utterly incapable of putting themselves in another's place, for their point of view is entirely obscured by a great big self. They can realize no desires, hopes, rights or life but their own, and they are utterly incapable of enlarging their perspective. Mr. Smalley's little text might be enlarged on greatly; it is in substance the text upon which Mrs. Lynn Linton preaches happiness in married life. The art of visiting is one of the greatest and hardest to acquire, and the woman who visits much must realize, as Mr. Smalley's successful visitor did, that her own interests, wishes, plans and life must be subservient entirely to those in whose household she becomes a guest. It all resolves itself into the old, old rule, the Golden Rule, we learned away back in the good old days when children learned their catechisms and Bible texts—"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you"—in the matter of dandelions, dogs, visiting, and everything in life, and take Smalley's motto to heart, "Never take a liberty."

There is so much to think of in the spring that the May days slip by almost before we know it, so softly does the summer come upon us. But to the woman whose mind is ever alert for the good of her household there comes the realization that the table needs her attention and forethought. Appetites are so apt to flag; children especially feel the need of fresh food and coaxings with dainty cooking. The long strain of the school year is telling upon growing girls, and it is not alone air, exercise and repose that is needed in generous measure in the spring, but the acids and salts in the foods that the blood demands. Fruits supply this in the best form, salads also play their part, and lettuce and tomatoes, spinach, asparagus, pieplant and strawberries all make a tempting array in the windows of the greengrocer. Pies and puddings have, or ought to have, taken their departure with the oyster in the R months. Though one pie a fruit pie, still holds its place in the list, and that is rhubarb—though one can take away the unwholesome suggestion of pie-crust and make a glorified tartlet with less pains and trouble than the pie would be. Line some patty pans with a puff paste which has lain a day upon ice, thereby making it flaky and crisp; bake these to a delicate brown and set away to cool. Just before serving fill them with stewed pieplant which has been generously sweetened and delicately stewed, and cover the top with a stiff meringue which should be set in a cool oven a few moments to brown. Placed on a pretty napkin on a plate, these look appetizing, and are far more tempting than a large pie, the under crust of which is seldom baked on account of the juice from the plant. The sauce made of this, if carefully cooked, is a pleasant addition to luncheon, and its properties make it a healthful, wholesome addition to any table in the spring time. Tomatoes appeal to one as salad, and they are very good this way, but they are also very good as an addition to meat. They can be sliced in rather thick slices and rolled in egg and flour and fried to a delicate brown; they also have an acid which is good for the blood. Lemons as an addition to broiled or fried fish are a positive necessity in the spring. In fact at any time, and the list of vegetables, if changed each day, will make any table wholesome in its attractions. Nowadays we buy in such small quantities that there is little loss to the householder if buying just enough for one meal. But there is a certain disadvantage about this to the close buyer. It does not leave anything for the possible guest. Now, you and I know, my dear Modern Woman that we always hear that possible guest in mind when buying. It does not count in the long run and seldom goes to waste, and the generous buyer for her own family, though never wasteful, does not count months in supplying food. Besides, if she has a well-regulated household, she has stores hidden away in that preserve closet of hers which can be drawn upon. Canned vegetables in small quantity should always be kept on hand, and then there is no possible chance for one to be taken unawares. However, eschew the canned things in the spring, serve only the very freshest of fruits and vegetables, and above all, see to it that it is appetizingly arranged.

There is more than one can tell in the arrangement of the table to foster appetite and prevent dyspepsia, our national disease. We all acknowledge that poorly cooked food is the fundamental cause of nearly a part of summer life and add so much to the general good of a community. Of course work and study in clubs is carried on more vigorously in winter, but the results show in the summer time when the aim of gatherings is merely that of pleasure. There is no accomplishment which gives so much pleasure to others as this, and none that seems so wise for women to cultivate if they have a spark of genius. Even the feeblest little ray gives pleasure to someone perhaps, and is a cultivation of self. An unmusical woman seems almost as great an anomaly as an irreligious one, both attributes seems so appropriately a part of the feminine makeup, perhaps on account of that old-fashioned idea we have of the ideal woman who is a ministering angel to all needs and fences of the masculine; she who possessing all gifts and accomplishments can soothe and charm all temperaments if she be so minded. I must confess to a genuine love for the musical woman, if she is gifted and feels her music; she is greater than the clever woman, the artistic woman, the intellectual or domestic woman because she appeals more readily to people. And she is on a plane which can be reached by almost anyone. Be she clever, domestic, artistic and intellectual, great is she. She can play upon more souls, reach more natures, bring pleasure and happiness to more people than any other; she can interpret her music and suit it to the needs of her hearers; she can reach that musical keynote which is the soul of humanity. Therefore, my dear Modern Woman, with all of thy getting, get musical training if you wish to shine as a social light. An elderly spinster, who has been observing on her way through life, wrote me not long since, her views on the subject of celibacy. Summed up they read like this: "Marry—well if you can—if not marry anyway; any woman is better off and happier with a husband, even if he is a poor excuse." The last part one might hesitate to indorse in view of modern divorce laws, but it applies in a general way to the musical training of woman. Play something, or sing—well, if you can; if not do the best that your talents will allow; any woman is happier if she only appreciates music in others, and much happier if musical herself. AGATE.

AMONG THE PLANTS.

We are in the middle of May, and this coming week the main crop of seeds can be planted, but, dear readers, I want to tell you that I do not sell seeds. Some have thought that I did because I wrote about them; but I had no ax to grind and I would not want The Herald to do my advertising that way, for newspaper men have pocketbooks not over full, like mine own. I forget to tell you to plant your dwarf nasturtiums in poor clayey soil; they give a much better display of flowers if you do, and do not water them after they get a good start or they will be all leaf growth. I have found no better place for them than a dry shelf; that is in the greenhouse, outdoor, where they dry out quickly. They give more blooms if neglected than they do if they are overfed. Don't forget the sweet alysum, it makes a pretty bordering, and by all means sow a packet of coreopsis in the back of the border it grows eighteen inches to two feet thick and is lovely for cutting. Mignonette and sweet peas may still be sown. Put in plenty of seed, one seed for yourself, two for the bugs and three for bad weather and look out that the bugs and weather dont beat you out of your share. This rule will apply to all seed sowing out of doors. You can get a list of what to sow from the catalogues, and some of you know as much or more about it than I do, but there is one thing I want to call your attention to, that is this: Last fall I there stood a vase of cut blooms of this plant at the flower show at Panton & White's last year. It is a funnel shaped flower, something after the shape of a slipper plant, but the colors are wonderful and they are veined beautifully. As I stood by the table I decided that everyone was interested in them and wanted to know their name, and I wrote the name for some and they declared they would have some the next year if they could, and I mention it now as a reminder. I think you can find it in the seed boxes. I ought to have thought of it last week, but it will grow all right if sown a week from now if you want it beautifully.

Some of my customers are getting on the anxious seat to get geraniums planted out, but do not put cut mine or your own until May 24th, unless there is every prospect of an early spring and no more frost. Better to be slow and sure.

Look ahead for an edging for your beds. The pretty flowers of Lobelia compacta make a lovely border. You cannot sow these, but they are cheap plants still it costs money to get them, but they are pretty. Verbenas pegged down and kept in place are also pretty to edge a large border with, while for a permanent edging of white, the dusty miller is nice for foliage, and the new achilleas, white and pink, are first rate bloomers and they are always there.

Look out and don't overwater your window boxes when they are first planted. I know of some that were nearly drowned and the plants never got a good start for that reason. Also have the same care with the newly planted pansies; one watering is enough when they are small, for a baby does not want as much as a man who is working hard in the hot weather; it would drown the poor infant.

Now be good to your garden this year; make it pretty. Everything you plant will not do well; do not expect it to, and don't expect all creation out of 5-cent packet of seed. You do not get it out of a nickel cigar, but I will wager you can get more pleasure from the seed than from the cigar. Plant as much as you can yourself; then you will find more enjoyment in it, and if Mr. Gladstone can cut down his own trees, surely you can spade up a flower bed. Try it once. E. C. LINDSAY,
The Lakeside Florist.

THRILLS HISTORIC BLOOD.

Mayflower's Log to Be Given to Massachusetts.

Boston, May 15.—Not for years has the colonial blood thrilled in the veins of the historic families of the old Bay state as it thrills now at the prospect of receiving into the solemn keeping of the commonwealth the sacred log of the Mayflower, that former Ambassador Bayard brings from England.

The Pilgrim fathers, who left their native land on board the Mayflower in 1620, bequeathed to their children a detailed chronicle of all their doings in the form of a manuscript book, entitled "The Log of the Mayflower." This volume, destined to acquire a unique importance as an historical document, was compiled, says an English writer, by William Bradford, one of the foremost members of that devoted band which set forth into the unknown for conscience sake, and subsequently governor of Plymouth colony, and within its pages were recorded the names of all the pilgrims and the chief incidents of their voyage and ultimate landing at Cape Cod. But "The Log of the Mayflower" did not end with the voyage. Its narrative was continued as a history of the formation of the first settlement at New Plymouth and of the general colonization work of the next twenty-eight years. The inclusion of an official register of baptisms, marriages and funerals added a legal importance to the historical value of this authoritative account of the origin of New England. Nothing is definitely known, however, of the transference of this valuable document from the new country to the old beyond the fact that it has long been stored at Fulham palace with other archives of the diocese of London, of which the colonists were a part before 1776. But at last the historic "log" is to be restored to the commonwealth of whose earliest beginnings it forms so precious a relic.

COVER OF THE MAYFLOWER LOG.

At the application of the United States ambassador, the consistory court of London has decided, with the approval of the bishop, to hand over the volume to the president of the United States, photographic copies being kept for the diocesan registry and the episcopal library at Fulham palace. This ready and graceful acquiescence accorded to Mr. Bayard's request may be construed as the result of the "era of good feeling" between the two nations which he has striven so much to foster in the last four years. As an evidence of good will from England to the United States, it is another link to bind the great English-speaking nations together and to further that long-dreamed-of federation of all the people that speak Shakespeare's tongue. The formal transfer of the "log" to the governor of the state will be accompanied by a demonstration of historical and civic societies fitted to the august occasion. Mr. Bayard will make the speech of presentation and Governor Wolcott will formally accept the chronicle in behalf of the state.

THE RIOTS

Brief Sketch of an Interesting Episode in Duluth's History.

Was Exciting at the Time But is Almost Forgotten Now.

Attorney C. F. Hopkins Gives Some Recollections of the Memorable Affair.

To many the riots of July, 1889, are as a memory of yesterday, but a great number of the citizens of Duluth, even if they have heard of the matter, are not acquainted with the particulars and hardly realize that hostile bodies of men were arrayed against each other, with arms in their hands and that triggers were drawn to kill. There was trouble for three days, July 3, 5 and 6. It was on the last day that matters became serious. On that day there was a hot engagement between the strikers and police, a battle being fought at Michigan street and Seventeenth avenue west, in which there was continuous firing on both sides for half an hour. Three men were either killed outright on this occasion or died as a result of their wonds. In this conflict the police numbered 127 and the strikers about 1500. There were brave men among the latter, but discipline carried the day.

On July 2 the first men went out, the trouble being precipitated by the action of the council on the preceding Monday, in fixing the wages of city employes. The force employed in the Michigan street trenches of the gas and water company, about 450 in number, went out first, their grievance being a refusal to pay them $1.75 instead of $1.50 per day. They were joined by others, and the crowd, now numbering nearly 1000, marched to the West End shipyard, where they stopped operations there. There was no violence and the interruption was not for long, the shipyard men being at work again within a couple of hours. The assemblage dispersed after making an effort to get some of the sawmill men who were still working, to join the movement.

On the next day, July 3, a number of strikers gathered at the rock cut on First street, near Seventh avenue east, and stopped the work on the cut. A squad of police was sent to the scene, but the strikers dispersed without trouble. Had they been so disposed, the latter could have given the police severe treatment, as the latter have since admitted. The strikers were posted in large numbers on the edges of the cut, with convenient missiles in the shape of pieces of rock ready at hand. The small squad of police was marched right into the cut under the strikers. Had the latter chosen, they could have literally crushed the little force under a storm of rock. But the bitterness that characterized the succeeding encounters had not yet been aroused and the crowd contented itself, in the main, with making uncomplimentary remarks.

At this point occurred one of those laughable incidents that stand out in memory after the more somber details have lost their original distinctness of outline. It was after the mob had almost wholly dispersed. Two or three officers were sitting on a piece of plank laid across a couple of boulders. One of them was Lieut. Dwyer, since dead. While the lieutenant was intently watching the dissolving crowd of strikers, one of the other officers produced a large cadmon firecracker, which he had picked up no one knows where, and putting it almost directly under the lieutenant touched it off. With a yell that could have been heard a mile, the lieutenant shot up into the air for a distance that has been variously estimated at from six to fifteen feet. It was really a pretty severe joke, for the cracker was a powerful one and was set off at pretty short range. The lieutenant himself was not injured, however, but his trousers were badly mangled.

On July 5 the strikers gathered again to the number of about 1500. They marched up Michigan street, with an American flag at their head, to Seventeenth avenue west, where they tried to stop a gang of seventy trench men that were at work. The strikers came in contact with a squad of police here and were driven into Garfield avenue, being thrown into a panic. Men fell over each other in their frantic efforts to get away from the clubs of the police. A butcher's wagon was caught in the swirling eddy of human beings and horse and wagon were overturned by the pressure, the horse being thrown flat on his back. Men were crowded and jammed through windows and trampled under foot. One basement entry way, into which a flight of steps descended, was full to the level of the walk with human beings and other fugitives ran over this human causeway. After this rout the strikers dispersed, to gather again the next day, when the great battle took place.

The strikers first gathered in front of the old postoffice on Fourth avenue west, but did not make their final start for the West End until afternoon. At 4 o'clock the police on guard at the trenches on Michigan street at Eighteenth avenue west, were notified that the strikers were approaching on Third street. At Twentieth avenue west and Superior street the strikers halted and were addressed by some of their leaders. The police marched to meet them here, but the strikers made a flank move on the trenches and began throwing rocks at the police. The latter formed in two squares and began firing and for thirty minutes the battle raged. It was here that some of the strikers were killed and wounded.

An incident of this occasion that will bear repeating is the attempt of a large dog belonging to Jailer McEwen to get a child of Mr. McEwen's in out of harm's way. The child and the dog were standing near the corner of Garfield avenue and Michigan street when the firing began less than a block away. At the first volley the dog seized the child by the waist with its teeth and began to drag it toward home. The child fell down, but the dog kept right on and at last reached the front of the house with his charge, the latter dirt stained and with torn clothes, but safe. When the child descended the steps leading from the sidewalk to the house, which was several feet below the grade, the dog stationed himself at the top and when the child tried to ascend to the street again, where it would have been in range of the bullets, deliberately nosed it back again.

The following is the graphic description of one of the combats given by Attorney C. F. Hopkins, who was an unengaged eye witness.

"No overt act was committed so far as I know, and I do not remember of an arrest being made prior to the first day of the riot. My offices and home were, at the time, near the scene of the first strike, and I had a more or less intimate personal acquaintance with many of the laborers, as well as with the contractors and the police force. At night after the daily march was completed, meetings were held by the strikers in secluded places—alleys and vacant lots—where plans were laid for the next day's campaign. At many of these meetings I was present on the outskirts, but could catch very little of the plans, as they were mostly conducted in languages with which I had no acquaintance. The crowd marching in the procession increased daily, and finally all public work was practically at a standstill, notwitstanding the fact that the contractors on the Michigan street sewer had placed a flaming placard on their works announcing their willingness to pay the coveted $1.75 per day.

"At last the police, who had hitherto acted strictly on the defensive, determined to bring matters to an issue, and on July 2 determined to break up the daily procession and disperse the participants. At about 2 o'clock in the afternoon of July 2 the mob was expected to arrive at the place on Michigan street where the strike originated, and before that time the officers had formed their line across the street and awaited the onslaught. I was stationed about 100 feet from the line, and in full view of all the proceedings. The strikers came from the east on Superior street, turned at Sixteenth avenue west, now known as Garfield avenue, and turned again at Michigan street, where the ditch was open as they had left it, some days before. The mob was composed of many nationalities. Fins, Huns, Scandinavians, Italians, French, Polish, and possibly a few Irish, and as they deployed on Michigan street, their rear was like nothing so much as that of wild beasts. It was not a cry, or shriek, or yell, but a rumbling like a railroad train, or the distant muttering of thunder. Across their path stood the with Capt. McLaughlin in the center, and flanked by Force, Hayden, Nelson, Donavan, McManus and others, whose names I do not now recall. As the forces met the leaders of the strike paused, while the rear ranks pressed on until for more than half a block the street and sidewalk were filled with a moaning and muttering mass of humanity. At this juncture McLaughlin stepped in front of the policemen's rank and probably made a speech. What he said will never go down to posterity, as his voice was drowned by the ominous murmur of the mob, which, for the first time since its inception, had met a check. Whatever was said by the captain I cannot tell, but he threw his hands in the air and danced about, until a big Irishman, who stood near me, ejaculated: 'Good for ye, Mickey, Mac. Phwat an illegant figure ye would make at the Donnybrook fair gin yer club wer only a bit of blackthorn.'

"I remember that Mac had his club in one hand and a little pop gun in the other; whether by accident or design the revolver was exploded, and fortunately the bullet hit no one, but I still have an unpleasant recollection of the zip of a bullet that passed near enough to me to make things interesting. Instantly on the discharge of the captain's pop came a fusillade from the whole line of blue coats, but all fired carefully in the air; then out came the clubs, and the fun began. The place of conflict was about the middle of the block, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth avenues west, and on the margin of a mud hole, which, for years, had accumulated a job lot of slime, sewerage, dead cats and other delectable substances. As the force charged, the strikers, hemmed in from the rear, made desperate efforts to escape the fast flying billies of the officers, and in doing so many of them tumbled over the railing and fell in the bog, whence they emerged, like Darius Green from the barnyard, covered

'With straw and chaff
And much that wasn't so sweet by half.'

"I remember one fellow who passed me after emerging from his involuntary bath. He was a picture of filth from head to foot. Mud, slime, dead leaves, dirt of all descriptions were very much in evidence, and in addition to all he had evidently received a cracking blow from a policeman's baton, which had caused the blood to flow in huge streaks down his face and neck. I have not now and never had the least idea of his name, owing to his coating of blood and dirt, but as he passed he looked up at me with a shamed-faced grin and said, 'Gud dag, Meester Hopkins.' My own impressino is that it must have been anything but a 'gud dag' for him.

"As soon as the officers charged, the line, or rather mass, of strikers melted. There was an American flag at the head of the procession, and genial Ed Force, secretary of the police department, an old soldier and trained no doubt thereby, must have had his weather eye on it from the beginning. At any rate, no sooner had the charge commenced than Ed waded in 'with blood in his fist and his eye doubled up,' and knocking the rioters right and left as he advanced, soon caught the standard bearer and captured the emblem of American liberties and law. Ed was about as rotund in those days as now, and as he retired in good order with the flag under his arm and the staff ahead, he reminded me of the bow and jibboom of a Dutch galliot running before a spanking breeze. The capture of the flag was the last act in the first day's riot. I cannot speak of the second day, when the most blood was shed, as I was out of the city. I know that I removed my wife and little one to the security of Lakeside on the third day, but the intrepid valor of the department had removed every source of danger and my family soon returned.

"Fortunately the department was able to cope with the difficulty, and residents at the scene of warfare slept in security. It is related by members of the old force with great glee, but I believe it a libel, that one patrolman, fearing the results of the conflict, left the battle and found refuge under the bed of his own domicile. His mother-in-law, seeing his boots protruding beyond the sanctuary, hauled him out ignominiously and said, 'Get a wiggle on you, ye spalpeen, and go fight for yer country while yez have a chance, or never face the likes of me again,' whereupon the recreant officer girded his loins and on the second day of the fight was found in the thick of the conflict. To me all the officers were heroes, and I cannot feel anything but proud when by chance the flap of a blue coat flies back and I see the glint of the well-earned medal which the 'veterans' wear. Unarmed, badly organized, with almost no experience, they stood shoulder to shoulder in the conflict, and by their firmness and courage preserved our peace and the good name of our city. I believe they were all brave, and that not one drop of coward blood could run in the veins of that platoon which faced overwhelming numbers and scattered them as chaff."

THE MOTHER'S CORNER.

Conducted by a Kindergartner.

"Women know
The way to rear up children (to be just.)
They know a simple, merry, tender knack
Of tying sashes, fitting baby shoes,
And stringing pretty words that make no sense,
And kissing full sense into empty words;
Which things are corals to cut life upon,
Although such trifles."

They know a tender, loving plan of soothing pain and tears, a sweet and earnest way of knowing that the little woes of the miniature men and women are very real and hard to bear alone; they have a wise and merry way of being playfellow in the happy moods, steadfastly honest, just and unbending in the wayward ones and becomes a very world of passionate love and harmony in all the moments that come between. What does not a mother know? What must she not feel and be to the little world around her? A woman who is noble and pure, one who strives always to reach the highest and the best, who thinks, reads and studies to keep in the current of the times, grasping and accepting its new responsibility and seeking ever new possibilities. She is a perfect woman nobly planned to lead first faltering footsteps, to comfort all the woes from babyhood to manhood, to help, to warn, and to guide and yet never quite too bright or good for any amount of baby fun and frolic; for steady never failing sympathy and interest in whatever occupies her family, little or big. She becomes absorbed in knowing all about marbles, kites or baseball so that her son will never feel that "mother doesn't care about what, at the time is his most absorbing interest; she is sure to know all about games, friends and stories that she will be left out of nothing in their planning, their wishes and companionship. So intimately a part of everything that all must be done well because of her ideals and her silent omnipresence.

"Mother" means so many things to us all—so many things that we cannot express—can only feel. What satisfies us today tomorrow we find wanting because we have advanced a step and each day takes us onward toward the mountain top if so we like. Wise men of all times have proved for us that whatever we really wish to do we can do and whatever we sincerely wish to be we can attain. For the wish is ever father to the deed and it is the action—the trying that makes us stronger and capable of better action and we have grown to know that he who ceases trying fails in duty to God and to his fellow creatures.

Someone has said that a mother has a sacred claim on the world; even if that claim rest solely on the fact of her motherhood, and not, alas, on any other. Her life may be a cipher, but when the child comes, God writes a figure before it, and gives it value." But who of us would have our claim rest on the motherhood alone? Who would not be a Cordelia with her noble motherhood rather than one whose sons and daughters grow up to feel that they could have been better men and women "without mother?" Once born into the world these sons and daughters have rights which we must respect. One is so tempted to meddle with a baby's rights and privileges—he is so wee, so helpless and so completely ours that it is hard not to feel that "I can do what I please with my own child." But it is harder still to feel that "this little being that I have forced to come into this world has a right to all that I can give it of the best that is in me." Not whim nor caprice, nor a comfortable faith in kind providence, or blind superstition, but knowledge which will give a genuine, free, happy childhood—a true, pure, happy manhood or womanhood. And now we feel so helpless and what shall we do to learn all the things that we should do or should not do.

In her little talk last Saturday afternoon Miss Hofer gave us many suggestions. The most helpful way, she said, was to join a mothers' club. To gather close together with others who are seeking, striving, loving, and strength and knowledge will go from one to another and grow in the passing. Even if one does go to one or two or even four or five meetings and do not hear perhaps the particular thing that you wish to hear, you may have helped someone else by your presence perhaps or by an experience of your own or silent sympathy, and if one mother is benefited surely your time is well spent and you are but giving humanity what it has a right to expect of you—a little help to a higher standard.

Dear mothers it must be you who have to struggle through many failures and heartaches because of not knowing what to do who will be the first to declare that there must be still higher education for your daughters than that which we have gained these past few years. Miss Hofer told us of a wonderful school in Germany where the daughters of the people learned to be "home makers." All the science of living, of making and keeping homes is taught by thoroughly capable directors. From early dawn till bedtime these blue-eyed flaxen haired Gretchens perform all the duties of a housewife with three little children tugging at her skirts, asking questions, crying, demanding constant attention and love from her. When her own little nest is ready will not her failures be fewer because of the practical experience and well directed studies of these model homes.

Let us add another subject to our school curriculum. We have training for all the trades and professions in life. To all things else man must serve an apprenticeship and to this most important of arts and sciences—that of motherhood, there is no real preparation. Little mothers, think of it, talk of it, fight for it. Bring it before the "left wing" of the family guard who usually retreats during active engagements as Mrs. Wiggan says in talking of fathers, and with the magic of together nothing will be impossible not even a school board and the education of our children will be well rounded and complete.

AMONG THE SPORTS.

The event of present prominence in local sporting circles is the annual field day of the Duluth Central High School Athletic association, which will take place next Saturday afternoon at the fair grounds. The fair grounds are more accessible than has been afforded for previous field days, and the outlook is that the attendance will be large. The boys are working hard and have been for some time, the list of entries will be large, and the events themselves will be of a nature calculated to best create interest. The events, eighteen in number, will be as follows: Fifty-yard dash, quarter-mile bicycle, 100-yard dash, mile run, pole vault, 120-yard hurdle, shot put, mile bicycle, 220-yard dash, running broad jump, half-mile run, standing broad jump, 440-yard dash, hammer throw, 2-mile bicycle, running high jump, 220-yard hurdle, half-mile bicycle.

Harry Meining, who during his school days was the fleetest high school boy when it came to sprinting, is training those who will enter the foot events, and he has some promising material. There is good material, also, in the entries in all the events, and the field day will be the best yet given, judging from present indications. There will be a strong incentive for hard work in the fact that the winners will make up the field and track team which goes to Ashland May 29, and to Minneapolis June 5 for the contest with the Minneapolis high school team.

The last game of indoor baseball of the season took place at the Armory Monday evening, and after a very exciting game the team from Company G won out over the team from Company A by a score of 3 to 0. This makes the two teams even for the season. Indoor baseball has had a fair trial during the latter part of the season, and it has proven itself to be a popular game. It cannot, of course, be compared to the outdoor game, but for a winter game it is exciting enough.

At a meeting of Company G held Wednesday evening it was decided to form an outdoor baseball team. Henry Meining was made captain, and Will Chapman manager. There is good material in the company for a ball club, and the best at hand will be used. The club is talking of taking a trip over the range to play the clubs in the different range towns.

The following account of an exciting junior ball game is contributed by one of The Herald's youthful friends, who says in the note accompanying the game that it stimulates the boys to see accounts of their games in the paper. That is true, and The Herald will be pleased to publish the accounts of games, line-ups of teams, etc., that are sent in. The account follows:

"The baseball teams of Lakeside and of the Endion Athletic association met in an exciting game of ball last Saturday. Five innings only were played. At the end of the fifth, which was about 6 o'clock, the score was 31 to 27. In favor of the Endions. It was now supper time and several of the Endion team were compelled to go. Captain Moore endeavored to make arrangements with Capt. Richards of the Lakesides, to play the remaining four innings next Saturday, but Richards would finish the game on the spot or play the entire game over again. During the dispute half the Endion team had departed and Moore could not accept the first terms and to play the entire game over again was too much to ask. To go out to Lakeside and play half of the game in the rain, and to call this a practice game was enough to raise the temper of a saint. This is the direst deal any Endion team has ever received. McCombe's pitching was fine, fanning out seven men in five innings to the four men the three Lakeside pitchers fanned. The catching of a high and difficult foul by the Lakeside catcher is well worth mentioning. This is the first game the Endions have played this year, and the second of the Lakesides, who were beaten by the Centrals last week by a close score."

The annual meeting of the Endion Tennis club was held Saturday afternoon in the office of Eryhegrer & Johanson. The following officers were elected: Directors, F. W. Paine, C. M. Johanson, H. W. Reichert, Ward Ames, Jr., A. W. Taussig; secretary and treasurer, D. W. Stocking; house committee, F. W. Paine and C. M. Johanson. The courts at Eleventh avenue east have been put in shape for the season and are all ready for playing. The club has about twenty-five active members, and their names were submitted at the meeting.

The Y. M. C. A. is completing arrangements for tennis grounds on the Mendenhall property at Lake avenue and Fourth street, and the intention is to have two double courts.

The Y. M. C. A. juniors are making arrangements to camp at Pike lake after school is out. The outing will be for about two weeks, and it will be in charge of James K. Driver, the physical director.

The long talked of championship match between those two grand old masters of the checker board, Wyllie and Martens, began at Glasgow on April 21, before a large audience of the devotees of that delicate pastime. Twenty-six games are to be played in Glasgow and a like number in Manchester, the winner of the majority to be declared the premier of the old world. Wyllie and Martens are undoubtedly the wariest and the best of all foreign checker players. They are old and finished students of the game, with few, if any, superiors in the world, and the match has created much interest among the rank and file of draughts on the other side. These two old veterans are the players who, in a large measure, popularized this old-fashioned sport in the metropolitan European cities, and gave it an impetus, by infection, on this side of the pond. They are both still marvelous players and a most interesting exhibition will be afforded spectators.

I had a long and interesting talk down at Paxton the other day with Jimmy Barry, the champion bantam of the world, says Sandy Griswald in the Omaha Bee, and in speaking of the late Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight he said: "Like you, I think the first real effect blow was delivered in the third round, when Fitz landed a smashing right on Jim's stomach. Up to that time Corbett was all smiles and confidence, and he kept looking over to our box—you know I was with Parson and Al Smith, right alongside of the box, you remember—and nodding knowingly as much as to say 'he's easy.' But he quit his grinning after Bob gave him that poke, and I at once made up my mind that all was not well with the big fellow. In the fourth round every time they worked over to our side of the ring I called out and motioned to Jim to feint him more. Finally he seemed to appreciate what I meant, but he gave me a peculiar shrug of the shoulders, which said as plain as words could have done, 'I'm tired.' And he was tired, too. You know what a speedy gait they went in the first three rounds. Well, that had done the business for Corbett, but had he been in condition he ought to have been just getting good then. When a man can't feint, you can bet your life he's tired. Now, you have seen me fight several times and you know my methods are not unlike Corbett's. I have the greatest faith in feinting a man, and I keep right at it as long as I am strong. Nothing bothers an opponent like feinting at him. He can form no idea when you are going to cut loose. Keep right at it and the opportunity for a good punch is bound to come. That has always been Corbett's style, and strong and well I think he could whip any fighter in the world. The man who walks right up to the scratch and fiddles a moment and then thrashes away with both hands is easy goods for a cool and collected fighter. The man who feints well will land the coin every time. But Corbett was not strong at Carson. Had he been, many of the blows he landed on Bob's mouth would have put him on his beam ends. But none of them did. They hardly jolted his little nut in the least. I do not believe he was punished much. When a man goes down from a punch in the face, or when his head goes back on his shoulders, you can make up your mind he is getting hurt. I was a Corbett man and his plan of battle was highly displeasing to me. He wouldn't or couldn't feint, all his springy motion was gone and he shuffled to and from his chair as flat-footed as a duck. In spite of another fight do I not think he would win? No, I don't, that is unless he could get in 100 per cent better form than he was at Carson, and the chances for that are small."

Fitzsimmons figures that he has defeated Choynski by defeating Peter Maher. But Choynski will not accept this collateral sort of mathematics. Choynski boxed him to a draw, and once in that contest had him at his mercy. He says Fitzsimmons has not defeated him directly, although he had a chance to do so, and no matter how many heavyweights he has defeated he cannot justly claim superiority until he defeats him. But Choynski and his manager are anticipating. After the contest with Smith they may have a right to demand a hearing.

Dan Creedon and "Kid" McCoy are just a little nearer to a match than they were a week ago. Col. Hopkins has posted a forfeit and formally challenged the clever middleweight for Creedon, and now all McCoy has to do is to accept the challenge and cover the forfeit. Creedon is the only logical match for McCoy in this country, and it does not seem possible for him to escape. Both are proper middleweights, and both claim to be the champions of that class. McCoy has been heralded as a wonder, and if he would hold the high place he has got into he must meet Creedon. If he refuses he must sacrifice much of his reputation as a middleweight boxer.

Glove contests of the ordinary sort are no longer popular in the East. The clubs have given so many contests since last fall that men of moderate ability are no longer able to draw a good house. It is only the few who rank well up in their respective classes that can bring out good crowds. Choynski and Smith, Creedon and McCoy, Maher and Sharkey and a few of the crack welters and lightweights are the only ones that can command a good purse at present. It is so dull that Tom O'Rourke talks of taking Walcott and Dixon to California for a few bouts.

While in the East looking after Choynski's interest in his coming contest, "Parson" Davies will challenge Tommy West for Billy Stift. For six months past Stift has been making an effort to get a match with West, but West has evaded him. In New York West expresses a willingness to meet any of the middleweights, but when Stift quietly asks for a match he ignores him. At the same time he declares he would be glad to met Stift. West will now get a chance to declare himself publicly, as Stift proposes to get a definite answer from him if such a thing is possible. Stift makes a very fair proposition. He says he will journey to New York where West is, pay all his expenses and box him for the best purse offered, and he leaves it to West to say how the purse shall be divided. If West will agree to meet him he will post a suitable forfeit in New York to guarantee his appearance in the ring. There is nothing left for West to do now but say he will or will not meet the Chicago middleweight.

John V. Crum, the noted Iowa sprinter, died last week at the Mercy hospital, Des Moines, of appendicitis, and the sad event has cast a gloom throughout collegiate athletic circles. Crum had barely reached his twenty-fifth year, was a native of the Hawkeye state, his parents still residing at the village of Bedford. He was a graduate of the collegiate department of the state university in the class of 1894 and of the law class of 1895. His fame as a sprinter increased rapidly after the intercollegiate meet in 1894, and he was regarded as the typical athlete of the Western universities. His appearance was awaited with great interest at the intercollegiate meet in 1895, which was held June 2. His sister had gone to Chicago and sat in the grand stand to watch her brother run. The preliminary heats of the 100 yards dash, were the most interesting events ever held in Chicago in track athletics. In them were Stuart, a ten-seconds man from St. Albans; Scoggins, the fastest runner of the university of California, and all the fastest men in the West. The race developed into a contest in which were Crum, Scoggins and Stuart. Crum was, as usual, a little slow in getting away, but before the forty yards had been passed caught up and passed his competitors, and the great assemblage of college men present at the meet that year were disappointed, for he ran down the stretch like a flash, leaving his competitors near the tape and setting a new record for the Western colleges. He ran in ten seconds, and he received a rousing reception from the crowd in the grand stand. He was victorious in several races in 1895 at the state meet in Chicago, beating the world's amateur record in the Western intercollegiate meet. He was also successful in a Labor day contest in New Jersey, in September of the same year, and added to his laurels by beating, at Mott Haven, Richards, of Yale, and Ramsay, of Pennsylvania.

There are about 500 2-year-olds on the metropolitan tracks just now, and they are giving their trainers a world of trouble. Most of them are entered in the big 2-year-old stakes for the year, but by next fall some of them will be earning their feed in a more humble capacity than racing amid plaudits of the multitude. And many of them which now give the greatest promise will prove the rankest failures, for the untried 2-year-old is about the biggest gamble connected with horse racing, and that is saying a good deal. With the older horses the task of the trainer is comparatively easy. He knows their dispositions and the conditions under which they can race to the best advantage. He knows in what company they should be entered, just what weight they can carry, the distance that suits them best, and the kind of track which will give them the most speed. He is acquainted with their individual good and bad traits, for the clever horse trainer of today does not handle his string of charges as one horse. He has no set system for treating all alike. Each horse is studied individually and his training regulated accordingly.

AMONG THE SPORTS.

The event of present prominence in local sporting circles is the annual field day of the Duluth Central High School Athletic association, which will take place next Saturday afternoon at the fair grounds. The fair grounds are more accessible than has been afforded for previous field days, and the outlook is that the attendance will be large. The boys are working hard and have been for some time, the list of entries will be large, and the events themselves will be of a nature calculated to best create interest. The events, eighteen in number, will be as follows: Fifty-yard dash, quarter-mile bicycle, 100-yard dash, mile run, pole vault, 120-yard hurdle, shot put, mile bicycle, 220-yard dash, running broad jump, half-mile run, standing broad jump, 440-yard dash, hammer throw, 2-mile bicycle, running high jump, 220-yard hurdle, half-mile bicycle.

Harry Melning, who during his school days was the fleetest high school boy who it came to sprinting, is training those who will enter the foot events, and he has some promising material. There is good material, too, in the entries in all the events, and the field day will be the best yet given, judging from present indications. There will be a strong incentive for hard work in the fact that the winners will make up the field and track team which goes to Ashland May 29, and to Minneapolis June 5 for the contest with the Minneapolis high school team.

The last game of indoor baseball of the season took place at the Armory Monday evening, and after a very exciting game the team from Company G won out over the team from Company A by a score of 3 to 0. This makes the two teams even for the season. Indoor baseball has had a fair trial during the latter part of the season, and it has proven itself to be a popular game. It cannot, of course, be compared to the outdoor game, but for a winter game it is exciting enough.

At a meeting of Company G held Wednesday evening it was decided to form an outdoor baseball team. Henry Melning was made captain, and Will Chapman manager. There is good material in the company for a ball club, and the best at hand will be used. The club is talking of taking a trip over the range to play the clubs in the different range towns.

The following account of an exciting junior ball game is contributed by one of The Herald's youthful friends, who says in the note accompanying the game that it stimulates the boys to see accounts of their games in the paper. That is true, and The Herald will be pleased to publish the accounts of games, line-ups of teams, etc., that are sent in. The account follows:

"The baseball teams of Lakeside and of the Endion Athletic association met in an exciting game of ball last Saturday. Five innings only were played. At the end of the fifth, which was about 6 o'clock, the score was 53 to 25, in favor of the Endions. It was now supper time and several of the Endion team were compelled to go. Captain Moore endeavored to make arrangements with Capt. Richards of the Lakesides, to play the remaining four innings next Saturday, but Richards would finish the game on the spot or play the entire game over again. During the dispute half the Endion team had departed and Moore could not accept the first terms and to play the entire game over again was too much to ask. To go out to Lakeside and play half of the game in the rain, and to call this a practice game was enough to raise the temper of a saint. This is the direst deal any Endion team has ever received. McComber's pitching was fine, fanning out seven men in five innings to the four men the three Lakeside pitchers fanned. The catching of a high and difficult foul by the Lakeside catcher is well worth mentioning. This is the first game the Endions have played this year, and the second of the Lakesides, who were beaten by the Centrals last week by a close score."

The annual meeting of the Endion Tennis club was held Saturday afternoon in the office of Fryberger & Johanson. The following officers were elected: Directors, F. W. Paine, C. M. Johanson, H. W. Reichert, Ward Ames, Jr., A. W. Taussig; secretary and treasurer, D. W. Stocking; house committee, F. W. Paine and C. M. Johanson. The courts at Eleventh avenue east have been put in shape for the season and are all ready for playing. The club has about twenty-five active members, and club games were submitted at the meeting.

The Y. M. C. A. is completing arrangements for tennis grounds on the Mendenhall property at Lake avenue and Fourth street, and the intention is to have two double courts.

The Y. M. C. A. juniors are making arrangements to camp at Pike Lake after school is out. The outing will be for about two weeks, and it will be in charge of James K. Dyker, the physical director.

The long talked of championship match between those two grand old masters of the checker board, Wyllie and Martens, began at Glasgow on April 21, before a large audience of the devotees of that delicate pastime. Twenty-six games are to be played in Glasgow and a like number in Manchester, the winner of the majority to be declared the premier of the old world. Wyllie and Martens are undoubtedly the wariest and the best of all foreign checker players. They are old and finished students of the game, with few, if any, superiors in the world, and the match has occasioned much interest among the rank and file of draughts on the other side. These two old veterans are the players who, in a large measure, popularized this old-fashioned sport in the metropolitan European cities, and gave it an impetus, by infection, on this side of the pond. They are both still marvelous players and a most interesting exhibition will be afforded spectators.

I had a long and interesting talk down at Paxton the other day with Jimmy Barry, the champion bantam of the world, says Sandy Griswold in the Omaha Bee, and in speaking of the late Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight he said: "Like you, I think the first real effect blow was delivered in the third round, when Fitz landed a smashing right on Jim's stomach. Up to that time Corbett was all smiles and confidence, and he kept looking over to our box—you know I was with Parson and Al Smith, right alongside of the box, you understand—and nodding knowingly as much as to say 'he's easy.' But he quit his grinning after Bob gave him that poke, and I at once made up my mind that all was not well with the big fellow. In the fourth round every time they worked over to our side of the ring I called out and motioned to Jim to feint him more. Finally he seemed to appreciate what I meant, but he gave me a peculiar shrug of the shoulders, which said as plain as words could have done, 'I'm tired.' And he was tired, too. You know what a speedy gait they went in the first three rounds. Well, that had done the business for Corbett, but had he been in condition he ought to have been just getting good then. When a man can't feint, you can bet your life he's tired. Now, you have seen me fight several times and you know my methods are not unlike Corbett's. I have the greatest faith in feinting a man, and I keep right at it as long as I am strong. Nothing bothers an opponent like feinting at him. He can form no idea when you are going to cut loose. Keep right at it and the opportunity for a good punch is bound to come. That has always been Corbett's style, and strong and well I think he could whip any fighter in the world. The man who walks right up to the scratch and fiddles a moment and then thrashes away with both hands is easy goods for a cool and collected fighter. The man who feints well will land the coin every time. But Corbett was not strong at Carson. Had he been, many of the blows he landed on Bob's mouth would have put him on his beam ends. But none of them did. They hardly jolted his little nut in the least. I do not believe he was punished much. When a man goes down from a punch in the face, or when his head goes back on his shoulders, you can make up your mind he is getting hurt. I was a Corbett man and his plan of battle was highly displeasing to me. He would don't or couldn't feint, all his springy motion was gone and he shuffled to and from his chair as flat-footed as a duck. In case of another fight do I not think he would win? No, I don't, that is unless he could get in 100 per cent better form than he was at Carson, and the chances for that are small."

Fitzsimmons figures that he has defeated Choynski by defeating Peter Maher. But Choynski will not accept this collateral sort of mathematics. Choynski boxed him to a draw, and once in that contest had him at his mercy. He says Fitzsimmons has not defeated him directly, although he had a chance to do so, and no matter how many heavyweights he has defeated he cannot justly claim superiority until he defeats him. But Choynski and his manager are anticipating. After the contest with Smith they may have a right to demand a hearing.

Dan Creedon and "Kid" McCoy are just a little nearer to a match than they were a week ago. Col. Hopkins has posted a forfeit and formally challenged the clever middleweight for Creedon, and now all McCoy has to do is to accept the challenge and cover the forfeit. Creedon is the only logical match for McCoy in this country, and it does not seem possible for him to escape. Both are proper middleweights, and both claim to be the champions of that class. McCoy has been heralded as a wonder, and if he would hold the high place he has got into he must meet Creedon. If he refuses he must sacrifice much of his reputation as a middleweight boxer.

Glove contests of the ordinary sort are no longer popular in the East. The clubs have given so many contests since last fall that men of moderate ability are no longer able to draw a good house. It is only the few who rank well up in their respective classes that can bring out good crowds. Choynski and Smith, Creedon and McCoy, Maher and Sharkey and a few of the crack welters and lightweights are the only ones that can command a good purse at present. It is so dull that Tom O'Rourke talks of taking Walcott and Dixon to California for a few bouts.

While in the East looking after Choynski's interest in his coming contest, "Parson" Davies will challenge Tommy West for Billy Stift. For six months past Stift has been making an effort to get a match with West, but West has evaded him. In New York West expresses a willingness to meet any of the middleweights, but when Stift quietly asks for a match he ignores him. At the same time he declares he would be glad to met Stift. West will now get a chance to declare himself publicly, as Stift proposes to get a definite answer from him if such a thing is possible. Stift makes a very fair proposition. He says he will journey to New York where West is, pay all his expenses and box him for the best purse offered, and he leaves it to West to say how the purse shall be divided. If West will agree to meet him he will post a suitable forfeit in New York to guarantee his appearance in the ring. There is nothing left for West to do now but say he will or will not meet the Chicago middleweight.

John V. Crum, the noted Iowa sprinter, died last week at the Mercy hospital, Des Moines, of appendicitis, and the sad event has cast a gloom throughout collegiate athletic circles. Crum had barely reached his twenty-fifth year, was a native of the Hawkeye state, his parents still residing at the village of Bedford. He was a graduate of the collegiate department of the state university in the class of 1894 and of the law class of 1895. His fame as a sprinter increased rapidly after the intercollegiate meet in 1894, and he was regarded as the typical athlete of the Western universities. His appearance was awaited with great interest at the intercollegiate meet in 1895, which was held June 2. His sister had gone to Chicago and sat in the grand stand to watch her brother run. The preliminary heats of the 100 yards dash were the most interesting events ever held in Chicago in track athletics. In them were Stuart, a ten-seconds man from St. Albans; Scoggins, the fastest runner of the university of California, and all the fastest men in the West. The race developed into a contest in which were Crum, Scoggins and Stuart. Crum was, as usual, a little slow in getting away, but before the forty yards had been passed caught up and passed his competitors, and the great assemblage of college men present at the meet that year were not disappointed, for he ran down the stretch like a flash, leaving his competitors near the tape and setting a new record for the Western colleges. He ran in ten seconds, and he received a rousing reception from the crowd in the grand stand. He was victorious in several races in 1895 at the state meet in Chicago, beating the world's amateur record in the Western intercollegiate meet. He was also successful in a Labor day contest in New Jersey. In September of the same year, and added to his laurels by beating, at Mott Haven, Richards, of Yale, and Ramsay, of Pennsylvania.

There are about 500 2-years-olds on the metropolitan tracks just now, and they are giving their trainers a world of trouble. Most of them are entered in the big 2-year-old stakes for the year, but by next fall some of them will be earning their feed in a more humble capacity than racing amid plaudits of the multitude. And many of them which now give the greatest promise will prove the rankest failures, for the untried 2-year-old is about the biggest gamble connected with horse racing, and that is saying a good deal. With the older horses the task of the trainer is comparatively easy. He knows their dispositions and the conditions under which they can race to the best advantage. He knows in what company they should be entered, just what weight they can carry, the distance that suits them best, and the kind of track which will give them the most speed. He is acquainted with their individual good and bad traits, for the clever horse trainer of today does not handle his string of charges as one horse. He has no set system for treating all alike. Each horse is studied individually and his training regulated accordingly.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

IN THE LABOR FIELD

The Trades assembly at its meeting last evening adopted resolutions in favor of the fixing, by the council, of a minimum wage of $2.50 per day to be paid by the contractors to the laborers on the waterworks trenches. President Cochrane of the council comes in for a roast on the score of his remarks in the council in opposition to the measure. The resolutions were reported by President McEwen of the Trades assembly, and were endorsed by the committee on public affairs. They are as follows:

Whereas, the common council of the city of Duluth is discussing the question of the minimum of wages to be paid to laborers on the construction of the city waterworks, and

Whereas, a resolution has been introduced into the said common council, stating that laborers shall pay their labor-organ dues once a day; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Federated Trades assembly of Duluth, that we endorse said resolution and pray for the passage by the common council; and further, be it

Resolved, If we are not in sympathy with the remarks made by the honorable president of the common council, to the effect that to state the price of labor they may as well regulate the price of bread, meat, etc., for the following reasons: That the price of flour, especially Duluth flour, is fixed by the manufacturer, who is a member of a trust; that the price of meats in Duluth is fixed not only by the Retail Butchers' association, but by the packing houses, that the price of many staple groceries and necessities of life is fixed by the Retail Grocers' association; that but very few of the necessities of life, in the line of clothing, fuel and food, are regulated by the law of supply and demand, as a result of the formation of trusts, etc.; that the price of labor, especially that of us skilled labor, is regulated by the law of supply and demand. There is now an oversupply of laborers and a corresponding un-demand for their labor, which naturally will diminish the wages of the laborer; therefore be it

Resolved, that if it is lawful for some people to fix the price of bread, meat or any product, it is our opinion it is no more unlawful and just that the common council fix the price of labor.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the common council of the city of Duluth."

E. R. Cobb exerted himself to launch a boom for Superintendent of Schools Denfeld for re-election. Mr. Cobb said he had a few things to tell the assembly in reference to the friends of organized labor on the school board. He alike, he said, are Denfeld men. The latter had been the means of procuring for organized labor the recognition given it by the board. The board is divided, he went on to explain, into Denfeld and anti-Denfeld factions. He did not undertake to say whether the members of the latter faction are friends of organized labor or not. He would say this, some of them are not. J. O. Milne, upon he was a member of the board, had been a friend of organized labor. Mr. Cobb said, and he understood that Mr. Milne was to be a candidate this year.

When Mr. Cobb had finished, Delegate Baker rather warmly remarked that the delegates to the assembly did not require any instructions how to vote. To this Mr. Cobb hastened to reply that he had not intended to nominate anybody, but his remarks were intended merely as suggestions for the good of organized labor. A discussion on the subject of the school books now in use then followed. Mr. Baker remarked that the books are, as near as he could find out, products of the Rockefeller institute in Chicago. Delegate Findley said that in some of the text books questions affecting organized labor are unfairly treated, with the apparent object of giving the student wrong views and closing opinion against the cause of labor.

President Perkins of the International Shipbuilders' union was present and made a short speech, urging that union labels goods only be purchased. The union label, he said, is one of the most efficient agents employed to advance the interests of organized labor.

Delegate Pierce said that since he had been a member of the Imperial mill boycott cases that it had not had a meeting. He thought the chairman of the committee ought to be spurred up. Delegate Hayes resented this implication of slothfulness. He said the committee had done all it could be done, and that the boycott is proving effective. Mr. Hayes felt back on his Bible knowledge for arguments and reminded Mr. Pierce that "the Lord made a seven days to make the world," whereupon there were several inquiries as to what a billion of the revised version Mr. Hayes had been using in his strikes.

A request was made in behalf of the Superior Trades assembly that the Superior leaflet be immediately patronized, the statement being made that it is non-union. A committee was appointed to wait on the advertisers in the paper named and endeavor to get them to discontinue their patronage.

The Painters and Paperhangers' union, at its meeting Saturday evening discussed the question of the employment of non-union labor. It was determined to inaugurate a vigorous campaign for unionism, and further action will be taken at the meeting to be held Saturday evening, May 22.

SHORTER DAY FOR PRINTERS.

Plans for reducing the length of the work-day of all members of the International Typographical union who work more than eight hours are now being formulated by a committee which has been in session several days at the headquarters in Indianapolis. It will not be long before all the printers of the country will join the eight-hour movement. While the unionists in large cities now labor only eight or eight hours a day on newspaper work, especially on the machines, those in smaller places have not received the benefit of the shorter work-day, and the international union has resolved to throw all its energies into an effort to bring about the reform.

The matter was discussed at some length during the convention of the International Typographical union at Denver last October, and Dr. Sodini Presley was instructed to appoint a committee to arrange ways and means of reducing hours of labor. This body, which is now at work, is composed of James J. Murphy, of New York; R. B. Prendergast, of Chicago; C. E. Hawks, of San Francisco; Gerdan H. Russell, of Chattanooga, and David Hastings, of Hamilton, Ont.

It is expected that the report of the committee will have much bearing on the attitude of the union toward the shorter work-day proposition. It is a question that has received much attention in recent years from the members comprising the union, but the conservatism of the organization has prevented action being taken. With the introduction of the typesetting machine and the throwing out of work of many of the members of the union, the question of finding care of those out of work has become the most prominent one in union circles. In all pacific offices throughout the jurisdiction of the international union the eight-hour law is in effect and the proposition of shortening the workday will affect only those members working at the book and job branch, but will have an indirect effect on the other branches of trades affiliated with the international union.

The international union has jurisdiction over the United States, Canada, and has a union in Honolulu. The German-American union is also affiliated, but it has for years enjoyed the eight-hour day, and has lately pushed into effect the five-day law on newspapers. In Canada most of the offices work nine hours. Toronto putting this into effect in 1872.

It is said that in many of the cities employers are in favor of the change, and that there will be no friction in bringing it about, and members of the union are sanguine that the friendly spirit that has prevailed between employer and employe will in this case work a solution of the question. If it is decided to make the change it will affect, directly and indirectly, nearly 50,000 men. At a recent referendum vote of the union the proposition carried by an 8 to 1 vote.

NECESSITY FOR LABOR BUREAU.

Attention has been drawn to the necessity in this growing country of some practical scheme for the compiling and distribution among the laboring classes of statistics and information regarding the condition of labor generally, says the Montreal Herald. As is well known, there is in this city a municipal labor bureau, and similar institutions are found in one or two other cities, notably Toronto, where a civic bureau for the registration of unemployed has recently been opened. But it is claimed, and justly so, that these do not go far enough. Nor have they the means to do very much under existing conditions. Their principal object appears to be the securing of employment, permanent or temporary, for the unemployed, and, although in a few cases they have done good, want of means and proper organization have restricted their usefulness.

Instead of the present decidedly unsatisfactory system by which—in Montreal particularly—the existence of this bureau is dependent upon the charity of the city or the good will of the ruling majority among the aldermen, a government institution, worked on similar lines to those in other countries, is needed. This should preferably be in charge of one of the federal departments, such as that of trade and commerce, with assistance from the governments of the provinces and from the municipalities. A comparatively small outlay would result in the formation of an institution, with branches throughout the Dominion, whose work would result in great good to a large number of people. The need for the establishment of bureaus of labor statistics has long been a plank in the platform of the Knights of Labor, which suggests their operation in such a manner as to impart a correct knowledge of the educational, moral and financial conditions of the laboring masses, and the establishment of free labor bureaus."

LEGAL RECOGNITION OF UNIONS.

Unionism has made rapid strides in the last few years, and all because of the abandonment of the methods of force and the adoption of the methods of peace, says a writer in the Labor Tribune. All things are possible to men with purpose and with patience, and the time has now arrived for labor unions to demand and receive legal recognition. The common argument made by the employer against labor unions is that the unions has all the benefits of the agreement and none of the liabilities; that men will work at the scale when they can get no better but bolt the moment they may be losing money and desert him when other and more remunerative opportunities invite them—in other words, that there is no reciprocal obligation.

Of course, in ninety-nine cases out of 100 this is not so. It surely has not been during the last four years, because many men during this time have been working poor and not jobs men. Grant, however, that there is some reason for this argument, the remedy is simple. Let labor be prepared by furnishing the organization of men into guilds or unions, and then, if the union is able to carry on its contract, its members may be restrained from working at less wages. This would be much more tolerable than the present system of a labor union, on which shall mold and shape much in days yet unfortold now decreed the province of the great ones—for here is that spirit of democracy, still spell-bound and infantile to whom the future belongs.

BENEFIT FEATURES IN UNIONS.

We always believed and advocated good financial backing for any and all trades unions, because time and experience has convinced us that a union that expects to live on wind has but a short time to live," said Robert Howard, the Western labor leader, in a recent address before a Fall River agitation meeting. "We believe that the benefit features in connection with our union are a source of great strength to it, and helps members with large families especially, to wade through difficulties without troubling the city for relief or seeking charity from other quarters, which in all probability they would have to do if their union's treasury was not behind them.

"A member meeting with an accident is entitled to $4 per week for thirteen weeks and $3 per week for the second thirteen weeks. If he should be thrown out of work through a stoppage of machinery he is entitled to $4 per week for thirteen weeks; if he is victimized for standing in defense of his rights he is entitled to $4 per week until he obtains employment; if he should be locked out of work for any cause he is entitled to $4 per week for thirteen weeks; if he should be on strike he receives $4 per week. In the event of his wife's death he is entitled to $5 to help pay funeral expenses, and when he dies $50 is allowed toward his interment. Should he have no relatives living that association will see that he is decently buried.

"Under the present laws nearly every want of our members is provided for until the grave closes over them. The benefit features that have worked so well in our local union we have carried into our national union, and its revised laws which have just been completed, and the treasurer of our local union forwarded on Tuesday last the sum of $300 to the next of kin of a member of the Utica, N. Y., branch who met his death by being struck with a glass of a breaking belt.

"Let us continue in our good work and keep our ranks well closed up. Acting collectively we are a power which works much good, not only to ourselves but for the toiling thousands surrounding us. Our rallying cry should be 'all for one and one for all.' Forming as we do a part of a grand army of human progress, unselfish and devoted, our watchword should be: Liberty and justice to all wageworkers wherever located."

EARLY CLOSING OF SHOPS.

The Ontario legislature at its last session passed an act that appears to be an attempt to put in force early closing in all towns and cities, and at the same time include the bakeshop act. It is entitled "An act respecting shops and places other than factories." According to the act "shop" means any building or portion of a building, booth, stall or place where goods are manufactured and to which the Ontario factories act does not apply, and laundries wherein neither steam, water power nor electric power is used in all of the work carried on; and shall include any place where the only trade or business carried on is that of a tobacconist, news agent, hotel, inn, tavern or any premises wherein under license spirituous or fermented liquor is sold by retail for consumption on the premises. It will be seen, therefore, that the act applies to groceries, butchers, tailor shops, dry goods—in fact, all shops where goods are sold and females employed.

"No person under 18 years of age shall be employed in any such shop. No child, young girl or woman shall be employed in or about a shop on any day of the week other than Saturday or the next day before a statutory holiday, before the hour of 7 o'clock in the morning or after the hour of 6 o'clock in the evening. The act also provides for seats or chairs, and for permission to use them. Coming to bake shops the act includes confectioners, biscuits, cake as well as bread bakeries, and provides that employes shall not be allowed, permit or suffer any employe in any bake shop, to work on Sunday, nor more than twelve hours in any one day nor more than sixty hours in any one week.

BENEFITS OF UNION LABEL.

The shrewd, progressive business man is fast beginning to learn the benefit of the union label on his merchandise; he increases his sales. It is businesslike, says the Building Trades Journal. The most successful business firms of today are those who advertise most extensively. The union label is economical, because it is cheaper to trade with men under union products than to pay strike bounties to said men. It works injustice to no one. It is in every sense equitable, that fair products should be used by fair men.

It is both practicable and lawful. No injunction can prevent unionists from demanding and insisting upon the demand for union-made goods. It is also scientific, as supply is based upon demand, and every consumer who is made a convert to union labelism becomes the most potent kind of an argument with employers of labor to unionize their establishments. Who will deny that it is fraternal? How can a man who professes the fraternal doctrine of unionism consistently despoil his brother's home by buying non-union goods. The union label is very cheap and can be conveniently used on all articles of manufacture.

BOYCOTT LETTER STOPPED.

The postoffice department has ruled that it is unlawful to detach a boycott poster on a letter. This ruling was occasioned by a letter mailed at St. Louis by an officer of a local labor union, says the Electrical Worker. On the envelope was a small pink poster boycotting a packing company of Kansas City and Chicago. The letter was opened by the postoffice authorities and held pending the receipt of instructions from the department at Washington. The reply was to the effect that the poster accompanying the postcard was a clear violation of the law prohibiting the sending through the mails of any matter calculated to reflect injuriously upon the character or conduct of another. The letter was accordingly returned to the writer, who was informed that he would not be prosecuted this time, in view of his evident ignorance of the law, but that any future offenders will be severely dealt with.

GENERAL LABOR NOTES.

Twenty-eight large tobacco manufacturing firms are now using the union label.

Organized wage workers of New Zealand are beginning to talk of a six-hour workday.

President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor will make the Labor day address at Canton, Ohio.

In Cape Town, Johannesburg and other points in South Africa the rule is eight hours a day for carpenters.

The Chinese laborers employed in the canning industries of Portland, Ore., have formed a union and are making a stiff fight for a standard wage rate.

The schedule of wages demanded by St. Louis horseshoers follows: Firemen, per day, $3.50; strikers and floormen, or men fitting and driving for themselves, per day, $3.25; floormen, per day, $3.

The Colorado legislature has passed a bill prohibiting boycotting and blacklisting. Violations of the law are punishable by a fine not exceeding $1000 or by imprisonment for not less than sixty days nor more than one year.

A manufacturing firm in Fitchburg, Mass., has been condemned by a jury in Boston to pay $12,000 as damages to one of its workmen who was injured by the fall of a bridge between two of its workshops. The man sued for $30,000.

The Amalgamated Society of Engineers consists of over 500 branches, with 80,000 members scattered over the civilized world. Contributions, fines, propositions and entrance fees of new members amounted during the year to $1,150,000.

American boot and shoe workers are invited to send delegates to the international convention at Brussels on June 8. Delegations will be sent from Germany, Switzerland, England, Denmark, Sweden and Norway, France and Austria-Hungary.

MUNYON AS A MAN.

Munyon Never Doubts—Munyon Never Deceives—Munyon Never Hesitates.

MUNYON IS ALWAYS POSITIVE.

Everybody Associated With Munyon is a Munyon Enthusiast.

Munyon takes his own medicines and gives them to his own family. Munyon's professional and business associates are all Munyon enthusiasts. When I first interviewed Professor Munyon I fired this hot shot straight at him:

"I want to know, Professor Munyon, if you actually believe what you say about your remedies?"

"I do—absolutely," replied the Professor deliberately, tightening the muscles of his strong face, "and I welcome your blunt frankness. I believe every word I say, and it is no blind faith, but positiveness that comes from actual knowledge. I have never introduced a medicine to the public until I was myself certain of its efficacy, and I never claim that any medicine will cure any disease except the one for which it is a specific. It is this self-confidence—this total absence of doubt and evasion—that enables me to get and keep the confidence of the people. To advertise a lie, or to waver before any emergency, would mark the beginning of the end of Munyon, and that is the beginning that will never begin."

Such is the faith that moves multitudes. Such is the man whose force of character and rights of discovery have made him the acknowledged authority of the medical world. But the word Munyon has come to mean more than one man. Munyon means a scientific army. Munyon means a medical revolution. Munyon means a victory over the miseries of mankind.

Are you sure

that you're using the right thing for washing? If the work is slow and hard, and you have to depend upon rubbing, then you ought to get something else. And even if you have something that saves work, it may be bad for the clothes. You may be ruining them.

Pearline gives the easiest, quickest, most economical washing, of anything that's safe to use. The more you investigate, and inquire and compare, the surer you'll be that Pearline is the only right thing to wash with. 549

The World of Fashion.

Women's undergarments are exquisitely dainty and beautiful this spring. Beruffled and befrilled lingerie has held its own against vigorous attacks made by dress reformers, health culturists, and short-skirted sisterhoods, to say nothing of the organized efforts of new women to oust it. Dainty lace-trimmed undergarments will never lose their charm for the truly feminine woman, and each succeeding display brought out in the shops surpasses anything ever shown before in novelty of design and elaborate embellishment, says the New York Sun.

There was a time when only the woman with a generous allowance could have a stock of really fine underwear. But that day has passed. The sewing machine and cheap labor combined have brought about this satisfactory change. The big department stores furnish ready-made underclothing at all prices, and those shops devoted to handling and designing such things are full of garments that almost turn the heads of their very richest customers.

FINE UNDERWEAR.

The finest articles of underwear are made of silk, nainsook and linen lawn. It makes a woman glad she is a woman just to look at them, whether she can afford to indulge herself in a single piece or not. For a time silk lingerie fell somewhat into disrepute, but is now possibly more fashionable than any other. Word comes from Paris that the latest fad there is for undergarments of flaming red silk in all the new shades, varying from the soft reds to the brightest scarlets, but these Mephistophelean freaks have not yet reached this shore. It is said, however, that they will be landed next fall. Pale pink, pale blue, purple and yellow China silk sets, both figured and plain, are displayed in some of the exclusive shops and are being much worn. They consist of the four regulation pieces and two underskirts, one being very short. No two sets are made exactly alike. One designed of plain white silk is particularly ethereal looking. The chemise is cut very low and trimmed with fine white lace, introduced in a square shape over the bust. It has very short sleeves, merely a puff, just such as our grandmothers thought requisite to modesty in this the prettiest of all of woman's garments. These little sleeves are a feature of both muslin and silk chemises this spring, and are also used in many of the corset covers designed after new models.

ELEGANT NIGHT GOWNS.

The night dress rivals the ornate tea gown in elegance. It is box plaited down the back and a deep accordion-plaited flounce, with two rows of insertion let in, forms a collar behind and a cascade to the waist in front. The sleeves are rather smaller that they were formerly and are finished at the hand with a deep plaiting similar to the collar. This, like most night gowns, is slightly low in the neck. The drawers are nothing short of voluminous. They are extremely short; so short, in fact, that they are almost as broad as they are long, and have the appearance of divided skirts, being finished at the bottom with a ten-inch accordion-plaited ruffle, with two rows of the Valenciennes insertion set in, and at the top with beading and baby ribbon. The flounce is open at one side and finished with an elaborate bow of satin ribbon. The distinct novelty in these sets is the short skirt. It has taken the place of the pretty little flannel petticoats that held their own for spring wear for a long time. It makes up in beauty what it lacks in warmth, for it is only twenty-five inches in length, and is accordion plaited from thew aist and finished around the bottom with insertion. The corset cover, with the same set, is finely tucked down the back and gathered in at the waist with a ribbon. It is cut square and finished like the chemise. The long skirt is finished at the bottom with a plaiting like that described on the drawers. Such a set cannot be bought for much less than $100. The silk sets are kept in stock in the colors mentioned and are made to order of any shade desired.

WHITE UNDERWEAR.

Women of the elder generation look with horror on everything but snowy underwear, and when one turns from the colored sets to those made of white batiste or nainsook one feels that they have good ground to prefer the simpler fabrics. Many of the night gowns are made with large collars behind, which are slashed to as to form epaulettes. One style made in this way has a little bolero jacket in front, which is very fetching. The garment is made of nainsook, and the collar, epaulettes, and bolero trimmed with torchon insertion so fine that it deserves another name. The long sleeve is finished with a straight cuff, flaring at the hand. Another style is finished at the back of the neck with a sailor collar, tucked diagonally in opposite directions, so as to form tiny diamonds. This comes around in front and terminates at the waist is deep revers. Still another, trimmed in an imitation of real lace which is near enough perfect to fool even an expert, forming a fluffy jabot in front. This one has a standing collar, really a puff, and a colored ribbon shows through the fine insertion. Torchon lace is being more used on underclothing than ever before, and no wonder, for some of the patterns look like cobwebs, and at the same time they wash better and are more durable than other much used laces.

A pretty night dress with square yoke is made of French nainsook. The trimming is of fine beading and Maltese lace, and it is as practical and comfortable as it is pretty. In the finest materials this garment costs about $18, but fortunately for those who put about that sum into four whole sets, this model is to be found from $2 up.

CORSET COVERS.

That little garment, the corset cover, plays an important part in the success or failure of the summer girl's wardrobe, for upon it depends the fit of her sheer dimities, gauzy organdies, and dainty Swisses and batistes. Long ago women gave up the idea of finding a model for this garment that would not shrink or stretch after it had been sent to the laundry two or three times. This problem has been simply solved for them. All of the newest models are gathered into a belt at the waist and can be let out or drawn in at will. Most of them are laid in plaits or finely tucked behind, but they are marvels of elaborateness in front. Some are V shaped, some round, others square, and others droop from the shoulders in the quaintest old-fashioned way. One shown has fine Valenciennes insertion set in to simulate a bolero. Two epaulettes of nainsook, edged with lace, cover a short puffed sleeve. Another pretty design is of a waist known as the bolero. It is cut in that shape, and a miniature Eton jacket is formed by means of the insertion. This style is particularly adapted to stout figures, as it does not cover the hips, coming only to the waist.

ATTRACTIVE CHEMISES.

The chemise was never so attractive as it is today. It is elaborately trimmed at the bottom, as well as the top. The Empire chemise serves as both a corset cover and a short skirt, but this style is not so much in demand as the loose garment. This has revers of the goods finished in points, and with exquisitely fine embroidery. The drawers to match are finished in the same way. Drawers for the tallest of women are not worn more than twenty-five inches in length. They fit closely about the hips and are trimmed in every conceivable way. One striking style is slashed in finely tucked square tabs. From underneath these hangs a deep frill of lace. Another is cut in diamonds, which are edged with insertion and finished with two frills of embroidery. Some are rounded on the knee and finished with huge bows. A decided novelty is trimmed with plain bands of lace insertion and fine tucks all the way round except over the knee; also a heavy fall of deep plaited lace is set in. Many of the short skirts have lace insertion running all the way round from the waist to the bottom. Sometimes it is set in horizontally; again it runs up and down. Long skirts are made very wide and trimmed very fluffily at the bottom.

DIMITY UNDERWEAR.

Dimity underwear, in white, pink, light, and dark blue and lilac, is being much worn. It is much betrimmed with lace and the colors are fast. It saves lining thin dresses and freshens them up after being laundered. These sets are far cheaper than those made of silk and are almost as effective. The night gowns and long skirts retail at $5.50 each, chemise at $3, corset covers at $2, and long skirts at $1.50. Under-garments of colored lawn can be bought at any large department store, but soap and water turn them pale beyond recognition.

When a woman has to count the cost of an undergarment before buying, she should select with an eye to the quality of the material and trimming rather than the quantity. Very sheer nainsook chemises, with a little fine trimming on them are obtainable for $1 and $2, while very dainty night dresses can be bought from $2.50 to $5. Of course there are night dresses at 49 cents, and very good they are, too, for the money; so there is absolutely no reason why any woman shouldn't have a supply of linen.

HYGIENIC UNDERWEAR.

There is a glut of hygienic underwear on the market. Upon looking at it, after examining the other, one is reminded of what Abraham Lincoln said of an article which a canvasser desired him to indorse. After an examination the president said: "If any one liked that sort of thing, that is the sort of thing he would like very much."

Hygienic underwear may be hygienic, but it is very ugly. It is as hard to be two or three things at once as it is to do two or three things at the same time, and when a chemise tries to be a chemise, corset cover, drawers, and short skirt all in one it isn't a very feminine looking garment, or one that is apt to catch the eye of the dainty woman. Women don't need hygienic underwear anyway. At present their underclothing is exceedingly light and comfortable in construction.

While tea jackets do not properly come under the head of underwear, they are close kin. The newest models are made of handsome brocaded silks, yellow being in the lead when it comes to color. They are cut with a straight box back and a loose front, and are trimmed with handsome lace or plaited chiffon and lined with thin soft silk. Jackets of a silk and wool mixture or fine French flannel are trimmed with frillings of wash net edged with wash ribbon.

SMART COATS FOR EARLY SUMMER.

FOR LITTLE FOLK.

Some of the New Things For Small People.

Perhaps it is the inherited idea that children should be seen and not heard, which leads my lady Fashion to put so much stress on their clothing. The styles for the little folks this season contradict the theory that men and women are only boys and girls grown tall, and lead one to believe that children are big folks grown short. Variety in styles and extravagance characterize gowns designed for girls from the age of 4 to 16. Mothers with a dozen children, all of 'em girls, find no reason to complain of lack of novelty.

While loose dresses are always picturesque on little maidens, and are always worn by a great many, the waist dress predominates in thin and thick materials just now. Cotton crepons in delicate shades, ginghams, canvas cloths and dimities are the favorite materials for morning wear. A charming costume for a 4-year-old is made of pale blue crepon, which, it might be well to add, does not fade. The waist is gathered in blouse effect and a bolero jacket of white pique, edged with a frill of fine embroidery, gives it a jaunty air. The neck is slightly low and finished with a full full of the embroidery, the sleeves are very short and the gown is worn with or without a guimpe. Even 8-year-olds wear morning dresses made in this style.

A NEW GOWN.

A gown entirely new, both as to material and design, is made of plaid Scotch canvas, the predominating colors being linen and green. The waist is full and has a piece of white embroidery set on either side in front and laced across with green ribbon. Shoulder capes of embroidery fall over the slight sleeves, giving a broad fluffy effect to the shoulders. It is hard to make satisfactory gored skirts of plaid materials, so this one is full all around. It is the thing nowadays for children as well as grown folks to acquire a good tan in the summer; consequently they are dressed while in the country with this end in view. Nearly all the gowns for very small girls are made slightly low at the neck and short sleeves. They are usually worn with guimpes out of doors as well as in, when the weather permits. Few children look well in plain things, and their sleeves, which are decidedly smaller, are relieved by capes and epaulettes or frills and embroidery and lace.

Dancing dresses are made of fine batiste and organdies over colored silk. The white organdies are more effective and becoming than the flowered ones, and a striking dress has a pointed yoke, front and back, of exquisitely fine Valenciennes lace. A cascade of tiny frills, each one a little deeper than the other, falls from the shoulders. These are edged with lace and the full skirt is trimmed with zig-zag bands of insertion, let in, and is finished with a deep hem.

FOULARDS WORN.

Foulards have made their way into the wardrobe of the little girl as well as that of her big sister. The polka dot design is considered the most correct for the young folks, and while their bright eyes may admire the big splashy patterns, so much affected by women, they are not allowed to wear them. Soft shades of dull red with cream dots, bright red with black dots, and blues with white or black dots are the choicest combinations. One of the handsomest designs on exhibition at a store devoted exclusively to children's garments has a brick dust red ground with a small white dot. The long waist is gathered onto a tucked yoke outlined with a narrow frill of accordion-plaited white mousseline de soie, edged with a fine lace. The sleeves are shirred and have a small puff at the top, and the neck is finished with a ribbon, collar and bow, embellished with a frill of lace at the back. The skirt is gored. This gown is just as becoming to a girl of 10 as to one of 16.

Few of the skirts for girls are trimmed. Plain plaid and striped batistes, embroidered, dotted batistes and organdies are made up over colored silks, and some of these skirts are made with a Spanish flounce. The yokes and shoulder caps are usually made of butter-colored lace, though some very pretty organdies have no trimming other than bands and rosettes of baby ribbon in contrasting colors.

OUTING SUITS.

Outing suits for the girl who is half woman, half child are made of serge or plain cloth. Military gray, cadet blue and various shades of green are most used. The skirts are gored and either an Eton jacket or loose-fitting coat is worn with cotton or silk shirt waists. Suits of duck, pique and crash are made after the same models. Very little girls wear dark blue or bright red serge suits, with extra full skirts and waists, trimmed in rows of narrow braid.

In jackets there are stunning little reefer coats. Most of them are made in empire style, but some for the older girls half reveal, half conceal the figure. Brilliant plaid and changeable silk linings are used. A very jaunty garment for a girl of 8 is made of light tan cloth. The back and front are plaited onto a narrow yoke concealed behind by a heavy Russian lace collar, which comes around and forms revers in front over larger revers of the goods, the latter being edged with a knife plaiting of green ribbon. Blue, green and red cloths seem more popular, however, than the tans. A dark blue Empire coat has ruffles of blue and white striped ribbon set on over the shoulders. They come around and form a square yoke in front. Another blue box coat is elaborately trimmed in narrow gilt braid of varied widths stitched on bands of tan cloth.

A CHIC COAT.

A chic coat for a very small girl is made of scarlet cloth in the Empire style. A crash sailor collar forms broad pointed revers in front, which extend considerably out from under cloth revers, edged with a plaiting of scarlet taffeta ribbon. Some swell jackets for older girls have tight backs and loose fronts, and fasten with handsome buttons. A huge sailor collar of brilliantly striped silk gives a girlish look to the wrap. Long coats for little girls are made of sheer linen batistes and lined with pink, blue, or yellow silk in delicate shades. These are elaborately trimmed with lace and handsome shaded ribbon. They are not so practical as the long coats of white pique, which can be easily laundered. The latter are also made very fine with big collars and yokes and funny little old-fashioned capes of embroidery. Pique reefers in white and colors hold their own and are invariably becoming.

The small boy is ever with us, even when we enter fashion's realm. Styles for him change from season to season in just as marked a degree as they do for his little sister. For the little fellows from 3 to 10, sailor styles, with blouse waists and admiral jackets, take the lead. The majority of these suits are brought out in blue serge, though a desire for a change has made mixed cheviots popular. One thing in their favor is the quality of endurance which this material possesses. The tendency is to make sailor collars smaller. Trousers are worn short, though boys from 3 to 6 do, on certain occasions, wear the long sailor trousers.

A FANCY SUIT.

One of the newest things in the line of fancy suits for party wear is made with a flounce of very heavy white taffeta silk, with an overcollar of light blue silk and a tie of the same. On the shield piece is an embroidered wreath of blue silk, inclosing an anchor. These blouses also come in pale blue and bright red silk, with collars of a contrasting color. They are worn with duck, white serge or black velveteen trousers. Older boys, from 8 to 18, wear Tuxedo and Eton suits for full dress.

The average boy around these parts considers a cycling suit of far more importance than a party suit. There has been a change in his sporting rig, too, this season. The golf cuff on the knickerbockers is out of date, and a strap and buckle take its place at the knee. Sack coats with patch pockets are worn awheel by older boys, while the young scorchers of from 4 to 9 affect a Norfolk coat made with a narrow yoke front and back. A mixed homespun is the favorite material.

When a boy of today gets into trousers and finds herself there at the age of 2, he lays aside the reefer, and views it with the same scorn that he bestows on his cast-off skirts. Instead, he wears, if he is a well-dressed manikin, a tan colored covert coat. This is essentially the stylish coat for boys of from 3 years up.

In wash gods not so many striped Galateas are used as formerly. The tendency is to fine linen crashes and white duck. They are made up in sailor and admiral suits for small boys, but those from 8 to 15 wear double-breasted sack coats made of duck for the afternoon.

ABOUT STOCKINGS.

There are many new modes in hosiery and all of them are gay. Cotton, lisle thread, and silk have been brought out in a variety of pretty colorings and designs. The correct thing now is not to wear a tan stocking with a tan shoe, as formerly, but to don instead hosiery of a queer shade of old blue. Some of these stockings are plain, some ribbed, and others have lace stripes running either to the top of a high boot or all the way to the knee. All are embellished with polka dots or dainty garlands of vines or flowers embroidered in white silk. The blue fades unless dried in the dark, so if not carefully cared for these stockings prove a luxury instead of a necessity. The usual price is $1.25 a pair.

For plaid stockings there is a distinct craze. When they were first displayed women held up their hands at sight of them and rebelled against the bright reds, blues, greens, and yellows. But now they have accepted fashion's fiat, and dealers declare that it is almost impossible to supply the demand for vivid tartan stockings. They may be a trifle loud for the street, but they are beautiful and are especially designed to be worn with patent leather ties. Green, blue and black, black and yellow, bright red and dark blue, and white and black are the favorite combinations, and large plaids have the preference over small checks. This plaid footwear is made of a novel fabric, four-fifths of which is spun silk and one-fifth wool. It neither shrinks nor fades, and is very durable.

Another new style has the toe, heel and upper part of the leg of one decided color, while the front is heavily embroidered in a contrasting hue. Two-toned or changeable stockings are not so loud as the plaids, and are equally popular. The prettiest are in the new shades of red, pomegranate, cerise, and geranium, combined with black. Yellow and black is also very effective, and the very dark shades of green and purple are crossed with the white. These are also woven of a mixture of wool and silk and retail at $1.25 a pair.

For cycling golf stockings are being adopted universally. At last women are waking up to the fact that leggings are uncomfortable and anything but neat looking after they have been worn two or three times, and that the bicycle boot is next to impossible in hot weather. This boot is even warmer than the legging, and destroys a perfect ankle motion, which is the secret of easy riding. The golf stocking is both comfortable and good to look at. One of the prettiest patterns is a dark brown and red mixture. Instead of having a cuff at the top it has a simulated cuff about where a walking boot would come on the leg. Then there are quite rich-looking plaids and stripes in blues and greens, blacks and browns, grays and blacks, and so on. Brighter colors are also coming into favor. Golf stockings are all woven of wool, and for this reason many people cannot adopt them. For such there is a footless stocking intended for wearing over the ordinary kind. It has the advantage of not increasing the size of the foot. Prices vary from 50 cents to $2 a pair.

RECEPTION GOWNS.

Dresses to Be Worn By Americans at Court.

Miss Daisy Post and Miss French will be the first two American girls to be presented at the queen's drawing room by Mrs. John Hay early in May, Mrs. John Hay being the wife of our newly appointed ambassador to England, says the New York Journal. Miss Post is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Post, and it is she, who has been reported to be engaged to Bradley Martin, Jr., now a student at Harvard college. The family is now abroad, and have taken a shooting box in Scotland for the coming season.

Miss Post was perhaps one of the most artistically dressed young girls at the Bradley Martin ball. She is of the light brunette type with small, regular features and a most lovely delicate complexion. When she made her debut in New York society, her aunt, Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt, gave her a beautiful dinner of about 100 guests at Sherry's, when the floral decorations were particularly noticeable.

Miss Post's presentation gown is of biscuit satin, elaborately trimmed with gold lace, yellow primroses and satin to match the primroses. The waist, which is cut low, is embroidered with gold, and finished off with gold lace and primroses. For the sleeves, there is a ruffle of the lace, intermingled with the flowers. The skirt is also festooned with gold lace, and the train which is lined with primrose yellow satin, is edged with gold embroidery, deep lace ruffles and bunches of primroses.

Miss French's presentation gown will be composed of full white satin train, with border of chiffon ruffles and lace, which will be lined with silk. The bodice will be cut low, and have epaulets of snow-drops. Sleeves will be made of four very full ruffles, edged with chiffon and lace chemisette of pleated chiffon across the front. She will wear a broad satin belt or bodice, edged and embroidered in pearls, with a large bunch of snowdrops stuck in at one side. The seams up the front of the skirt will be trimmed with a very fine pearl trimming, running up to the waist line, and a full heading of snowdrops at the top of the ruffles.

GOWN MADE OF GLASS.

"People who live in glass houses must not throw stones," says the proverb but what will we do in case our women folks come to dress themselves in glass? In the march of modern invention this seems by no means an impossibility. We are told that a European manufacturer is turning out bonnets by the thousand, the glass cloth of which they are composed having the same shimmer and brilliancy of color as silk, and, what is a great advantage, being impervious to water. In Russia there has for a long time existed a tissue manufactured from the fibre of a peculiar filamentous stone from the Siberian mines, which, by some secret process, is shredded and spun into a fabric which, although soft to the touch and pliable in the extreme, is of so durable a nature that it never wears out. This is probably what has given an enterprising firm the idea of producing spun-glass dress lengths.

The Muscovite stuff is thrown into the fire when dirty, like asbestos, by which it is made absolutely clean again; but the spun-glass silk is simply brushed with a hard brush and soap and water, and is none the worse for being either stained or soiled. The material is to be had in white, green, lilac, pink and yellow, and bids fair to become very fashionable for evening dresses. An Austrian is the inventor of this novel fabric, which is rather costly. Tablecloths, napkins and window curtains are also made of it. It has also been discovered that glass is capable of being turned into a fine cloth, which can be worn next the skin without the slightest discomfort.

A GINGHAM GOWN.

Wash fabrics are deliriously enticing. When the clerk says 25 cents a yard after showing those mushy, quaint plaids that he calls gingham, visions of fairy loveliness rise out of a small income.

Fancy the very beginning of the pretty checked gown, costing just $3, with no linings to buy. This new summer stuff is thirty-two inches wide, with an alternate gingham and grenadine stripe, and it is the very latest importation, is this statement. It is displayed in great variety of color and design in broken plaid. One cheerfully pretty piece was in two shades of pale pink, with white, and the grenadine stripes in palest grass green. One gown was made of an etamine of dark blue and white, even check. The ruffles were vandyked, that is the correct way of saying "cut on the bias." These vandyked ruffles, which were three, and which overlapped each other in an economical way, were finished with an embroidered edge. The foundation skirt did not extend beyond the heading of the bottom flounce. This point, however, is optional, and the added cost of an entire underskirt is a matter of not more than $2 at most.

Wash goods, and, indeed, all thin stuffs, when made into skirts, are used generously. The sweep must not be less than five yards—seven or eight yards is none too much. The flounces divided the overskirt into three equal sections. The waist was round-handed, with three rows of insertion of the same pattern as the edge and gathered at the neck. The collar and girdle were grass green satin ribbon. A perky bow finished the waistband at one side where the under arm hooks closed the bodice. It would have been quite as pretty with a fastening of white pearl buttons down the back. This is said to be a seasonable fad.

TIGHT SLEEVES.

The sleeves were tight. A cuff finish was made of three bands of the insertion. Another band defined the bottom of the sleeve portion covered by the cap. This was made of three vandyked ruffles cut circular and fitting with a very little gathering over the shoulders. These ruffles were edged like the deep flounces with embroidery. White silk gloves were worn with this gown and black kid oxfords.

The parasol, which is so essential a feature this season, was of dark blue taffeta. Four inches from the edge was a band of five rows of hemstitching, each row a quarter of an inch wide, with a space intervening of three-eighths of an inch. The long stick was made into a twisted handle.

The hat was a simple round affair, almost a sailor, but lacking a sailor hat's severity. It was made of braided cornhusk, which, by the way, is the new braid for hats. It wears exceedingly well, and can be found in a variety of combinations—old rose and black or white, dark blue and white, black or green, etc.

About the crown was a twist of the material so much used in millinery this season, a chiffon canvas, known to the trade as batavia—just why no one seems able to explain. Well, this twist was of dark blue batavia, which also formed the high trimming in the back. The three upright loops were edged with the blue and white braid of the hat. Two bunchy rosettes, rather far apart at the back, gave an excuse for the forward tilt. The rosettes were the green of the collar and girdle.

THE COLOR BURST.

The color burst scheme is to be seen everywhere. Ribbons, plumes, silks and parasols are shaded from the palest that to the deepest tone. Some are worked up with two or more colors and have the old-fashioned rainbow effect.

For instance, an untrimmed parasol is exhibited in a shop window. At the stick is a bunchy rosette of grass-green ribbon, the silk cover is white, gradually blending into pale green, then through the pale lavenders to a deep purple at the edge. Plumes shade from the quill to the tip, or vice versa.

A fresh importation just unboxed is a wonderful creation of blended pink and green, which colors, by the way, are more correct than purple and green for midsummer. This creation was extremely unique. The general appearance is that of a double flower—a big and little morning glory joined on one stem. The girdle is of palest green. The stock and neck ruffle and skirt flounce at the very bottom of the gown are of the deepest rose pink. This same scheme is carried out in the sleeves, which are shaded toward the hand.

It is predicted that evening gloves will soon be brought out in this same effect. Probably hose will too.

THE SPRING SHOE.

The spring shoe is round of toe, the point having left us, except for evening slippers. These are almost invariably made of silk to match the gown worn, or are of plain black or white silk or satin. No leather shoe, except a patent leather—and that seldom—is ever worn within doors. The house is the place for silk shoes.

Tan shoes are as popular as ever, and they are made strongly and substantially for walking, with thick soles and round toes. The smart woman will not try to make a pretty, dressy shoe of her tan boot. It is incongruous. When she needs a pretty shoe, the patent leather is at her hand—or foot.

SOFT HATS AND CHIVALRY.

Given a car full of soft-hatted men and a woman never has to stand. It is the old-fashioned slouch hat which ensures this gentle courtesy; the Fedora and its kind are no better than the Derby. Chivalry and soft hats—Is this "the connection of the coherent" or "the erroneous conjunction of the casually co-incident?"

Fifteen years ago this question occurred to the Chicago woman, fresh from a land flowing with soft hats and street car seats, as she swayed to and fro on a Boston car strap, between rows of neat Derby hats. Returning home some five years later, to find the slouch hat flown and with it the street car seat, she started in pursuit and overtook them both in Denver. Unless she mistakes the signs of the times and the hatter's windows, she will soon have to move on. The case is becoming acute. There is only a third of the continent left.

"Manners are factitious," says Emerson, "and grow out of circumstance as well as character." If the slouch hat should be re-introduced on the Atlantic seaboard, would the car seat follow in its wake?

HINTS OF FASHION.

The new shoes for day wear in London have flaps and large buckles; those for evening wear are cut very low, and ornamented with tiny steel buckles. Colored kid shoes are in high favor—rose tints, heliotrope in many shades, greens of every hue, and China blue taking the lead. Unless the colors are well chosen the effect is strikingly vulgar.

Steel ornaments promise to become as popular as they were several years ago. Fortunate is the woman who has the habit of saving things, for she can take out her steel ornaments of any description, don them, and rest assured that she is doing the correct thing. Steel combs are much worn, and look well against either dark or light hair. Velvet bands for the neck thickly sewed with steel, are also in high favor.

Paris sends word that the ruff is once more the fashion there. It is made generally in lisse or chiffon, very wide at the back and decreasing in size at the front. Some ruffs, however, are of the same width all around. The most gigantic of these ruffs extend to the ears and is finished with a flounce of plaited chiffon reaching to the waist. This ruff is said to be a comfortable substitute for the fur boa.

The swellest sailor hat this season, in white or colors, has a brilliant plaid or striped silkband.

If a woman wishes to be at the height of Parisian fashion she must tilt her hat over her nose, wear a twist of tulle under her chin, put on tightly fitting sleeves and innumerable little frills all over her gown.

The fashionable tint for lace is that of ripe corn, more of a buff than the butter color of last spring. It is exceedingly rich looking.

Princess gowns crop up just as persistently as poke bonnets. It is not likely that they will take, since so few women look well in clothes of such severe cut.

Narrow velvet ribbon is used on everything. An imported cape of old rose silk has rows of black velvet ribbon running down it at intervals of about an inch. Round the shoulders the silk is plaited in so thickly that at the neck nothing is visible except the ribbon.

Silk is so cheap that it is almost a glut in the London market. The newest patterns are early Victorian in design and color. Small and large checks, conventional flora, and geometric figures denote a return to old modes.

Cashmere is coming into vogue again. Dealers say that its return is being greeted with enthusiasm. There never was a more manageable or graceful material.

A novelty in the belt line is made of bright colored plaid ribbon of a heavy weave, and is fastened with a plaid enamel buckle which matches perfectly.

A hat which is altogether comfortable and suitable for cycling is hard to find. Not every woman looks well in an ordinary white sailor, which is the ideal to wear awheel in spring and summer. Now small plain toques of very light straw have been brought out. They are trimmed with twists of canvas and bunches of quills. The newest Alpine cycling hat is far prettier in shape and more becoming than formerly. The brim flares at the side and the crown is broad and low, being only slightly dented. A bunch of quills relieves the plainness.

THE HEAT PLAGUE OF AUGUST, 1896.

Mrs. Pinkham's Explanation of the Unusual Number of Deaths and Prostrations Among Women.

The great heat plague of August, 1896, was not without its lesson. One could not fail to notice in the long lists of the dead throughout this country, that so many of the victims were women in their thirties, and women between forty-five and fifty.

The women who succumbed to the protracted heat were women whose energies were exhausted by sufferings peculiar to their sex; women who, taking no thought of themselves, or who, attaching no importance to first symptoms, allowed their female system to become run down.

Constipation, capricious appetite, restlessness, forebodings of evil, vertigo, languor, and weakness, especially in the morning, an itching sensation which suddenly attacks one at night, or whenever the blood becomes overheated, are all warnings. Don't wait too long to build up your strength, that is now a positive necessity! Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has specific curative powers. You cannot do better than to commence a course of this grand medicine. By the neglect of first symptoms you will see by the following letter what terrible suffering came to Mrs. Craig, and how she was cured:

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and think it is the best medicine for women in the world. I was so weak and nervous that I thought I could not live from one day to the next. I had prolapsus uteri and leucorrhœa and thought I was going into consumption. I would get so faint I thought I would die. I had dragging pains in my back, burning sensation down to my feet, and so many miserable feelings. People said that I looked like a dead woman. Doctors tried to cure me, but failed. I had given up when I heard of the Pinkham medicine. I got a bottle. I did not have much faith in it, but thought I would try it, and it made a new woman of me. I wish I could get every lady in the land to try it, for it did for me what doctors could not do."—Mrs. Sallie Craig, Baker's Landing, Pa.

SWEDEN'S EXHIBITION.

King Oscar Will Press the Button Today

Stockholm, May 15.—A Scandinavian and Russian exhibition will be held here, beginning today and lasting till Oct. 1. The fact that Sweden is the chief wood exporting country in the world is to receive recognition in the erection of the great industrial hall, the largest wooden building that has ever been constructed. It covers an area of 20,400 square yards and is surrounded by a curious cupola 330 feet high; at a height of 160 feet the four minarets surrounding the cupola are connected by prospect bridges, and here refreshments will be furnished to the sightseers. Near the industrial hall is the Northern museum, which contains the cultural exhibit, including everything that pertains to science, education, hygiene and manual training, for the high development of which Sweden is especially noted.

The fishery hall is a unique two-story building built out over the water, which forms an immense basin in the center of the hall. In the tourist's and sportsman's pavilion the sports of the North, skating, fishing and hunting, will be illustrated by a series of tableaux and dioramas. The principal buildings in the western section of the grounds are machinery hall, an immense structure of iron and glass, and the art hall, perhaps the most beautiful of all, with its white stucco walls, wide, elaborately ornamented cornice and open loggia. Scandinavian art will here receive the first complete representation ever accorded it.

of the old royal palace, the oldest church in Stockholm, where the reformation was first publicly declared; goldsmiths' shops of the sixteenth century, and a printing office of the same time. A submarine grotto to imitate the mammoth cave of Kentucky will be a great feature.

King Oscar will open the exhibition in person, as the exposition is really a celebration of the twenty-fifth year of his reign. This is the first exhibition held in Sweden since 1866. There was a Scandinavian exhibition in 1872 and one in 1888, but both were held at Copenhagen.

WHERE FISHING IS GOOD.

Those looking for the best fishing grounds are reminded of Lake Tetonka, at Waterville, and Madison lake, on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad.

Wall-eyed pike, bass and crappies are found in great abundance at both of these lakes, which have not been fished out to the extent of some of the older and better known localities.

Excellent hotel accommodations, boats, bait, etc., on hand, and all charges are very reasonable.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN the payment of the sum of seven hundred thirty-six and 81-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is actually due at the date of this notice on a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Ludwig Rusch, a widower, mortgagor, to Wilhelm Brown, of Duluth, Minnesota, mortgagee, said mortgage bearing date the 28th day of April, 1890, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 28th day of April, 1890, at 10 o'clock and 5 minutes in the forenoon of that day, in Book 95 of mortgages, on page 148, which mortgage was executed to secure the payment of one certain promissory note of even date with said mortgage in the sum of six hundred dollars, payable in three years after the date of said note and mortgage, with interest on said note at the rate of seven per cent per annum from date until paid, which interest was payable and the same annually, said note being signed by said mortgagor as maker and payable to the order of and delivered to said mortgagee, and said mortgage containing the provision that the said mortgagor should keep the property described in said mortgage unceasingly insured in some responsible stock insurance company for at least the sum of one thousand dollars, payable, in case of loss, to the said mortgagee or his assigns, and further providing that in case said mortgagor should not effect such insurance or fail to pay the premium therefor, then and in that case said mortgagee or his assigns, should be empowered to effect such insurance and pay all such unpaid premiums, and all sums of money paid for such purpose should be taxed and impressed as an additional lien upon said premises, and should be secured by and be collectible as a part of said mortgage and bear interest at the same rate as the indebtedness secured by said mortgage.

And, whereas, it was further understood and agreed by the terms of said mortgage that said mortgagor should pay all taxes and assessments that should for any purpose be payable, assessed or imposed upon said premises or any part thereof, before the same should become delinquent. And that upon his failure to so do, the said Wilhelm Brown, said mortgagee, was authorized to pay such taxes or assessments, and any and all sum or sums so paid should be taxed and imposed as an additional lien upon said premises, and should be secured by and collectible as a part of said mortgage and bear interest at the same rate as the indebtedness secured by the said mortgage and the note thereby secured, and,

Whereas, the said mortgagor having failed to effect insurance as required by the terms of said mortgage, and the said Wilhelm Brown, mortgagee, having therefore been required to effect the same, and having heretofore, on, to-wit, the 1st day of May, 1896, paid and expended as the premium for the insurance so effected the sum of five dollars, and said mortgagor has repaid said mortgagee no part of said sum so expended for insurance, and,

Whereas, the said mortgagor having failed to pay and cancel the taxes on said premises in said mortgage described for the years 1892, 1894 and 1895, and the same having become delinquent, the said mortgagee thereafter, and on the 1st day of May, 1897, did pay the taxes on said premises for said years 1892, 1894 and 1895, which with penalties and costs attached to said taxes, because of such non-payment amounted to the sum of one hundred nine and 6-100 dollars, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, or the said amount of taxes and insurance so paid,

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: Lot number eighty-six, East Seventh street, Duluth Proper, First Division according to the recorded plat thereof, on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt, and interest and the taxes and insurance hereinbefore set forth, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front entrance door to the county court house, in the city of Duluth, in St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 21st day of June, A. D. 1897, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

RECEPTION GOWNS.

Dresses to Be Worn By Americans at Court.

Miss Daisy Post and Miss French will be the first two American girls to be presented at the queen's drawing room by Mrs. John Hay early in May, Mrs. John Hay being the wife of our newly appointed ambassador to England, says the New York Journal. Miss Post is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Post, and it is she, who has been reported to be engaged to Bradley Martin, Jr., now a student at Harvard college. The family is now abroad, and have taken a shooting box in Scotland for the coming season.

Miss Post was perhaps one of the most artistically dressed young girls at the Bradley Martin ball. She is of the light brunette type with small, regular features and a most lovely delicate complexion. When she made her debut in New York society, her aunt, Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt, gave her a beautiful dinner of about two guests at Sherry's, when the floral decorations were particularly noticeable.

Miss Post's presentation gown is of white satin, elaborately trimmed with gold lace, yellow primroses and satin to match the primroses. The waist, which is cut low, is embroidered with gold, and finished off with gold lace and primroses. For the sleeves, there is a ruffle of the lace, intermingled with the flowers. The skirt is also festooned with gold lace, and the train which is lined with primrose yellow satin, is edged with gold embroidery, deep lace ruffles and bunches of primroses.

Miss French's presentation gown will be composed of full white satin train, with border of chiffon ruffles and lace, which will be lined with silk. The bodice will be cut low, and have epaulets of snow-drops. Sleeves will be made of four very full ruffles, edged with chiffon and lace chemisette of pleated chiffon across the front. She will wear a broad satin belt or bodice, edged and embroidered in pearls, with a large bunch of snowdrops stuck in at one side. The seams up the front of the skirt will be trimmed with a very fine pearl trimming, running up to the waist line, and a full heading of snowdrops at the top of the ruffles.

GOWN MADE OF GLASS.

"People who live in glass houses must not throw stones," says the proverb but what will we do in case our women folks come to dress themselves in glass? In the march of modern invention this seems by no means an impossibility. We are told that a European manufacturer is turning out bonnets by the thousand, the glass cloth of which they are composed having the same shimmer and brilliancy of color as silk, and, what is a great advantage, being impervious to water. In Russia there has for a long time existed a tissue manufactured from the fibre of a peculiar filamentous stone from the Siberian mines, which, by some secret process, is shredded and spun into a fabric which, although soft to the touch and pliable in the extreme is of so durable a nature that it never wears out. This is probably what has given an enterprising firm the idea of producing spun-glass dress lengths.

The Muscovite stuff is thrown into the fire when dirty, like asbestos, by which it is made absolutely clean again; but the spun-glass silk is simply brushed with a hard brush and soap and water, and is none the worse for being either stained or soiled. The material is to be had in white, green, lilac, pink and yellow, and bids fair to become very fashionable for evening dresses. An Austrian is the inventor of this novel fabric, which is rather costly. Tablecloths, napkins and window curtains are also made of it. It has also been discovered that glass is capable of being turned into a fine cloth, which can be worn next the skin without the slightest discomfort.

THE AMERICAN GIRL IN PARIS.

A GINGHAM GOWN.

Wash fabrics are deliriously enticing. When the clerk says 25 cents a yard after showing those inviting, quaint plaids that he calls ctamine, visions of fairy loveliness rise out of a small income.

Fancy the very beginning of the pretty checked gown, costing just $1, with no linings to buy. This new summer stuff is thirty-two inches wide, with an alternate gingham and grenadine stripe, and it is the very latest importation, is this etamine. It is displayed in great variety of color and design in broken plaid. One sweetly pretty sleeve was in two shades of pale pink, with white, and the grenadine stripes in palest grass green. One gown was made of an etamine of dark blue and white, even check. The ruffles were vandyked, that is the correct way of saying "cut on the bias." These vandyked ruffles, which were three, and which overlapped each other in an economical way, were finished with an embroidered edge. The foundation skirt did not extend beyond the heading of the bottom flounce. This point, however, is optional, and the added cost of an entire underskirt is a matter of not more than $2 at most.

Wash goods, and, indeed, all thin stuffs, when made into skirts, are used generously. The sweep must not be less than five yards—seven or eight yards is none too much. The flounces divided the overskirt into three equal sections. The waist was round-lauded, with three rows of insertion of the same pattern as the edge and gathered at the neck. The collar and girdle were grass green satin ribbon. A perky bow finished the waistband at one side where the under arm hooks closed the bodice. It would have been quite as pretty with a fastening of white pearl buttons down the back. This is said to be a seasonable fad.

TIGHT SLEEVES.

The sleeves were tight. A cuff finish was made of three bands of the insertion. Another band defined the bottom of the sleeve portion covered by the cap. This was made of three vandyked ruffles cut circular and fitting with a very little gathering over the shoulders. These ruffles were edged like the deep flounces with embroidery. White silk gloves were worn with this gown and black kid oxfords.

The parasol, which is so essential a feature this season, was of dark blue taffeta. Four inches from the edge was a band of five rows of hemstitching, each row a quarter of an inch wide, with a space intervening of three-eighths of an inch. The long stick was made into a twisted handle.

The hat was a simple round affair, almost a sailor, but lacking a sailor hat's severity. It was made of braided cornhusk, which, by the way, is the new braid for hats. It wears exceedingly well, and can be found in a variety of combinations—old rose and black or white, dark blue and white, black or green, etc.

About he crown was a twist of the material so much used in millinery this season, a chiffon canvas, known to the trade as batavia—just why no one seems able to explain. Well, this twist was of dark blue batavia, which also formed the high trimming in the back. The three upright loops were edged with the blue and white braid of the hat. Two bunchy rosettes, rather far apart at the back, gave an excuse for the forward tilt. The rosettes were the green of the collar and girdle.

THE COLOR BURST.

The color burst scheme is to be seen everywhere. Ribbons, plumes, silks and parasols are shaded from the palest that to the deepest tone. Some are worked up with two or more colors and have the old-fashioned rainbow effect.

their children and was frequently

For instance, an untrimmed parasol is exhibited in a shop window. At the stick is a bunchy rosette of grass-green ribbon, the silk cover is white, gradually blending into pale green, then through the pale lavenders to a deep purple at the edge. Plumes shade from the quill to the tip, or vice versa.

A fresh importation just unboxed is a wonderful creation of blended pink and green, which colors, by the way, are more correct than purple and green for midsummer. This creation was extremely unique. The general appearance is that of a double flower—a big and little morning glory joined on one stem. The girdle is of palest green. The stock and neck ruffle and skirt flounce at the very bottom of the gown are of the deepest rose pink. This same scheme is carried out in the sleeves, which are shaded toward the band.

It is predicted that evening gloves will soon be brought out in this same effect. Probably hose will too.

THE SPRING SHOE.

The spring shoe is round of toe, the point having left us, except for evening slippers. These are almost invariably made of silk to match the gown worn, or are of plain black or white silk or satin. No leather shoe, except a patent leather—and that seldom—is ever worn within doors. The house is the place for silk shoes.

Tan shoes are as popular as ever, and they are made strongly and substantially for walking, with thick soles and round toes. The smart woman will not try to make a pretty, dressy shoe of her tan boot. It is incongruous. When she needs a pretty shoe, the patent leather is at her hand—or foot.

SOFT HATS AND CHIVALRY.

Given a car full of soft-hatted men and a woman never has to stand. It is the old-fashioned slouch hat which ensures this gentle courtesy; the Fedora and its kind are no better than the Derby. Chivalry and soft hats—Is this "the connection of the coherent" or "the erroneous conjunction of the casually co-incident?"

Fifteen years ago this question occurred to the Chicago woman, fresh from a land flowing with soft hats and street car seats, as she swayed to and fro on a Boston car strap, between rows of neat Derby hats. Returning home some five years later, to find the slouch hat flown and with it the street car seat, she started in pursuit and overtook them both in Denver. Unless she mistakes the signs of the times and the hatter's windows, she will soon have to move on. The case is becoming acute. There is only a third of the continent left.

"Manners are factitious," says Emerson, "and grow out of circumstance as well as character." If the slouch hat should be re-introduced on the Atlantic seaboard, would the car seat follow in its wake?

HINTS OF FASHION.

The new shoes for day wear in London have flaps and large buckles; those for evening wear are cut very low, and ornamented with tiny steel buckles. Colored kid shoes are in high favor—rose tints, heliotrope in many shades, greens of every hue, and China blue taking the lead. Unless the colors are well chosen the effect is strikingly vulgar.

Steel ornaments promise to become as popular as they were several years ago. Fortunate is the woman who has the habit of saving things, for she can take out her steel ornaments of any description, don them, and rest assured that she is doing the correct thing. Steel combs are much worn, and look well against either dark or light hair. Velvet bands for the neck thickly sewed with steel, are also in high favor.

Paris sends word that the ruff is once more the fashion there. It is made generally in lisse or chiffon, very wide at the back and decreasing in size at the front. Some ruffs, however, are of the same width all around. The most gigantic of these ruffs extend to the ears and is finished with a flounce of plaited chiffon reaching to the waist. This ruff is said to be a comfortable substitute for the fur boa.

The swellest sailor hat this season, in white or colors, has a brilliant plaid or striped sil kband.

If a woman wishes to be at the height of Parisian fashion she must tilt her hat over her nose, wear a twist of tulle under her chin, put on tightly lifting sleeves and innumerable little frills all over her gown.

The fashionable tint for lace is that of ripe corn, more of a buff than the butter color of last spring. It is exceedingly rich looking.

Princess gowns crop up just as persistently as poke bonnets. It is not likely that they will take, since so few women look well in clothes of such severe cut.

Narrow velvet ribbon is used on everything. An imported cape of old rose silk has rows of black velvet ribbon running down it at intervals of about an inch. Round the shoulders the silk is plaited in so thickly that at the neck nothing is visible except the ribbon.

Silk is so cheap that it is almost a glut in the London market. The newest patterns are early Victorian in design and color. Small and large checks, conventional flora, and geometric figures denote a return to old modes.

Cashmere is coming into vogue again. Dealers say that its return is being greeted with enthusiasm. There never was a more manageable or graceful material.

A novelty in the belt line is made of bright colored plaid ribbon of a heavy weave, and is fastened with a plaid enamel buckle which matches perfectly.

A hat which is altogether comfortable and suitable for cycling is hard to find. Not every woman looks well in an ordinary white sailor, which is the ideal to wear awheel in spring and summer. Now small plain toques of very light straw have been brought out. They are trimmed with twists of canvas and bunches of quills. The newest Alpine cycling hat is far prettier in shape and more becoming than formerly. The brim flares at the side and the crown is broad and low, being only slightly dented. A bunch of quills relieves the plainness.

THE HEAT PLAGUE OF AUGUST, 1896.

Mrs. Pinkham's Explanation of the Unusual Number of Deaths and Prostrations Among Women.

The great heat plague of August, 1896, was not without its lesson. One could not fail to notice in the long lists of the dead throughout this country, that so many of the victims were women in their thirties, and women between forty-five and fifty.

The women who succumbed to the protracted heat were women whose energies were exhausted by sufferings peculiar to their sex; women who, taking no thought of themselves, or who, attaching no importance to first symptoms, allowed their female system to become run down.

Constipation, capricious appetite, restlessness, forebodings of evil, vertigo, languor, and weakness, especially in the morning, an itching sensation which suddenly attacks one at night, or whenever the blood becomes overheated, are all warnings. Don't wait too long to build up your strength, that is now a positive necessity! Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has specific curative powers. You cannot do better than to commence a course of this grand medicine. By the neglect of first symptoms you will see by the following letter what terrible suffering came to Mrs. Craig, and how she was cured:

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and think it is the best medicine for women in the world. I was so weak and nervous that I thought I could not live from one day to the next. I had prolapsus uteri and leucorrhœa and thought I was going into consumption. I would get so faint I thought I would die. I had dragging pains in my back, burning sensation down to my feet, and so many miserable feelings. People said that I looked like a dead woman. Doctors tried to cure me, but failed. I had given up when I heard of the Pinkham medicine. I got a bottle. I did not have much faith in it, but thought I would try it, and it made a new woman of me. I wish I could get every lady in the land to try it, for it did for me what doctors could not do."—Mrs. Sallie Craig, Baker's Landing, Pa.

SWEDEN'S EXHIBITION.

King Oscar Will Press the Button Today

Stockholm, May 15.—A Scandinavian and Russian exhibition will be held here, beginning today and lasting till Oct. 1. The fact that Sweden is the chief wood exporting country in the world is to receive recognition in the erection of the great industrial hall, the largest wooden building that has ever been constructed. It covers an area of 20,400 square yards and is surrounded by a curious cupola 330 feet high; at a height of 160 feet the four minarets surrounding the cupola are connected by prospect bridges, and here refreshments will be furnished to the sightseers. Near the industrial hall is the Northern museum, which contains the cultural exhibit, including everything that pertains to science, education, hygiene and manual training, for the high development of which Sweden is especially noted.

The fishery hall is a unique two-story building built out over the water, which forms an immense basin in the center of the hall. In the tourist's and sportsman's pavilion the sports of the North, skating, fishing and hunting, will be illustrated by a series of tableaux and dioramas. The principal buildings in the western section of the grounds are machinery hall, an immense structure of iron and glass, and the art hall, perhaps the most beautiful of all, with its white stucco walls, wide, elaborately ornamented cornice and open loggia. Scandinavian art will here receive the first complete representation ever accorded it.

of the old royal palace, the oldest church in Stockholm, where the reformation was first publicly declared; goldsmiths' shops of the sixteenth century, and a printing office of the same time. A submarine grotto to imitate the mammoth cave of Kentucky will be a great feature.

King Oscar will open the exhibition in person, as the exposition is really a celebration of the twenty-fifth year of his reign. This is the first exhibition held in Sweden since 1866. There was a Scandinavian exhibition in 1872 and one in 1888, but both were held at Copenhagen.

WHERE FISHING IS GOOD.

Those looking for the best fishing grounds are reminded of Lake Tetonka, at Waterville, and Madison lake, on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad.

Wall-eyed pike, bass and crappies are found in great abundance at both of these lakes, which have not been fished out to the extent of some of the older and better known localities.

Excellent hotel accommodations, boats, bait, etc., on hand, and all charges are very reasonable.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Nels Hall, widower, to Granite Savings Bank & Trust Company, a corporation, organized under the laws of the state of Vermont, bearing date the 5th day of September, 1894, with a power of sale therein contained, which said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 6th day of December, 1894, at 9:45 a. m., in Book 101 of mortgages on page 269; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the semi-annual installments of interest due on said mortgage, and the note therby secured, on the 5th day of June, and the 5th day of December, 1896; and whereas, said mortgage authorizes the mortgagee, at his option to declare the whole sum secured thereby to be due and payable on default in the conditions thereof, the said mortgagee hereby declares the whole of said mortgage debt to be due and there is claimed and declared to be due and there is actually due upon said mortgage debt at the date of this notice the sum of $805.00, principal and interest and $50.00 attorney's fees stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure thereof, and no action at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage.

Therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and by reason of said default and election thereunder, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, situate in St. Louis County, state of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: Lot two (2), in Myer's rearrangement of block one hundred and six (106), Duluth Proper, Second Division; according to the recorded plat thereof, which said mortgaged premises with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging will be sold to the highest bidder for cash to pay said mortgage debt and $50.00 attorney's fees stipulated for in said mortgage, and the disbursements allowed by law; which said sale will be made by the sheriff of St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 21st day of June, 1897, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as provided by law.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN the payment of the sum of seven hundred thirty-six and 81-100 dollars which is claimed to be due and is actually due at the date of this notice on a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Ludwig Rusch, a widower, mortgagor, to Wilhelm Brown, of Duluth, Minnesota, mortgagee, said mortgage bearing date the 21st day of April, 1891, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 21st day of April, 1891, at 10 o'clock and 45 minutes in the forenoon of that day, in Book 95 of mortgages, on page 148, which mortgage was executed to secure the payment of one certain promissory note of even date with said mortgage in the sum of six hundred dollars, payable in three years after the date of said note and mortgage with interest on said note at the rate of seven per cent per annum from date until paid, which interest was payable and the semi-annually, said note being signed by said mortgagor as maker and payable to the order of and delivered to said mortgagee; and said mortgage containing the provision that the said mortgagor should keep the property described in said mortgage unceasingly insured in some responsible stock insurance company for at least the sum of one thousand dollars, payable, in case of loss, to the said mortgagee or his assigns, and further providing that in case said mortgagor should not effect such insurance or fail to pay the premium therefor, then and in that case said mortgagee or his assigns, should be empowered to effect such insurance and pay all such unpaid premiums, and all sums of money paid for such purpose should be tacked and impressed as an additional lien upon said premises, and should be secured by and be collectible as a part of said mortgage and bear interest at the same rate as the indebtedness secured by said mortgage.

And, whereas, it was further understood and agreed by the terms of said mortgage that said mortgagor should pay all taxes and assessments that should for any purpose be payable, assessed or imposed upon said premises or any part thereof, before the same should become delinquent. And that upon his failure to do so, the said Wilhelm Brown, said mortgagee, was authorized to pay such taxes or assessments, and that and all sum or sums so paid should be tacked and impressed as an additional lien upon said premises, and should be secured by and collectible as a part of said mortgage and bear interest at the same rate as the indebtedness secured by the said mortgage and the note thereby secured, and,

Whereas, the said mortgagor having failed to effect insurance as required by the terms of said mortgage, and the said Wilhelm Brown, mortgagee, having heretofore been required to effect the same, and having heretofore, on, to-wit, the 1st day of May, 1896, paid and expended as the premium for the insurance so effected the sum of five dollars, and said mortgagor has repaid said mortgagee no part of said sum so expended for insurance, and,

Whereas, the said mortgagor having failed to pay and cancel the taxes on said premises in said mortgage described for the years, 1895, 1894 and 1895, and the same having become delinquent, the said mortgagee thereafter, and on the 1st day of May, 1897, did pay the taxes on said premises for said years 1893, 1894 and 1895, which with penalties and costs attached to said taxes became of such non-payment amounted to the sum of one hundred nine and 6-100 dollars, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, or the said amount of taxes and insurance so paid,

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: Lot number eighty-six, East Superior street, Duluth Proper, First Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest and the taxes and insurance hereinbefore set forth, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front entrance door to the county court house, in the city of Duluth, in St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 21st day of June, A. D. 1897, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

GOSSIP OF ★ ★ THE STAGE.

Robert Downing, who will be seen here on May 21 and 22, in "The Gladiator," recently expressed, in an Eastern paper, the opinion that the days of inferior supporting companies are at an end. Time was when a great actor could surround himself with any sort of a company which he could pick up, but the standard of dramatic art has been considerably raised since then, and Mr. Downing is of the opinion that no star should appear with any but the best of companies. It is true that by playing with a poor company a star may produce a greater contrast between his own work and that of his company, and so make his acting appear better than otherwise, but a truly great actor is in need of no such aids, and a performance is made twice as strong and beautiful if the company is adequate and carefully selected. Contrary to general rule, Mr. Downing practices what he preaches, and the company which will support him in "The Gladiator" is one of the finest which it would be possible to bring together. Popular prices will prevail.

The Chesterfield of the New York Journal, having in mind to dissuade a variety lady from continued offense in a certain line, proceeded in this manner: "Miss Irwin's success as a singer of 'The New Bully,' 'Crappy Dan' and other negro melodies has encouraged a great many other professional women to emulate her, and very sad some of these attempts are when we take into consideration the feelings of those who are compelled to listen to her. Miss Mamie Gilroy is a young woman of rare personal charms, great scholarship, vast histrionic talents and matchless scarlet stockings. She is noted for her unostentatious charity and her devotion to her art, but she will try to sing 'Honey on My Lips,' and because of this one weakness all her good qualities go for naught. Miss Gilroy may know how to make bread and polish furniture, but she has no more idea of negro music than a conger eel, and her rendering of a really beautiful song is one of the saddest happenings in the whole representation of 'Miss Manhattan.' This statement is made with a clear remembrance of the many woful gags and spasms of assumed humor with which the sorrow-laden dialogue of that piece is besprinkled."

Daniel Frohman's Lyceum company, which will begin its twelfth annual season at the Lyceum theater, New York, next November, will consist of the following principal members: Messrs. James K. Hackett, Charles Walcot, Felix Morris, Frank R. Mills, William Courtleigh, Joseph Wheelock, Jr., Misses Mary Mannering, Katharine Florence, Elizabeth Tyree, Mrs. Walcot and Mrs. Whiffen.

Donnelly & Girard have bought "The Geezer," from Joseph Herbert and will produce it on the road next season. It is a burlesque upon "The Geisha," and was successful in amusing New York last fall.

The Chicago Chronicle has this good news of an admired actor: "Looking as rugged and ruddy as a young mountaineer, Clay Clement arrived from the East yesterday. Mr. Clement has recovered entirely from the effects of his recent illness, and speaks very cheerfully of his first appearance as a star in New York. He feels that the season just closing has established his reputation and in a large territory to which he had prior to this year been a stranger. His next season will probably begin in Boston, and two new plays are now under consideration for early production. Mr. Clement will not spend much time in Chicago at present, but will seek some lonely rural spot where he can work upon his play, 'A Southern Gentleman.' Probably he will go at once to North Carolina, which is the scene of his new play."

It was a merry sort of a contest, says the New York Evening World, and not only the guests, but employes of the Hotel Imperial, enjoyed it thoroughly. Being first on the ground, Alice Nielsen, of the Bostonians, claimed the right to the music room by reason of priority, while Walter Jones, who arrived some weeks later, felt that he had equal rights to the room. Miss Nielsen is preparing for a new opera, and Jones has several songs to learn for the Knickerbocker review, and every day there was a neck-and-neck race for the piano, with the odds slightly in favor of the Bostonians' prima donna. Walter's friends assert that Miss Nielsen went so far as to engage "dummies" to hold the piano against all comers, and ate her breakfast in calm serenity, while Walter bolted his food and burned his mouth with hot coffee in his mad efforts to reach the music room ahead of the prima donna. On other occasions the comedian was observed pacing up and down the hall outside the music room humming to himself strains from "The Old Russian Turnip," which were interwoven with his profanity, and bars from "How Fair Art Thou," sung in Miss Nielsen's choicest notes. The music room rivalry led to almost open antagonism, and the comedian and songstress were wont to glare at each other in passing, and wish all kinds of bad luck to the fortunate possessor of the room. Then at last came another enemy into the camp. The rivals had eaten dinner with unusual velocity one day and made a simultaneous bolt for the music room. Jones got there first and opened the door with a smile of triumph. Then he recoiled in dismay. The entire room was filled with cot beds, and even the piano was decorated with a pillow. Grant day was close at hand, and the hotel was so crowded with visitors that every available inch of space was being utilized. The only way to get to the piano was by climbing over a forest of cots, with here and there a small mountain of gripsacks. Jones and Miss Nielsen looked first at the beds and then at each other. The humor of the situation struck them, and they first smiled and then laughed heartily, and finally departed in different directions seeking more harmonious places in which to practice their several melodies. There is no longer any trouble over the music room, as neither of them uses it.

Richard Mansfield is to present Shakespeare's almost unknown "Timon of Athens" next season. He will also have "The Devil's Disciple," by Bernard Shaw, author of the eccentric "Arms and the Man." "The Devil's Disciple" is said to fully sustain its author's reputation for oddity. In act I we have the reading of a will, the return of the prodigal son in a ferociously unreformed condition and a simmering of religion, sensation, sentiment in a kind of Nietzchian casuistry reminiscent of what John Gabriel Borkman calls "the morals of the higher rascality"—all plain sailing drama, nevertheless. In act 2 we have a domestic idyll suddenly developing into a striking act of heroic sacrifice by the diabolical prodigal, the effect of which on an ordinary audience will decide the fate of the play. In the third act the author of "Arms and the Man" is heard laughing behind the mask of the melodramatist. There is a court martial—such a court martial! "You might at least shoot me like a man instead of hanging me like a dog," exclaims the prisoner, in approved melodramatic fashion. "My good sir," replies the presiding general—no other than Burgoyne of Saratoga fame—"you speak like a civilian. Have you any idea of what the average marksmanship of the British army is? Let us persuade you, for your own sake, to allow us to hang you." An interviewer recently asked the imperturbable Shaw: "Do you write plays for everybody who asks you to?" "Yes," he replied. "It's the shortest way of curing them. They never trouble me again."

Sol Smith Russell is preparing to play Petruchio in a condensed version of "The Taming of the Shrew." Blanche Walsh is to be the Katherine.

"Change Alley" is the name of Louis N. Parker and Murray Carson's latest play. The story is placed in the reign of George I, and the title has reference to the street during the English South sea bubble excitement, where shares in all sorts of mythical enterprises were sold at fabulous sums. The American rights to the play are owned by Daniel Frohman, who has transferred them to E. H. Sothern.

Hoyt's oldest farce, "A Parlor Match," with Evans and Hoey in their old parts and Anna Held for a novelty, drew $240,000 in thirty-two weeks in the season just ended. Anna Held, whose extravagant salary for that time is declared to be $35,000, is coming over next year for an independent starring tour.

Charles Hopper will keep "Chimmie Fadden" as a sort of reserve next season and will produce a new play by Gus Thomas. Hopper will impersonate a plumber who has a faculty of getting in and out of scrapes with wonderful celerity.

Haddon Chambers, the play writer, whose successes include "Captain Swift," "The Idler," "John o'Dreams" and a number of others not quite so well known, said in a recent interview that the greatest moment of his life was when he was called before the curtain after the first presentation of "The Open Gate," but all he can recall is the voice of a woman in the pit, saying: "Poor young fellow, how pale 'e do look!" This was in London in 1886.

This year's midsummer extravaganza at the New York Casino is to be called "The Whirl of the Town," and will be presented May 20. Dan Daly is to have a leading part.

May Irwin took her two sons to help her enjoy "The Wizard of the Nile." It was the first time she ventured out after her recent illness. After the performance she sent Frank Daniels this note of gratitude: "You are a wiz. You've taken away my tired feeling."

Smyth & Rice have practically completed the booking of a road tour for next season for "The Man From Mexico." Mr. Du Souchet, the author of the piece, has been so pleased and benefitted by its success and that of "My Friend From India" that he has given up work as a telegraph operator, and now regards play writing as a sure thing.

William Hoey, the actor known as "Old Hoss" Hoey from his part in "A Parlor Match," is not ill as reported. He thinks the report was circulated by a professional enemy.

"The Circus Horse" is the name of a new section of "Mr. New York, Esq.," at Weber & Field's that was given for the first time last night, says the New York Sun. It was used as an ending for the review's first act, and for it the back drop curtain of trees and shrubbery gave way to a painting of a circus tent. Through an opening in the tent could be seen women riders preparing for the ring, and although this opening was labelled "Main Entrance," it plainly gave upon the greenroom. Charles J. Ross stepped forward as ringmaster and announced the features of the show, which took place outside the tent. Lew Fields first told a comic story, and then six women costumed like French clowns danced prettily. Next two men, whose figures were distorted and whose beards ranged from vivid red to bright green, performed a specialty in which one chap was atop a pole held by the other, the upper man's real support being a wire from the flies. As volunteer clowns Sam Bernard and the music hall's proprietors were comical in the manner characteristic of themselves, and a man dressed as a female ring rider posed on a huge wooden horse while the clowns walked round the stationary steed. With a specialty of remarkable tumbling the curtain fell. All of this was intended as a take-off of "The Circus Girl," with an aim primarily at comicality, and in this respect the bolt went true. Lew Fields was deviser of the fun.

To Matthews and Bulger, at Koster & Bial's, New York, falls a new addition to "Gayest Manhattan," which is styled "The Museum Lady," and which stands for the liberty taken here with "The Circus Girl." As might be expected of men whose humor runs to subtlety, its fun is to be appreciated only by the deeply thoughtful. If, as Carlyle says, the grandest thoughts are those that lead men to think, then this new interpretation is a treasure. It sends forward, in the costume of a leader of the ballet, a man, who for agility of limb far surpasses even the late James Owen O'Conor, and whose red wig and false nose add ugliness to his face. This dancer seeks employment, and in response to questions as to the experience confesses to having had a four weeks' charity benefit at Huber's Museum. But his ambition soars, and he talks eloquently to a hiring agent of what he will do from the top rung of the ladder of fame until it is suggested that he will, from that situation, wash windows. His display of accomplishments includes a comic song, in which deep masculine tones compete with squeaky falsetto, and a dance in which ballet steps are copied with comical awkardness. Then a snare drum and a slide trombone are passed up to Matthews and Bulger, and the instruments are misused as effectively to comicality as were the dancing steps and sentiments of the parodied ballad. The daintiness of a freight car colliding with a buffer characterizes the whole, and the directness of its bid for laughter. The only inartistic touch is due to its following, rather than preceding, this couple's most representative joke. Approaching one of the chorus women, Matthews, or is it Bulger? opens her mouth and examines her teeth. "What pretty furniture," he remarks, "you have in your diningroom!"

NATIONS IN MANUFACTURES.

There are actually more employes of manufactories, male, female and child labor included, in Germany, Great Britain and France than there are in the United States, though the population of the United States is 22,000,000 greater than the population of Germany, and 34,000,000 greater than the population of Great Britain or the population of France, says the New York Sun. There were returned by the last national census 5,091,000 persons as in "manufacturing and mechanical industries" in the United States, but included in this number were 150,000 seamstresses, 185,000 tailors, 60,000 milliners, 288,000 dressmakers and 100,000 butchers and with these and sundry other similar deductions from the number of those engaged in manufacturing and mechanical industries it is found by the last report of the commissioner of labor that the actual number of persons engaged in manufactures in this country is 3,837,000, but through the number employes is less than in other manufacturing countries, the United States stand at the head of them all in their products of manufactures, the product by hand, the volume of steam power used and the annual wages paid.

These figures show the total product of American manufactures to be in excess of $7,000,000,000 a year, whereas the total value of the combined manufactures of Great Britain in a year amount to only $4,100,000,000. Germany follows with $2,915,000,000, France comes third with $2,245,000,000, Russia fourth with $1,815,000,000, and then the other countries having large manufactures as follows: Austria-Hungary $1,265,000,000, Italy $905,000,000, Belgium $550,000,000, Spain, $425,000,000 and Switzerland, $360,000,000. In respect to product of manufactures by hand the United States are far in excess of all other countries. The average here is $1888, in Great Britain $780, in France, in Belgium and Germany, the same, $545; in Switzerland $423, in Russia $81 an din Italy $265. In respect to the amount of steam power used, the United States stand at the head of all manufacturing countries, with a total of 18,000,000 horse power, Great Britain has 12,000,000, Germany 9,000,000, France 5,000,000 and Austria-Hungary and Russia 2,500,000 each. Belgium, which has less than one-seventh of the population of Austria-Hungary, and less than one-fifteenth of the population of Russia, has 1,000,000 horse power, having increased at a rate more rapid than any other country in Europe. In respect to the wages paid, the United States again stand first, with an average of $348 a year, Great Britain following with $204, France with $155, Belgium with $165, Germany, $155, Switzerland and Austria-Hungary $150 and Spain and Russia $120. The explanation of this apparent paradox, that while three other nations have a larger number of employes engaged in manufactures than the United States, the United States have a larger product from their manufactures each year, is found in the superiority of American workmen, who, as the figures show, turn out considerably more work per capita than the employes of any other country engaged in like manufactures.

Wheels and Their Riders.

The Duluth Cycle club held a special meeting Tuesday evening, at which it decided to accept the proposition of the Union Rink company to make its resort its headquarters. The club will retain its present quarters in the Kalamazoo block, and will make its riding headquarters at the Union rink. There will probably be several races for local riders there this summer. The new track meets with the approval of the riders who have tried it, and it is said to be one of the best in the Northwest. One feature of it especially admired is the fact that it will not be necessary to slacken speed on the corners. They are arranged at such an incline that one of the local riders states that he can make up speed on the corners.

The committees having in charge the arrangements for the Decoration day road races are all hard at work, especially the prize committee, which expects to have an unusually big list of prizes. There will be a number of speedy outsiders here for the race, including Robert McCleary, of St. Paul, who won the race and made the state record in last year's event.

The event of next week will be the female race at the Union rink, which will continue all the week. The riders have been arriving during the last few days, and all express themselves as being satisfied with the track. Among them are Dottie Farnsworth, Helen Baldwin, Lizzie Brooks and Lottie Harp. The race is in charge of H. O. Messler, who managed last year's race.

The Y. M. C. A Bicycle club is planning a series of road races to be held during the summer. The board of managers has decided to hang up three medals of gold, silver and bronze for the winners.

"No person suffering from heart disease should ride a wheel." This is the postscript of a verdict rendered by a coroner's jury in New York, after viewing the remains of a man who fell off of his wheel and expired. The incident has evoked another spasm of angry protests against the "terrible evils of bicycling." We have seen the bicycle hump, have heard of the bicycle face, the bicycle hand and other alleged characteristics of the wheeling craze, but to say that the bicycle is more dangerous to a diseased heart than any other form of exercise is calculated to provoke immoderate laughter. On this point the Medical Record says "In simple degenerated conditions of the muscular fibers, in dilated hearts either with or without compensatory hypertrophy, and in slight valvular affections, bicycle riding, when properly practiced, may prove of great service, because it improves the nutrition of the organ and develops the muscular fibers, thereby enabling the heart to perform its work more effectually. Where exercise is advisable in heart affections, I know of no better method of obtaining it than by the proper use of the wheel. By riding slowly and on an approximately flat surface the mildest cardiac action can be obtained, and this, as the heart improves in strength, can be increased by degrees, and in direct ratio with the cardiac development. By this means the strength of the heart can be greatly increased, thus causing a natural compensation for many abnormal conditions."

Commenting on this the New York Sun says: "Scorching, hill-climbing and century runs are not regarded as moderate forms of bicycling and only persons with a perfectly sound physique should attempt them. According to a decision of the French academy, 'no one should ride a wheel without consulting a physician.' Good counsel, provided one consults a wise physician."

There is another phase of the question, however, which, though equally fatal, does not interest the doctors and undertakers half as it does ministers. Indeed it is conceded by observers that in affairs of the heart the bicycle is doing its share. An interesting fact in this connection is that the tandem seems to affect the heart more than the smaller machine does, especially if the young woman does her share of the work.

In advocating walking steep hills instead of riding them an authority says: In ascending a hill on a bicycle much of the driving force is wasted in pressure on the ground and the steeper the hill the greater the waste, until an incline may be so steep that all the efforts of the rider only press the wheel against the hill. In pushing this loss is much less, for the bicycle is lighter by the weight of the rider, and he is on his legs, the best of all hill climbers, for, the waste of power in walking is less going up hill, the upward movement of foot and body not being wasted by a corresponding fall at the end of the step. Even if this waste of force in pressure on the hill could be eliminated the bicycle would still be a little disappointing as a hill climber, for actual foot-pounds of work have to be done in ascending a hill, as there is of course no power developed by the bicycle to perform the work, for it owes its ease and speed to its almost frictionless action.

Every rider of a bicycle should cultivate the art of proper pedaling. The use of the pedal is an art; there is no part of the bicycle more important than this one thing. The art of pedaling is to push the pedal not more than half the circle, taking care to lift the foot immediately after it has done its effective work, so as not to burden the rising pedal. This necessitates the dropping of the heel at the top of the stroke, which helps the crank over the dead center, pushing right down to the bottom of the stroke and bringing the foot with a clawing motion to get over the dead center at the bottom. A little practice in this line will quicken a cycler's pace wonderfully.

There are two points of bicycle etiquette which the newwheelman should religiously observe. Never borrow a bicycle is perhaps the most important. Another is always give the man with less experience than yourself, or a man riding against the grade or wind, the right-of-way. The reason for the first is that every wheelman has a machine adjusted for his particular build and habit of riding. His handle bar and his saddle are placed at the height that suit him. He has put them there only after weeks and weeks of experimenting. If you move them he may not be able to get them back in place again for a long time. Of course, it is well to take a knife and scratch the nickel so that the adjustment can be found in case there is a change, but few men do this. Then a man is more liable to get into an accident with a strange wheel than with his own, and a wheel once dented or banged up can never be made as good as it was before the accident, without new parts.

The church and the bicycle are getting toegther. There are multiplying evidences of an inclination on the part of the church to meet the bicycle more than half way. The defiant attitude assumed by the ecclesiastical expounders at the commencement of the wheeling craze has changed to one of peaceful and diplomatic conciliation. The Pilgrim Congregational church of this city has made arrangements to care for bicycles, and one of the leading Congregational churches at Grand Rapids has just decided to add one of these "cycleries" to its evangelical machinery, while the First Congregational church at Terre Haute, we are informed by telegraph, has organized in its membership a large wheeling club.

The United Wheelmen of America, the new league of wheelmen in Minnesota, made their temporary organization permanent at a meeting attended by over fifty bicycle men of the state April 21, at the club house of the United wheelmen at Minneapolis. At a meeting held some time ago a constitution and bylaws were drafted and temporary officers chosen, and with but slight changes, the first move of the new league was ratified. Briefly told, the purpose of the new league is: To form a central league of wheelmen in this state, solely for the welfare of the riders of this state; to give its members the same privileges as are now enjoyed by the members of the League of American Wheelmen, but to put in charge of the state division men who have the interest of the racing men at heart; to promote Sunday racing; to promote the building of good roads and the erection of cycle paths; to make no distinction between amateurs und professional racing men.

A writer on hygiene advises all riders to breathe through the nostrils while on the wheel. He points out that the intense thirst which attacks many riders, especially women, is the result of breathing through the mouth, thus parching the lips, mouth and throat, and he advises that the mouth be kept shut against inhalations. He says: "When you can't make a hill without opening the mouth, 'twere better to dismount than to continue the exertion. Even when dismounted and the breathing is labored the mouth should be kept closed."

Mrs. J. A. Lacher, of Maysboro, Minn., in the eyes of a good many women, is both a heroine and a martyr. The village in which she lives is rather limited in size. The bicycle population of the place is limited to three—Mrs. Lacher, her husband and her son. As a result, the other people in the village regard the Lachers as indulging in a luxury bordering on extravagance. Mrs. Lacher was recently seen riding through the village wearing bloomers, which created considerable excitement. Several wardens of the church saw her and were shocked. The morals of the place had been corrupted, in their opinion, and they quickly got together and held a meeting. After much secret discussion, by and with the advice of the pastor, they annulled the church membership of Mrs. Lacher. The matter was announced from the pulpit and created an even greater sensation than did the victim in question when she appeared on the highways in the rational costume. Mrs. Lacher is the wife of a prominent citizen of the place, and the mother of seven children. The husband, it is understood, will not let the matter rest as it is.

Indianapolis Journal: Pale and proud, she stood before him. In fact, she had him in the corner and he could not depart.

"Do I get a '97 wheel?" she asked, and in her tone there was a threat veiled, even as the quinine may be masked by the liquid softness of the rock and rye.

"No," said the wretched man in desperation.

"Then," she said, her voice as hard as the inside of a ball bearing, "I shall see my lawyer today. I will buy that wheel out of the alimony."

In Le Monde Moderne a Capt. Danrit gives an interesting account of the present use of the bicycle in the French army. Formerly horsemen carried dispatches; now the work is done by cyclists. The infantry arm of the service, too, he says, by availing itself of the swiftness of the bicycle, has proven itself able to surprise the enemy in offensive movements and thus secure a great advantage. To a Capt. Gerard belongs the credit of having provided the army with a satisfactory folding bicycle, and in the last maneuvers he had command of the bicycle corps, the first ever organized. Sixty men formed the company. They were attached to the division of a general favorable to the use of the bicycle by the military, and his instructions from the minister of war were to make as much as possible of the new element in the service. The men were uniformed in a way that did not interfere with the free movement of their limbs, and each carried 120 rounds of ammunition. Their arms were artillery carbines, selected because they are shorter than the average gun and more easily handled. In the rear of the corps was a social tandem, formed of two folding bicycles, on which was carried all the necessary articles for repairing breaks in any of the soldiers' wheels. The most frequent use made of the cycle corps was in supporting cavalry, and under ten different sets of conditions the riders proved most effectual.

Father Cured of Scrofula.

HIS DAUGHTER OF ST. VITUS' DANCE.

Facts Vouched for and Sworn to.

From the Tribune, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have brought joy into the house of G. N. Bensel, 303 Hennepin Avenue, the well-known Minneapolis decorator and painter. For over ten years Mr. Bensel was afflicted with scrofula in an aggravated form, causing running sores to continually form on the back of the neck and extend up into the hair. To-day he is cured and happy—twice happy we might say; for his daughter who is now fourteen years of age had the terrible nervous affliction known as St. Vitus' dance, and has also been greatly improved by the use of these pills.

In relating his experience to a Tribune reporter, he said:

"I have had the annoyance nearly twelve years, consisting chiefly of scrofulous tumors on the back of my head and neck. I tried many remedies without receiving the relief desired. It was after persistent efforts of a friend to induce me to use Pink Pills for Pale People, that I yielded, and the result is that now I cannot express my thanks fittingly to that friend for his persistency. I know these pills are a good thing for scrofula. You can see for yourself the dry marks and red spots left on my neck, where formerly were eruptions that emitted matter and the vilest humors of the blood. Now they don't even itch, and I believe I am practically cured.

"I want to tell you too, about the great benefit my daughter, who is now fourteen years old, also received from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For two years she had St. Vitus' dance and we did everything we could hear of to relieve her, but have never found anything that equals these pills. She has used four boxes and is nearly cured. We have great faith in them and will continue their use when afflicted.

(Signed) GEO. N. BENSEL."

"This is to certify that I have had a very favorable experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I have suffered more or less for seven years with inflammatory rheumatism and neuralgia pains (sometimes unable to walk for three weeks at a time), and in one instance had such intense pain in the stomach and around the heart that I thought each hour for three days would be my last. Having seen articles in the papers about your pills, I concluded to give them a trial, and have used ten boxes with marvelous results. Have felt better the past month and more free from pain than for many years. I shall continue their use.

Enlarged Joints from Rheumatism.

Such a Condition Indicates a Chalky Deposit and is Seldom Cured—There is Hope in Some Cases, however, from an Enriching of the Blood.

From the Record and Union, Rochester, Minn.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pratt, wife of Mr. John Pratt, one of the oldest settlers in Olmstead County, Minnesota, for many years has been painfully afflicted with rheumatism in its most aggravating and inconvenient form. Mrs. Pratt is well known in the vicinity of Viola, having during one administration held the responsible position of postmistress. She tells the tale of her affliction and subsequent restoration to health, which is printed in order that others similarly suffering may read and adopt the same remedy she did.

VIOLA, Olmstead Co., Minn.,
August 24, 1896.

"A little over ten years ago I discovered that the joints of my fingers were enlarging, and very sore. I consulted many physicians, with some slight relief at times from pain, but the joints grew larger and larger, and my neck, shoulders and limbs were so stiff that I could not move them without great pain. My toes too were swollen out of all shape, and my fingers were so drawn, and the muscles so contracted that I could not use them. I had given up all hope of cure, when my attention was called about three years ago to the wonderful cures affected by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I procured a supply.

"It was not long after I began taking them before I experienced considerable relief, and I continued using them according to directions until I have taken altogether about three dozen boxes. My fingers are now straight and flexible, and the joints reduced to their normal size, the rheumatic pains are almost gone, and now, though I always keep Pink Pills by me, I never use them unless I catch cold, or get wet through. I am willing that this testimonial shall be published, in order that the extraordinary curative powers of Dr. Williams' medicine may be known to rheumatic sufferers.

(Signed) MRS. E. A. PRATT."

Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Paralyzed for Years.

A CARPENTER SPENDS MANY MONTHS IN BED—PHYSICIANS DO HIM LITTLE GOOD.

PARALYSIS CAME FROM A FALL.

From the Express, Los Angeles, California.

Just think of a busy, hardworking man paralyzed in the midst of his career, and rendered useless.

That was the misfortune that befell James A. Jones, of 1002 Alpine Street, Los Angeles, Cal., in September, 1891. Mr. Jones was born in the State where many of the presidents come from—Ohio, but spent the greater part of his life during his younger years in Iowa, from which place he went to Colorado, and in 1882 came to Los Angeles. It was a small place then, before the boom came along and pushed us forward a century in the road of progress, and Mr. Jones followed his occupation of carpenter and builder. While at work in September, 1891, he received a fall which jarred him considerably and he became confined to his bed. Shortly after he lost the use of the lower part of his body entirely, and his legs became a dead weight. A plaster cast was put upon him by the doctors and they worked over him and did all things possible to assist his recovery. But he remained in the same condition.

In April, 1893, he began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The following June he noticed that he could move his toes, and on July 4, 1893, he got up out of bed and later in the month was able to walk without crutches. Shortly after, still continuing the pills he went to work at his trade at Whittier, where he sustained a fall and again injured himself and had to go to bed, and the dread paralysis came on again. Again the doctors worked with him but without relief, and he once more began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The doctors had given him bromides and iodides, but without effect. Again the pills drove the paralysis into the background. He said "I took them in accordance with directions, and in connection with the use of cold sponge baths, found they were exceedingly beneficial.

Mr. Jones is now able to walk again, and he feels that the pills are the only thing that has done him any good. In this connection he said: "The doctors who have treated me have done everything in their power, but without effect, and it does seem marvellous that paralysis should be overcome by these little pills. But that has been my experience. If anyone doubts it let them write to me or come and see me and I will tell them the story."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Judge: Amanda (slighting from her wheel at the roadside, where Mortimore awaits her)—Have I kept you waiting long, dear? Mortimore—Long? Many cycles have passed since the hour appointed for our meeting.

Chicago Post: "I like to go to the parks occasionally," he said, "and I learned to ride the bicycle merely as a matter of precaution."

"Precaution?"

"Certainly. It was the only way to keep from being run down."

Detroit News: You may force railroads to accept a bicycle as baggage, but you can't make them bring it back as a bicycle.

Chicago Record: "Your daughter seems perfectly at home on her wheel."

"At home? Oh, no; when she's at home she never smiles like that."

Yonkers Statesman: Bacon—I hear the parson is to preach on "The Fall of Man."

Egbert—What, another bicycle sermon?

Detroit Journal: Doctor—I'm surprised that the wheel hasn't had any effect. I thought surely the exposure would bring the color to your cheek.

Fair Patient—There can't be much exposure the way they are making bicycle dresses this spring.

Washington Star: "There is such a thing as becoming too much devoted to the bicycle," said the young woman thoughtfully. "I was riding with a friend of mine who demonstrated that fact."

"Did she talk continually about the wheel?"

"No. She didn't talk about anything until I asked her if she knew what the hour was. She looked down at her cyclometer and said we'd better hurry home, as it was two miles and a quarter past dinner time."

If the society girl would be truly up to date hereafter, she must join the ranks of the cyclists. The latest social fad is the evening bicycle reception. An event of this sort does not utilize the name of the bicycle to give it standing, as it were, but because it is strictly a bicycle affair. Only cyclists are invited. In fact, it would be a very great bore to any other person than one interested in the wheel to attend. Like the bicycle itself, it has reached the crest of the wave of popularity in a remarkably short space of time. Of course the bicycle reception must have an objective point, as it were, and the 1897 mount of the hostess is it. Her cycling friends gather about and examine the new wheel critically. The curves in the frame, the shape of the handle bars, the make of the saddle, all come in for a great deal of attention. Then the butler is summoned and instructed to reveal the inner mysteries of the wheel, which he proceeds to do with the aid of a wrench. But woe betide the hapless man if he let one of the ball bearings fall astray, as such a catastrophe would work his undoing on the spot. The new wheel, if the hostess is not above display, is usually decorated with inlaid mother of pearl, or silver bands and filigree work are used to advantage. Real ivory handles also are a feature.

A new and unique cycling sensation is a combination of the old and nearly forgotten tricycle with the modern bicycle, and the result is a curious looking affair which is just now attracting widespread attention from wheelmen and women throughout the country. Nothing like it in appearance or design ever before appeared upon the horizon of the cycling world. This see-saw quadricycle is essentially a family affair. It is built for four riders, with an additional seat for a steersman or governor. The construction of the machine is of the simplest. There are no complicated joints, gearing or combination of levers or clamps to confuse one or make an ordinary breakdown a serious matter. Also the fact, that no previous experience is necessary in order for one to ride with all the speed and skill of an expert, tends to make the see-saw quadricycle a popular means of diversion for parties of four or even for two persons who, while wishing to enjoy the exhilaration of cycling, dare not trust themselves to the uncertain balancing qualities of the ordinary tandem. This peculiar machine is particularly intended for use in parks and at the beaches and summer resorts where parties can easily be made up.

He has already received a vast number of letters from prominent silver Democrats throughout the country, suggesting that he may be called upon to lead the party. It is said that the secretary himself has written the Kansas silverites, stating that he would like to have Overmeyer as a running mate the next time.

MESSAGE

President McKinley's Expected Message on Cuba Read in Congress.

Senate Almost Immediately Passed a Relief Appropriation of $50,000.

Dingley Blocks in the House By Objecting to an Amendment.

Washington, May 17.—The president today sent the following message to congress:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States: Official information from our consuls in Cuba establishes the fact that a large number of American citizens in the islands are in a state of destitution, suffering from want of food and medicines. This applies particularly to the rural districts of the central and eastern parts.

"The agricultural classes have been forced from their farms into the nearest towns and are without work or money. The local authorities of several towns, however kindly disposed, are anxious to relieve the needs of their own people, and are altogether powerless to help our citizens.

"The latest report of Consul General Lee estimates 600 to 800 Americans without means of support. I have assured him that provision would be made at once to relieve them. To that end I recommend that congress make an appropriation of not less than $50,000, to be immediately available for use under the direction of the secretary of state.

"It is desirable that a part of the sum which may be appropriated by congress should in the discretion of the secretary of state, also be used for the transportation of American citizens who desire to return to the United States and are without means to do so.

"WILLIAM McKINLEY,
"Executive Mansion.

"May 17, '97."

SENATE WAS PROMPT.

Cuban Relief Resolution Took Only Eighteen Minutes.

Washington, May 17.—An undertone of Cuban comment pervaded the senate when the session opened today. The anticipation of a Cuban message and a Cuban debate drew large crowds to the galleries. Among the senators the Cuban question was uppermost and they gathered in groups during the early routine business and discussed the outlook. Among the early arrivals was Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire who presided at the Cuban mass meeting held last night and Senator Allen of Nebraska who made a speech there. The day's calendar showed that the Morgan Cuban resolution had secured the parliamentary status of "unfinished business," giving it the right-of-way at 2 o'clock.

Immediately after the reading of the journal, Secretary Pruden of the White House staff presented the president's message on Cuba. It was taken to the clerk's desk and read with the closest attention from senators and spectators. Following the reading of the message, Mr. Davis of Minnesota, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, favorably reported with amendments the resolution introduced by Mr. Gallinger last Thursday appropriating $50,000 for the relief of destitute citizens of the United States in Cuba. The resolution, as amended, is as follows:

"Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States in congress assembled that the sum of $50,000 be, and the same is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated for the relief of destitute citizens of the United States in island of Cuba, said money to be expended at the discretion and under the direction of the president of the United States in the purchase and furnishing of food, clothing and medicines to such citizens and for transporting to the United States such of them as so desire and who are without means to transport themselves."

Mr. Davis asked immediate consideration of their resolution and there was no objection. The only speech made was that of Mr. Gallinger, who spoke briefly. He said he had been impressed at the great mass meeting attended by 3000 persons yesterday with the statement made there by a correspondent who traveled through the stricken district of Cuba. This person had stated that there was an abundance of food in Cuba and that it was needless to give relief in that direction. The real trouble, he said, was that the Cubans were herded in the towns and prevented from going out to get the food. The most effective relief, Mr. Gallinger said, would be a demand by the president and the government that the Cubans be released from the bondage in the towns and permitted to go where they could secure food. The senator was ready to assume his share of responsibility for such a step. Still, if the resolution just reported gave some measure of relief, he would heartily support it without urging the other plan of relief he had suggested.

The resolution was then put upon its passage without division it passed unanimously, there being no response to the call for the nays. It had taken exactly eighteen minutes for the reading of the message, the presentation of the committee report and brief speech and final passage of the resolution.

The Morgan Cuban resolution was taken up in the senate at 2 o'clock. Senator Wellington of Maryland made a vigorous speech in opposition to it. He said the Republican party had come into power to relieve the people of this country of distress. The first duty of congress, he said, was not to Crete, not to Cuba, but to the American people.

THE HOUSE ACTION.

Washington, May 17.—In the house Mr. Hitt, of Illinois, asked for the immediate consideration of a bill to appropriate $50,000 for the relief of the destitute Americans in Cuba, but Mr. Bailey, of Texas, said that he must object, unless an amendment embodying Senator Morgan's resolution for recognition of the insurgents be added. Mr. Dingley objected to the amendment, whereupon Mr. Bailey objected to the bill, and the Cuban question was sidetracked.

VON THIELMAN'S MARION.

Left Him and He Tried to Commit Suicide.

Chicago, May 17.—One night last week a young man, with a bullet wound near his heart and weak from loss of blood, staggered into Mercy hospital and said he had tried to commit suicide. He soon lost consciousness, and during his ravings for the next twenty-four hours uttered but one word, "Marion." Absolutely nothing was found in his clothes to identify him, and a hundred or more "Marions" who have called failed to recognize him. He has been identified, however, by R. M. Patterson, of New York, as Ludwig Von Thielman, a former lieutenant of hussars in the German army, and the third son of Von Thielman, of Germany.

It is said the "Marion" who Von Thielman raved about is a music hall singer whom he met in San Francisco, some months ago, and with whom he traveled until his money was exhausted. Von Thielman will probably recover.

Mrs. Day will be an active participant in the tournament.

A BANKRUPTCY LAW.

Nelson Bill May Be Considered By the House.

Washington, May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota members still hope to get the Nelson bankruptcy bill up for consideration in the house at this extra session. Some of them have been assured today that Representative Henderson of Iowa, as soon as he is able to appear in the house, will agree to have the bill taken up. In such an event, Speaker Reed will allow its consideration at this session, he believing, however, that some such measure as the Torrey bill will pass.

Senator Nelson today presented petitions from Duluth and other Minnesota cities favoring passage of a law restricting immigration.

Capt. Castle, of St. Paul, will today be commissioned auditor for the postoffice department.

Mukwanago Murderer Had Waded in the Pool and Shot Himself.

Little Rock May Decide to Lynch a Bad Deputy Sheriff.

Milwaukee, May 17.—The body of William Pautz, or Pouch, as he was commonly known, who murdered Farmer Harris and wounded Makhold, his hired man, and Miss Vesback, a domestic, at the Harris home near Mukwanago a week ago, was taken from Hales' pond at Prospect Hill this morning. The body was easily identified although it was badly bloated. There was a bullet hole in the neck. Pouch evidently waded into the pond and shot himself. His bicycle irons which he took from his legs when he abandoned his wheel, were found in his pocket.

PRETTY TOUGH DEPUTY.

An Undesirable Official Who May Stretch Hemp.

Little Rock, May 17.—The excitement created Sunday by Deputy Sheriff Heard has not yet subsided. No attempt at lynching was made last night, owing, no doubt, to the fact that the news of the crime did not become generally known until this morning. The sheriff took advantage of this fact and late last night quietly took him to Texarkana to prevent lynching tonight.

Heard has quite a record as a desperate man. He is the deputy sheriff who threatened to shoot Jim Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons when the pugs were in Little Rock under arrest. He is also the officer who came near choking Miss Anna Eva Fay in an attempt to tie a knot about the spiritualist's neck in such a manner as to upset her performance. Blair, the murdered man, was a North Carolinian. His wife is prostrated with the shock and may not recover.

KENTUCKY'S SENATES.

Two Endeavor to Transact Work Simultaneously.

Frankfort, Ky., May 17.—This state witnessed the spectacle this morning of two separate senates in session in the same hall, each claiming to be the senate of Kentucky. The debate over the Stephenson bill was renewed and the advocates of the bill were confident of its passage, the silver Democrats insisting that Lieutenant Governor Worthington should vacate the chair pending an appeal from decisions by Senator Bronston on the question of "indicating members who are present, but refuse to vote." Governor Worthington, backed by the Republicans and gold Democrats, refused to vacate the chair.

Senator Goebel, the president pro tem, with other presiding officers, pending the appeal from Worthington's decision, demanded his right to the chair. The president refused to recognize him, and lifting a chair over the clerk's desk, Goebel took his seat beside the clerk and the two bodies were in session amid the wildest confusion. Bitter words passed between Senator Bronston and Governor Worthington.

The Worthingtons adjourned till 3 o'clock this afternoon, and the Goebel senate, while in the minority, is backed by the clerks and all the other officers, adjourned till 2:55 o'clock. At that hour President Pro Tem Goebel intends to take the chair.

What Worthington will do when he finds Goebel in the chair this afternoon is causing all sorts of prophecies of serious trouble, and even talk of troops. The Worthington senate, which has a majority when all the gold Democrats and Republicans are present, is now in secret caucus, preparing to reorganize, elect a new president pro tem, etc. A revolution is looked for from this time till Friday, when the session stands adjourned unless the gold Democrats and Republicans, who are in the majority in both houses, should try to continue the session.

At 12 o'clock Doorkeeper Tyler locked both entrances to the senate chamber and went away. The Goebel senate, with which he and all the other officers act, meets at 2:55, and the Worthington senate at 3 o'clock. The Goebel senate will lock doors when it gets inside. If it does so, members of the Worthington senate declare they will break down the doors if they find them locked. Goebel's friends say he is sure to take the president's chair at 2:55 and keep it. Worthington's friends say he is sure to take the chair at 3 o'clock.

CLARK WAS MURDERED.

Milwaukee, May 17.—Evidence developed today which makes it almost certain that N. B. Clark, of Grand Rapids, Mich., whose body was found on Terrace avenue Saturday morning was assassinated. Mrs. Herman Kaufer, who lives near where the body was found, says she heard the shots on the fatal night and saw a man running away from the scene at the top of his speed.

THORNTON IS DEAD.

Louisville, May 17.—Preston Thornton, who shot himself in the parlor of Milton H. Smith's residence in this city, died at 3:30 o'clock this morning. His father and mother, who came here from Lexington, were by his side when death came.

TAILORS

Formidable Strike of the Brotherhood of Tailors Ordered in New York.

Seven Hundred Shops Will Be Temporarily Closed By the Walkout.

Officers of the Union Threatened For Delaying the Strike Order.

New York, May 17.—The decision of the tailors to strike today was not arrived at by the ordinary processes of reasoning. It was a wave of popular sentiment which culminated in an overwhelming and resistless desire to order the strike at once. By something like mental telegraphy, a process of telepathy, apparently, this idea spread all over the East Side like a flash, for in the darkness just before 2 o'clock in the morning throngs of excited people poured into Orchard street from all points of the compass, shouting: "Strike, strike, strike Monday. No more waiting."

A cheer which swelled into a roar as the surging masses of humanity swayed in front of the New Washington hall, calling for the executive committee to come down, followed the shouts. In ten minutes all the streets leading toward Orchard street were black with people. William Cohen, the new leader of the Brotherhood of Tailors, who is also the head of the executive committee, opened a window above in the room where the committee met and asked the people what was wrong.

"Strike, strike. Order a strike. We're starving," was the reply from hundreds of throats.

"Why would you strike now?" shouted Cohen. "Wait until all the trades can strike together. You have no demands prepared."

A yell mingled with execrations followed, and some of those in the crowd declared that if the executive board did not order a strike they would break the doors down. The crowd for a while seemed bereft of reason. Cohen headed a delegation of the executive committee which came out to reason with the tailors. Each member was mobbed as he came out. Dozens of fists were shaken in their faces.

"Lynch them if they don't order a strike," shouted several hoarse voices. "Yes," shouted hundreds of others, "lynch them; kill them if they don't do it." Men began to weep and plead, saying: "O have pity on us and order a strike. We're starving starvation wages now." Cohen expostulated at such haste, but his speech was drowned with one word uttered fiercely by thousands of voices, the command: "Strike."

That settled it. The committee hastened back into the meeting rooms and formally ordered a general strike of the Brotherhood of Tailors in the metropolitan district. As the Children's Jacketmakers' and the Progressive Tailors' unions had decided to strike immediately afterward, it is a foregone conclusion they will go on strike today. There are about 700 shops in which these tailors work. After the strike had been ordered committees went round the shops and called the tailors out. The contractors were taken by surprise. They were not organized. The average wages the men are now getting is $5 a week. They will demand from $9 to $12.

FAMILIES ARE SUFFERING.

Sad Condition of Miners at Norway, Mich.

Norway, Mich., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—While there are few if any people in Norway who are actually starving, there are scores who are actually suffering from an insufficiency of food, and hundreds whose prospects for the future could scarcely be more gloomy.

By an ill-advised strike at the Aragon mine at the close of last year nearly 200 men became idle. Promises of support from the other lodges of the Miners' union were not well redeemed, and the families of the idle miners soon began to grow hungry. A little assistance has been received from outside of the city, but the miners on the other ranges have about all they can do to keep their own families fed and shod, so outside relief has not amounted to much. The miners who struck have long since repented of their hasty action, and have humbly pleaded for work, but without success.

Angus Smith, of Milwaukee, is the principal owner of the mine, and as the property was actually losing money at the time of the strike, and the iron trade is now in bad condition, he is very willing to allow the mine to remain idle. The property is for sale, and has recently been examined by the Commonwealth Iron company, and also by agents of the Illinois Steel company; if it is sold to either concern the mine will undoubtedly be started up at once with a considerable force.

As many of the idle miners as could do so have gone elsewhere for work, but many of them who have gone to Colorado and British Columbia are still out of jobs and unable to send any funds to help support their families left behind. There are many others who have not the money to go elsewhere to look for work. The actual destitution is very great and must grow steadily worse until work is found for the idle hands.

Norway is not a wealthy town—like the other mining towns, it has been hard hit during the past four years—but it has given thousands of dollars in charity to support its own needy during the past four months. A point has now been reached when those who have given can do little more, and it may soon be necessary to appeal to the charity of the state for food and clothing for the unemployed, who are now reduced to the verge of starvation.

CONDUCTORS' OUTING.

San Francisco, May 17.—Three hundred or more railway conductors arrived in the city last evening and fully 200 of them sought shelter at the Russell house. Rain was falling at Los Angeles when the conductors left and showers of rain greeted them on their arrival in San Francisco. The Chicago special consisted of 250 visitors from railways centering in Chicago and the Atlanta special carrying 150 representatives of Southern roads were consolidated at Los Angeles, and came through as one train. Nine Pullman coaches, a liner and two baggage cars constituted the consolidated special.

The newly wedded couple step through the door of the future. They pass from the happy, thoughtless present into an avenue of possibilities. The future is what they make it—what their health makes it—happy or miserable—a success or failure—full of the love and brightness and joyfulness of mutual love and, helpfulness, and healthy, rosy, frolicking children, or, tortured with pain and sickness and mutual fault-finding and dependence, and lacking the binding tie of healthy, happy offspring. A world depends upon the young wife. If she has taken proper care of herself and is healthy in a womanly way, the probabilities are all in favor of a happy home filled with the music of childish laughter. Too many young women neglect to take care of their womanlyselves. They shrink from the distasteful "examinations" and "local treatment" upon which most physicians insist. There is no need for this.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acts directly on the important and delicate organs concerned in wifehood and motherhood. It makes them strong and healthy. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and gives the tortured nerves rest and tone. It prepares for wifehood and maternity. Taken during the expectant period, it banishes discomfort and makes the coming of baby easy and comparatively painless. It insures the new-comer's health and an ample supply of natural nourishment. Over 90,000 women have testified to its merits. Druggists who offer substitutes aim to get a few pennies extra profit.

Dr. Pierce's great book, "Common Sense Medical Adviser," would prevent more than half the sickness in any family. It gives the best advice for curing common ailments without a doctor. It tells all about anatomy and physiology and the origin of life, and is the most valuable, practical medical work ever printed. A free copy in paper covers sent for 21 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. For cloth-bound, 31 stamps.

THE BIWABIK BUDGET.

Peculiar Condition Existing at the Hale Mine.

Biwabik, May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A peculiar condition exists at the Hale mine. Col. Dorwin is all ready to go to work, but is not permitted to do so because A. Trim, the man who guarded the property through the winter, retains the keys and will not give them up until he is paid for his winter's work. The amount is about $90 and the Minnesota Iron company is the debtor.

A special train arrived here last week over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, bringing Messrs. Olcott and McBride, of Duluth, and a Michigan Central car with other notables on board. They made an inspection of the Biwabik mine. There is a rumor in consequence that the mine will soon be in operation.

The Payal mine at Eveleth is now shipping from its big stockpile, and the Duluth & Iron Range has three extra switching crews at work in consequence—one at Eveleth, one here in the yards and one between the two places.

The Commodore mine at Virginia will start up this week. It is not believed that any ore has been sold, but Corrigan, McKinney & Co. will use some of the ore in their own furnaces. Capt. Taylor, formerly at the Williams mine here, will go to the Commodore after a short trip to the Cogebic range.

Superintendent Owens was up in his private car last week and remained over night at McKinley, where the company is soon to build a spur to the Roberts mine.

The young ladies of the village organized a "hard times" party for Thursday evening. There was a large attendance and much fun was created by the comical costumes.

B. Conta, the man whose daughter was taken away from him by Henry Hasklins, has sold out his interests here and removed to Sparta.

Rev. Snyder, of Mountain Iron, preached at the M. E. church here last Sunday. He is an able young man.

An entertainment will be given tomorrow evening at Congregational hall for the purpose of raising money for the Sunday school organ. Rev. C. E. Wilcox has been very successful in his Sunday school work here and has organized a very large school, while the interest of the pupils is great and unflagging.

B. Pissetti and C. Brentari, formerly saloon keepers here, have gone to Sparta to open a saloon.

J. F. Dacey, the Duluth boilermaker, is in town.

Miss Amy Bale, who has been visiting Miss Bessie Brown, returned to her home in Ely Saturday.

J. C. Paul and James A. Ralph, of Eveleth, were over to attend the party last Thursday evening.

Morley Metcalfe has returned, after a year's stay in Michigan, much improved in health.

WILL GLADDEN DEPOSITORS.

St. Louis, May 17.—William Stone, receiver of the defunct Mullanphy Savings bank, reports that rapid progress is being made in winding up the affairs of the bank, and that a final settlement will be reached much sooner than was expected. Today he will ask the circuit court for an order to make a partial settlement of the bank's affairs. He says that he will be able to pay out between $175,000 and $200,000 within the next few days if the court grants the order.

BRAZILIAN RAILWAYS.

Washington, May 17.—The Brazilian legation has been officially informed that the time within which proposals will be received for the leasing of the railways of the Brazilian government has been extended from May 15 to September next. There are about a dozen of these railroads, the principal trunk lines of Brazil, which are owned and controlled by that government and they make up an aggregate mileage of about 14,000 miles.

ST. LOUIS FAIR OFFICIALS.

St. Louis, May 17.—Col. Robert Aull, secretary of the St. Louis Fair association, has been elected vice president and general manager. He succeeds C. C. Maffitt, who retires because of the fact that he owns a stable of racers and does not regard it as just to run horses over the track of the association with which he is officially connected. Judge Joseph A. Murphy, well known among racing men, was elected secretary to succeed Col. Aull.

AN OREGON SUICIDE.

Lagrande, Ore., May 17.—J. M. Irion, a tinner and furrier, committed suicide last night by hanging himself in his place of business at Island City. Irion came here from Milwaukee, Wis., about six years ago, having previously lived at Detroit, where his brother now resides.

BUTTER

Uncle Sam is Engaging Extensively in the Importation of Butter.

First Government Shipment Has Been Received and Sold at Southampton.

More Shipments to Follow in Endeavor to Create a Market.

Washington, May 17.—The agricultural department is engaged in some practical experiments with a view to extending our butter market abroad. The development of the dairy interests of the United States is one of the favorite schemes of Secretary Wilson, who believes that the farmers of the country can be greatly benefited by the sale of the incident products of the farm. Our foreign cheese market has declined steadily for the past twenty years, and in recent years has suffered immense damage from the shipment of "filled cheese" and other inferior cheeses.

Twenty years ago the United States shipped to the United Kingdom about half the cheese imported by the British Isles. Canada has steadily displaced our cheese, until now we ship to England less than one quarter of her imports, while Canada sends one-half as much as England now imports, and twice as much cheese as she did in 1876. The loss of our trade in this one item is enormous. Now that all our filled cheese must be branded, we may regain some of this trade, but at the agricultural department, Maj. Alvord, the chief of the dairy division, says it will require time and circumstances to re-establish the reputation of our cheese and win back the trade we have lost.

In the matter of butter it is thought that there is a much better opportunity for pushing our products at this time. Our exports of butter have been comparatively small in the past, and the butter shipped abroad has been almost entirely, until last year, of inferior quality. This was due to the fact that the choicest grades commanded a higher price in the country than could be obtained for them abroad. But last year there was a surplus of good butter produced in the United States. The percentage of high grade creamery butters produced promises also to increase annually hereafter through the extension of the creamery system. Last year the consumption of the choicest grades fell off in the United States, owing probably to the hard times. The price naturally fell, and about 20,000,000 pounds were placed within the reach of the exporters as against 5,500,000 pounds in 1895. A large proportion of this exportation was good butter.

Maj. Alvord says that we cannot hope to export good butter when it sells at less than 18 cents in New York, which would make the price in London, allowing for freights and commissions, about 20c. Denmark, Sweden, France, Canada, Australia and Argentina now supply the British market, which last year bought about 281,000,000 pounds. At the suggestion of Secretary Wilson, the agricultural department has entered upon a series of experiments for the experimental sale in London of our best butter under its own name.

By direction of the secretary Maj. Alvord, about two weeks ago, purchased and shipped about 2000 pounds of our choicest creamery butter. It arrived last Thursday at Southampton. Under arrangements previously perfected, this butter probably already has found its way to the consumer through the ordinary channels of trade, but was shown and sold as United States butter. This will be followed through the hands of the jobbers and retailers to the consumer, and the judgment of each secured upon it. Other shipments will be made from time to time.

SOUTH GERMAN EXPORTS.

Washington, May 17.—Frank Mason, United States consul at Frankfort, transmits some statistics to the state department from which it appears that from South Germany the exports to the United States during the first quarter of this year, were $1,054,242 in excess of the exports during the corresponding period of 1896, an amount of $4,36,521. The consul also shows that the maximum of exports from South Germany to the United States was reached in the March quarter of 1893, under the tariff act of 1890, and the minimum shipments in the same quarter of the next year, immediately preceding the tariff act of 1894.

ELECTRICAL OPPORTUNITIES.

Washington, May 17.—The city of Dusseldorf, Germany, being about to change the motive power of the street railways from horse to electricity, United States Consul Stephan at Annaberg has reported the fact to the state department. For the benefit of American electric supply companies he also submits a full set of plans and specifications and for further details refers to the United States consul at Dusseldorf.

You may never know it happened if you fail to read The Evening Herald.

You think it is because your child is "growing too fast" that he fails to put on flesh. More often it is due to a gradual and general weakening of all the forces of the body. The child may have no pain, may have a fair appetite and yet lose flesh. Perhaps the happiest effects of Scott's Emulsion are in such cases as these. It gives the body a fat which is easily taken up; alters unhealthy action and supplies the best blood-making food known to medical science.

A WOMAN'S SUFFERING.

The Story of a Life That Should Have Been Filled with Brightness and Joy, Marred by Sickness.

The Indian's Secret.

How Mrs. Hannah Faulwell of Patterson, Iowa, Learns From the Indian Squaw How to Get Health.

Mrs. Hannah Faulwell, of Patterson, Iowa, writes the Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., as follows:—"I wish to give my testimony in behalf of your Kickapoo Indian Prairie Plant. I was in a terrible condition, having suffered for years with female troubles. I began to improve, however, as soon as I took your medicine. I am still using it and am nearly well, although mine was a very aggravated case. I have no doubt but by continuing a short time longer I will experience a complete cure. MRS. HANNAH FAULWELL."

This same Kickapoo Indian Prairie Plant is the remedy the Kickapoo Indian women used for all womb troubles. To them such diseases as are experienced by their white sisters were unknown. They did not consider child birth a time of terrible pain and misery, and in spite of all this they were exposed to the elements continually and were able to do as much work, and many of them did more, than the men of their tribes. This special woman's remedy was the one of most interest to the squaws of the tribe, it being prepared by them as in fact were all the other remedies. Today Kickapoo Indian Prairie Plant can be bought of any druggist, and it is identically the same as when it was prepared by the Indians centuries ago. Other Kickapoo Indian Remedies can also be bought, and it should be remembered that these medicines are all—while prompt and efficient in their action—absolutely harmless, as they contain no poisonous ingredients of any description. We would advise women who suffer to give this remedy a single trial and good health will reward them. Kickapoo Indian Sagwa also should be used to invigorate and build up a depleted condition of the AHVOTE'S VICTIMS.

Bodies of Five of Them Have Been Found.

Klingman, Ariz., May 17.—The sheriff's posse has returned to White Hills from the chase after Ahvote, the Plute Indian murderer. They report that the body of Judge J. M. Morton was found in a cabin at Goldbug, seven miles below Eldorado canyon, shot through the head. Morton had lived thirty-six hours after being shot and the body was not cold when found. Ahvote was killed on Cottonwood island in the Colorado river, thirty-six miles below the canyon. The bodies of five of his victims have been found. Deputy Sheriff Rosborough left there last night with a posse to arrest Monse, the other Plute Indian murderer. The Wallapin Indians held a big powwow yesterday and expressed a desire to go out and exterminate the Southern Nevada band of Plutes. They say that for years Indians reported the killing of whites by this band of renegades. Chief Levy offered the services of 1000 warriors to the whites for the purpose of driving all the Plutes away from the Colorado river.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

It is stated that Jamestown is to have another large mill and elevator and operations will begin without delay. It is stated, on good authority, that the Russell Miller Milling company, originally composed of Jamestown, Valley City and Superior and Eastern parties, will reorganize and sever all connections with stockholders and company as at present composed, whose affairs are now in complicated litigation. John Russell, of Valley City; Arthur Miller, of West Superior, and E. J. White, formerly of Jamestown, are said to be behind the new deal. Negotiations for the site are in progress.

At Washburn, McLean county, forty miles north of Bismarck, Fred Bixby, a tough character formerly of this city, went to the home of Rev. Spelker during the absence of the latter and demanded admittance. Mrs. Spelker procured a revolver and succeeded in frightening Bixby away. He returned in a short time, however, and set fire to the house, which burned to the ground. Mr. Spelker and children escaped. Bixby fled and has not been apprehended by the large posse in pursuit.

Mrs. Harriet L. Adams has secured a divorce from Calvin F. Adams, on the ground of cruelty and willful neglect at Fargo. The defendant is house physician at the Hotel Waldorf, New York, and the plaintiff is a member of one of the best known Brooklyn families.

Among the divorces granted at Fargo was one to Rev. Frederick Southgate Hopkins from Sue E. Hopkins. The plaintiff is an Episcopalian minister at Larchmont, N. Y., and his divorce attracted considerable attention, as it is in direct opposition to the tenets of his church to secure divorces and remarry. The clerical gentleman alleged extreme cruelty as the reason for favorable action by the court.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

A young man of Volga went in search of wolves one day last week and succeeded in finding and digging out three dens and secured twenty-three wolves, two old ones and twenty-one young. He saw two old ones that escaped. The bounty for prairie wolves is $1.50 apiece.

Two young men named Wilfred Manson and William H. Tyle, were committed to jail at Huron charged with robbing the postoffice at Bryant last August. Commissioner Grant fixed their bail at $500, which they were unable to give. They admit the crime.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Near Ardmore, I. T., the south bound Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe passenger train No. 1 went through a trestle at 3 o'clock yesterday morning and tumbled down a 20-foot embankment. Fifteen passengers and three members of the crew were injured, some of them fatally. No one was killed outright.

At Paris Mme. De Launne and her daughter have succumbed to the injuries they received at the charity bazaar fire.

At Genoa yesterday a bronze medallion in memory of Daniel O'Connell, the celebrated Irish patriot and orator, was unveiled in the facade of the palazzo de Artzi where he died on May 15, 1847.

The Hamburg-American Packet company's steamer Arcadia from Montreal for Hamburg, went ashore four miles north of Cape May, N. F., during a dense fog. Her forehold is full of water and her cargo is being jettisoned.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Boxell, living in the country near Smith Lake, Minn., were murdered and robbed of $400 about 12 o'clock Saturday night. The instrument of death was an ax, which was found in the yard covered with blood. There is no clue to the murderers, says the Minneapolis Tribune special.

The steamer Diana, which will carry the British government expedition to Hudson bay, has arrived at Halifax from St. Johns, N. F., and will be provisioned at once for her long sojourn in the north. The scientific party and the ship's crew will make the number on board over fifty.

LIVES BY FAKE SUICIDES.

There is a young woman coming back to Oakland, says the San Francisco Examiner, who has made her way around the United States by frequent attempts at suicide. She has a record of trying to destroy herself ten times, but on each occasion she has been saved in the nick of time. She is known as Mrs. Laura Price, formerly a daring circus rider.

Sheriff White has just completed the task of securing the history of the young woman and he has been requested to forward it to the resort to New Orleans, where Mrs. Price is now in confinement because she attempted to take her life. Mrs. Price has asked all from the officials in the South, stating that it is her desire to return to friends in Oakland. She will be shipped back if the necessary money can be raised.

Mrs. Price is young and of pleasing appearance. Claiming to be a deserted wife and ex-circus rider, she is said to make her way from town to town securing contributions and playing at suicide.

Six months ago she tried to drown herself in Portland by jumping into the river in the presence of a crowd. She was saved and a purse was raised to get her out of town. Then she turned up at Redding, where she made a feeble attempt to hang herself to a trestle. Again she was rescued and a purse was raised to send her on her way. In Oakland she created a sensation by announcing during a storm that she was going to walk to Los Angeles. She started out bravely enough, but when she got to Haywards she pretended to try and hang herself to a bridge. This did not work well, so she waded into a stream where she was soon discovered. The good people of Haywards provided bountifully for her, and she was brought back to this city. The usual purse was raised, and she was shipped on the overland south. At Los Angeles she created the usual scene by attempting to drown herself. From that point she was shipped on until she managed to make her way to New Orleans, where she has just created the usual sensation by covering herself with Mississippi river mud.

SPARTA.

Sparta, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Genoa mine has 250 men employed and is increasing shipments each day. It is expected that the contractors at the Sparta Mining company's mine will commence operations with their steam shovel this week. The Duluth & Iron Range railroad has built a spur into this mine and it will undoubtedly be a good shipper before the season is over.

Campbell & Williamson, the log contractors, have discontinued their drive for the present, waiting for higher water. They have a force of twenty-five men at work cleaning out the creek that leads from Ely lake to the St. Louis river, a distance of seven miles. When this is done and with a slight rise in water, they expect to have no trouble in landing their large winter's cut in Cloquet, where it will be manufactured into lumber.

W. T. Campbell has leased the Tanner hotel for the summer season.

The Sparta Supply company has moved into the Larson block on Main street.

Byron A. Blaksley, the genial salesman at the Sparta Supply company's store, transacted business in Virginia yesterday.

Judge Cylde Bender, accompanied by Miss Bessey of McKinley, enjoyed the beauties of Ely lake Sunday.

Joseph Roman, the Virginia clothier, will open a first-class clothing store in the Benson block the first of the month.

OLE BULL'S STATUE.

Was Unveiled at Minneapolis This Afternoon.

Minneapolis, May 17.—The magical, almost mystical, memory of Ole Bull's music is at last to be incorporated into enduring bronze by his countrymen, to whom the weird strains of that enchanted violin still talk of the beauty and grandeur of their beloved fatherland. The Norwegians of the Northwest several years ago conceived the idea of erecting a fitting memorial to their greatest musician, and with great enthusiasm have carried it forward to fruition. The monument has been completed without any delay, and was unveiled this afternoon with elaborate ceremonies.

The statue is in Loring park, one of the prettiest public places in the metropolis of the Northwest. The monument is the work of Jacob Fjelde, the sculptor, who has taken great pains to get a perfect likeness of the famous violinist. Time after time he has made changes in the sketch as some new portrait has presented a different aspect of the subject, or some information from relatives of the deceased has overthrown previous conceptions. Among those who have served Mr. Fjelde in the capacity of models are Claude Madden, the violinist, and Alexander Bull, son of the dead master. The painstaking methods of the artist may be estimated from the fact that the evening dress worn by Ole Bull during his later years has been used by the different models.

The figure is nine feet in height and entirely of bronze. It represents the master in his exact playing position, there being no softening of the awkwardness of his attitude, which was not up to the canons of correct form. This gaucherie was due to his earliest lessons being taken on a fiddle too large for him, on which he was compelled to play through the stupidity of his father, who totally misunderstood the child's nature.

All the family, including his son Alexander, who is a distinguished violinist and his daughter, who is a talented musician, were present at the unveiling ceremonies, in which prominent Norwegians from the Northwest took part. John W. Arctander, president of the Ole Bull Monument association, under whose auspices the work was dedicated, presented the monument to the city. The occasion took on more than an individual color, for the monument is said to be the first memorial erected in the United States in honor of a player of a musical instrument.

LOWER

Wheat Declined a Cent Today Owing to the Bearish Reports.

Liverpool Cables Noted a Drop, and the Receipts Were Heavy.

Weather Was Fine and Crop Prospects in the Northwest Excellent.

Wheat opened lower today. The early news contained absolutely no encouragement for buyers. First Liverpool cables chronicled a dip of ½d, the weather was fine and crop prospects excellent in the Northwest. The receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth were heavy, 550 cars against 49 last week and 401 last year and the weekly world's shipments, according to Beerbohm, amounted to 6,160,000 bus, the largest for months. The only support the market got was a little buying at Chicago against puts and prospects of a large visible decrease.

The visible supply decreased 2,125,000 bus against 854,000 bus decrease year ago. The total now in sight is 209,257,000 bus compared with 32,146,000 bus a year ago. The market was not immediately affected by such heavy disappearance of elevator stocks since a week ago, but when the cablegram from Liverpool showed ½d of the earlier ½d decrease had been recovered, the price began gradually to rise. It was said that 900,000 bus or so of the wheat reported sold at Chicago last week for shipment East by lake was today being loaded into vessels. That helped toward the recovery.

There was a fair amount of trading on the Duluth board. July wheat opened ½c lower at 74¾c and declined during the first hour to 74c. It rallied to 74⅝c during the last half hour but sold off again to 73⅞c and closed with buyers at 74¼c, a decline of ¼c from Saturday's close. The milling demand, 125 000 bus of cash stuff at 2c over July, and the elevators took 25,000 bus at 1½c over July. Following were the closing prices:

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of S. C. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 17.—Wheat opened off on lower cables. Liverpool closing a penny lower and stating that the weakness was due to improved weather in Russia and on the continent. Minneapolis also wired that two of Washburn's mills has shut down this morning and others were threatening to close, stating that they could not sell their full output at present prices. The crop advices presented nothing new but a careful investigation of the situation would indicate that the winter wheat harvest will show about a normal crop, the deficiency in the neighborhood of Illinois being made up in the Southern and Eastern states where the harvest is near and the prospects over last year estimated at 20,000,000 bus. The Northwest will raise a large crop this year unless the unforseen happens for the large area seeded would indicate an increase of at least 25 per cent and the weather conditions thus far are perfect. The statistical strength which we have been looking for all winter has fully materialized but the market is not in a position to respond well to it as the nearness of harvest and fickle cash demand, together with light speculative business, are a set-back to the higher prices which should ensue. Charters for wheat here the last three days equal 650,000 bus but only a very limited business was done today and the May premium narrowed on liquidating sales by small holders.

Corn easy with free selling by elevator concerns and country holders. The fine weather is the most potent weakening influence. Oats also easy for the same reasons.

Provisions weak on fine weather and large receipts. Cash demand only fair and shorts are the main support. Selling is scattered and packers best buyers on the decline.

Puts, July wheat, 70¾@70⅝c.
Calls, July wheat, 72⅝@72⅜c bid.
Curb, July wheat, 71⅞c asked.

GRAND JURY REPORT.

Heavy Expenditures For Poor Are Severely Criticized.

At 3:15 this afternoon the grand jury submitted its report and was discharged. New indictments were found against Charles and Eureka Bornemann for manslaughter in the second degree. J. L. Steele was indicted for destroying personal property at Hibbing; William Laplante and William Blanchard, assault in the second degree, committed on E. L. Halverson, Saturday night. One indictment was withheld.

The large sums expended for the relief of the poor were referred to, and attention was called to the disproportion in the amounts expended in St. Louis county as compared with Hennepin and Ramsey counties. The method of distribution was condemned, and it was asserted that opportunities were afforded for wholesale robberies by corrupt county officials. The practise of purchasing supplies at retail instead of wholesale was also commented on unfavorably.

The failure of the city officials to collect pawnbrokers' license fees was considered as excessive carelessness, if not a total disregard of official duty.

Dr. C. W. McFadden, dentist, has removed from Miller building, to rooms 208 and 209 Lonsdale building.

The evening paper is always carefully read, especially in the home circle, and is therefore an excellent advertising medium. Advertisers in The Evening Herald always get full value.

WEST END

Ironton Plant Is Finally Announced to Be Ready For Work.

Rental Agents Report an Increasing Demand For Small Houses.

Supply of the Kind Wanted is Inadequate---Other News.

Occasionally a report from the Ironton steel plant reaches the outside world, notwithstanding the barred doors and oath-bound service of employes. Today it is said that the blooming mill is closed and that the finishing mill is in operation. It is claimed that the experimental work is now about concluded, that the practical working of the machinery has been demonstrated, and that it will soon be ready to accept orders. Report, however, says nothing as to whether it will be prepared to take up the work of rolling plates for the steel force main pipes for the city waterworks plant.

SMALL HOUSES WANTED.

A West End rental agent said to an Evening Herald reporter today that there was a steady demand for small houses at a moderate rental, and that while there were quite a number of houses to be had, that they were either not conveniently located or were too large to be maintained by persons of moderate income. He said that houses which could be easily built for $300, small, compact and handy to the business and manufacturing districts, would never want for good tenants at a rental of $10 a month. Houses of this kind will pay large interest on the investment and will never be vacant in West Duluth. The trouble has been that rental properties in the West End were evidently not intended for a population of working people, and instead of putting up small houses suitable for small families, large houses have been built, and they are each occupied by several families at great inconvenience or are entirely vacant.

"NORWAY'S INDEPENDENCE."

O. Stenson will speak tonight at Great Eastern hall on "Norway's Independence." The Young People's society of the Norwegian Lutheran church has arranged a fine musical and literary program which will be rendered in connection with Mr. Stenson's lecture, and in addition to this refreshments will be served. Arrangements have been made for the accomodation of a large attendance.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETING.

A meeting of the Woman's Missionary society will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Westminster Presbyterian church, to receive the report of the delegates who attended the annual meeting of the woman's board, which was held at Rock Island, Ill., recently. All ladies of this and other churches who are interested in missionary work are especially invited to be present.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The city wagons will be set to work in West Duluth this week and complete the work of cleaning up the streets and alleys. There is little left to be done, so well have citizens performed their work.

H. G. Martin was elected president and Maud Dowswell secretary of the Longfellow Literary society at a meeting held Friday afternoon.

M. J. Solberg and a number of other members of the Orpheus Singing club are in Minneapolis attending the May musical festival. They are expected to return ilcne tomorrow.

Miss Emma McKennitt, who now lives at Two Harbors, is visiting old friends in West Duluth.

James Powers narrowly escaped choking to death Saturday. While eating, a bone lodged in his throat and the services of a physician were necessary to get it out.

The Woman's Presbyterial Missionary society will hold a meeting tomorrow at 3 o'clock at the Westminster church in West Duluth. A full report will be given of the annual meeting of the board of the Northwest, which was held at Rock Island, Ill.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Chicago, May 17.—Adolph L. Luetgert, a well-known sausage manufacturer, was arrested this afternoon on the charge of having murdered his wife. Luetgert made an assignment about ten days ago, and about the same time Mrs. Luetgert disappeared. It was at first supposed that she had committed suicide as a result of her husband's failure. The river was dragged but with no result and for several days detectives have been working on the murder theory. The police claim to have direct evidence that Luetgert killed his wife in the basement of his sausage factory and that her body was destroyed with the object of hiding all traces of the crime.

YALE VS. WISCONSIN.

New Haven, Conn., May 17.—Capt. Bailey of the Yale crew has received a telegram from the university of Wisconsin's eight stating that they expect to be here by Thursday. They will go into training quarters secured for them by the Yale management at Lake Saltonstall. The Badgers will be here in time to witness the Yale spring regatta on Saturday, possibly giving an exhibition mile in it. They will train here until the triangular Yale freshman race, May 29.

MAY DISPUTE THE WILL.

Windsor, Ont., May 17.—The case of William H. Jewell, the deceased insurance man, of Detroit, who married Miss Florence McDonagh, a niece of Sir John Carling, on his deathbed last week, is causing much excitement here on account of the disparity of the ages of the contracting parties. Previous to their marriage, Jewell had transferred his insurance policies to Miss McDonagh, and his will has been made in his favor. It is probable the will will be disputed by Don C. Jewell, a son of William H. Jewell, by his former wife.

THE NORWEGIAN HOLIDAY.

Each year the Norwegians assemble to celebrate the memories of the day when the independence of Norway was proclaimed early in the present century. To the Norse race the Seventeenth of May corresponds to a large extent to our Fourth of July. It was on May 17, 1814, that the chosen representatives of the Norwegian people at Eidsvold proclaimed their country's independence and adopted the freest constitution under which any country in the old world is now living. When the constitution had been finally adopted the 111 representatives joined hands and took a solemn oath that Norway always shall remain free and independent so long as the grand Dovre mountains stand. So free is this constitution that Norway is today a monarchy in name only. There is a king, but he cannot be justly styled a ruler, because he is as amenable to the laws as is the lowly peasant. The people rule, and he is but their representative to carry out their will.

In view of these facts, it is not surprising that the Norwegians love to celebrate this day. In the Northwest this year all the celebrations are overshadowed by the great gatherings at Minneapolis in connection with the unveiling of the Ole Bull monument. The festival began yesterday and will be continued today, and is attended by thousands of Norwegians from this and surrounding states. The chief oration was delivered by W. W. Erwin, of St. Paul, who is a descendant of the Norsemen and distinguished for his eloquence and ability.

A CHESTNUT VENDOR.

One of the regular contributors to the columns of the Chicago Times-Herald is J. S. Evans, who writes about Georgia and Georgians. While the Times-Herald apparently holds his communications in high esteem and gives them a prominent place on the editorial page, the Georgia people do not seem to regard them so highly. Indeed the Atlanta Journal says they are a conglomeration of inaccuracies, blunders and chestnuts. As an instance of this blundering, the Journal points out that the writer recently referred to Toombs and Stephens as colleagues in the United States senate, when every high school boy in Georgia knows that Mr. Stephens was never a United States senator.

An equally ridiculous error was the statement by the Times-Herald's writer that Georgia had enacted a law against the sale of bottled cocktail. He was thinking of a ruling of the internal revenue commissioner. In his last letter this fecund purveyor of misinformation writes of Gen. Longstreet and devotes much space to a story about the general which, he says "has never been in print." This revelation begins as follows:

"In 1868, after the election of Gen. Grant to the presidency, there was a conference of nearly all the big leaders of the Confederacy in one of the parlors of the St. Charles hotel in New Orleans. There were twelve or more present, and the meeting, which was held behind closed doors, lasted for more than a week. When it did adjourn it had been resolved that so far as they could they would throw no obstacles in the way of the national government; that they would advise their Southern friends to desert the Democratic party and join hands with the Republicans, and in this way the Federal offices would go to the ex-Confederates instead of the ghouls and carpetbaggers that then infested that country. Gen. Longstreet, a college mate of Gen. Grant's, and a personal friend of many years' standing, notwithstanding the fact that each commanded contending forces during the civil war, had seen the great soldier at Washington a few weeks before, who then had recommended such a course. It was agreed at the New Orleans conference, almost without opposition, that these Southerners should co-operate with Gen. Grant and brin gabout a speedy settlement of all differences then existing."

After referring to a visit of Longstreet to President Grant and his bold stand for the alleged program, this write says: "The other Confederates who had entered into the compact to take the offices and thereby show the administration that they were ready to act in peace, were frightened away by the indignation created by Longstreet's acceptance, and finally they became the traitors, if traitor there was. Longstreet had been sent ahead to blaze the way. The fogs had become thick and the road dangerous, and his followers halted behind when they had promised assistance."

This story, which the readers of the Times-Herald are told "has never been in print," appeared in newspapers fifteen years ago and has been published hundreds of times. It provoked much newspaper correspondence, and for a time was a sensational feature in Southern newspapers. The Atlanta paper therefore concludes that the Times-Herald office is a fine market for worm-eaten chestnuts.

A PERPLEXING PROBLEM.

The great powers of Europe are face to face with a serious and perplexing problem. Flushed with success and possibly enjoying a secret understanding with some members of that very discordant "concert," Turkey demands as a condition precedent to ending the war with Greece the annexation of Thessaly and the payment of an indemnity of £10,000,000. If these terms are declined, the sultan gives notice that the advance of the Turkish army into Greece will continue. The porte's demand for the annexation of Thessaly is cleverly worded. It is based upon the fact that the province was originally ceded to Greece on the advice of the powers, with the object of ending brigandage and Greek incursions into Ottoman territory, the porte believing at the time that the cession would attain these objects, but the recent incursions of Greek bands and the events immediately preceding the war have proved the contrary.

What are the powers going to do about it? The war party in Turkey is strong and aggressive, and not inclined to discontinue the war without a promise of some material return for the money and men sacrificed in the conflict. It is not likely to yield readily to the demand of the powers that hostilities cease, without any portion of Thessaly being ceded to Turkey. On the other hand, the powers are said to be determined that Thessaly shall remain under Greek rule, because its annexation by Turkey would be a violation of the treaty of Berlin and imperil the peace of the Balkans. With such a divergence of views, the situation is filled with uncertainties. The Chicago Times-Herald says:

"Now the Greeks consent to accept the mediation of the powers, and as a preliminary to an arrangement with Turkey they agree to withdraw the troops from Crete, where they have been enjoying a sort of picnic since the outbreak of hostilities in Thessaly. So far so good. The Greeks are now accounted for. But the Turks have still to be reckoned with, and the reckoning promises to be more perplexing to the 'federation of Europe' than the policy of rigid deprecation of Greece's warlike movements. While the concert was solely concerned in the preservation of the existing status its work was accurately mapped out for it. Now it must deal with a triumphant nation in the interest both of the defeated kingdom and of the peace of Europe."

The powers could have prevented the war had their "concert" been as harmonious as it was represented, but while they were instrumental in preventing Greece from making sufficient preparations for the war now in progress, they did nothing to tie the Turks' hands or interfere in any way with their preparations to meet the Greeks. The result is that the Turks have been victorious, and are plundering the Greeks as they advance through Thessaly. The porte has made large demands in the way of indemnity, and insists that they shall be agreed to before the Turkish troops cease to advance. The powers can hardly agree to the demands, but how are they going to stop the struggle, unless they send their own troops to give the Turks a sound thrashing?

The report comes from England that it is now the "proper thing" to drink rum. Dickens' characters always seemed to regard rum as their peculiar tipple, and it is perhaps one of the consequences of the Dickens revival that this liquor, which a few years ago had gone almost out of use, is once more in favor. In New England rum is still made, and that which is not sent out to the African heathen is consumed by old people of conservative tastes. In the old time there was point as well as wit in the suggestion of the New Hampshire clergyman that the congregation paint the church with new rum on the inside only. He said many of the parishioners had painted their interiors with new rum, and he noticed the color came out lighter every day on their exteriors.

The Sleepy Eye dispatch suggests that the state law supplement, published last week, is worthy of a careful reading "particularly by boys who chew and smoke tobacco and dealers who sell boys chewing or smoking tobacco. Boys are liable to arrest and imprisonment for using or having in their possession cigarettes, cigars, or in fact tobacco in any form. If a few of the juvenile members of the boo gang were cooped up in the cooler for a while it would be tuff, awful tuff, but it might have a wholesome effect in helping them get out of the grip of Nic O. Tine."

The Indian guard of honor for the queen in June, to be drawn from the imperial service troops and native cavalry regiments, has now been definitely fixed at a minimum of forty officers. They are to be absent for three or four months. Competition for the honor has been keen, but regiments have been selected which have not hitherto been privileged to send representatives to Britain. There is also great rivalry among the Canadian militia officers to be selected for this honor.

The school children of Rhode Island have decided in favor of the violet, and it is therefore to be recognized as the state flower. In the ballot by the school children 42,209 votes were thrown, of which 10,013, the largest number, were for the violet, the rose coming next with 7,763 votes. This is a fortunate choice, as there are nearly enough varieties of the violet to give to each of the people of the Providence Plantation his or her own individual flower.

What the Boston Transcript calls the decadentest novel of all is out. It is written by a Miss Pain. The lover wore a pink carnation in his buttonhole. He declared his love for the loveress. She was struck by lightning and killed. When the man heard of it, he sat with is head in his hands until the room grew chilly, then he retired for the night. Fortunately there is no longer any fashionable need of reading this sort of book. They have "gone by."

Among the provisions of the high-license law adopted by Pomona, Cal., is one that permits but one seat in a saloon, and that for the accommodation of the barkeeper. This of course in the cause of temperance. It was only a few years ago in Massachusetts that in the same cause every drinker was required to sit down to do his drinking. One theory is as good as another until it has been tried.

It is now said that M. J. Dowling, secretary of the Republican National league, will seek the nomination for secretary of state next year. Why does he not aspire to be state auditor? He would find it an easy job to win out against Dunn, who is the only open candidate at present for the nomination. But the people have had enough of him and are anxious for a change.

The Madison, Minn., Independent-Press says: "Mr. Merriam's transition from a vice presidential possibility to the receivership of a hogyard was indeed rapid. His association with the four legged hogs will still further fit him for the preparation of magazine articles in defense of the two legged ones."

The great powers were responsible for the poor showing which Greece made at the beginning of the war, having blockaded Cretan ports and threatened to block the Greek ports, and it is therefore their duty to compel the Turks to cease their advance, even if they find it necessary to use force.

THE TELEPHONE DECISION.

Philadelphia Press: The decision of the United States supreme court in the Berliner patent case extends the life of the Bell telephone monopoly to 1908. This is a blessing to the holders of Bell telephone stock, but a misfortune for everyone else.

Philadelphia Times: The decision will prove a disappointment, for the telephone has become a necessity to thousands, and the new lease of life which the decision confers upon the existing monopoly will tend to maintain the present high rates for a practical telephone service.

Philadelphia Record: There was a failure to prove the government's contention that the delay of thirteen years in the issue of the Berliner patent was due to fraudulent collusion with the patent office officials. The fact of such delay, however, and of the opportunity of oppressive continuance of monopoly by means of it, ought to result in an overhauling of the patent laws and of the methods adopted in the patent office. It is a marvelous exhibition of the possibilities of red tape procedure and a very costly lesson to the suffering public.

Chicago Tribune: Competition in the telephone field is now postponed for eleven years, with the hope of lower telephone rates which the possibility of competition had brought into existence. But there is little ground for complaint as to the character of the telephone service, and the owners of the telephone monopoly have been granting concessions of late, in the matter of rates. Every improvement in the service and all reductions in charges will operate to allay the irritation which the general public will feel more or less until the expiration of the Berliner patent.

Atlanta Constitution: The practical monopoly that the Bell company will now enjoy will put it in a position to forever settle agitation and argument on this score, for it will have full opportunity to furnish satisfactory service at reasonable rates, based solely upon a fair compensation for service performed. If it continues furnishing adequate service at proper rates there will be no occasion for the public to regret the decision of the supreme court, but if an exclusive control of patents leads to inefficient service or extortionate rates there will be a general protest from the commercial world and widespread regret at the judicial blow to competition.

Kansas City Star: The Bell company came so near losing exclusive control of its valuable inventions, and its officials were brought face to face with such active and vigorous competition because of the prospective expiration of its patents, that it has probably learned how necessary it is for it to put its charges down to a level which will afford only a reasonable return on the capital invested. In that way it can effectually forestall all competition and keep the field to itself and in that way the public may enjoy much better service than if competing companies divide the business and numerous exchanges, at war with one another, are established.

Philadelphia Ledger: The outcome in this case is likely to direct attention to the many vices of our patent system. Originally, a patent issued by the government meant something more than a prospective lawsuit. At present patents are granted with scarcely any discrimination, and patenters are left to prove their rights in the courts. If the patentee is a poor man his invention can be stolen with impunity; if the patent falls into the hands of a rich corporation it can be made to cover the basic principle of a new discovery and to shut out the men whose inventions made it possible to usefully apply the principle, unless they consent to sell their inventions to the existing monopoly. The Bell company simply offers a conspicuous example of the way the patent law has been perverted from its original purpose.

SENATORIAL SUGAR.

Washington dispatch to Chicago Times-Herald: Monday last a certain stock broker in this city, illled an order for 9000 shares of sugar stock in Wall street. His customers were three United States senators.

In filling this order the broker began buying at 113⅞ and bought up to 115. Tuesday this deal was closed out at from 117⅝ to 118. The net profit on the transaction was about $30,000.

It is pretty well understood that senators who were able to get inside information concerning the sugar schedule in the finance committee revision have been buying in Wall street for a week or more. They were speculating on a sure thing, for the manner in which the sugar schedule favors the trust could not fail to put its shares up in the market when the facts should become public property.

Leakages in Management That Mean Loss.

The old adage that "a woman can throw out of the window with a teaspoon more than a man can bring in on a shovel" contains more truth than poetry. A large income can be wasted with surprising celerity by the continuance of little leaks that seem too insignificant to be noticed individually. Many a woman is ignorantly a participant in rearing and protecting these little foxes that spoil the household vine. A partial list of some of these little wastes is:

Wearing rubbers over new shoes, thereby making the leather dry and hard and easily cracked.

Pieces of lace and ribbons thrown away.

Making the sewing woman wait in the house idle or doing fancy work because you have neglected to get materials before her arrival.

Buying articles because they are cheap, and will come in some time.

Allowing whalebones to wear through the waist, thereby ruining an elegant gown.

Wearing the same clothing each week as it comes from the wash.

Leaving a silk umbrella in a case, there by causing it to split in the folds.

Turning skirts wrong side out when hanging them up.

Placing brushes with the bristles side up.

Failing to sew glove buttons on before wearing, or mending them before cleaning.

Sweeping the house in the usual morning dress with head uncovered.

Pieces of cake and bread allowed to dry and mold, then thrown away.

Failing to dry a box of soap for several days before using it.

Dried fruits left uncovered and consequently allowed to become wormy.

Dish towels used for holders.

Sheets used for ironing tables.

Napkins used for dish towels.

Towels used for wash rags.

The face of flat irons used to crack nuts on.

Cold potatoes allowed to sour.

Sour milk thrown away.

The kerosene can left open to evaporate.

Cold fish thrown away.

Cheese permitted to mold.

Fat put in earthen dishes.

The mustard cruse remaining open to dry.

Canned goods left exposed in cans.

Rice and sugar wasted in the handling.

Too much starch made and thrown out.

Pails and washtubs left dry to fall to pieces.

Silver spoons and forks left in the kitchen.

Tin dishes improperly dried when washed.

Mops and brooms not hung up.

Tea and coffee pots neglected.

Corks left out of vinegar and molasses jugs.

Preserves opened, forgotten and left to sour.

Soap left in dish pans to dissolve and waste.

Orange peel thrown away (save them for kindling.)

Bits of meat thrown away.

Carpet brooms used to scrub with.

Throwing away tea leaves (save them for sweeping dark carpets; coarse table salt should be used for light carpets.)

CURRENT FUN.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "He's a physician, isn't he?"

"Oh, dear, no; only a plain doctor. He doesn't charge enough to entitle him to call himself a physician."

Chicago Post: "In the case of that Boston monkey that learned to ride the bicycle—"

"Well?"

"—It must have come very easy for him."

"I don't see why."

"It was unnecessary for him to acquire the bicycle back. He already had it."

Detroit Free Press: "Why have you quit fighting for the single tax theory, Dumly?"

"I expect to be married in June."

Chicago Tribune: "Some men," remarked Uncle Allen Sparks, "are born liars, some by dint of practice become fairly expert liars, and some see airships."

Boston Transcript: Edith—Do you have much difficulty in talking German?

Bertha—O, dear, no; it's so much like gargling you can hardly tell the difference.

Chicago Record: "Your wife seems to be very nervous."

"Yes; our physician had to forbid her ever listening to other women talk about house cleaning."

Detroit Free Press: "There is no way to mend my broken fortunes," sighed the disconsolate young man.

"But they might be spliced, you know," chuckled the sly old millionaire, whose homely daughter has passed the hey-day of life.

Indianapolis Journal: Yabsley—There comes Mudge. Let's run.

Wickwire—What's the matter with Mudge that we should flee.

Yabsley—Haven't you heard? He has got so that every time he has eight or ten drinks he wants to give recitations in the Scotch dialect.

New York Advertiser: "What kind of a wife shall a young man marry?" asks a magazine writer. It strikes us that he'd better not marry any kind of a wife. Let him take a widow or a single young woman.

Detroit Free Press: "Susie cannot go to the art exhibition; the puppy has torn up her hat."

"Well, let her wear the red lamp shade; no one will know the difference."

Cincinnati Commercial: "Say," remarked the war editor, "I don't see how Turkey ever got her forces transported into Greece, do you?"

"Certainly," replied the political editor. "She got hold of all the passes."

A GENERAL WILLINGNESS.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
For this, my own, my native land,
I gladly would make sacrifice;
Give up my business—any price
High would I pay to serve it, and Take any office, small or great,
If so that I might help the state.
If such there be, go mark him down
The biggest wonder in the town.
For greater ones you need not seek—
In him you find the largest freak.

THE SPOILS OF WAR.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Greece went into the war in defiance of the powers, and is now begging the powers to get her out of the war. Drop your nickel in the "Greek tragedy" slot and get an opera bouffe.

Philadelphia Record: Premature speculations concerning the terms of peace between Greece and Turkey are of little value. The correspondents who during the progress of the combat were unable to obtain prompt information of current events are very much less likely to be in a position to know what is going to happen tomorrow or on the day after.

Kansas City Star: With the announcement that Greece has agreed to accept the services of the powers in establishing peace comes a statement that the sultan has given orders for the mobilization of a great increase in his effective fighting force and also the publication of an address by Prince Constantine to the Greek army, declaring that the position of the Greeks is now invincible, and that the army will soon be able to take the offensive and drive the Turks from the Greek territory which they occupy at present. Evidently the diplomacy of the cast is in a very muddled condition.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: One reason why most of the great nations are either openly or secretly pleased at Turkey's success is that many of their citizens hold Turkish stocks and bonds. These persons would be peculiarly injured by Turkish defeat, for that would lower the value of their holdings. The class which buy government and railroad securities is a very important element of the population of every great nation of the modern day. In a very direct and emphatic degree the financiers own and shut the gates of the temple of Janus these days.

New York Mail and Express: The scene of war is thus transferred from the field of battle to the plane of diplomacy and the outlook for Greece is ominous indeed. She will pay the penalty of failure to the last farthing. The governments of Europe are all against her. She has committed the unpardonable offense of resenting their dictation and defying their power, and now that she is prostrate before them she must be prepared to undergo still greater punishment than she has suffered at the hands of the Turk. If the present dynasty at Athens is maintained it will be only because the European nations believe that it will be harmless to their own schemes in the east. If Turkey's demand for a territorial indemnity is rejected it will be simply because Russia and Germany would regard an extension of the Ottoman frontier as inimical to their own plans of aggrandizement.

HOW THEY WOULD ROAR!

Long Prairie Leader: We notice a good many of our Republican and Democratic gold standard exchanges are again filling up on gold plate matter, furnished to them free of charge by the "sound money" crowd. But how these same papers would howl against this "agitation" were the silver papers to do likewise with silver plate matter.

TAM BIG BEE.

Fort Smith, Ark., News Record: The political leaders in the Indian Territory are nothing if not smooth. The nomination of Tam Big Bee as a member of the Dawes commission takes the cake.

It was only a short time ago that Knute Nelson, the junior senator from Minnesota, presented the name of Tams Bixby as a member of the Dawes commission, and he was nominated and immediately confirmed by the senate.

Mr. Bixby is at present the private secretary to the governor of Minnesota, but judging from his pictures, published in a daily paper, he must be a full-blooded Indian, and as for ourselves, we believe that he is masquerading under the name of Tams Bixby, and that his real name is Tam Big Bee.

It is reported that at Tahlequah, where the Dawes commission is now in session, great preparations are being made for the reception of Mr. Big Bee by the leaders of the various tribes, and he will receive as presents two of the most improved Winchesters, with belts and cartridges; also a pair of Colt's navys, several dirk knives, a fine, fleet single-footer, saddle, bridle, lariat and spurs. No doubt Mr. Big Bee's arrival in the Indian Territory will be "hot stuff" for the nation.

It is reported that Mr. Big Bee has completely mastered the English language, is quite a leader among the tribes where he now lives and is considerable of a stringer himself.

RED TAPE VAGARIES.

Belgian Merchant Gets Even With Customs Officials.

One of the most delightful instances of thwarted red-tapism was recently brought about in Belgium. To understand the story it must be prefaced by the statement that the customs officials, should they consider any goods to be of higher value than that stated by the importer, can take over the same at the stated value, the goods being sold afterward at auction.

A merchant not long ago lost an important contract through the customs exercising the right to buy a thousand pairs of imported gloves at their declared value, and he resolved to have his revenge. Some little time elapsed, and another consignment of gloves came for the same merchant which was, to the intense annoyance of the officials appraised at the same value as that which they had already bought. Determined to show the merchant that they would not be trifled with, for the second time the government bought in the consignment.

In the course of events the gloves were put up at auction, but to the great discomfiture of the officials there were no buyers—the gloves were all left-handed. Of course they were anxious to get rid of the wretched things, so when some days later a very scallily-dressed individual offered to take them away, and pay a sum in addition which would just cover the storage charges, his offer was promptly accepted, and a few hours later the gloves were in the possession of the merchant who imported them.

When, a month later, another thousand gloves came along, all right-handed, addressed to the same merchant, the officials looked gloomy, said nothing about what they felt, and passed them without hesitation.

When the importation of ice into that country was a novelty, the customs authorities, being doubtful under what head it should be classed, put in motion the machinery that is bound with red tape, and waited for a definite ruling from higher authorities. When in the course of time the waiting officials received the reply, "Dry goods," the cargo of ice which had not waited for the ruling was represented by a wet spot, and nothing more.

HOW CHICKS ARE HATCHED.

Theodore T. Swift writes the State Center Enterprise, of Iowa, to settle the question of the motherhood of chickens. He says:

"It is a true fact that if a fresh, strongly fertilized egg is broken open at the temperature of 120 degrees, you can, by the aid of a glass, see the heart beat. So, you see, there is life in a strong, fertile egg when laid, which goes to prove that the hen which lays the egg is the mother, and the hen that hatches the chickens only nurses and rears them to that point where they can care for themselves.

"The following shows my experience in watching the growth of the chicks during incubation, by means of an egg tester, which might be of interest to some of your readers:

"36 to 48 hours, heart beat visible through the shell.

"72 hours, prominent veins, wings and part of the head.

"120 to 160 hours, first voluntary motion and organs of life forming.

"190 hours, bill and the completion of the breast.

"220 hours, ribs and bill very plain.

"240 hours, feathers appear.

"260 hours, eyes appear, completion of head.

"335 hours, chick complete, and 15 to 20 hours later first cry from imprisoned chick.

"425 hours, chick nearly completed growth.

"475 hours, pipped shell.

"500 hours, chick bursts shell and is out.

"A good setting hen will hatch out three settings; or, if you take eggs from a hen that has set eighteen days and put them under a hen wanting to set, she will get off the nest with only three days' setting, feeling just as well as a hen that sets forty-two or sixty-three days. It is as stated, she will stop when the chicks appear and are strong enough to crawl from under her wings."

FUN ON OLD CLIPPER SHIPS.

New York Sun: "One of the youngsters asked me the other day, "said the old skipper, "if I had ever been to Europe on a record-breaking liner. I told him I hadn't, and never wanted to go there that way. It is just a question of engineers and stokers, mere landsmen, on a big liner, and I'd rather ship before the mast, even in one of your lubberly forty-day steel square riggers with bows like a canal boat, than go on a steamship. It would be just about as interesting to me as a trip on a railroad train.

"The kind of sailing I like it will never be the privilege of you young fellows to indulge in. You'll never know the fun of having a clipper craft as sharp as a steamboat under your feet jumping across the seas under a press of canvas never seen on ocean-going sailing vessels nowadays, with her rigging as taut as iron bars and your shipmates holding your hair on your head.

"'What she can't carry she may lug,' was the text at sea then. I remember when I was in the clipper Northern Light we carried stu'n'sails slap into Boston harbor, making the famous passage of seventy-six days and four hours from San Francisco. Our ship worked like a basket, but we had shiped a double crew for the run and one crew did nothing but pump ship. There was some cracking on of sail when ships of 2000 tons or more had all their top hamper whisked over the lee side while the skipper was turning to spit over the taffrail. Even after that some of the ships made good passages. It's a funeral nowadays to lose a topgallantmast."

HUMAN ROOKERIES.

The mere fact that the Turks overran Thessaly on the Grecian frontier does not by any means imply that they can easily extirpate the Christians in that once fertile vale. Some of the Christian strongholds in this territory, which for generations has been in dispute between the adherents of the cross and crescent, are perched high on inaccessible rocks, says the New York Journal.

The monastery of All Saints, popularly known as Hagios Barlaam, is on the top of a lofty mountain, rising several hundred feet sheer from the ground. The monastery buildings crown the top of this rock clear to the outer edges, and it is only to be reached when the monks deign to let down a rope ladder or net, in which the visitor is slowly hauled by a cumbersome windlass to the lofty summit.

The monks on top of this lofty rock have stores of wine and warehouses filled with grain. They are men of abstemious habits, accustomed to live upon the minimum of food which will support human life, and a siege by the Turks they would look upon as an event requiring special fortitude and sacrifice.

This monastery in Thessaly was built in the fifteenth century. The rope by which it is reached is 240 feet in length.

This rope is lowered by the monks when they consent to receive the visit of some stranger who has been well recommended to them. On the end of the rope is a net and in this the visitor with his baggage takes his place.

Then the monks far above turn an ancient windlass and the visitor in his net slowly ascends. If for any reason the monks do not like the look of the visitor, or if they change their minds while the rope is being hauled up, the burden in the net can be let down again—if necessary with a "run."

By uncoupling one of the wheels of the windlass the visitor can be dumped on the ground in an unceremonious manner with several lengths of stout rope on top of him. This form of treatment, it is said was accorded by the monks to suspicious visitors in former times. Spies attempting to ascend the rock by means of the rope ladder have had the ladder cut above them when a few feet from the top, falling on the rocks below and being dashed to death.

A QUEER FISH.

The queerest of all queer-eyed animals has now been found. It is the Periophthalmus, a fish inhabiting the coasts of China, Japan, nda the Malayan Archipelago and Eastern Africa, says the New York Journal.

This strange creature, when in pursuit of its prey, leaves the sea and comes out on the sands, thus existing for the greater portion of its life in an element which, according to the nature of things ought to be fatal to it. The laws of evolution have, however, eminently prepared it for its peculiar mode of life. Its gill cavities are so large that when it abandons the sea it carries in them a quantity of water which yields up the necessary supply of oxygen.

Its locomotion has been provided for likewise, for continued use along certain lines has so developed its pectoral fins that the creature uses them as legs, and jumps along at a surprising rate of speed. Its eyes are very large and prominent, and possess, for a fish, the peculiar faculty of looking around on all sides; hence its name, Periophthalmus. These eyes are situated on top of the animal's head, and present a very grotesque appearance.

The favorite food of this fish, says the Medical Record, is a naked mollusk called Onchidium. And, in the matter of eyes, this last mentioned creature is itself worthy of remark.

Its cephalic or head eyes are like those of other mollusks, and not worthy of special mention. But its dorsal eyes, sometimes several hundred in number, are truly remarkable. These dorsal eyes, although they are very simple in structure, in type are the same as those of vertebrate animals, having cornea, lenses, retinae and "blind spots." In the vertebrate eye the spot where the optic nerve pierces the external layer of the retina is sightless; hence it is called the "blind spot."

When this mollusk sees the Periophthalmus bounding over the sands it contracts a thousand or so of little bladder-like cells in the skin of its back, thereby discharging a hail storm of minute concretions in the face of its enemy!

The fish, terrified and amazed by the volley, turns aside, and the mollusk is saved. Thus its dorsal eyes are of great advantage to the Onchidium. It is not able, like the Periophthalmus, to move these eyes, yet, situated as they are all over its back, it possesses the power of seeing in every direction.

TAXING INHERITANCES.

Kansas City Star: The Illinois supreme court has decided that the inheritance tax law of Illinois is constitutional, thereby reversing a decision against the law by a lower court. The ruling thus reversed was not based on opposition to the principle of the law, but on the contention that the law was inequitable, in that it did not provide for uniformity of taxation. The decree of the Illinois supreme court strengthens the conviction that an inheritance tax will soon be an accepted and important method of raising revenue in every state in the Union.

THE CIGARETTE IN WAR.

Chicago Chronicle: The remarkable young novelists whom the yellow journalism has sent as war correspondents have most of their dispatches upon incidents in which the cigarette plays a part. From Cuba Richard Harding Davis sent us impassioned dispatches concerning the bravery of a man rolling a cigarette while going to execution, and after cabling the heartrending news that he could not buy a cigar in a certain shop at Athens that other toy fictionist, Stephen Crane, now wires that a Greek lieutenant was shot in the act while rolling a cigarette. The Spanish and Turks are carrying their opposition to the cigarette to unusual ends.

CATTLE MEN IN TOWN.

The Party Entertained By J. B. Sutphin & Co.

John B. Sutphin and Morton Miller of the Sutphin Packing company entertained a party of about twenty gentlemen yesterday, most of whom were representatives of the live stock interests of St. Paul, in a most hospitable manner.

Saturday evening Charles L. Hass, S. P. Atcheson, George Wentworth, of South St. Paul, and H. Baker, of Buffalo, N. D., arrived in the city as the advance guard of the larger party that came yesterday morning. The others were James Reid, yardmaster of the South St. Paul stockyards; Frank Hankey, of Hankey Bros., commission men; J. Duncan, manager of the Dakota Packing house; James King, of Staples & King, packers; Frank King, of the same firm; Michael O'Toole, Abram D. Moe, of the South St. Paul Daily Reporter; N. P. and J. Johnson Rogers, commission men; J. R. King, wholesale meat merchant; A. B. Hinman, of Hinman & Co., packers at Minnesota Transfer, and T. H. Moat, stock buyer for the Sutphin Packing company. At 10 o'clock yesterday morning after breakfasting at the St. Louis, the party went to the foot of Fifth avenue west, where N. H. Witt's tug Grayling was in waiting and rode to Superior, going around Minnesota Point. Several places of interest were visited there and in West Superior. Leaving the Wisconsin side the excursionists went to the Sutphin Packing company's plant, where a lunch was spread and in waiting for them in the shipping room. When this had been done full justice, the visitors, all of whom were specially interested in the stock and meat business were shown through the packing house and were greatly surprised at its size and completeness, and although a number of St. Paul packers were in the party all agreed that the Duluth plant surpassed any packing house in the Twin Cities.

Two hours were profitably spent by the party in looking over the machinery and modern appliances used in the Sutphin plant, after which the party returned to the Fifth avenue dock, where carriages were in waiting for a drive over the boulevard. At the conclusion of the ride supper was served at Boyle's and the day's entertainment was concluded by a visit to the Pavilion in the evening, where a free concert was given by the City band. The visitors returned to St. Paul last night.

Before leaving the visitors presented John B. Sutphin with a handsome gold ring with carbuncle setting as an evidence of their appreciation of the royal manner in which he had entertained them.

OPTIMISTIC DR. HUMASON.

Talks of Church Debt and Recalcitrant Preachers.

Dr. G. A. Humason, at both the morning and evening services in the Methodist church yesterday, made a special plea for contributions with which to meet the interest payments and reduce the principal with which the church is burdened. Last night he stated that as many stories were current concerning the financial condition of the church, he proposed to give it as it was. The mortgage indebtedness, he said, was $35,000. In addition to which there was a floating debt of $5200 more, making the total $40,200. He said there was $1500 of interest due June 1. The assets of the church consist of four or five houses and lots and notes given by persons who had subscribed to the church fund originally and which the givers had been unable to pay, amounting to $50,000. These notes, he said, would be sold cheap for cash, but he believed that some of them would be realized.

Dr. Humason said that when the church was built enough had been subscribed to entirely pay for it, but as so many of the subscriptions had not been paid, the indebtedness was the result. However, he declared that during the hard times all of the expenses of the church had been paid and its indebtedness reduced about $20,000.

With the little matter of business disposed of, Dr. Humason took occasion to refer to a class of preachers who have been attacking certain parts of the Bible, such as the book of Esther and the story of Jonah and the whale. He does not like them and is opposed to the sensationalists in the pulpit. He declared that the ministry was better now than it had ever been; that it was composed of better men, better educated and more competent, and that more people were attending church now than ever before. More Bibles were sold last year than in any previous year, and it was not only the best and most interesting book ever printed, but it was the best selling book on the market.

There were a few of the reasons why he did not think sensational, pessimistic preachers were justified in their assertions that the church and Christianity were moving backward instead of forward.

MR. HUNTER'S FUNERAL.

Beautiful and Largely Attended Services Were Held.

The funeral services of the late John C. Hunter were held Saturday afternoon from the family residence at 805 East Superior street. The large attendance was a sufficient evidence of the esteem in which the deceased was held. The flowers were beautiful and many. Dr. Rhigland and Rev. C. C. Salter conducted the services, and the former, in his sermon, paid a high and feeling tribute to the excellent qualities of the dead citizen. Dr. Salter led in the prayer service and performed the last rites at the grave. The burial took place at Forest Hill cemetery, and a large number of those who attended at the home followed the body to its last resting place. The pall bearers were George Spencer, J. D. Ensign, George G. Barnum, Luther Mendenhall, Clinton Markell and J. H. Upham.

WAITING

Rainy Lake Country Feeling First Impulses of the Boom.

Meanwhile It Lacks For Supplies, an Especial Want Being Whisky.

News and Development Notes From Different Parts of the District.

A letter from Fort Frances to a local business man contains some very lively items of the gold fields of Rainy lake and Seine river. The most prominent features of the situation seem to be that although navigation is not yet clear, the boom is already on, and that supplies, and especially whisky, have given out all around, and the settlers are anxiously waiting the first boat. According to the correspondent, Shoal lake is taking on a very lively aspect. The steamer Maple Leaf is making daily trips from Fort Frances, the Great Northern, the Foley Mines company tug, with barges, is bringing in freight and passengers from Kettle Falls at a rapid rate. Canoes and boats are dodging in and out and all around in a bewildering manner, taking out exploring parties, with their supplies, etc.

At Mine Center and at Foley they are clearing up townsites, and all that is necessary is lumber, for which there is a general howl all over the district. J. C. Foley has purchased 200,000 feet of logs as a starter, and has put a number of men at work fitting up his mill at Rainy Lake City. By this time the mill has commenced to turn out lumber. Stocks of goods are running very low at all these points, and at Foley, Mine Center and Bell City a general cry arises that the whisky has given out. At Bell City a new hotel has been put up, but they have no lumber for the roofing or flooring thereof, so it is as yet hardly available.

James Seeley, a capitalist and mining man who invested on Seine river two years ago, has just returned from the Yukon and British Columbia districts, where he has been since he was last at Seine river, two years ago. He says that he is satisfied that Seine river is a better locality for investment.

Mr. Kingston, of the Tower and Seine River Transportation company, was in Fort Frances last week making contracts with merchants on freight. When the Crane Lake portage is put in shape, he proposes to lay freight and passengers down at Seine City in fourteen to sixteen hours from Tower.

New finds are of almost daily occurrence north of Wild Potato lake and on the Little Turtle, and all the surveyors are kept busy surveying new mining locations. A large number of prospectors are heading for the Sawbill district. Jim Smith has been appointed customs officer at Seine City. Louis Larson has bought the Johnson hotel at Seine City.

The first accident took place at the Foley mine last week. A miner was climbing a ladder, and when he was near the top he was taken with a fit and fell sixty-five feet into a swamp, where there is ten feet of water. In the fall one of his legs was broken in three places, and he received several bad wounds. The mine doctor said that he would recover.

The Foley mine has shut down for a few days, owing to the breaking of a piece of casting in the crusher. A duplicate has been ordered by express from Chicago, and upon its arrival the mill will start in again. The last three days' work cleaned up $1600 in bullion from the plates, and the concentrates are running from $195 to $200 per ton better than was expected. The Foley will exhibit about twenty bricks as the result of thirty days' run at the miners convention at Rat Portage, June 2. From there the yellow stuff will go to the mint.

Another rich find is reported at the Preston mine. It was located on a parallel vein 300 feet north of the shaft.

Rainey Lake City is awaking to new life. The Berg hotel is already crowded with new arrivals, prospectors and others who came in by way of Tower on the lookout for gold. General Manager Watzke of the Little American mine has returned and will put on a large force of miners and push developments. The old five-stamp mill will be kept running and fifteen more stamps will be added to the new mill at the mine. An effort is being made to induce F. J. Bowman of the Rainy Lake Journal to move his plant to Fort Frances, which it is argued is a more central point from which to gather the news of the different districts.

Several new stores, hotels, etc., are to go up in Foley just as soon as the lumber arrives, also a number of cottages for the miners.

The boom is on at Fort Frances even before the boats from Rat Portage begin to arrive. The hotels are all overcrowded with prospectors in making applications for claims and others fitting out for the summer's campaign. No subject of conversation creates any excitement except "gold." As at other points the stores are out of goods, and a whisky famine has been in existence for two weeks. From the judge to the dock roustabouts every man is licking his lips and looking wistfully down the river for the first boat. As the correspondent remarks, "If there is anything that disturbs the equanimity of the average Fort Frances citizen it is the scarcity of Walker's club." The ladies, too, are anxiously waiting for Easter bonnets, and in fact men, women and children spend a large part of their spare time gazing down the river from early morn till late at night.

Capts. Roach and Casey, two expert prospectors, are fitting out a secret expedition into a new district where it is said some new finds have recently been made. "With all the bright prospects for this district," concludes the correspondent, "we are still waiting for better freight and passenger facilities from Tower."

MET HIS WATERLOO.

J. M. Gaffney Thrashed By a Giant Brewer.

J. M. Gaffney, formerly of Duluth, was soundly thrashed at Trail, British Columbia, the other day. The Rossland Record says:

A report came from Trail this morning that J. M. Gaffney, who for some time was a familiar character about the first-class hotels in Rossland and who has recently been taking it easy in Trail, met his Waterloo in a peculiar manner last night at the Arlington hotel. He is described as having a 2-story shanty over each eye, a broken nose and that all his features are considerably mixed.

It is said that Gaffney has been accused of making uncomplimentary remarks about prominent ladies of Trail, and that it recently came to the ears of a prominent member of the Kootenay Brewing company that Gaffney was the instigator of gossip about his family. Steve Martin, the brewery company's brewer, is a giant in size and strength. He is credited with carrying aloft in each hand a keg of beer and performing other feats of Sandow-like strength. The offended brewery proprietor went to his brewer and, describing Gaffney, who has been a guest of the Arlington, said: "Steve, I want you to lick that fellow. Will you do it?"

The brewer consented, and last night the brewer found his victim at the Arlington, and going to him, said:

"Is your name Gaffney?"

The latter sized up the modern Hercules. A tremor shot up and down his spine.

"I am going to lick you," was all the brewer said, and commenced to pull off his coat. Gaffney fled, but Martin pursued him and finished his contract. It is said that the police have ordered Gaffney to leave town.

OFFICE SALARIES STAND.

School Board Wrestles With More Reduction Problems.

At the school board meeting Saturday evening there was considerable discussion over the proposition to reduce the salary of Storekeeper Boyd. During the discussion several members of the board became decidedly "worked up." The onslaught resulted in no injury to the figures in Mr. Boyd's salary, though his title of curator of the museum was changed to caretaker. This episode was followed by an attempt to cut out the assistant clerk of the board, over which hostilities were renewed. The clerk was retained, however, it having been conclusively shown that his services were necessary.

As stated in The Herald Saturday, Rev. C. H. Patton put in a protest against the girls' minstrel show. President Hugo received his letter, and he stated that after investigation he could find no ground for the protest. Director Paine thought the show was all right, and he did not approve of Dr. Patton's method of objecting. It was decided that hereafter the permission of the board for the use of the Assembly hall would not be granted unless the requests were accompanied by the approval of the superintendent and principal. All printed matter must be submitted to the board for approval.

Pond du Lac citizens protested against the reduction of their corps of teachers, and the protest was referred to the committee on schools and teachers. The report of the committee showing the engagement of kindergartners, as reported in The Herald last week, was adopted. More time was granted the committee to consider the question of hiring a principal. The board decided to meet on the first Saturday of each month hereafter, instead of semi-monthly.

ORE DOCK SOLD.

Duluth & Winnipeg Dock Mortgage Foreclosed.

The property of the Duluth & Winnipeg Terminal company at Superior was sold Saturday afternoon on a mortgage foreclosure, and it was bid in by E. J. Mamay, a New York attorney representing the bondholders, J. M. Spurling, J. A. Gardner and George Chilch. The property includes the dock and terminals of the Duluth & Winnipeg. The amount for which the property was bought was $475,629, the amount of the bonds and judgments outstanding against it. It is said that the bondholders will organize a new company in close relation with the Duluth, Superior & Western road.

REFORM

Rev. David N. Beach, of Minneapolis, Speaks on Civic Reforms.

He Finds That it Takes Hard and Systematic Work.

Results Must Be Accomplished By Divorcing Local and National Politics.

Rev. D. N. Beach, pastor of Plymouth Congregational church of Minneapolis, spoke on "Good Government and Citizens' Leagues" at the Pilgrim Congregational church last evening. Dr. Beach came to Duluth at the invitation of the Civic federation, and he told, last evening, how the battle was won and the fruits of victory retained. Although he knew nothing of the state of affairs here, yet he would say that organizations of good citizens for good government is not amiss anywhere, for it is through the lack of interest of the better class of citizens that corruption makes progress in the body politic.

The banding together of good citizens in civic organizations is a necessity, the speaker said, for the reason that on the side of corruption are arrayed all the resources of art and the strength of co-operation. The fight is to the death, and well directed and intelligent effort is necessary. The looting of public treasuries has been reduced to a science and the practice must be met and fought with measures equally as scientific.

Cambridge, the speaker said, had offered a problem that was peculiarly hard. With a large foreign-born population there was the retarding influence of local dissonance of feeling and opinion surviving among the residents of the several independent villages that had been absorbed into the municipality, as well as the distracting influence of the feeling of hostility between the university and the town elements, the old warfare of town and gown. There had been powerful forces for good in the glorious traditions of the community but still the odds to be made by the apostles of good government had been heavy.

The speaker then detailed the fight for the expulsion of the saloon. It had been accomplished by political methods; by hewing out and defining the issue and by a concentration of effort. It was a non-religious movement, all sects having united, and it was a movement in which social lines had been wiped out, the cultured man of leisure working side by side with the uncultured toiler. Nor had the movement any candidates or any shibboleth. In its ranks were men of all political faiths and no word was spoken of party policy. This had been accomplished by separating state and national elections from those local.

There are properly no politics in questions of sewers, parks and schools, and the men of Cambridge had succeeded by carefully excluding such questions in order that the issue might not be confused. The only issue was that the saloon must go for the good of the municipality. Acting along this line the saloon had been banished in 1887 and kept out ever since. The revenue of the city from taxes had increased to $90,000,000; the income from the saloon under the present state law would be $80,000,000, a clear gain here. Deposits in savings banks had more than trebled and there had been a wonderful increase in the number of homes built.

In conclusion, the speaker again urged the necessity of excluding politics from municipal questions.

WILL START TONIGHT.

Twelve-Hour Race at Union Rink Tonight.

H. O. Messier, who has charge of the women's six-day race at the Union rink this week, has everything in readiness and at 8:30 tonight Referee Philip Pastoret will give the word "go." Walter Murphy and Roy Hoople will act as judges and the scoring will be done by members of the Duluth Cycle club. The race will last two hours each evening. The women are in the best of condition. They have all tested the track and pronounce it very fast. Thousands of spectators have been to the rink during the past few days to watch the girls spin around the saucer track. The women are all here and will positively start tonight. They will be known by the following numbers: No. 1, Miss Dottie Farnsworth; No. 2, Miss Helen Baldwin; No. 3, Miss Lillie Harp; No. 4, Miss Lizzie Brooks; No. 5, Miss Babe Wellington; No. 6, Miss Minnie Hokenson. Manager Wray of the rink company will divide $500 with the riders riding 200 miles and over during the week, and as the riders are the best in the Northwest and the rivalry that exists between them is intense, several new records may be established this week. In order to break the twelve-hour record the riders will have to ride better than twenty miles an hour, which is a terrific rate of speed to maintain on a seventeen-lap track. The City band will play some lively airs that will help the riders considerably.

Adams was the "Colossus of Independence." Jefferson was the "Sage of Monticello," and "Long Tom" Madison was "The Father of the Constitution." Van Buren was the "Little Magician," the "Wizard of Kinderhook," "Follower in the Footsteps," "Whisky Van," "King Martin the First," "Sweet Little Fellow," "Political Grimalkin" and "Weasel." W. H. Harrison was "Tippecanoe," "Old Tip" and the "Washington of the West." Tyler was "Young Hickory" and "Accidental President." Pierce was "Purse." Buchanan was "Old Public Functionary," the "Bachelor President" and "Old Buck."

We have now reached Lincoln, the "Rail Splitter," "Honest Old Abe," "Uncle Abe," "Massa Linkum," "Father Abraham" and the "Sectional President," the last name being given by the Southerners, who maintained that he represented the North and not the whole people. Then comes Johnson—"Sir Veto." Grant was "Unconditional Surrender," "Old Three Stars," "Hero of Appomattox" and the "American Caesar." Hayes was the "President de Facto," a name given him by the defeated Democrats. Garfield was the "Martyr President." Arthur was "Our Chet" and the "First Gentleman in the Land." USEFUL TO JEWELERS.

An interesting series of experiments is now being conducted at Professor Crookes' laboratory with a view to finding a quick and easy method of distinguishing false from true gems, says the London Mail. The Roentgen rays have been found to be capable of easily penetrating diamonds, while imitations are invariably opaque to the new light. The resistance of pearls, rubies, sapphires and other precious stones is also being tested before the tubes.

Some plates which had been used in these experiments, which showed plainly the difference in resistance between fine black and white diamonds and an imitation stone, were placed before a reporter at Streeter's, in Bond street, yesterday. On one of the plates there was an oblong spot, a little larger than a man's thumb nail. This was the proof from an attempt to pierce an imitation diamond, worth, perhaps, about £5, with the rays from a Crookes' tube. On the same card, just below this dark spot, were the dark outlines of a gold framework, such as precious stones are set in, and inside it was a faint, dark shadow.

This was the result of turning the X rays on a magnificent black diamond, valued at £500, surrounded by a setting of white diamonds. The framework of the setting came out clearly, the black diamond was almost transparent to the rays and the small white ones were perfectly so.

There was a third spot on the paper, but it was almost imperceptible. One could see on very close scrutiny the faintest shadows, but that was all. This third spot showed how nearly transparent to the X rays is the white diamond, for it was the result of an exposure to the Crookes tube of the famous King of Delhi diamond, taken at the time of the Indian mutiny and bought here for £10,000.

FITTED TO THE COAT

Washington Post: For real foresight and ingenuity there's nobody I know who can compare with a certain Washington newspaper man. Late last winter—the winter of a year ago, I mean—he invested in a new dress suit. He had the coat made large and roomy, for he explained that the men of his family were given to gnawing stout as they grew older, and he meant to wear that coat for several years. Spring came, and he packed his new coat away in moth balls. Last fall he took it out. He had enjoyed excellent health. He was too fat for that coat. Almost all winter he went about in a bob-tailed dinner coat—a Tuxedo, I think you call it, but last week he was compelled to attend a reception, an affair for which no stretching of the conventionalities could make a bob-tailed coat the correct thing. So what do you suppose that man did? Why, he took three Turkish baths in two days, ran five miles in the thickest of sweaters, and actually melted himself down till he could get into that coat. He wasn't to be overcome by such a trifle as a few pounds of flesh.

WHERE FISHING IS GOOD.

Those looking for the best fishing grounds are reminded of Lake Tetonka, at Waterville, and Madison lake, on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad.

Wall-eyed pike, bass and crappies are found in great abundance at both of these lakes, which have not been fished out to the extent of some of the older and better known localities.

Excellent hotel accommodations, boats, bait, etc., on hand, and all charges are very reasonable.

Municipal Court Calendar.

Judge Edson opened the regular term of the municipal court this morning. The calendar showed thirty cases, of which seven were jury cases, five unlawful detainers and eighteen court cases. The setting was made as follows: Jury cases commenced at 10 a. m. today: May 24, case No. 12,922 at 10 a. m.; 12,901 at 2 p. m.; May 25, 12,743 at 10 a. m.; 13,000 at 2 p. m.; May 26, 12,951 at 10 a. m.; 12,992 at 2 p. m.; May 27, 12,895 at 10 a. m.; 12,902 at 2 p. m.; May 28, 12,953 at 10 a. m.; May 31, 12,905 at 10 a. m.; June 1 and 2, 12,972, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8; June 4, 10 a. m., 13,008.

COURTS MUST SETTLE.

That is the Opinion as to the Reed Controversy.

At the council meeting tonight it is not probable that the Reed matter will be brought up again, as it is generally understood that this matter will have to be settled by the courts. Some joker started a report this morning that Mr. Reed was going to take forcible possession of the city engineer's office, and a good many of the regular city hall frequenters stood by during the morning to see the fun, but they soon discovered that they were being hoaxed.

The pump house special committee's report is expected and if it is presented there is sure to be a warm discussion.

The board of public works has a big budget of reports, resolutions and estimates to present, most of which are merely routine matters. The same body has a letter from the Carroll-Porter company, complaining about the non-payment of their estimate and threatening to suspend operations if the money is not forthcoming at once.

The bridge approach matter will be touched upon, but the idea seems to be to hold off until the Superior people have indicated their objections, so that the aldermen may know where they are at.

The licensing of pawnbrokers and employment men will receive the attention of the council, and some of the many laid-over bills may be brought up for final consideration.

FORECLOSURE SUIT.

Proceedings Begun Against the Blast Furnace Plant.

The Franklin Trust company of New York has begun foreclosure proceedings in the United States circuit court against the Duluth Iron and Steel company. The property covered by the mortgage is the blast furnace at West Duluth, together with all its docks, railways, etc. The company is alleged to have defaulted in the payment of $40,000, principal sum of the bonds and in the interest and also in the payment of taxes.

Five Cent Brand of Whisky an Issue in a Criminal Case.

John Conway Tried For Assault With a Bottle Of It.

Investigation Cases Go Over Until Criminal Calendar Is Finished.

Five-cent whisky was, in a measure, an issue in Judge Moer's court this morning. The criminal calendar was taken up by Assistant County Attorney McPherrin beginning with the case against John Conway, who is accused of assaulting I. L. Cook, the proprietor of a 5-cent whisky joint on Second avenue west. One of the exhibits in the case was a tall, slender bottle of 5-cent whisky, which was the weapon with which Conway is accused of caving in the complaining witness' head. The bottle is to go with the jury in its deliberations, and if it were not for the eminently respectable character of the jury grave fears might be entertained of the consequences.

The complaining witness was on the stand this morning, and testified that Conway smashed him over the head with the bottle, incidentally smashing a mirror back of the bar. On cross-examination John M. Martin, Conway's attorney, asked Cook if he had been selling 5-cent whisky for two years, all the time he had been in the business. He replied that he had, whereupon Mr. Martin raised a ripple of merriment by asking if he had any connection with the undertaking establishment next door. The witness gravely replied that he had not. The case is expected to go to the jury early this afternoon.

The defendant said on the stand that he had a pain in his stomach and to allay it he spent the Saturday night and Sunday preceding the assault drinking 5-cent whisky for it. Monday morning, May 3, the pains were pretty general and he went to get another drink for them. Some time during the morning, as a result of the dose, he lost consciousness, and he does not remember anything about the assault.

The bribery cases against ex-County Commissioner Albert Swenson were to have been taken up this morning, and C. O. Baldwin had subpoenaed his witnesses to appear. John Williams, Swenson's attorney, asked for more time, however, as one of his witnesses were away. The request was granted an dthe case was put off until the conclusion of the regular criminal calendar. This will probably take some time as the calendar is more than ordinarily large and the grand jury is still at work. The Borgstrom case will probably be taken up then also.

Matt M. Weiss, Jr., arrested Saturday at New Palmesville, Minn., on a charge of forgery in the first degree, was arraigned this morning and given until tomorrow morning to plead. DeWard Kennedy was also arraigned and pleaded guilty to two indictments charging forgery in the second degree. This is the second time Kennedy has appeared before this court on this charge.

PERSONAL INJURY CASES.

The Civil Branches Are Engaged Upon Them.

The two branches of district court now devoted to the civil jury calendar were engaged upon personal injury cases this morning, the same ones being on trial that were in progress Friday afternoon, when the general term gave away to the civil term. There are several more cases of this character among the few civil jury cases remaining on call, so it is likely that these courts will continue to be engaged upon them for some little time yet.

In Judge Cant's court this morning, the case of Isaac Hill against Winston Bros., to recover $50,000 for the loss of a leg, was on this morning, and it appeared to be good for several days yet. In Judge Ensign's room the case of Lena Olson against the city, to recover $2625 for the breaking of an arm on a slippery sidewalk on the east side of Third avenue west, was on trial, and it was expected that it would continue during today at any rate.

THREATEN TO STOP.

The Carroll-Porter Company Wants Its Money.

The Carroll-Porter Tank and Boiler company, which is supplying the city with three miles of forty-two-inch riveted steel force main pipe, has notified the board of public works that unless its last estimate, about $16,000, is paid at once it will discontinue the construction of the pipe. This estimate was held up in the council and sent to the city attorney for an opinion. The board will draw the attention of the aldermen to this matter tonight and are in hopes that it will be straightened out.

The City Loses.

In the case of the State Trust company against the city of Duluth, Judge Moer has sustained the demurrer of the plaintiff to the defendant's answer. The ground of the demurrer was that the city's answer did not constitute a defense. The argument took place Saturday.

McDonnell Gets It.

The board of public works today opened bids for laying the 42-inch water main. P. McDonnell was the lowest bidder, his price being $18,387.50 for one style of work, and $18,762.50 for another. There were nine bids in all and the highest was $23,054. They were nearly all close.

A SERIOUS OBSTRUCTION.

Sault Ste. Marie reports that the sill of the movable dam near the head of the canal is proving troublesome to vessels. The other day the large steel steamer Queen City struck it and was compelled to back away and pass through the Canadian canal. Col. Lydecker questions the advisability of removing this dam. He says that the available depth of water at present is about sixteen feet, and that this is a much better stage than was enjoyed last season. If the dam is removed, he says, there will be no protection to vessels in the event of the breaking of any of the lock gates, nor to the canal banks, which would be the scene of collisions from passing vessels in the event of such a situation.

The Iron Ore Market Continues In a State of Dullness.

Prices Fixed on All Ores, But Practically No Business Done.

With Lower Prices For Ore, Less Business Than Last Year.

Ishpeming, Mich., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The iron ore market continues in a remarkable state of sluggishness. Prices have been fixed for the season on all the principal ores, but there is almost a total lack of business, and sellers have apparently concluded that it is hopeless to attempt doing business before the consumers are ready to begin buying. A careful estimate of the amount of unsold ore on hand at lower lake ports, at the opening of the season on May 1, gives a total of practically 2,000,000 tons, an amount exceeding the unsold ore on hand at a corresponding date in 1896 by about 1,250,000 tons. In certain quarters this has been given as the reason for the lack of business, but the explanation is not a satisfactory one. The amount of unsold ore on hand at the opening of navigation last year was unusually small, and in previous years when the business of the country did not demand the same volume of manufactured product of iron and steel as at present, as much ore has been found on the receiving docks as at the beginning of navigation this year, without impeding business.

The situation, viewed from the producer's standpoint, is most unsatisfactory, and predictions as to when the present apathetic conditions will be improved are merely guesses, and will be read by the personal bias of the person offering them. The lack of business is proving a great disappointment to the mining men who insisted on fixing a base price of $2.45 per ton on standard Gogebic Bessemer ore, as there is less business in sight this year at the figure named than twelve months ago with the same ore selling at $1 per ton.

Jean D. Rockefeller and his lieutenants are, of course, blamed for the present condition of the trade, but as the matter was taken out of Mr. Rockefeller's hands some time since, and 1897 prices were fixed without consulting his desires and even against his wishes, it does not seem reasonable to blame him for all the grief that the ore producers are now encountering. Furthermore, Mr. Rockefeller is in the same boat as the other producers, and has not sold a ton of ore for this year's mining, and his Mesaba mines are all closed down. The only active mining now in progress on the Mesaba is at the Oliver and Mountain Iron, the two big mines controlled by Andrew Carnegie, and at the properties of the Minnesota Iron company located on that range. A little stripping is being done at the Ohio, and work in a desultory sort of fashion is being carried on at several other properties, but on the whole the Mesaba is dormant. The independent mine owners and the Rockefeller properties are sharing in the effects of the depression in the trade, but with the odds in favor of the latter, because of lower royalties or lack of royalties, and the superior depth of the pocket of their owner. Vessel owners are suffering from the depression, and while their boats are tied up at the wharves the owners themselves are at sea—so far as being able to prognosticate the future or steer to a safe harbor at present is concerned. The only charter of importance made so far is that of the Pittsburg Lake Angeline company, which has contracted for the transportation of 300,000 tons of ore from Marquette to Lake Erie ports this season, at 65 cents per ton. Vessel owners could probably be found who would make the same rate on head-of-the-lake charters for the season up to Oct. 1, though 70 cents is the nominal asking price. Activity in ore moving is confined almost exclusively to the fleets of the mining companies, though the anomalous condition regarding freights cannot long continue, and the mining companies making charters now will probably secure better terms than those who wait a few weeks longer. Despite the remarkable lack of business noted at the opening of the season a great deal of ore must be moved this year, and buying on a large scale must begin sometime previous to July 1, though it would be rash to set a fixed date, in view of the breaking of all precedents in the trade which is now noted.

GOT HIS CHARACTER BACK.

Sam Davis, in discussing the subject of Indians, told of the rehabilitation of Johnston Sides. Johnston Sides was a chief of the Nevada Indians, who made quite a fame for himself as a temperance lecturer among his own people, says the Chicago Record. But one day, "being sick," he took a dring of whisky in the Magnolia saloon, and was observed by some wicked white man, who straightway started the report in full circulation, and Mr. Side's reputation bade fair to be gone. But he was an Indian of influence, and, appealing to his white friends, he represented that something must be done, else he would become an outcast from the tribe. He acknowledged drinking the liquor, but told the sick-man story. Sides had always been a fair sort of Indian, so, as he pleaded and begged, two or three good fellows in the legislature agreed to fix things so that he could go back to his people in pride of conquest. Accordingly this concurrent resolution was drawn up:

"Resolved, by the legislature of the state of Nevada, the governor concurring, that the drink of whisky taken by Johnston Sides in the Magnolia saloon July 11, 1857, be and is hereby annulled."

Several speeches were made, and old Sides, surrounded by a big gathering of his tribe, sat in the lobby and heard all with profound interest. When the favorable vote was announced the Indians set up a weird war cry, which was understood to be applause, and, headed by Johnston, the exculpated, they walked out into a sunshine of great happiness.

LINGUISTS BOTHERED.

But Schneider Proved to Be an American.

Schneider, you know, was held up until the immigration people had found his baggage. But Schneider said nothing, even though they put him in the detention pen with a lot of Slovaks and a handful of Liverpool stowaways, says the World.

Schneider had arrived on the Majestic, and he was sad. He really objected inwardly to the loss of his things, because he said so afterward. But that was all subsequent to the fun he had unwittingly with the immigration inspectors.

It is a well-known fact that these immigration people speak more languages than you will hear in two months on the entire East Side. Only once have they been stumped, and that was when a Hottentot Bushman came along with a few Lodal gymnastics that set aguessing every man on the island.

While Schneider was moaning in the pen Chief Clerk Lederhilger came along. Chancing to observe the melancholy appearance of the man, he turned toward him. Now it happened that Schneider, besides having a sort of Teutonic air, wore clothes of unmistakable German origin. So naturally Lederhilger addressed him in German.

"Sind Sie Deutsch?" he asked. Schneider humped up his shoulders, spread out his palms and shook his head.

"Funny," murmured the clerk to himself, "I would have sworn to it, too."

And Schneider stood with a curious look upon his face while the chief clerk went after the French interpreter. Presently Mr. Lederhilger returned with the French inspector. Calmly and confidently the interpreter strode smiling toward Schneider, and when in range hurled out explosively:

"Etes-vous Francais?"

Again Schneider shrugged his shoulders and nodded negatively.

"Well, well," said the chief clerk, "I'll just get the Russian interpreter now. He'll fetch him, surely."

So pretty soon the Russian interpreter came along, easy and pop-sure of getting Schneider down to a fine point.

"Just you watch," said he, "I'll get him."

"Hi," said he, walking up to the moody immigrant. "Zwarte Fa Rusku hay. Reddon Sie Yiddish?"

Schneider moved his seat hastily to another part of the room, where he sat violently shaking his head. It was painfully evident that he didn't understand. It was also evident that he was beginning to become alarmed. By this time all the other interpreters had heard something was up, so they came streaming in by ones and twos and squads, and up the stairs and through the doorways, and one climbed over the gate. And all the while Schneider's alarm rose higher and he sat with a look of great apprehension upon his face.

"Just let me try him," said the Italian interpreter. "Hi—Sieta Italiano—si?"

Schneider bobbed his head negatively as protested with his hands. Then they surrounded him and shot off a bombardment of polyglot questions calculated to confuse the senses of a polar bear, which at best is always calculated to keep cool.

"Habla sutel Espanel?" cried the Spanish interpreter.

"Komme toll, Svensk?" roared the Scandinavian.

"Thiggin thu Gaelidedh?" piped a man that had a smattering of Gaelic.

"Cnwyle fan Hacken?" was the taffy of the Welsh inspector.

"Che pau movish po Ruski?" yelled the Polish interpreter. "Che pan Polish?"

By this time Schneider was backed up against the wall with his hands outstretched to ward off the horde.

"Maybe he's a Hottentot!" some one roared, and a red-faced man leaned over and screamed: "Ki bobbri Walli? Ki bobbri Walli!" But then some one cried out in English: "That ain't Hottentot, you madhen. That's Hindostanee!" Then Schneider began to yell, too.

"Hay," he cried, "what is this anyway—a lunatic asylum or what? Lemme out!"

"Good Laws!" said the Inspectors, "he's an American!"

"That's what I am," said Schneider, "and I want to get out."

And he got.

A GOOD CUP OF TEA.

Have good tea to begin with; then be sure that you have freshly drawn pure and filtered water of which to make the beverage, says the New York Journal. The water must not have been standing for hours exposed to the weather nor simmering on the range. It must be fresh, and then, if you have a brisk fire or the gas flame of a spirit lamp, bring it quickly to the boil. A flat-bottomed kettle is to be preferred, as it has a broad surface to expose to the heat, and the boiling is soon accomplished. Water is boiling when bubbles and when the steam comes in white puffs from the spout of the kettle. It does not boil when it begins to simmer and sing—that is only the sign that it is near to boiling. You must make your tea while the water has just boiled. A kettle which has been standing on the back of the stove all day, filled up now and then by a dipper or more of water will not make good tea; you must boil the water on purpose.

An earthen pot is better for tea than a metal one. Pour a little boiling water in the pot to heat it, and after a minute or two pour it out. Now put a teaspoonful of tea for every cup of hot water—an even, not a heaping, teaspoonful—and add an extra one for the pot. Pour on as much water as will fill the number of cups you wish to make. Let it stand two minutes, then with a long-handled spoon stir the leaves once through the water and instantly cover the pot again. Three minutes more and your tea is done. Never let tea steep or boil or stand a long time. It is a quick, neat, nice process from beginning to end.

Two Ex-Duluthians Are Now In Washington Looking For Foreign Berths.

W. C. Bond Would Be Minister to the United States of Colombia.

Frank Zeller's Ambition Is to Be Consul at Hamburg, Germany.

Washington, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two ex-Duluthians have been in Washington for some time looking for appointments abroad. They are W. C. Bond, who will be remembered as manager of the Highland Improvement company for a time, and Frank M. Zeller. Both now hail from Pennsylvania, having returned to their homes in that state after getting through with Duluth. Bond wants to be United States minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary to the United States of Colombia. He has a bundle of endorsements big enough to fill a coat pocket, including letters from Governor Hastings of Pennsylvania, the lieutenant governor, Senator Penrose, the congressional delegation, the state legislators and others. If a long list of distinguished names would get the place for him, he would probably receive the plum; but, alas, he lacks the all-powerful and ever-necessary name of Matt Quay, who proposes to see two or three other ministerial candidates taken care of if other diplomatic places are to go to Pennsylvania. Frank Zeller's ambition is to be consul at Hamburg, Germany. What his chances are I do not know. There are about ninety applicants for the place; Zeller's application is based upon services during the last campaign as a member of the "Sound Money" club, of Philadelphia, which, I am told, paid some attention to the Duluth district. Bond is the "boss" of his county in Pennsylvania, and a big man among the boys in his section, and so is thought to deserve something good.

One is surprised to find how unpopular the most recent tariff bill is. It has few defenders, not so many as the Dingley bill had, and that was not given very general approval outside the house of representatives. Republican senators ridiculed the Dingley bill, and Republican representatives damn the senate bill. One cannot tell what the outcome will be. A prolonged fight is evident, with the senate bill as the most probable outcome. It seems strange that a tariff bill cannot be framed on party lines which would meet with general party support, without grumbling and cursing, and stranger that the Republicans should not have profited by the Democratic discord over the Wilson bill three years ago. That the great trusts have been able to get in their work on the tariff bill none can doubt. The bill will hurt the Republican party very much. It will be damned if it passes this bill, and damned if it fails to enact a bill. It has been stated that the senate would pass its bill and compel the house to accept it, or bear the odium for the defeat of tariff legislation, by simply refusing to appoint a conference committee. That is not likely, however. A Democratic senator, a member of the finance committee, said in my presence the other day that several Republicans, mentioning some of the most prominent, did not want a bill passed, and added: "They are anxious to have us beat the bill for them; but we will not. We'll compel them to pass it." The Democrats and their allies, the Populists and Silver Republicans, will see to it that a bill is passed, if they can do anything to bring about that result. The last believe that the cause of silver will be strengthened by getting the tariff out of the way, while the Democrats think that the measure will drive dissenters back to that party and surely cause a Democratic triumph next time. It is remarkable how few politicians here expect anything but Democratic control of the next congress. Democrats claim it, most Republican members admit it, all the newspaper men prophesy 100 opposition majority in the next house, and politicians coming here from different sections of the country talk of a coming disaster to the Republicans. A Minnesota member says the party will probably lose three members from that state next trip, while another prominent Republican politician from the state says if the present indications keep up, St. Paul will go 1000 Democratic. Mike Dowling, when here last week, however, claimed everything was rosy in Minnesota for the Republicans.

I have not seen it published in Minnesota papers that Governor Clough was a candidate for the senate to succeed Davis. Another new candidate is F. H. Peavey, of Minneapolis. Charles Pillsbury's name is often heard here. You have heard of Albert Berg's candidacy for governor. Bob Dunn, I understand, says he does not want that office, but will again run for auditor. While he is not an open candidate, I believe Joel Heatwole will be in the race for the governorship. By the way, the nomination of Stanford Newel was most pleasing to Joel, who was his chief backer. I noticed that The Herald spoke of Senator Davis as one of his original supporters and backers for the Dutch mission. This is a mistake. Senator Davis was not originally for Newel, and the mission of Joe Wheelock here a few weeks back was to get him into line. Uncle Joe succeeded and so brought about unity of action.

Some of the Minnesota papers are still publishing interviews to show that the tales about a lack of harmony in the delegation are untrue. If the Minnesota people could hear some of the expressions I have heard from different members, they would understand that this harmony was a most lovely thing.

CURRENT PUMP.

A Montana Invention Which Is Used Successfully.

Agricultural and mining men are greatly interested at present in a mechanical device known as the "current pump," which has been invented, perfected, tested and successfully operated in Montana. It promises to revolutionize the placer mining and agricultural industries of many portions of the Northwest, says the Chicago Record. This device is the invention of Louis E. Miller of Montana, and has been designed by him to supply water along streams whose banks rise so abruptly and to such heights as to render impracticable all efforts hitherto made to use the water for irrigation or for placer mining.

Banks along the rivers and streams of the west rise sharply, often nearly perpendicularly, ranging all the way from twenty to 100 feet. The land immediately bordering these streams frequently contains a large amount of mineral wealth in the shape of placer gold, while perhaps a little further back upon the banks are lands that with irrigation would become valuable for agricultural purposes, but the enormous expense involved in getting the requisite quantity of water for sluice mining or for irrigation would leave little margin for the inventor. With the aid of this recent invention, however, thousands of acres of land now lying idle may be rendered valuable.

The principal features of the new pump are its simplicity of construction and operation and its wonderful adaptation to the work for which it is designed. It is simple and compact and can be easily carried from place to place; it requires no preparatory construction work in the way of anchorage and it needs no power to operate it other than the force of the current of the river or stream in which it is placed. Placed in a stream of water and depending alone upon the current of the stream for power, it will pump 1000 gallons of water an hour in a 5-mile current—the quantity of water increasing as the current increases—and will raise this amount of water to an elevation varying from seventy-five to 100 feet, in proportion to the rapidity of the current.

The mechanism of this invention is described as operating on the inside of a galvanized casing, conical in form and having screws somewhat resembling the propellers on a steamboat. This casting turns upon a hollow axle, the latter having a closing between the inlets to the diaphragm chamber and serving the two-fold purpose of an axle and inlets to the pumping mechanism. The action of the current upon the propellor-like screws attached to the casing causes the case to revolve upon the hollow axle, while on the inside of the case, and attached to it, is a cam, which by means of connections converts the rotary to a reciprocating motion, thus operating the pump. The pump proper consists of two concave disks, in the shape of saucers, attached to the hollow axle, and a crosshead, free to move or slide on the hollow axle, with convex disks, which fit into the concave disks attached to the axle on or near the center of the movable disks while to the outside edge of the immovable disks are fastened heavy hydraulic canvas diaphragms.

HIS BETTER SEVEN-EIGHTHS.

Many of my friends, says the Hazel Green Herald, have asked me, and a few strangers had the curiosity to write and inquire, "Why is it that you always speak of your wife as your better ⅞?" In this brief article I will endeavor to explain, and I use the personal pronoun that the readers of the Herald will the better understand me. In Christian fortitude she is a fortress capable of withstanding any fusillade; I but a rifle pit with many unguarded gaps in comparison. Her faith is that of a healthy tree in full foliage and fruit; mine like a tree blasted, with an occasional sprout that lends hope of fruition, but so frail that the fist cold wave of despondency deadens and withers it. As a neighbor she embodies those qualities expressed in the words of the Master: "Do unto others as you would that they should do to you." I am content to do by him as well as he has done by me, and too frequently fall short of that standard. As nurse she is a Sister of Charity reared in the Garden of Gethsemane or in a nunnery of Nazareth, shedding sweet sunshine through the sick room; I both impatient and irascible. Endowed with almost superhuman energy, she is a living type of the busy bee; I, not so enriched, am too frequently a drone of disappointment. The day is never so dark but the bright light beyond beckons her on as a beacon of hope; despondency darkens my vision and obscures from view anything favorable the future might show. Thus in all the nobler attributes of life she towers above me as the forest pine above the stunted fig bush. During a continuous companionship of over twenty-two years I have been sensible to these superior qualities, and I have been always honest to say so. She combines characteristics quincuple in quality, and in her affections assumes the place of mother, wife, sister and friend. All in all she is the cupple of my eye, my best beloved in whom I am well pleased. Such is my wife as I see her and have known her all these years. She condones my faults, finds excuses for my errors, sympathizes with me in sorrow and strengthens me in adversity. Hence I say, "our better ⅞;" such she will ever be to me!

DOWN A CHUTE.

Bear Rides a Log at a Terrific Pace.

A party of lumbermen who were sliding logs into Little Pine creek, Pennsylvania, near English Center, one day last week, had the unique experience of seeing a yearling bear cub hop upon a log just as it started down the side hill and take a toboggan ride clear to the bottom. Strange to say, too, this feat of young Bruin was performed directly after his mother had been killed by a log that rolled upon her as she was scrambling out of a hole alongside a big rock, says the New York Sun.

It was soon after daybreak and the air in the woods was so crisp that the troop of red-shirted log rollers pitched into their work to keep warm. The mountains that hem in the Little Pine Creek valley are steep and high. A log starting at the top and sliding on a snowy bed gains tremendous velocity before it bumps itself against the landing on the creek bank. There was a strong crust on the snow which gave the logs additional impetus. The men had been at work a short time when one of them heard a squeal from a group of rocks over which the logs were running. Glancing in that direction, he saw a big black bear sprawled out on the snow dead. She had been struck by a log just as she pulled herself out of her hiding place, and the life was knocked out of her instantly. Starting another log on its downward course, the woodsman hastened to claim his bear prize. The log took about the same course as the one that had killed the bear, and when it reached the rocks the woodsman was surprised to see a yearling cub straighten himself up after crawling out of the hole, glance quizzically at the approaching log, then with a spring that would have done credit to an acrobat, land squarely on the rear of the barkless stick as it slid by.

The log had not yet gained much speed, but before it had gone three lengths more it was whizzing at a speed down among the trees that would make a Canadian tobogan green with envy. And the cub—well, he just looked as though he had done nothing but ride logs all his life. He hung onto the log much as a monkey would onto the back of a runaway horse, but when the log ran its nose into a pile of other logs at the bottom of the hill the cub went flying twenty feet into the air and landed kerplunk into the ice cold water of Little Pine creek. But this involuntary bath didn't ruffle his temper, for the frisky youngster crawled out upon the ice on the far side of the creek, and ran, shaking himself as he went into the thick woods beyond.

MEDICINE MEN'S INFLUENCE.

In one of his recent reports to the department of the interior, Maj. W. E. Woodson, agent of the Cheyenne ad Arapahoe Indians of Oklahoma, says that the reign of the medicine men is one of the greatest outrages of the present day, and as a direct result of their practice one-third of the children born of Indian parents die every year. Two of Black Coyote's children were taken sick and, instead of taking them to the government hospital, he sent for the medicine man, who blew a green powder into the lungs, ears and the nostrils of one of the litte patients. That medicine failing, the medicine man made an incision with his knife under the tongue of the child, with the result that death soen followed. When the green powder failed to restore the child to health the medicine man declared that there was a ghost under the child's tongue and to kill the ghost he made the incision. The medicine man then adopted heroic measures in order to save the other child. He took it into a tent, stripped it naked and laid it on a cot. Then he heated a big pile of rock in the tent, and when they were hot he threw water on them, filling the tent with steam and causing the child to sweat copiously. When the child was covered with perspiration he took it out in the cold air and sent it home, without having taken any precaution to keep it from getting cold. Next morning the child was dead. This is only one of the hundreds of such outrages against the health and life of innocent people. The big medicine man of the Cheyennes is Little Man, who lives near Cantonement. He makes his medicines every year and distributes them to the other medicine men.

SUICIDE BY PHYSICIANS.

Pittsburg Dispatch: Statistics show that the medical profession is more prone to suicide than any other. During the last three years the number of suicides occurring among physicians has been respectively, 45, 49 and 47 per annum, an average of nearly one to 2000; or, as the death-rate among the physicians is about 25 to 1000, nearly one-fifth of all the deaths in the profession have been by suicide. It has been suggested that an examination of this tendency may be found in the development of morbid fancies in the mind of a doctor, on account of his constant association with the sick and dying, or of an actual indifference to death, or because he has the requisite knowledge of how to die painlessly and conveniently.

A medical journal dissents from all these views and holds that the leading factor is the accessibility of the poisonous drugs, which are almost invariably used. Suicide is largely a matter of insane impulse. Imagine a man fatigued in body and depressed in spirits—as the doctor very often is—swayed by an overwhelming conviction of the utter weariness of life to the impulse of suicide. If he had to put on his hat and walk to the drug store and tax his ingenuity for a lie with which to explain his desire for poison, he might postpone the fatal act from mere inertia, or he may meet a friend or have his interest in life aroused by one of a multitude of every-day occurrences, or physical exercise may bring him to his senses. If, however, as is the case with almost every doctor, he has simply to feel in his pocket, or walk across his office to get a deadly poison, the impulse may be carried into execution before anything can happen to supplant it in the brain.

LIFE IN SENATOR DEBOE'S STATE.

Hawesville Clarion: Uncle Bill Cook lost a calf and a neighbor pastured it until the bill amounted to about the price of the calf. He found out one day where the calf was and called and asked: "Well, what about the calf?" "I have been thinking about it," was the reply, "and have concluded that if you let me have the calf we would call it square." Uncle Willie studied over the matter a few minutes and said: "No, I won't do that, but I'll tell you what I will do. If you will keep the calf two weeks more you can have it."

Owensboro Inquirer: Yesterday the grand jury returned an indictment against "Wildcat" Dave Smith for stealing a horse. Smith couldn't give bond and had to go to jail. Dave used to be a great lumberer, and this brought the name of "Wildcat." Several years ago he stole a wagon load of wool from a man and brought it to town and sold it. He was sent to the penitentiary for two years for this crime. He doesn't mind being arrested in the least. He laughingly said to an Inquirer reporter: "They've got me again, but I'm the only good man up there. All the others are d—d rascals, and they worry me nearly to death." Dave never stole a horse before that anybody knows of, if he stole this one, but the safest plan is to keep properly nailed down or chained to a post in the locality where he lives. Dave says he is not responsible for this state of affairs, and Dave is a good man and ought to know.

ASSASSIN

Ex-United States Senator McPherson Has a Narrow Escape.

W. B. Van Aken Tried to Shoot Him in His Private Office.

Trouble Arose Over the Details of a Law Suit.

New York, May 18.—An attempt was made today to kill ex-United States Senator J. R. McPherson in his office in the Aldridge building, this city. William B. Van Aken, who made the attempt, is partly blind, and is said to be interested in a suit in which the senator is also involved. Van Aken had an accomplice in the matter whose name is unknown and who escaped. Van Aen was arrested Senator McPherson, who represented New Jersey in the senate of the United States for about eighteen years, is now president of the Western Stockyard company, with offices in the Aldridge building. The ex-senator occupied an inner office for the present while the outer office is for his secretary Edward F. Low.

Both men were in their usual places about 11 o'clock this morning when two men entered. One was Van Aken, a well-built man about five feet ten inches in height. The other man was somewhat smaller. Both walked through the secretary's office, passed Mr. Low and into the inner office, where ex-Senator McPherson sat. Ex-Senator McPherson was looking over some papers at his desk and sat with his back to the door. Both men walked up to him and spoke to him. Just what they said is not known, as the senator has not quite recovered from the shock and cannot yet tell what really happened. He is so weak that a nurse always accompanies him to his office.

Mr. Low, the secretary, says he heard Van Aken say something to the senator about wanting him to settle a suit. Mr. Low says the men seemed to have an interest in a suit over the Belle Meade stock farm, on the Lehigh railroad in New Jersey. Mr. Low remembers hearing Senator McPherson tell Van Aken that he could say nothing about the suit and must refer him to his lawyer. After that Mr. Low took no further notice until a minute or so later the private office door was suddenly pushed open. With a cry of alarm the aged ex-senator came quickly out into the front office.

Groping his way in a fury of blind haste, Van Aken followed. His companion was endeavoring to guide him through the doorway, but Van Aken hurried ahead, putting his hands out in front of him to feel his way. Before Mr. Low could rise from his seat Van Aken clutched the ex-senator with his right hand and fumbled with his left behind his back. Van Aken's companion at this juncture hurried out of the room. When Mr. Low caught Van Aken's arm, the half-blind man had succeeded in pulling a revolver from his pocket. He had raised it until the muzzle was almost against the trembling old man's heart.

With a quick movement Mr. Low knocked the weapon up. In doing so he managed to get his finger caught in the trigger. Van Aken, still clutching the ex-senator, who was shouting for assistance, pulled madly at the pistol, which was pointed at the ceiling and rendered harmless by Mr. Low's finger in the trigger. In answer to the shouts other tenants came crowding in. After a short struggle Van Aken was disarmed and overpowered.

Before a policeman arrived Van Aken desisted from struggling. He was taken over to Center street police court. He is a well-dressed man and gave his address at a Tenth avenue hotel this city. After ex-Senator McPherson had somewhat recovered from the effects of the shock he said he had never seen Van Aken or his companion.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATIONS.

Washington, May 18.—The president today sent the following nominations to the senate: Justice William Morrow, of California, to be United States circuit judge for the Ninth judicial circuit; George Morgan Thomas, of Kentucky, to be solicitor of internal revenue.

Navy—Passed Assistant Engineer Frank H. Eldridge to be a chief engineer in the navy.

Interior—Samuel G. Morse, of Washington, to be agent for the Indians of the Neah Bay agency in Washington.

BOY MURDERER CAUGHT.

Monclova, Mex., May 18.—Macedonio Frinsto, the 17-year-old boy who murdered four persons here and then eloped with the daughter of a ranchman, has been captured in the mountains near Villallama, state of Tamaulipas. The girl was with him and the couple presented a sorry spectacle as they had traveled over 100 miles across a rough country in their flight. They will be brought here for trial.

A DIVORCE REFUSED.

Dover, Del., May 18.—The house by a vote of 8 to 7 has refused to reconsider the vote by which the bill granting a divorce to Mrs. Laurel Crocker Acklan, of Cleveland, was indefinitely postponed. This will prevent Mrs. Acklan from getting a divorce through the Delaware legislature.

KILLED FROM AMBUSH.

San Luis Potosi, Mex., May 18.—Romulo Vllades, a prominent member of the legislature of this state was riding along the highway near Tamcanhuitz when he was fired upon from ambush and killed. The assassin escaped but there is no clew to his identity.

REQUISITION REFUSED.

Albany, N. Y., May 18.—Governor Black has refused to grant the requisition of the governor of Utah for the custody of Clarence Barton and Graves, who are under arrest in New York city, charged with the theft of $200 from the Utah Loan and Trust company, of Ogden City.

FOREST FIRES.

Houghton, Mich., May 18.—Forest fires are burning at many points in the Upper Peninsula that may speedily become serious. Unless heavy rainfalls come soon serious losses in logs and standing timber as well as the wiping out of settlements may result.

REED OPPOSES IT.

Will Not Consent to Nelson Bill's Passage.

Washington, May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Tawney and A. H. Hall, the Minneapolis attorney, had a lengthy conference with Speaker Reed today on the subject of bankruptcy legislation. The speaker gave them to understand that, while he was in favor of the passage of a bankruptcy bill, he considered that the Nelson measure, which has passed the senate, was altogether too liberal to the debtor. He said that if any assurance that a fair bill, which would give equal protection to both debtor and creditor, would be adopted by the senate, he believed it would receive favorable consideration in the house. He said that while the subject had frequently been discussed by the house leaders, no conclusion had been reached as to what action should be taken. The inference is that he will not consent to the passage of the Nelson bill in the house.

BRIDGE BILL PASSED.

Senator Nelson Gets it Through the Senate.

Washington, May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Nelson today secured the passage of the Duluth-Superior bridge bill in the senate. Senator Vilas vigorously opposed the passage of this measure at the last session, but his successor, Senator Spooner, made no objection to it today. The bill simply extends the time for completion of the bridge to Aug. 1, and relieves the company from dredging a channel through the draw.

HOSTILITIES HAVE STOPPED.

Turks Have Hoisted a White Flag at Arta.

Athens, May 18.—The Turks have hoisted the white flag at Arta from which it is judged that the Turkish commander has received instructions that an armistice has been agreed upon.

A SUDDEN CHANGE.

Constantinople, May 18.—There was a sudden and unexpected change in the political situation shortly before noon today. Russia quietly showed her hand and thereby forced Germany and Turkey out of the game, to all intents and purposes. Last night and early this morning Turkey, supported by Germany, was practically defying Russia, France, Austria, Great Britain and Italy, insisting upon the annexation of Thessaly in addition to a huge war indemnity and seemingly was determined to march upon Athens. The ministers received official advices from Sofia today announcing that orders had been issued for the partial mobilization of the Bulgarian army, possibly at the instigation of Russia. There was a hurried consultation of the ministers. The war party was for further defiance, but in the end pacific counsels seemed to have prevailed, for, at 11:35 a. m., orders were telegraphed to Edhem Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief in Thessaly, to cease hostilities.

The peace negotiations will now be undertaken in real earnest and the Greeks will most likely be spared any further humiliation.

GERMANY WILL CO-OPERATE.

Berlin, May 18.—It was announced this afternoon that the German ambassador at Constantinople has finally been instructed to co-operate with the other ambassadors in the efforts to secure an armistice between Turkey and Greece.

AWFUL TURKISH BARBARITY.

Manchester, Eng., May 18.—The Guardian publishes a dispatch from its correspondent with the Greeks which says: "The destitution of the Greeks in Epirus is appalling. Everything they had in the world has been burned or pillaged. The scenes in their flight were dreadful. Young girls flung themselves from the rocks to escape outrage and a youth shot his two sisters to save them from outrage. A boy who was captured by the Turks had his lips, nose and ears cut off and his eyes torn out before he was killed."

ASTOR'S GENEROSITY.

New York, May 18.—A special to the Journal from London says: It is reported that the ananymous philanthropist who contributed $25,000 to the fund proposed by the princess of Wales to feed the starving on the occasion of the queen's jubilee, is William Waldorf Astor. That report cannot be absolutely confirmed. The probability of its truth is based upon Mr. Astor's enormous wealth, and upon the fact that his generosity has been in all directions where royalty has shown the charitable way.

INTERNAL REVENUE RECEIPTS.

Washington, May 18.—The monthly statement of the collections of internal revenue shows that the total receipts for the month of April were $11,348,539, a decrease of $6,705 as compared with April, 1896. For the last ten months the receipts aggregated $122,350,401, an increase as compared with the same period of last year of $690,083.

NATIONAL BANKS.

Washington, May 18.—The comptroller of the currency has issued a call on national banks for a statement of their condition at the close of business, Friday, May 14.

New Yacht Arrives.

The yacht C. L. C., which George K. Taylor recently purchased at Lake Minnetonka, has arrived here, and will soon be placed in the water. She is a fine boat, about thirty feet over all, and very fast. She is a sloop-rigged yacht, built on the same lines as most of the Minnetonka boats, and is quite similar to the Stranger, although considerably larger.

Burglarized a Store.

Goldberg's second-hand store, between Fifth and Sixth avenues west, was burglarized last night, and watches, pistols and clothes to the amount of $200 taken. Today the police landed three suspects behind the bars, but so far have not succeeded in locating the stolen property.

Jury Finds John Conway Not Guilty, Much to His Relief.

The Bornemanns Were Arraigned and Given a Day to Plead.

George W. Riggin Charged With Practicing Medicine Without a License.

The jury in the assault case against John Conway this morning returned a verdict of not guilty, and the defendant was released. Conway was accused of striking I. L. Cook, the proprietor of a 5-cent whisky shop, with a bottle of his 5-cent whisky. The jury took the bottle into the jury room, and it is said that hey sampled it, and judges of the article decided that a man who was under its influence would be incapable of an intent to commit a crime. At any rate, the man was acquitted, and he exhibited unmistakable signs of relief at the verdict.

Charles and Eureka Bornemann were arraigned this morning on the new indictment charging them with manslaughter in the second degree. Mrs. Bornemann was clad in the deepest mourning. They listened to the reading of the indictment, and Albert Baldwin, their attorney, asked for one day in which to plead. They will plead at 9:30 tomorrow morning.

George W. Riggin, a little old man, who walked with the aid of a cane, was arraigned on an indictment charging him with practicing medicine without a license. This indictment was the one that was withheld yesterday afternoon. When arraigned the defendant said that he had been doing nothing out of the ordinary. He was a manufacturer of medicine, and he did not think he was guilty of a crime. He will plead tomorrow morning. The directory gives his business as medicine manufacturer, and his residence at West Duluth. The indictment alleges that on May 12 he prescribed some unknown drug for the infant child of John E. Carlson, for the treatment of an ailment unknown to the grand jury, accepting a fee therefor, without having procured a license for the practice of medicine.

Matt M. Weiss pleaded not guilty to a charge of forgery in the first degree. Charles Lundberg and Abram Levant, two young boys who were accused of stealing knives and revolvers from the Duluth Hardware company, withhdrew their pleas of not guilty and pleaded guilty. James L. Steele, accused of breaking windows at Hibbing, was arraigned, and will plead in the morning.

Judge Moor's court this morning was engaged in the trial of the case against Victor Johnson, accused of stealing $30 from Andrew Smith, with whom he had been drinking for several hours after they had come down from the woods.

CUBA IN CONGRESS.

Senator Mason Makes a Very Spirited Talk.

Washington, May 18.—There was no abatement of interest in the Cuban question in the senate today and the galleries were well filled. The Morgan Cuban resolution was taken up at 2 o'clock and Senator Mason spoke in its support. Mr. Mason read President McKinley's message of yesterday to prove that a state of war exists in Cuba. "If there is not war," he said, "then there ought to be with us." He said the Americans in Cuba needed to be defended with bayonets as well as with bread. He referred to Senator Wellington's reference to our indebtedness to England and said he acknowledged the indebtedness. "Thank God," he exclaimed, "we settled a small part of it at Bunker Hill. Another part of it we settled here in the senate two weeks ago." This latter remark was directed at the defeat of the arbitration treaty and was the first public reference to it in the senate.

Mr. Mason said we are so delicate of the feelings of the Spanish minister as to be willing to humiliate our fellow citizens in Cuba by making them the subjects of charity. "Whether the United States shall interfere or not," he said, "under the providence of God, Cuba shall be free and there shall be no slaves on the American hemisphere." Mr. Mason had an extract from a newspaper letter written by Carl Decker read, and in reply to a question by Mr. Wellington, said it was necessary to take the best information obtainable. Mr. Mr. Wellington had said it was a government on paper. "As good a government as was behind Washington at Valley Forge," said Mr. Mason.

Mr. Wellington replied with some warmth, saying he would not permit himself to be misrepresented or American history falsified.

Mr. Mason stood by his original proposition, saying that without Lafayette's aid Washington's government was not worth a "continental damn." What we should do was to give to Cuba what Lafayette gave to Washington. He said that during the last campaign he had felt the pulse of thousands of people and was satisfied there was a deep general interest among the people in the interest of Cuban freedom. He was for Cuba not for commercial reasons or for the acquisition of territory, after the English fashion, but for better reasons. Mr. Mason predicted that this country would yet develop a Lafayette for Cuba.

Mr. Mason read from reports made to the senate by the committee on foreign relations in support of his statement that a Cuban government exists. "Mr. Welling (who opposes the resolution) was elected on the platform of independence for Cuba," he said. "So was I. So was Mr. McKinley. And I am here to stand by it as long as I continue on the payroll," said Mr. Mason. The newspaper reports of the Cuban war. Mr. Mason defended as in the main correct. He proposed to vote on the resolution even if it took all summer. Cuba was popular at St. Louis when the party wanted votes and he appealed to Republican senators to stand by the declaration. Mr. Mason said he did not believe the adoption of the resolution meant war, but if any one's protest meant war, let it come.

He was followed by Mr. Hoar in opposition to the resolution and counselling temperate action.

THE TREASURY CONDITION.

Washington, May 18.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $228,653,217; gold reserve, $145,396,230.

MAY DEMAND IT.

D. A. Reed May Have Another Card to Play.

It was reported around the city hall this afternoon that D. A. Reed had discovered that it is not necessary for him to have a bond before he can assume the office of city engineer and that he had decided to qualify at once and make a demand upon Mr. Patton for the office.

Mr. Reed was seen and said that it had not been decided to do this but gave the impression that it was under consideration and that the step might be taken.

Mayor Truelsen is confident that Mr. Reed is rightfully entitled to the office of the city engineer and said emphatically this afternoon that all Mr. Reed had to do was first to take the oath of his office and then to take possession of his office and proceed to the execution of his duties. That the case differed from that of member of the board of public works inasmuch as the furnishing of the bond was not obligatory upon the engineer unless specially ordered by the common council.

COMING TO DULUTH.

Alpena Attorney to Make His Residence Here.

Alexander M. Marshall, an attorney of Alpena, Mich., will take up his residence in Duluth, beginning next week. The Alpena Pioneer of May 14 said of his removal:

"Prosecuting Attorney Alexander M. Marshall will tonight tender his resignation to Judge Kelley, and will next week remove to Duluth. Mr. Marshall has formed a partnership with Austin N. McGindley, of Duluth. Mr. Marshall's office does not expire for a year and a half yet, and he has a good private practice, but he considers the prospects so good in the Zenith City that he has decided to resign and at once remove from Alpena. Mr. Marshall came to Alpena in 1880, and about a year later formed a law partnership with W. E. Depew, which continued some years. In 1894 Mr. Marshall was elected prosecuting attorney by a very large majority, being re-elected last fall. Besides attending closely to the duties of his office, Mr. Marshall has built up a large private practice. During his seven years' residence in Alpena, Mr. Marshall has taken an interest in public affairs, is always ready and willing to assist in any worthy enterprise, and has made quite a reputation as a public speaker. He is one of the board of directors of the Business Men's association, and is a member of other public associations.

"Socially Mr. and Mrs. Marshall stand very high, and their many friends regret exceedingly that they are to leave the city, but will hope for them the most abundant success in their new home."

COMING IN BETTER.

Payment of Taxes is Heavier Than Expected.

County Treasure Whipple reports a lively payment of current taxes this year. The work has already begun, though no penalty goes on until June 1, and it is considerably heavier than at this time last year. The mails are heavy and the entire increased force is kept busy making out statements and receiving money. It will be necessary, if the work keeps up at the present rate, to work overtime. Mr. Whipple estimates that the rush of the past ten days was larger than any since he took the office.

"It looks," said he this morning, "as though the people were getting money somewhere to pay taxes, and I regard the manner in which payments are being made as a very hopeful sign."

The county officials report also that payments under the new delinquent tax law continue to be brisk, and there are any number of inquiries for particulars concerning the law. If payments continue as they are coming in now a great deal of property which seemed hopelessly involved in taxation will be released before the forfeited sale takes place. One consideration that is spurring a good many people up is the fear that someone will get an assignment of their property, which would preclude them, as the law is read, from receiving its benefits.

VERDICT FOR THE CITY.

Judge Ensign Directs It In the Olson Case.

Judge Ensign this morning directed the jury to return a verdict for the city in the case of Lena Olson to recover $5000 for a broken arm received on a slippery sidewalk. City Attorney Richards moved the court to direct a verdict after the testimony was all in, and after an argument the motion was granted.

Judge Ensign then took up the case of Frank L. Doyle against the McCord Lumber company, to recover $14,000 for the alleged breach of a contract for the cutting of certain timber.

In Judge Cant's court the case of Hill against Winston Bros. was still on and the plaintiff was on the stand at noon. Yesterday afternoon it appeared from his testimony that he was a non-resident, so the defendants moved that he be compelled to put up a bond for costs. Judge Cant took the motion under advisement, and this morning he ordered the plaintiff to furnish a bond for $75 costs before his case was rested.

Will Use it Thursday.

The Central Gun club has received its new mangautrap and will use it next Thursday. It is the very finest thing of the kind which is manufactured today. It is worked by a man or boy on the same principle as a bicycle. He sits on a saddle and propels it with pedals and it requires about the same power as that it does to operate a wheel. The club has built a new house on the grounds for the storing of guns and shooting pharaphernalia.

A WIFE'S REVENGE.

Milwaukee, May 18.—A special to the Wisconsin from Lancaster, Wis., says: Mark W. Townsend, who was arrested in Adams county, Wash., and brought to this place for trial on a charge of murdering his wife about eight years ago, was found guilty of manslaughter in the fourth degree and sentenced to the penitentiary for two years. Townsend married in Washington, but quarreled with his wife and she gave away the story of the guilty act of his past to the authorities.

LARGEST

Mammoth Lens For the Yerkes Telescope Starts on Its Journey.

Traveling in a Parlor Car From Massachusetts to California.

Lens Consists of Two Disks the Largest Ever Made.

Cambridge, Mass., May 18.—From Clark's Lens works, Cambridge, has been shipped in a special parlor car two disks which form the lens for the Yerkes telescope, the largest lens ever made. The car was attached to the Chicago express. Professor Clark, the maker of the lens; Carl Ludin, his foreman, who spent several years in polishing the great disks, and another workman, accompanied the valuable cargo.

The greatest care was taken that no harm should befall the two disks, and in their large cases in the center of the car they were so adjusted on springs that the jolting will not damage them. The guards have been stationed at both doors of the car, and every precaution taken that outsiders and curiosity seekers shall in no way interfere with the transportation of the lens. Then, too, they were insured for their full value while in transit. This Yerkes' lens is the largest and finest in the world. It represents nearly six years of careful labor, and completed, is valued at $50,000. The glass came from the factory at Mantois, in Paris, France. The lens is 40½ inches on the surface diameter and weighs 515 pounds. The exposed surface, or aperture, is 40 inches, the other inch and a half being taken up by the casing. This makes it just four inches larger than the Lick telescope lens, which was also made by the Clarks, and has held the place of honor in the world of astronomy.

The great lens consists of two separate lenses of differing density and shape, separated when in use by a space of several inches. The outer one, which comes in contact with the atmosphere is made of a perfect piece of crown glass. It is double convex, two and three-eighths inches thick at the center and three-quarters of an inch at the edge, and weighs 265 pounds. The inner lens is made of flint glass, and is what is known as plano concave. It is one and one-eighth inches in thickness at the center and two inches at the edge. It weighs 250 pounds.

Both lenses are adjusted in an iron ring and cell, and the total weight of the glass and iron casing is 1000 pounds. The focal distance of the lens is sixty-one feet. The packing of the lenses was one of the most interesting features in their history. First, they were carefully and smoothly wrapped in flannel, sewed tightly at the edges, then they were covered with several thicknesses of soft tissue paper, and then wrapped in hard paper and encased in a bed of cotton batting, silk and curled hair in a strong box.

This box was mounted upon springs and placed within a larger box and packed with excelsior. The care, the skill, the patience which have been expended in grinding the lenses is marvelous. When completed the lens was mounted in a temporary telescope tube and tested for fifty nights and found perfect. Had there been a deviation of a spider's strand it would have been useless.

MARCH OF IMPROVEMENT.

How it Will Rattle the Bones of Gotham's Dead.

New York, May 18.—Historic old St. John's cemetery will soon be a thing of the past. Its thousands of crumbling memorials will disappear to make place for the proposed new St. John's public park. The entire place is overgrown and wild, and is probably the most solitary spot in New York. The western half of the ground is level with the streets and contains the graves made in the first half of the century.

The tombstones will be carefully removed and will make excellent foundation for the park pathways. There are about 18,000 scions. The bodies not removed by particularly interested persons will not be disturbed. Trinity corporation fought the aldermanic legislation to appropriate the cemetery for a park, but gave up the contest about four years ago.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

Badgering the President to Inaugurate Some Changes.

Washington, May 18.—Great pressure has been brought to bear on the president for a reform in certain branches of the civil service, especially since the meetings of the senate committee investigating the workings of the civil service. The main propositions in the reforms demanded are briefly as follows:

1—The abolition of the rule allowing reinstatement of government employes, without examination, only within one year from the time of their removal from the service.

2—The exception from examination of all chiefs of division, superintendents and foremen, and all officials whose duties are of an executive character.

3—The issuing of a general order rescinding all extensions of the classified service made since President Harrison's administration.

The president has given no information as to what course he will pursue.

ADVANCE IN LAW STUDIES.

Washington, May 18.—President Whitman of the Columbian university here announces that an important step in advance has just been taken by that institution in the establishment of courses in politics and sociology to be given in the law school by Dr. Lee Davis Lodge, who is the professor of political science and international law in the university. The new course of lectures will be devoted to ethnology, anthropology, the theory of the state, comparative politics and sociology. The aim will be to summ the connective thread with the unified whole in historic possession. He deposited the log in the vaults of the Security Trust and Safe Deposit company.

FOUND HIS RELATIVES.

San Francisco, May 18.—T. W. Beakbane, a well-to-do fruit grower of lower Lake county, has just been identified as the son of a wealthy English family. He disappeared from the knowledge of his parents twenty-three years ago and was long been given up for dead. Twenty-three years ago, as the result of trouble with his family, Beakbane left his home and came to the United States. He drifted West and is now one of the wealthiest of Lake county ranchers. He is married and with his wife and four children is on his way to Europe to attend the diamond jubilee and to see his people in their home on the Island of Jersey in the English channel.

THE TRUE REMEDY.

W. M. Repine, editor of the Tiskilwa, Ill., "Chief," says: "We won't keep house without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Experimented with many others, but never got the true remedy until we used Dr. King's New Discovery. No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain and sure cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, etc." It is idle to experiment with other remedies, even if they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. King's New Discovery. They are not as good, because this remedy has a record of cures and besides is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottles free at Duluth Drug company's drug store.

You sometimes hear men telling with foolish conceit of how hard they overwork and that they neglect their health in the pursuit of money. There are thousands of men who admit these things with a sort of pride, and slap themselves on the chest and laugh at the idea they will some-day regret their recklessness and neglect. They laugh at Death, but in a short while, a very short while, the laugh is on the other side. Death waits while they laugh. He who laughs last, laughs best, and in due time Death dances on the prostrate body of the laugher. There are many funny things in this world but death is not one of them. Neither is ill-health for it is one of Death's weapons and the most effective.

When a hard-working man feels out of sorts, and has a poor appetite, and doesn't sleep well, and goes to work in the morning tired-out and heavy headed, he should take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the best health-bringer and health-keeper known. It corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver, restores the appetite and keeps it hearty and keen. It drives impurities from the blood and disease-germs from the body. It builds healthy flesh, firm muscles, steady nerves and active brain cells. It brings restful sleep and restores ambition. It cures nervous irritation, nervous exhaustion and nervous prostration. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It is the discovery of an eminent and skillful specialist, Dr. R. V. Pierce, now and for thirty years past, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

DR. PIERCE'S Good temper is largely a matter of good health, and good health is largely a matter of healthy activity of the bowels. Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are safe, sure and speedy, and once taken do not have to be taken always. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Druggists sell them. PELLETS.

MURDER

Luetgert's Arrest in Chicago Recalls Another Crime Almost Forgotten.

Eighteen Years Ago Hugh McGowan Was Found in Luetgert's Barn.

He Had Been Murdered and Suspicion Fell on the Sausage Man.

Chicago, May 18.—The arrest of Adolph L. Luetgert, president of the Luetgert Sausage and Packing company, for the murder of his wife, has recalled and may lead to the investigation of a murder which took place eighteen years ago. At that time Luetgert was a saloonkeeper and had a place of business at Clybourn and Webster avenues. The victim was Hugh McGowan, whose only son, James McGowan, now resides at No. 58 Lewis street. The story, as told by the latter, is as follows:

On the night of Sept. 9, 1879, Hugh McGowan was missing from his home, which was then at the corner of B and Dominick streets. He was 64 years old, and a millwright. Though sometimes given to drink, it was contrary to all his habits to stay away from his family at night. A search was immediately instituted, but no trace of him was discovered until the following day. Then he was found in Luetgert's barn, with his head cut open and an immense plug of tobacco shoved down his throat. The body was propped up in a sitting posture.

Every circumstance attending the man's death indicated violence. Suspicion fell upon Luetgert. A coroner's jury, made up of the men who had lived near him for years, cleared him of the charge, and decided "that the deceased had come to his death by apoplexy." Not satisfied with this verdict, the son, James McGowan, who was then a youth of 17 years, demanded a post mortem examination. He chose a physician to represent him at he examination, and went with him to the morgue. When he arrived, however, he found that the examination had already been made. His protests were unavailing, and later the body of his father was given to him for interment. When James McGowan learned of Luetgert's arrest, he went to the police and told the story of his father's murder.

HERMANN IS FAVORABLE.

Pine Land Appraisers' Corps to Be Reorganized.

Washington, May 18.—Special to The Herald.—There is a possibility that at Chippewa Commissioner Baldwin's request, the corps of pine land appraisers who were recently discharged, will be reorganized and put to work on the Leech Lake reservation before the beginning of the next fiscal year.

Land Commissioner Hermann is apparently favorable to Maj. Baldwin's plan, although he says the same men may not be appointed. He is only waiting to consult with Indian Inspector Wright to ascertain his views of the matter before acting. Commissioner Hermann said today the new force would be appointed only with a view to their capability and honesty, without regard to politics.

DEMENTED ACTRESS.

Insanity Caused By Privation and Other Troubles.

San Francisco, May 18.—The name of Mrs. Yvonne Carleton, the actress, who was taken to the hospital Sunday suffering from insanity, is Minnie Fay Barns Chandler, and she is the wife of George H. Chandler, formerly of the Standard Oil company at Omaha. The girl was adopted when a child by the family of M. J. Burns, manager of the insurance compact for Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and New Mexico. Mrs. Bursn is the sister of Cresswell Muir, who, when he died, owned land near Pomona, Cal., valued at several hundred thousand dollars.

Mrs. Chandler has long believed that Muir was really her father. The woman arrived here from Denver with her little son about a year ago, coming, she stated, at the instigation of her husband, who failed to follow her as he promised to do, and who has sent her en money. Ever since her life has been one of privation and ill-paid toil.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Since the resignation of Bishop Walker the Episcopal diocese of North Dakota has been in charge of Bishop Morrison, of Duluth, in company with Rev. Evison, of Bismarck, he recently visited the mission located at Standing Rock, and while there performed the marriage ceremony for three couples of native Sioux. Speaking of the trip, Rev. Mr. Evison says: "Arriving in sight of the mission we saw a good sized building built of logs, over which floated a white flag, bearing in red the cross of St. Andrew's Brotherhood. It was the signal to give notice of a meeting. In this house were gathered a goodly number of Indian men, women and children. They were ranged around the room, the men at one end, and the women, with the children, at the other. The bishop made a circuit of the room, shaking hands with everyone of them. The handshaking was performed in silence, save when the silence was broken by an 'how' on the part of one or two of the Indians. The entire assemblage proceeded to the church building, a neat frame structure, where the service was read in Sioux by Alexander His War, a native lay reader. A sermon by the bishop was delivered through the aid of a half-breed interpreter. Supposing the service to be at an end, the bishop proceeded to divest himself of his robes, when he learned that there was some more ceremony to perform. It was the marriage of three native couples, Richard Cottonwood to Flying Owl, Like Walker to Lucy Goes the Bear, and Abraham White Cow Bull to Good Day. As the brides and grooms-to-be presented themselves before the bishop, our sense of humor was aroused by the fact that, standing as they did, in two groups of three—the men on the right and the women on the left—it was a problem as to which were the respective couples, but after satisfactorily sorting them out, the ceremony proceeded. The first groom had provided a ring, but for the other two couple, a ring belonging to one of the congregation did the duty."

The hearing of the Spicer murderers has been finished at Bismarck and all five of the suspected ones are bound over for trial. The main point in the examination was Holy Track. It is said there is much additional evidence tending toward the hanging of all five suspects. Trial will be in June.

Emigrants with their families, their horses, mules, cattle, pigs and chickens, drive through overland to secure the fast disappearing cheap and fertile lands in the Upper James River valley. They come singly, in pairs and by the caravan, the time of travel varying from a week to three months in some instances.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The commissioners of the several counties in the Black Hills have all met and have taken action in regard to the applications for licenses under the new Boulck liquor law. To the old-time Black Hills saloon man the new law presents a good many unpleasant and disagreeable things to be lived up to in the way of reform. Lead City already has sixteen applicants for license and Deadwood twenty. The bonds of each are placed at $2000. The licenses have been given only until July 1, and it is expected that some of those who are now trying it will drop out then.

EXPLORE MOUNT ST. ELIAS.

Philadelphia, May 18.—An expedition left here last evening that has for its object the exploration of the country round about Mount St. Elias, Alaska, and the possible ascent of that mountain, which for a long time was considered the highest in America. Its exploration is particularly interesting because it lies in the disputed territory between the United States and the British possessions in North America, and, while there have been a number of expeditions started to explore and climb Mount St. Elias all attempts to do so have hitherto failed.

RUSSELL SAGE'S RELATIONS.

Joliet, Ill., May 18.—Mrs. Elizar Sage, the wife of the man who obtained a $50 loan from his uncle, Russell Sage, of New York, in February, has attempted to commit suicide from worrying over the matter. A month ago Elizar Sage had saved $50 toward lifting the mortgage upon his homestead and his wife had $5. Brooding over the affair caused Mrs. Sage to lose her mind and last Saturday she was found hanging from a rafter in the shanty upon which New York's millionaire, Sage, had a mortgage for $50. She was found in time to save her life. The money to cancel the mortgage was sent last night to Mrs. Sage.

A PHOSPHORESCENT LAKE.

This peculiar phenomenon may be seen at New Providence, near Nassau, in the Bahamas. It is an artificial lake, having originally been constructed as a place in which to store green turtles and fish, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. It is about 1000 feet long, and from 200 feet to 300 feet wide. In the daytime it looks the same as any other small lake, but at night, which is the proper time for visiting it, the least disturbance of the water causes it to emit phosphorescent light. When agitated, the whole looks lake like a sea of fire. Rowing boats are for hire to visitors, and as soono as tahe oars touch the water they seem to pass through gold. A young girl who lives with the keeper of the property can be induced, for a trifle, to plunge into the water and swim and splash about for the delight of her audience, when she appears enveloped in flame or struggling in a lake of burning oil.

ALFONSO'S BIRTHDAY.

Spain's King Moves Another Year Toward Manhood.

Madrid, May 18.—Yesterday the birthday celebration of the young king of Spain was held. He was 11 years of age, and the occasion was made a fete day throughout the kingdom. Last year, for the first time the king, though a lad in knickerbockers, presided at the opening of the cortez. Such a travesty on government had the effect of materially strengthening the Republicans, and leaders of the royalist party are advising that the royal lad be kept in the background till he comes of legal age, which, according to Spanish custom, is at 15 years.

The king is the son of Alfonso III and Marie Christine of Austria. He has two sisters, Maria de las Mercedes and Maria Therese. His sisters have now reached what is considered in Spain a marriageable age, the younger, Maria Therese, being in her 16th year, while the elder, Mercedes, who for six months prior to the birth of her brother, figured as queen-regent of Spain, and who is now the heir to the throne, is in her 18th year. There is some talk of a union between her and the eldest son of the Grand Duke Vladimir of Russia, the playmate of her childhood, who is very fond of her. Some time ago she received an offer of marriage from King Alexander of Servia, but it was curtly declined.

DECLINED

Wheat Opened Weak and Lower and Continued to Go Down.

A Heavy Break at Liverpool Due to Large California Receipts.

The Weather in the West Favorable and Northwest Receipts Large.

Wheat opened weak and at a decline of about ½c at Chicago and 6c at Duluth, affected by the exceptional decline at Liverpool, 1:30 p. m. cables from that point showing a break of 1½d. This was due, it was claimed, to heavy receipts of California wheat of that point. In addition to the Liverpool weakness, the weather throughout the West was favorable to the growing crop and the Northwest receipts were very heavy, a total of 422 cars being reported from Minneapolis and Duluth compared with 408 last week and 164 a year ago.

There was comparative firmness for a short time owing to buying of large lots by heavy traders at Chicago and by New York at the same moment reporting clearances of wheat and flour for the day at equal to more than 400,000 bus. Bradstreet's report of the changes since a week ago in the world's visible caused weakness, showing a decrease of 1,520,000 bus, whereas 3,000,000 bus or more decrease had been looked for. The decrease in the world's stocks the week before was about 5,000,000 bus. The making public of these figures caused a decline.

Trading was dull on the Duluth board. July wheat opened 5c lower at 73¾c, declined to 73¼c, recovered to the opening figures, but broke again after noon and sold down to 72¾c. It was bid up at the close to 73¾, showing a decline of 1¼c as compared with yesterday's close. The mills bought 45,000 bus of cash stuff at 1c to 2c over July, and the elevators took 15,000 bus at 2c over July. Following were the closing prices:

No. 1 hard, cash, 76c; May, 76c. No. 1 northern, cash, 73¾c; May, 73¾c; July, 73¾c; September, 69¾c. No. 2 northern, 71¾c. No. 3 spring, 69c. Rejected, 59c. No. 1 durum, 71¾c. No. 2 durum, 69¾c. No. 1 northern, 76c. Rye, 42½c. No. 2 oats, 21½c. No. 3 oats, 21c. Flax, 76½c.

Our inspection—Wheat, 165 cars, 1 case, but 2 to 5; barley, 28; flax, 54. Receipts—Wheat, 215,488 bus; oats, 120,462 bus; rye, 2826 bus; barley, 8067 bus, flax, 1441 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 121,485 bus; corn, 14,473 bus; oats, 75,111 bus; rye, 25,000 bus; barley, 28,000 bus.

GOSSIP

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 307 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 18.—Liverpool again established a penny decline in wheat, the reason given being the weakness caused by large arrivals of California wheat. The world's shipments also show a much larger movement from Russia. The Paris market was only fractionally higher and dull, their alarming crop advices evidently being intended for this market. Berlin experienced a sharp decli... Advices from the Southwest indicate an early harvest, possibly next week in Oklahoma and Texas. The Oklahoma crop is placed at about 7,000,000 bus. A reliable crop expert places the Kansas crop from 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 bus and the outlook for Nebraska never better and predicts that the surplus west of the Mississippi river will exceed the shortage in Illinois, Indiana and Missouri. Foreigners bought some wheat here and on New York and about 100,000 bus cash were worked here for export. Clearances on the seaboard equal to nearly 500,000 bus, but the Bradstreet weekly report of the world's visible showed very disappointing decrease and a large increase in European stocks which invited free selling of long wheat and heavy short selling by a large local operator. The market closed around the put price for the fourth day in succession and with indications of further decline.

Corn and oats depressed by wheat.

Provisions easier early but met with good buying support from the packing interests. Receipts of hogs continue large.

WEST END

Knights of the Maccabees Are Preparing to Go to St. Paul.

Millworkers Will Meet Tomorrow Night---Threatened Troubles Are Over.

Max Zech and Oliver Overly Injured In a Sawmill Yesterday.

The Knights of the Maccabees in West Duluth are making great preparations for the meeting of the grand lodge in St. Paul, June 1 and 2. A number of local knights have decided to go and they with the representatives of other Duluth tents will constitute a large and representative delegation. It is proposed to take the City band along to furnish music if satisfactory financial arrangements can be perfected. It is understood that enough money lacking $25 has been raised to defray the expense of the band, and there is no doubt but that the enterprising knights will soon secure this sum and thus insure themselves a prominent place among the Maccabees who will visit St. Paul from all parts of the country.

MILLWORKERS TO MEET.

The Millworkers' Protective union will meet tomorrow night in Great Eastern hall. The threatened labor troubles in the mills at the West End having apparently blown over, the meeting is supposed to have nothing for consideration aside from routine business. However, the members of the union are active in securing recruits to the organization and it is now stronger than ever before in its history.

INJURED IN SAWMILLS.

Max Zech while working in the lathe mill at Merrill & Ring's yesterday was badly cut in the left hand by a buzz saw. Oliver Overly who works in the shingle mill put his finger against an active saw yesterday also and received a painful injury.

MACCABEE ENTERTAINMENT.

Pearl Hive, No. 4, Ladies of the Maccabees will give a musical and dramatic entertainment at Great Eastern hall Friday night. A drama entitled "Ilda Ward or the Poor Relation," will be produced by talent selected from members of the hive. The play, which is a very interesting one, has been carefully rehearsed and will be put on in a very attractive manner.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The Swedish National club will give a social at Orpheus hall Saturday night for the benefit of a widow of a late member in destitute circumstances. Many tickets are being sold and financial success of the entertainment is assured.

Miss Bessie Joy will give a party to her Sunday school class at Westminster Presbyterian church Saturday afternoon.

Dr. A. Rockwell has returned from a short residence on his claim.

The Ladies' Aid society of Westminster Presbyterian church will meet with Mrs. William Jennings on Gosnold street tomorrow afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid society of Asbury M. E. church will hold their regular meeting at Mrs. Rollins', near the church, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Mrs. Eugene Smith left today for Negaunee, Mich., wher she will remain three months with her sister.

U. S. G. Sharp and Guy Pake left yesterday for Rainy Lake. Mr. Sharp has extensive property interests in the gold fields and will probably engage in business there that he may the better look after it. He contemplates some development work on one of his claims.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Fitzpatrick, who were married at St. James' Catholic church last week, returned yesterday from Milwaukee, where they went for their bridal tour.

Hair Goods Sale.

Large stock of hair goods at cost, this week. Parson's complexion parlors, 125 West Superior street, second floor.

In Police Court.

In the police court this morning one drunk and six trespassers faced Judge Edson. The victim of liquor paid $7.50 and two of the box car lodgers were let off with suspended sentences, but the other four, who had all the earmarks of the typical hobo were sent up the hill for ten days apiece. The tranton assault case was taken up before Judge Boyle, in which Robert Harney is charged with striking Christ Olesen with a shovel. The complaining witness cannot understand the questions of the assistant city attorney, and the defendant, a typical Irishman, will not understand them and the resulting comedy of errors bids fair to last for another day at least.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH

Official Paper of the City of Duluth.

HERALD'S CIRCULATION HIGH-WATER MARK

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (Central time), May 18.—An extensive area of high pressure is rushing southward from the Canadian Northwest and has checked the eastward movement of a depression which is central in Southern Montana. Local showers have occurred in Montana, South Dakota and the provinces north of Montana, and a heavy local shower is reported in the vicinity of Bismarck. Fair weather is now general, except at the stations of Huron and Medicine Hat, where rain was falling at the hour of observation this morning.

Unusual heat yesterday at Lake Superior stations has been followed by a change to much cooler. The maximum temperature of 87 at Duluth was the highest ever registered during the first twenty days of May, the record extending back to 1870.

The temperature has risen in the Central valleys since yesterday morning, and fallen in the far Northwest, the changes, however, being slight.

The conditions indicate a continuance of cool northeast winds in this vicinity for the next two or three days.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 52; maximum yesterday, 87; minimum yesterday, 47.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; slightly cooler tonight; continued northeast winds, high in force.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, May 18.—Forecast until 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Partly cloudy with showers in west portion tonight; Wednesday probably showers; fresh to brisk southerly winds. For Minnesota: Showers tonight and Wednesday; brisk easterly winds.

AN ABSOLUTE NECESSITY.

The Rainy Lake Journal says: "The Journal again has had evidence of the existence of placer gold in the Rat Root valley, but there seems to be a disposition on the part of those having a personal knowledge of the matter to hush up comment on the placers because of the fact that no poor man can get title to a claim because the United States mining law does not apply to Minnesota. It is true that so deplorable a state of affairs does exist here, and it is something that Congressman Morris and our other members of congress, with Senators Nelson and Davis should move to remedy without delay."

In another article the same paper says that next in importance to a railroad to Duluth "is that Minnesota should be placed under the operation of the United States mining laws." On Saturday The Herald republished an editorial from the Vermilion Journal, in which the statement was made that "the mining laws in Ontario are largely responsible for the rapid development of that region and the United States in that respect are not widely dissimilar. It can scarcely be doubted that as valuable deposits exist south as north of the international boundary, yet the rush for the properties is confined almost exclusively to the Canadian side. Nothing but the liberality of the Canadian land laws can account for this, and nothing but the application of a similar mining law to Minnesota will aid the development of the mining resources of the state. It is extremely unlikely that the application of the United States mineral laws to Minnesota would induce emore litigation and vexatious delay than the present land laws as many who have made original filings on lands which are at all valuable can testify."

These extracts voice the opinions of all the people residing in the mining districts. It may be true that capitalists can now acquire mining properties more cheaply than they could under the operation of the mining laws, but there is no doubt that the explorer would have a better chance under the mining laws, and there can be no development expected, unless the explorer, who does all the hard and rough work, is given as good opportunities on the American side of the international boundary as he finds on the Canadian side. If Congressman Morris desires to do something which will prove of great benefit to his constituents and which will result in the development of Minnesota's gold region, where one of the greatest gold mines in the Western hemisphere has already been discovered, he will promptly introduce a bill to apply the mining laws to this state and endeavor to secure its passage before the close of the present session. The season for exploratory work has opened and if prospectors could be assured of obtaining the advantages conferred by the mining laws they would rush into the Rainy Lake district and speedily convert that region into a scene of activity.

The meeting recently held in this city, which decided against the application of the mining laws to this state, was insignificant in numbers and not representative of those who have the greatest interest in the gold region, and Judge Morris should not be guided by its action. There are thousands of men anxious to do something to better their condition, and if they were assured of obtaining title under the mining laws to any gold properties they might discover, they would speedily depart for Rainy Lake and assist in the development of that rich region.

Commander Botkin of the Kansas Grand Army of the Republic has issued an order making July 19 "Mother Bickerdyke day," and directing that every post in the state hold a special meeting on the night of the 19th in honor of the celebrated old army nurse, that being the 80th anniversary of her birth. "Mother Bickerdyke" is now living at the home of her son in Bunker Hill, Kan.

GERMANY'S HAND VISIBLE.

The hand of the emperor of Germany has recently been clearly visible in the Turco-Greek complication. The Turkish army was accompanied by German officers, who were given permission by the emperor to accept positions in the sultan's service, and it is stated that the Turkish successes were largely due to their advice. The kaiser is also said to be backing up the sultan in holding out against granting an armistice before terms of peace are outlined. Throughout the war the influence of Germany has been thrown against Greece, despite the close relationship of the emperor to the royal family of that country. The wife of Prince Constantine is a sister of the emperor and one would suppose that desire not to see her heritage spoiled would at least influence diplomatic consideration in the hour of Greek defeat, but such is not the case. The emperor loves absolution better than he loves his sister.

The hope of liberal Europe, says the Boston Transcript, is that the emperor, by making himself the too prominent patron of the Turk, may alienate the czar, for whose friendship he is playing. The latter, by the traditional policy of his house and nation, is the arbiter of Turkey's destinies, and he has peremptorily ordered the sultan to agree to an armistice. If the sultan banks heavily on German support we may yet see the "concert" broken, a consummation devoutly to be wished, since it has manifested its inability to preserve peace or terminate war. A falling-out between "the two young despots," as Mr. Gladstone has well termed the kaiser and the czar, would be for the advantage of the world. Even Lord Salisbury might then muster up courage enough to break away from his tame subservience to them and inaugurate a policy worthy of England's instincts and power."

A dispatch from London today says that the conditions proposed by the porte as the terms of peace with Greece have been discussed in the lobbies of parliament and have met with no favor. The idea of the retrocession of Thessaly and of such an indemnity as is already suggested is ridiculed as impracticable and absurd. At the outside an indemnity of £5,000,000 or £6,000,000 and a slight strategic rectification of the frontier are considered as likely to be the terms finally settled upon. This is the English view, but, supposing the German emperor stands by the sultan in his extreme demands, what will be the result? The Greek people are very much excited over the capture of Domokos by the Turks, which has given the enemy practically complete control of Thessaly, and the Greek government is said to be threatening to take extreme and desperate steps unless Europe arrests the progress of the invaders. The powers, however, appear to be divided and working at cross purposes, and therefore the near future may develop some sensational events in Europe. The danger of a general European war is growing greater daily, and the kaiser's action may bring it to a head.

AN UN-AMERICAN BILL.

The Detroit Journal, the leading Republican organ in Michigan, does not favor the bill introduced in the house by Congressman Charles Newell Fowler of New Jersey for the creation of a tariff commission as it is a very radical measure indeed. It proposes to take the tariff "out of politics" absolutely and to give the commission with the consent of the president the power to suspend any tax on imports in whole or in part at will. In other words it would give the commission, with the consent of the chief executive, authority to annul any act of congress fixing duties on imports. The congress being the people's medium through which such legislation as they demand must come, it is plain to be seen that the Fowler bill would deprive the people themselves of their just powers. In "a government of the people by the people and for the people," this would be a very remarkable thing to do.

The Journal adds: "The creation of a commission to investigate federal taxation and recommend from time to time such tariff changes as in its judgment may seem wise, would undoubtedly be a valuable aid to legislation, but the commission should be an advisory instead of an autocratic board. It should not be created with power to defeat the will of its creator, and we don't believe any congress will ever vote itself a subordinate to any commission. The Fowler bill is un-American in spirit and purpose. It proposes to give to seven men absolute power to suspend at will duties on imports whenever they see fit to do so, and a majority of the seven we suppose would control the commission's action. We cannot have a government of, by and for the people in this way. It is not the American way."

Job Hedges, private secretary of the mayor of New York, was recently promoted to an $8000 office. Having two minor jobs at his disposal, he concluded to try a civil service examination of applicants. But he is wiser now. So great was the rush that Job confessed his stock of patience did not equal that of his Biblical namesake.

A huge snake, with an appetite for veal, has been discovered in Kansas. A bass hooked in Connecticut waters had a gold coin in its interior, and in New York a diamond ring was found in a duck's stomach. When somebody at one of the new seaside resorts sees a sea serpent, the season may be considered fully opened.

The memory of Col. Robert Gould Shaw, the leader of the first Afro-American regiment, is about to be honored in Boston, where a bronze tablet to his memory will be unveiled on May 30. Col. Shaw was killed in 1863 while fighting on the ramparts of Fort Wagner.

New York city's annual revenue from its markets is $300,000. Brooklyn's annual revenue from its markets is $50,000. The expense of maintaining New York's markets is $100,000; the cost of maintaining Brooklyn's markets is $15,000.

The Turks are now in full control of Thessaly, and the great powers will find it still more difficult to induce the porte to agree to reasonable conditions of peace. The Turk may now believe that he can whip them all combined.

Steve Crane says the "roar of musketry" at Velestino sounded like "the tearing of cloth." He must have heard the shots going through the Grecian skirts.

The mistake of a typewriter, who typed "provided" for "prohibited," will occasion the reassembling of the New Jersey legislature in special session. Hand engrossment of laws may be slow, but it is more likely to be correct.

Greater New York being a certainty, says the Omaha Bee, Chicago consoles itself with the thought that Chicago river cannot be beaten. Nor can it be stirred with safety.

What is so uncertain as weather in May?

HIS GARDEN.

He spaded it with diligence
And also with a will,
And oh, he had the backache
By the time he had it made!
He raked it off quite smoothly,
And made some pretty beds,
And at night he dreamed of turnips
And great prize cabbage heads.

Well, when he got it ready,
He planted seeds galore
Of every kind provided
At the agricultural store.
With fetticus and celery,
And radishes, and beans,
And pepper grass and onions,
And various kinds of greens.

And cabbages and melons,
And cucumbers, and peas,
And artichokes, and parsley,
And a few lettuce trees.
At last the whole was loaded,
And, having done his best,
And being somewhat tired,
He sat down to rest.

Alas! that fatal error
Made all his labors vain.
The man who makes a garden
Should never rest, that's plain.
Attention every moment
A planted garden needs.
But he, he stopped to rest him—
And his only crop was weeds.

THE TELEPHONE DECISION.

Chicago Post: So the Bell company has the monopoly of the Berliner patent, assuming it to be valid. But is it valid? This main and practical issue will now have to be fought out in the federal courts.

Chicago Tribune: While the decision of the supreme court puts an end to the controversy, nearly all will believe that the company had a great deal to do with the laws which benefited it so much. If it had really wanted the patent issued nearly twenty years ago the patent could have been obtained. Doubtless it saw the advantages of having something in reserve to use when the original patent ran out.

Chicago Record: The policy of the Bell company in evading a decision upon all the grounds of invalidity that had been raised, and thus throwing away an opportunity to gain a clear title to the invention if it had a right to it, seems to lend color to the claim of the independent telephone companies that the Bell company has really little faith in this patent, and that, instead of securing a judicial decision upon the merits of the case, it proposes to use the Berliner patent and the decision of the United States supreme court as a club over weaker corporations. In spite of all the claims that may be made by the American Bell Telephone company and its agents and advocates, the decision of the supreme court of the United States is apparently of no practical value in continuing and sustaining the monopoly of the telephone industry.

GREEK AND TURK.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The sultan's demand that the Greeks hand over their ironclads as one of the conditions of peace is a cool proposition. It is not likely that Greece under any circumstances will agree to present Turkey with a ready-made navy.

St. Louis Republic: It seems a pity that the Greek troops should have behaved so badly with the eyes of two American female war correspondents fixed upon them. Even for the purposes of bonnet decoration the white feather is not popular with women.

Milwaukee Wisconsin: Behold the Turkish torrent flow! King George of Greece is plunged in woe. Was ever monarch so undone? His soldiers all are on the run; he hears his people hopeless groan; he fears that he may lose his throne; he's lost his hold on little Crete, and dropped his margins in the street.

Indianapolis Journal: The impression prevails abroad that the injection of the energy of war into the veins of the "sick man of Europe" has given Turkey new life. Even when bankrupt, a government which can put 200,000 men into the field, as good fighters as Europe can produce, may be counted as one of the contracting parties when the powers meet to make arrangements.

New York Tribune: It was on his way to the battlefield of Pharsalia that Caesar uttered the famous saying to his fishermen. He had come down to Brindisi to cross to Dyrrachium, and, finding no galley, commanded the owner of a small sailing boat to put him across the Adriatic. On the voyage a violent storm occurred, and even the experienced mariners were terrified; but the great captain said: "Have no fear! You carry Caesar and his fortunes!"

THE DIFFERENCE.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: "Does a man, as a rule, accept a position with So-and-so or does he go to work for him?" asks the East Grand Forks Courier. That depends entirely on the salary. If he gets $30 a month, he works, and if it is $100 he perches on a position.

CALLS IT A SPASM.

St. Cloud Times (Dem.): McKinley's election must have been a spasm of some sort. Congressman Grosvenor says if the election had been held a month earlier Bryan would certainly have won, and everybody who keeps tab on public sentiment knows that if a vote were taken today Bryan would have a walkover.

LIGHT AND BRIGHT.

New York Press: Mrs. Beacon—So you think your youngest will make a great financier.

Mrs. Lakeside—Yes. Why, the other day I bought him a toy bank, and, would you believe it, he cried for an hour for his papa to get him a typewriter.

Pittsburg Chronicle: Squildig—I thought that baseball was not played in England.

McSwilligen—It isn't.

Squildig—Then what is this diamond jubilee they are making such extensive preparations for in London?

Washington Star: "Did that lawyer get a clear view of the case?" inquired the litigant's friend.

"No; I'm afraid he didn't. I told him that my trouble was about money and he seemed to be proceeding on the theory that by relieving me of my money he would cause the trouble to disappear."

New York World: "Doctor, I am a poet, and—" began the marble-browed young rhyme-smith, impertantly.

"Ah! And you wish treatment?" inquired the eminent physician promptly.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Noble pasha," inquired the brigade commander, "can the followers of the prophet sing the battle prayer from the koran as they chase the Grecian unbeliever from the gory field?"

"They may-hum-it," replied the noble pasha as he galloped down the line.

Chips: Lightlove—At last, dear Sophia, we are alone and I can tell you that I lo—

Sophia—Oh, please, no—Mr. Lightlove, don't tell me here.

Lightlove—Why not? There are no witnesses.

Sophia—That's just it!

Brooklyn Life: May—O, I hate these magazine serials.

Ethel—Why?

May—You can never tell how a story ends until it is finished.

Indianapolis Journal: "I," the witness testified, "would not believe him under oath."

"Eh," said the judge, in surprise at hearing a leading citizen so flounted

"Oh, fur as that goes I wouldn't believe anybody. I'm an assessor."

Cleveland Leader: "Why have Dr. Sawbones and Burkett, the undertaker, fallen out?"

"The doctor says Burkett got to following him around so closely that he almost ruined his practice."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "The shah of Persia has cut down his harem to sixty-two wives."

"If he'd drop twenty more he might endure it with forty-tude."

Philadelphia North American: "You promised me," said the young wife, "that you would split some wood after I gave you a meal."

"Madam," replied the tramp, "I broke my promise in the fruitless effort to split the crust of the piece of pie you gave me."

Indianapolis Journal: Freshy—Professor, is it ever possible to take the greater from the less?

Professor Potterby—There is a pretty close approach to it when the conceit is taken out of a freshman.

A CHEEKY THIEF.

Chicago News: "I stole your coat a few nights ago," said a young man at the residence of Mrs. James Waverley, as she opened the door, "and here it is back. I will sell it to you for $35."

Mrs. Waverley was at first so taken aback at the fellow's coolness that she did not know what to say. He had the garment in a bundle under his arm and she at once recognized it as hers.

"I'll give you a check for the amount," she said, thinking to intercept payment and have the man arrested when he presented it. But the visitor was not so easily caught.

"Nit," said he. "You'll give me the money if you want the coat."

He then told Mrs. Waverley he would wait until she went to her room and got the money.

He sat down in the hallway and waited for her return, intercepting, in the meantime, the servant who had been sent out by her mistress in search of a policeman. Finally Mrs. Waverley decided that she would pay the amount demanded and run the risk of having the man arrested from the description she felt she could give. When given the money the man opened the door and stepped into the street, thanking Mrs. Waverley politely and adding the advice that in the future she be more careful in fastening the doors and windows in her house. The man has not yet been caught.

DECOYED A WOLF.

While going up the hill we saw where a very big, wolf had gone along very recently, and it had kept in the trail until we came to where the trail forked. It had taken the trail leading up the river. We stopped for a few minutes, and while we were standing there speculating on what the wolf could be doing there that time of the year, we were startled by its howling. It was not very far away. I shall not attempt to describe the feelings of other people, but when that dismal wail broke out it made me shiver from head to foot. When the echo had died away I mocked it, and the echo of my howl had not ceased before the wolf answered me, this time with renewed vigor. Then I again answered it.

I said to the boys that if we would wait here a little while the wolf would come. They ridiculed the idea, and we started up the ridge after grouse. Soon I flushed one, which went up into a big tir, and we were startled by the wolf's howling back to our left. It had come to find its mate. We ran up onto a small mound and sat down, and I howled—but low, fearing that the wolf might detect the fraud. This time it did not answer, but in a few minutes we saw it coming trotting through the small brush on the ridge. It came to where there was an old pine lying on the ground with the limbs rotted off, jumped onto the top and trotted down to near the root, and stopped and looked toward us. It had hardly come to a stand when I shot at it, and at the crack of my revolver it tumbled off the log. We ran up to where it was, and as soon as it found it could not get away it sulked, wolf-like. The boys finished it with their revolvers. We took the skin, and although it was not first-rate it would make a tolerably fair rug. On cutting the wolf open, we found several large pieces of venison that showed but little signs of digestion.

DR. HOBBS

THE PEOPLE'S DELIVERER

Slays Kidney Disease With His Wonderful Discovery.

As a Barrier Between Suffering Humanity and the Grave No Remedy Equals Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills.

The Sales of Which Are Reported by Druggists Everywhere to be Enormous.

Everyone of the thousands of sufferers from kidney disease, rheumatism or neuralgia, who have been cured by using Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills, will most emphatically endorse the words that head this article.

After such evidence as has been published in the columns of this paper for several days past, no one can conscientiously presume to gainsay the great healing virtues of Dr. Hobbs' grand remedy.

A prominent physician in this city said yesterday: "Like the generality of doctors I look with suspicion upon all advertised medicines.

I confess when I read the claims of Dr. Hobbs, I was decidedly skeptical of the value of his discovery as a remedial agent in kidney diseases. However I am forced to admit from the positive favorable reports of Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Pills that have come under my own personal observation that for kidney troubles especially they are indeed a wonderful remedy. One of my patients said to me a day or two ago that he had used them most effectually in a severe case of chronic rheumatism and that he now felt better than he had for seven years."

"From the evidences of my own senses I am almost prepared to believe that Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills will ere long be prescribed by physicians generally."

One of the causes of the enormous success achieved by Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills arises from the fact that those who have been cured of their ailments by using these pills have taken occasion to recommend them to their friends and acquaintances whenever there was an opportunity to do so.

Dr. Hobbs recognizes the value of such advertising fully as much if not more, than he does the fullsome praise of newspapers.

Jamestown, N. Y., Oct. 15, 1896.
I can testify as to the merits of Hobbs' Sparagus Pills. My condition was critical; had tried the best physicians without any permanent help; finally was recommended to try Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills and can say they have been worth $100 to me on account of my back alone. I can recommend them to all who are afflicted with kidney trouble or disease arising therefrom. I cannot say too much in their favor. S. Z. BROWN, Astonishing Case of Heart Disease and Diabetes Cured by Two Boxes Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills.

Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 10, 1896.
I have had heart trouble for years (enlargement of the heart). Finally diabetes set in. The two appeared to work together. What would relieve one would make the other worse. Among my many other troubles were frequent and copious urinations (exceeding a gallon during the night). In fact, I was troubled to such an extent in this way that on leaving home mornings I had to reckon in advance places to stop where I could relieve myself. I had tried numerous preparations highly recommended for all kidney ailments without apparent effect, until taking your Sparagus Kidney Pills, two boxes of which were sufficient to perform a complete, and to all outward appearances, permanent cure.

So throughout Duluth and other places the good news is spreading fast that DR. HOBBS' SPARAGUS KIDNEY PILLS are rapidly accomplishing the mission they are sent to fulfill, and are bringing health and consequent happiness to thousands.

GRANT IN THE WILDERNESS.

He stood as soldier never stood before—
The master of the nation's destiny.
Immotionless, his face no signal bore
Of that strange mind that willed what was to be.
But on amid the tangled wilderness
Great armies showed his very inmost thought.
E'en death within that mighty game of chess
By his mere nod the carnage doubly wrought.
The strength of all the land was in his hands;
The faith of freedom's sons was in his heart—
The God of Washington inspired the plans
That he wrote there on time's unchanging chart.
Unmoved he was—the cause marched on that day;
He scarcely spoke—the words shall sound for aye.

THE SIX-DAY RACE.

Female Cyclists Started on Their Run Last Evening.

There was a big crowd at the opening of the women's bicycle race at the Lyceum rink last night and the performance was a satisfactorily exciting affair. H. O. Messner acted as time-keeper, Phil Eastoret as referee, and Roy Hoople and Walter Murphy as judges. The race opened with a spurt, Dottie Farnsworth striving for and winning the lead on the first mile, which she did in 2:40, closely followed by Baldwin. There were several lively spurts during the evening. At the end of the twenty-fifth mile Babe Wellington left the track and did not resume riding. The last minute and a half of the two hours was made at a lively pace, and the riders finished in the following order: Farnsworth, 39 miles, 2 laps; Baldwin, 39 miles, 11 laps; Harp, 38 miles, 11 laps; Brooks, 33 miles; Wellington, 25 miles, 1 lap; Hokenson, 21 miles.

Dredges at Work.

Besides their public contracts the dredging men at the head of the lake have had some private work to do this spring. Williams, Green & Williams last week finished the work of cleaning out shoals in the Superior entry and Allouez bay channel. These were small jobs and were caused by the washing up of sand through the action of the waves. This firm then started at work deepening and lengthening the channel alongside of the Northern Pacific coal dock at Old Superior. This is an improvement which has been greatly needed for some time. Capt. C. S. Barker has been at the McCord Lumber company's dock for several days deepening the channel. The West Duluth clam shell dredge has been at work at the end of Rice's Point digging sand for the street approach.

Getting the Uniforms.

Secretary John Fuller of the Elk lodge is measuring members of the Minneapolis club for uniforms to be worn to the grand lodge meeting. All who intend going are expected to have their orders for suits before June 1, that there may be ample time to make them. It is expected that the marching club from the Duluth lodge will be fully sixty strong and it will take an entire month to insure the completion of the uniforms.

Other Mines Closed.

The Metropolitan Land and Iron company, owner of the Norrie mine in the Gogebic range, closed all of its mines with the exception of the Norrie Saturday night, and the Norrie is being run on half time. This throws many more men out of employment on this range. The shut down is a direct result of the failure of the company to secure any part of the contract for furnishing the Illinois Steel company with ore this season.

Council Postpones Acceptance of His Bond as Engineer For a Week.

John Flood Nominated For Mr. Reed's Place---W. H. Smith as President.

Last night's session of the council opened with a surprise when a communication from Mayor Truelsen was read announcing the resignation of President D. A. Reed of the board of public works. There was a sharp fight over the acceptance of the resignation involving several knotty points of order, but finally it was accepted by the council.

Later on the bond of Mr. Reed as acting engineer with B. E. Wells and H. W. Wheeler, as sureties, was presented by the finance committee with a recommendation that it be accepted. Then started the merry war afresh and for awhile Aldermen Richardson and Jefferson held the floor in animated debate over the financial soundness of H. W. Wheeler. Some very pointed questions were put and some very tart rejoinders made.

Alderman Jefferson finally made a motion to lay the bond over for one week. This raised another crosstire of motions, resolutions and points of order, during which Alderman Simpson appealed from a decision by President Cochrane, who nevertheless was sustained by the council. Then the same gentleman had another scrap over the qualification of the sureties and Messrs. Crassweller, Richardson and Jefferson dragged Dun's and Bradstreet's reports into the melee and everybody took a hand in the game, including even the audience which laughed at or applauded every turn of the somewhat confused debate.

Finally after everybody was tired out Alderman Jefferson's motion prevailed and the bond was re-committed to the auditing committee for one week. As the charter prescribes that every official giving a bond, shall do so within ten days after he has been notified of his appointment, if Mr. Reed's bond should not be accepted next Monday night another complication will be added to the city engineer imbroglio, and it is thought that a re-election of Mr. Reed will be necessary.

The battle royal over Mr. Reed was probably the reason that the election of W. H. Smith to the presidency of the board of public works and the nomination of John Flood to the vacancy on the board were not proposed for confirmation. Both of these matters were referred to the committee on public officers.

The Carroll-Porter company's estimate for $16,000 was ordered paid, the city attorney recommending that course.

The Trades assembly endorsed the idea of fixing $1.50 as the standard wages per day on city contract work. The Stonecutters' union asked the council to cause all cut stone used in the reservoirs to be cut in Duluth. The Boilermakers' union, through their secretary, Ed King, who occupies a position in the Hugo Iron works, made several technical objections to the manner in which the Carroll-Porter pipe was being laid. Bids for the sprinkling contracts were referred.

Estimates as follows were ordered paid: N. F. Hugo, $10,842; Ironton Steel company, $4473; Rensselaer Valve company, $909; all on account of the new waterworks. The placing of an additional amount of $17,000 insurance upon the pumping machinery at the Prescott works was reported and accepted.

WILL PAY THE PRICE.

The bill of P. R. McDonnell, amounting to $18,287, for laying the force main from the pumphouse to Lester river, was reported and accepted, the bid being about $2200 lower than any other one. Later on in the evening a resolution was brought in to the effect that $1.50 per day must be paid to all laborers on the contract. This provoked a good deal of discussion as to the legal power of the council to make any such a rule, but the contractor, Mr. McDonnell, to use Alderman Sang's phrase, "took the bull by the horns" and put an end to the discussion by announcing that he did not want nor would he employ any men upon his work who could not earn $1.50 per day, "and what is more," said he, "I don't intend to have any such poor workers around my job." This settled it, and Mr. McDonnell resumed his seat amid applause.

E. R. Cobb's bill for $18 for attending the uniform charter meeting at St. Paul was turned down in a decisive manner, but the stenographer's bill for $87 was held over for examination.

The fire committee recommended the purchase of 2000 feet of new hose for Lakeside, and by so doing roused the ire of several of the aldermen, who, after a fly by mannage, downed Alderman Crassweller and the committee, and decided that no more hose should be purchased, nor any other thing for the fire department until such time as there were funds on hand to pay the bills of the department.

Alderman Richardson said, in speaking of licensing employment offices, that such institutions were "a scourge" to the city, and told how he had tried for several days to obtain a hired girl from one of them, but had failed, and he moved that no employment offices be granted a license. This, however, was voted down, and a whole batch of assorted licenses to hackmen, pool and billiard rooms, pawnbrokers and liquor men were granted.

Alderman Rowley announced that although the board of public works had received the report of the pumphouse committee it had not seen fit to transmit it to the council, and that he had not been able to see it. This made Alderman Sang mad, and he roasted the board, the engineer, the by moving an adjournment, winding up by moving an adjournment to Wednesday to hear the report, which motion was agreed to.

Chief Hanson had a contingent fund of $100 voted to him, and the Gillette-Herzog bid for 36-inch steel force main was hung up for a week, and after the $1.50 a day resolution had been brought up again, with a number of amendments offered and indefinitely postponed, the council adjourned to Wednesday night.

THE CAUCUS.

At the afternoon council caucus nearly all the time was taken up discussing Park Point police protection, blind pigs and the prohibition question as applied to the residence districts of the city, and the outcome of the discussion was so utterly vapid, that Alderman Simpson was impelled to offer a resolution declaring that the regular Monday afternoon meeting should be adjourned until the first Monday in March, 1898. This was unanimously adopted by the council, and hereafter the dreary caucuses of Monday afternoons will not be held in the council chamber of the city of Duluth.

ARE BEING DEVELOPED.

Considerable Work Being Done on Iron Properties.

While there is comparatively little shipping of iron ore from the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges so far this season, owners of mining property evidently have an abundance of faith that an improvement in the iron market is near at hand for there is a great deal of development work going on by the independent companies. It is said that there are more independent mines being opened up along the line of the Duluth & Iron Range now than ever before in its history, especially on the Mesaba range. Few of them, however, are taking out much ore, but they are putting mines in shape so that when the expected heavy demand comes, which it is firmly believed is not now far distant, they will be in a position to supply it on short notice. The determination of the Pioneer to ship no ore from the stockpiles, when the first sales of ore are made, but to take out new ore and load direct on the cars is done with the expectation that toward the close of the season heavy orders will be received that will greatly increase their allotment, in which event the 182,000 tons now on the stockpile can be drawn on.

NATURE PROVIDES

Proper Food for All Her Creatures.

A man feels like he was in deep water and a long ways from shore when he finally arrives at the conclusion that no medicine on earth can cure his particular disease. He has probably tried one after another with hope each time that the new one will do its work, but dismal failures succeed one another regularly and finally reason forces one to abandon hope from medicines.

Right at that juncture is the time to remember that nature has provided food for the sustenance of all of her creatures, and if we will but use nature's food and drink properly she will come powerfully to the aid of the sick one.

All educated doctors agree that their duty is to assist nature, and that nature alone can do the healing.

Dishonest grocers sometimes offer an imitation of the original Postum Cereal Food Coffee as "just as good as Postum." Look for the red seals. "It makes red blood."

Some Difficulties Which Poor Superintendents Encounter.

The following story by County Commissioner Williams is interesting in view of the report of the grand jury made yesterday afternoon concerning the poor system. It illustrates how the system has and may be abused. It will be remembered that some months ago Charles Lines, of Tower, was sent to the penitentiary for eight years for manslaughter. During his trial the widow of the man who was killed, came to Duluth to see what became of the man who made her a widow. While here she visited with a storekeeper on Lake avenue. After the trial the storekeeper visited the superintendent of poor, represented that the woman was in terribly destitute circumstances and asked for relief. When the official called to investigate he found that the story was correct, apparently. The woman sat on a box in a bare room with nothing to eat in the cupboard and nothing to wear but a tattered slip of a gown. The case looked extremely pressing, so an order for $3 in groceries was given.

Some time afterward the grocer appeared with the order and a bill. He had received the order over his counter and had supplied the woman with what she wanted. He took the bill to County Commissioner Williams and wanted to have it paid. Mr. Williams looked at it. It read: Coffee, $1; loaf sugar, $1; granulated sugar, $1. That was what the woman had received on her poor order.

Commissioner Williams informed the grocer that he would have to send his bill to the woman, who had returned to the range, as the county would not pay it and he left the office a very angry grocer.

On another occasion a very neat looking woman came to a county official with a tale of woe and asked relief. She said that her husband had left her and her child, and that that they were destitute. She said that she lived in an alley in one of the principal residence portions of the city and she invited the official to come and ascertain whether or not she was telling the truth. She wanted him to come at 5 o'clock that afternoon. The official did not come then, but the next morning he sent a representative. Knocking at the door he was invited to enter and he found the woman's husband and a boon companion sparwled over a table on which were a big can full of beer, three long fat loaves of bread and two big pies. They received no relief from the county.

TRAVELING IS EXTRA HAZARDOUS

If the tourist is unprovided with some medicinal resource. Changes of temperature, food and water of an unaccustomed or unwholesome quality, and a route that lies in the tropics or other regions where malaria exists, are each and all fraught with danger to one who has been improvident enough to neglect a remedial safeguard. The concurrent testimony of many voyageurs by land and sea establishes the fact that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters enables those who use it to encounter hazards of the nature referred to with impunity and that, as a medicine adapted to sudden and unexpected exigencies, it is peculiarly valuable. Disorders of the liver, the bowels and the stomach, fever and ague, rheumatism and nervous ailments, brought on by exposure, are among the maladies to which emigrants, travelers and new settlers are most subject. These and others yield to the action of the Bitters promptly and completely.

WHERE FISHING IS GOOD.

Those looking for the best fishing grounds are reminded of Lake Tetonka, at Waterville, and Madison lake, on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad.

Wall-eyed pike, bass and crappies are found in great abundance at both of these lakes, which have not been fished out to the extent of some of the older and better known localities.

Excellent hotel accommodations, boats, bait, etc., on hand, and all charges are very reasonable.

AMUSEMENTS.

MISS GILBERT'S RECITAL.

At the First Christian church, this evening, Miss Mamie Gilbert, elocutionist and musician, will give a concert, assisted by W. H. Gilbert, violinist, and Mrs. E. W. Gilbert, pianist. Miss Gilbert has high testimonials. Her recitals are pronounced unusually fine, and at Olathe, Kas., it was said: "As an elocutonist and musician, Miss Gilbert has never been surpassed here."

S. A. THOMPSON'S LECTURE.

S. A. Thompson will lecture on "Venezuela" at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow evening, and will illustrate his talk with stereopticon views. Of these views the Pioneer Press says: "Better pictures are seldom thrown on canvas by stereopticons anywhere." Parents and teachers should not overlook the educational value of these pictures, which give a more perfect idea of tropical fruits and vegetation than could be gained by works of study.

HEINRICH MEYN.

Thursday evening Heinrich Meyn will appear at the Lyceum at the concert of the Cecilian Choral society, and it will be the great musical event of the year. The choral will sing several numbers, and a mixed chorus, "Hail, Bright Abode," will be sung. Mr. Meyn will sing several numbers. Following the concert, there will be a reception at he Spalding, and the audience at the concert will, therefore, be a fashionable one.

ROBERT DOWNING.

Robert Downing, he of the grand voice, imposing countenance and magnificent physique, will appear Friday and Saturday at the Lyceum in Saunet's grand classical tragedy, "The Gladiator." This is Mr. Downing's greatest play and to see him in it is one of the richest dramatic treats which it is possible to enjoy. Mr. Downing is, as usual, supported by a strong and capable company, and his appearance will be the dramatic event of the season.

TO CELEBRATE IT.

Tenth Anniversary of the Unitarian Church Founding.

Ten years ago today the articles of incorporation of the First Unitarian church of Duluth were drawn up and signed. The Unitarians are to hold a celebration this evening in honor of that event, at which the following addresses are to be made by members of the church: "The Founding and Early Struggles of the First Unitarian Church," Mrs. W. G. Goffe; "Its Early Ministers and Meeting Places," Dr. Hugo Speier; "Its Present," Mrs. F. C. Southworth; "Its Future," Hon. C. L. Lewis; "How We May Make it More Effective," F. E. Searle; "The Future of the Unitarian Denomination," L. J. Hopkins.

These addresses will be combined with a musical program, comprising two solos by Miss Lawitzky, of St. Louis; a concerto duo, arranged for violin and piano, by Mrs. C. L. Lewis and Professor Tenneyette, and selections on the flute by Albert Heckscher. At the close of this program there will be a social in the basement, at which the young ladies of the church will serve strawberries, ice cream and cake.

THE BETHEL CONCERT.

Fine Program By the Temple Ladies' Quartet.

The concert at the Bethel last evening, given by the Temple Ladies' quartet, assisted by Miss Rosser, elocutionist, and George Louis Tyler, tenor, was a very entertaining musical, and greatly pleased a fairly large audience. The members of the quartet are: Miss Louden, first soprano; Miss Farrell, second soprano; Miss Shannon, first contralto, and Miss Swan, second contralto. They sang "Blue Bells of Scotland," "Dinah Doe," "Annie Laurie," and "The Lost Chord," by Sullivan. Every number was delightfully rendered. Their voices are admirably suited for quartet singing. They sing artistically, and in every way are pleasing.

Miss Farrell sang "The First Song," by Cumbert, and Miss Swan, "He Was a Prince," by Lyner. Both received hearty encores, and responded with numbers quite as pleasing as their program solos. Miss Louden and Miss Shannon sang a duet, "From Flower to Flower," by Koelling, and they, too, received an encore. George Tyler sang two numbers, both being excellently rendered.

Miss Rosser recited "Boum-Boum" and "Me and Jim." Her delivery is easy and graceful, and she pleased the audience greatly, being given encores.

COOK COUNTY ROAD.

The Iron Region is to Be Developed.

Some time ago, says the Grand Marais Herald, we made note of a contract that had been placed on record in the office of the register of deeds, wherein George Rapley agrees to build a railroad from Grand Marais to the iron region, in the northern part of the county. The parties whom Mr. Rapley represents have also secured options on several large tracts of land in the mineral region of this county, and have determined to ascertain the quantity, as well as quality, of ore to be found on these properties before finishing the construction of a railroad. With that end in view two diamond drills were shipped to Gunflint via Port Arthur, on the Dixon, Wednesday. The party also had on board a pair of horses, which they will use to move the drills from place to place.

It is reported that by the terms of their options the parties have agreed to expend $25,000 in diamond drill work this season. We are unable to learn who is back of this enterprise, but have every reason to believe that it is John D. Rockefeller. While in Duluth last week a gentleman who has extensive interests in this county informed us that he had met one of Mr. Rockefellers agents in Cleveland recently, and had gathered from him enough to know that it was Mr. Rockefeller's money that was back of the enterprise.

If the parties find that there is a sufficient quantity of ore to warrant the construction of a railroad work on the road will be commenced at once. This is all the people of this county want to know, for they are satisfied that on those conditions the dog train will soon be replaced by the palace car.

CLEVER

President Gates Left Two Harbors For Duluth on a Tug.

Then Went to Superior and Thereby Escaped Service of a Subpoena.

Was Wanted in the Case of Merritt vs. Harris--- Leaves Tonight.

President F. T. Gates of the Consolidated mines and Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company, and party, arrived at Two Harbors at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and remained there four hours, the guests of J. L. Greatsinger, president of the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company. The time was passed in looking over the terminal facilities of the Iron Range road and in discussing matters of common interest to both lines.

The staunch tug Edna was lying at the dock in Two Harbors and President Gates expressed a desire to take a ride on her. President Greatsinger promptly ordered the crew to get up steam and at 8 o'clock she pulled out into Lake Superior with President Gates and William J. Olcott as passengers. She came direct to Duluth and landed at the foot of Fifth avenue west. Mr. Gates here decided, however, that as it was late and as he had important business to transact in West Superior today in connection with the West Superior steel plant, that he would go across the bay and spend the night, which he did.

The sequel shows that by pursuing this course he saved himself a great deal of annoyance, for on the arrival of the special train from Two Harbors, on which Mr. Gates was supposed to be a passenger, an officer boarded it with a subpena for him in the case of Alfred and Leonidas Merritt against A. A. and Henry Harris.

It is possible that Mr. Gates anticipated something of this kind and that it was in order to avoid the annoyance which such service might subject him to, that he determined on his moonlight excursion on Lake Superior. It is certain, however, that he had planned to stay at least one and possibly two days in Duluth and it may have been his intention to return here this afternoon but telegrams received this morning made his presence in Chicago tomorrow necessary and he left for that city in the Misabe's private car over the Northern Pacific. He was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Olcott.

E. M. Harper, president of the university of Chicago, who accompanied Mr. Gates on his trip over the ranges, left the party at Tower yesterday morning and came to Duluth on the regular Duluth & Iron Range train on D. H. Bacon's private car, accompanied by Mrs. Bacon and a party of ladies who were her guests at Tower. They were met at the depot here by Mrs. Olcott and President Harper paid a visit to the High School where he was shown about by Superintendent Denfeld. He also visited Miss Jones at Maynard hall and left last night for Chicago.

NORWAY'S INDEPENDENCE.

Celebration of the Day at the Armory.

The celebration of the anniversary of Norway's independence at the Armory last evening, given by the Norwegian Young People's society "Idun," was a pleasant affair, but not very enthusiastic, a rather small crowd being present. The exercises opened with a selection by the Zenith Mandolin orchestra.

Mayor Truelsen made a speech of welcome. He said the Seventeenth of May to the Norwegians had the same significance as the Fourth of July to Americans. The Norwegian-Americans glory in the country of their birth and they could not be good American citizens if they could ever forget the land of their birth. But they love their adopted country no less because of that. He urged all to do their duty as citizens. If they find evils existing their duty is to right them, not to simply find fault.

Di Marco brothers gave a trio "Martha," from Flotow, and a chorus sang "Ja vi elsker." Miss Bugge gave a pleasing vocal solo.

John Jenswold delivered a brief address. He spoke of the significance of the event which was then being celebrated and what it means to the Norwegians. It is their day of independence, as dear to them as the Fourth of July to the American.

Following the entertainment there was a dance. The reception committee consisted of Christ Strom, A. Ystad and C. Sanders, and the floor committee of J. Aasenhus, Math Ness and N. Henricksen.

DISSENTING OPINIONS.

Attorneys Differ Widely in the Reed Case.

The city engineer muddle seems to be getting more complex every day and even the best legal talent in the city are widely apart in their opinions as to Mr. Reed's qualification for the office under the circumstances. Billson, Congdon & Dickenson have rendered an opinion in the case which states that Reed is utterly disqualified from assuming the office and duties of city engineer by virtue of his recent election and confirmation, while on the other hand Draper, Davis & Hollister say that in their opinion Reed's position is not only tenable, but virtually unassailable.

City Attorney Richards has been supplied with a copy of both of these opinions and he is preparing an opinion of his own upon the same case. The general opinion, however, around the city hall, is that the matter will, in fact only can be, settled in the courts, and it is understood that Reed will take it there as soon as he possibly can do so.

TROUBLESOME OLD MAN.

Morphine Necessary to Keep Him From Being Violent.

About 10:20 this morning the occupants of Smith & Smith's drug store at the corner of First avenue west and Superior street were startled by a crash of a heavy blow against one of the front windows of the store. Outside was an old man, dirty and unkempt, with glaring eyes and a big club. He was seized by a bystander and prevented from doing further mischief.

A policeman was called and the old vagrant was given over into his custody. He told the policeman to lock him up because if he could not smash Smith's window he would smash some other glass so that he would be sent to jail and there get shelter and food, so he was accommodated and now occupies private apartments in the city lockup.

About nine years ago, Joe Allen, as the old man is called, came to Duluth and four years ago he grew too tired to work and retired to the poor farm where he has been ever since. From the first day of his residence there he has done nothing but create disorder and discontent among the inmates, until, wearied by his carnips and his total refusal to do any kind of work, even refusing to sweep out the room in which he slept, the authorities turned him adrift. This happened last Wednesday.

The old man is a drug fiend. For years past he has required frequent doses of a certain preparation of morphine which was administered to him in the shape of pills. At times when the supply ran short he was disposed to be ugly but as long as he gets one or two of the pills a day he is only discontented and miserable both in demeanor and conduct. He will probably be sent to some asylum where he will be cared for and compelled to behave himself.

LUETGERT'S CRIME.

Ghastly Finds By Chicago Police---Prisoner's Record.

Chicago, May 19.—The police now feel certain that Mrs. Luetgert met her death in the little sleeping room adjoining the office in Luetgert's sausage factory. Under it vat adjoining the one in which the gold ring was found, a large piece of wrapping paper, clotted with blood, was discovered, as well as several particles of bone and flesh. The most startling find, however, was a bunch of light brown hair, which, it is claimed, is like that of Mrs. Luetgert. Upon the door leading to the catch basin in the basement of the factory was found the imprint of a bloody hand, which appears to be fresh.

The history of Luetgert, as told by an old German, who says he has known the prisoner's family for many years, is notable. Luetgert's grandfather, it is said, was decapitated many years ago in Guetersloh, Germany, on the charge of robbery and murder. The prisoner's father is still living in Guetersloh, it is said, with his daughter-in-law as his common law wife. Shortly before Adolph Luetgert was born, it is said, his father and mother were under indictment for counterfeiting. The mother ran away and went to Holland, and it was in that country that the man who is now charged with murdering his wife, was born.

Chicago, May 19.—The 1 o'clock score of the relay bicycle race was as follows: For New York—Fleming, 197 miles 8 laps; Simpkins, 196 miles 1 lap. For Chicago—Hannant, 197 miles 1 lap; Stewart, 197 miles 8 laps. Hannant and Stewart had a bad fall about 1 o'clock and lost four laps. Hannant shortly afterwards had a puncture, losing three laps more, thus reducing Chicago's lead to under two miles.

BOLLN HAS DISAPPEARED.

HOUSE WILL ACT.

If Speaker Reed Has to Make a Rule.

Washington, May 19.—Speaker Reed has called a meeting of the committee on rules for tomorrow morning for the purpose of framing a rule under which the house will consider the resolution passed by the senate to appropriate $50,000 for the relief of American citizens in Cuba. The Republican leaders have canvassed the Cuban question and decided practically that the house should adopt the senate resolution tomorrow and ignore the question of recognition of belligerency.

ROAST BEEF.

The best pieces for roasting are the sirlein and rib pieces. These are expensive and have more or less waste. A rump roast is more economical, in that it has no bones or other waste, says the Philadelphia Times. Wipe the meat, rub over with salt, then with flour, and place in the pan with no water. If the meat is liked rare, have the oven very hot at first and gradually reduce the heat. If liked well done, have the oven moderate and cook a longer time. Allow twelve minutes to the pound, if liked rare. When sufficiently cooked, remove to the serving platter, and add two cubs of hot water to the juice of the meat in the roasting pan, and thicken with two tablespoonfuls of flour wet smooth in a little cold water, salt and pour in the gravy boat and send to the table as "gravy."

THE COLONEL'S AUTOHARP.

Helena Independent: When Col. O. P. Chisholm, of Bozeman, came over to Helena to attend the inaugural ball, he brought with him a pasteboard box. He carried this box lovingly under his arm, and the Gallatin contingent marveled considerably over its contents. Finally someone asked A. K. Yerkes.

"Why, don't you know what that is?" replied the solemn "Sourdough" humorist. "That's an autoharp, one of those musical instruments. Chisholm always takes it along with him when he travels. You stay in this car a while and you'll hear some of the sweetest music you ever listened to. Tell all the boys to come in."

The farmer did as he was told, and soon the colonel was surrounded by admiring friends. It was a long, wearisome wait. At last a voice said:

"See, here, colonel, won't you play us a tune?"

"Play you a tune? Why, man, what are you talking about? I can't even whistle."

"Well, what have you got your music thingmebob along for?" pointing to the pasteboard box.

"Music?" yelled the colonel. "Well, wouldn't that cork you? Why, dang it, that's my dress suit, and I haven't taken it from the box in which the tailor sent it to me."

RELIC OF MANISTEE

Message From Capt. John McKay of the Ill-Fated Steamer Has Been Found.

Said to Have Been Found In a Bottle Near Bayfield By James Taggart.

If Genuine, It Is the Only Word Ever Received From the Lost Vessel.

Bayfield, Wis., May 19.—Five miles south of this harbor, half imbedded in the sand on the beach, James Taggart, a lumberman, discovered the first message from the forty persons who perished in the wreck of the steamer Manistee, nearly fourteen years ago. It was a note, carefully enclosed in a heavy glass bottle. The writing had faded with the lapse of years and the glass of the bottle was worn thin with its contents beating against the sandy shores of Chequamagon bay. The message on the note is as follows:

"November, 1883. Left Bayfield at 1:10 p. m. Just in sight of Michigan lighthouse. We may not survive the storm. Heavily laden and hard to turn in the storm.

"CAPT. McKAY.

"Steamer Manistee."

The writing had faded so as to be almost illegible. There is a general impression in this town that the message is genuine. The action of the sand and waves on the bottle shows that it has been tossed around the beach for a long time. The faded writing also proves conclusively that the note was not written a few weeks or months ago for the purpose of a hoax.

The Manistee was a wooden steamer, and was owned by the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior line, and traded between Chicago and Duluth. On the night she went down, she was on the way from Bayfield to Ontonagon on her trip to Chicago. It was to have been the last trip of the season and it was late in November. A north gale set in shortly after the steamer left port, and the weather was bitterly cold, the thermometer registering near the zero mark.

The fate of the Manistee was never known. The steamer City of Duluth, of the same line, left Bayfield just ahead of the lost ship, and for a long time that night saw her lights. When last seen she was clear of the group of islands at the mouth of the bay, known as the Apostles. When the non-appearance of the Manistee made the officials of the line anxious, a searching expedition was fitted out. The only result of this was the finding of some wreckage from the lost boat. Out of the forty persons on board when she went down, no one was left to tell how the steamer sank, nor were any bodies washed ashore. With the exception of the floating wreckage nothing was ever found from the steamer until Taggart picked up the bottle.

A belief has been general that the machinery of the steamer gave out that night in the gale, and the spray had frozen over the falls to the life oats so that it was impossible to lower them to save the crew. This is further strengthened by the fact that the City of Duluth went through the gale all right. The cargo of the Manistee was largely mill stuffs and therefore she could not have been over-deep in the water.

GEORGE P. McKAY'S DOUBT.

Cleveland, May 19.—George P. McKay said today that he regarded the bottle message from his brother, John McKay, who was last with the steamer Manistee, as not genuine. There were a number of misstatements in it, which, to his mind, shows that the Bayfield story is not well founded.

THINKS IT A HOAX.

Capt. John Flynn, agent of the line at Duluth, in a point blank manner says the story is undoubtedly a hoax in the beginning, though the man Taggart may have really found the bottle and message in the manner described. To begin with he says:

"The statement is too disjointed. The Manistee left Bayfield at 9:40 p. m., and the City of Duluth left forty minutes later. There was no storm when she left, but there was a southwest gale three hours after her leaving time. The Manistee took the Chequamegon passage and the City of Duluth took the Michigan Island passage. These parallel courses are only about four miles apart and the City of Duluth encountered no storm of any moment until she was well on towards the Portage Lake canal. The ill-fated Manistee was bound for Ontonagon. She did not have forty people on board; her crew and a few passengers not exceeding thirty."

JACOBI'S BANK CLOSED.

Former Duluthian's Bank at Cripple Creek Assigns.

Cripple Creek, Col., May 19.—The doors of the Miners' State bank of this city were closed today and the following notice was posted: "This bank is in the possession of Harry H. Clark, assignee, under general assignment for the benefit of creditors." Assignee Clark says he is informed that all creditors will be paid in full.

The bank is owned by E. R. Jacobi, who came here from Duluth, Minn. It was started last summer after the fire which destroyed the greater part of the city. The capital stock is $50,000. There is no alarm among the depositors. A few days ago Mr. Jacobi discharged his cashier, F. L. Street, who had become involved in a suit over a mining deal, and assumed entire charge of the bank himself. Mr. Jacobi is said to own much property in the East.

THREE MEN STABBED.

A Free-For-All Saloon Fight Near Superior.

West Superior, May 19.—No further trouble occurred at Maple last night, but during the day fighting was renewed by an attempt of the Finlanders to murder Peter Nephew. The French and American inhabitantsare going about armed with rifles Guns are at a premium. Further trouble is expected. Warrants were gotten out today for fifteen rioters and attempts will be made to arrest them tomorrow. All the injured men here are still alive, but Doherty has not recovered consciousness.

The trouble began in a free-for-all saloon fight in which Joseph Volade, Ambrose Bourier and Joseph Doherty were seriously stabbed. All are in the hospital here.

Fergus Falls Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—John F. Sepola, a Finlander whose family is at Duluth, was terribly beaten early this morning by another Finlander whom he had met. There are seven gashes in his head and one finger was cut off. Robbery was the motive.

FRENCH CAPTURE WA-WA.

Brass, Guinea Coast, May 19.—An expedition, presumably French, a French officers and men actively took part in it, has captured and burned the town of Wa-Wa, in the Boussa country. One hundred men were killed and 200 made prisoners.

DUBLIN'S NEW ARCHBISHOP.

Dublin, May 19.—The bench of bishops today elected the Rt. Rev. Joseph Ferguson, bishop of Meath, to be Angelican bishop of Dublin, in succession of Rt. Rev. Lord Plunkett, who died April 1.

ORIGINAL DAVIS WILL.

Convict Claims to Have Had Possession of It.

Butte, Mont., May 19.—A stir was created yesterday among the heirs of hte Davis estate by the receipt of a letter from the American Tract society in New York, filing another from Edward Stoddard, an inmate of the Trenton, N. J., penitentiary. Stoddard claims to have positive knowledge of the existence of a will made by the late A. J. Davis, by which the American Tract society, American Bible society and American board of foreign missions were each bequeathed $10,000, and by which $5,000,000 was set aside for a university in Butte.

Stoddard's knowledge, he claims, comes from the fact that he had the will in his possession for a long time for the purpose of forging another will, as the instances of some of the heirless mentioned on the will who were dissatisfied with their bequests. The scheme for forgery, however, was not completed when he was sent to the penitentiary, and he only recently learned that the original will had not been probated. He says the will was executed in 1889 and is still in existence.

IRON MARKET ACTIVE.

Tone of Market is Firmer Than Usual.

Chicago, May 19.—The Industrial World tomorrow will say: There has been active buying of foundry pig iron in the Western markets. Large consumers have contracted for their future needs at the present low range of values which followed the break in Southern freight rates. It is estimated that at least 20,000 tons in addition to the regular run of trade were thus sold during the past week. The tone of the market is firmer than it has been for some time. Beams at Chicago have dropped from $1.70 to $1.40 because of the dissolution of the pool. Steel rods are oversold and are very firm in quotation. Bars are stationary at about $1.05, Chicago, and plates and sheets are weak. Nails are in active request through reports that manufacturers are arranging to strengthen quotations.

CUBAN MEN-OF-WAR.

Four Effective Ships Awaiting Belligerency Passage.

Chicago, May 19.—A special from New York says: Behind the movement for the passage of the Cuban belligerency resolution is a solemn pledge made by the Cuban junta to its most active supporters in congress that four effective men-of-war, flying the Cuban flag, are only awaiting this recognition to take to the sea. These vessels, it is declared, will be obtained in England, and it is asserted that arrangements have already been perfected by which they will be manned, thoroughly equipped, and be ready to sail the very day the belligerency of the Cubans is recognized.

INSURGENT SUPPLIES.

Big Expedition Said to Have Been Safely Landed.

Wilmington, N. C., May 19.—Four tons of arms and ammunition and a cargo of dynamite were, in all probability, disembarked last night on the coast of Cuba by the steam tug Alexander Jones and the pilot boat John D. Long. Under the cover of darkness and with lights out, the Jones Thursday night, at a railroad wharf, took on a cargo consisting of two carloads of rifles, cartridges, machetes, provisions and medicines. The pilot boat last Friday took a cargo of dynamite and was conveyed to sea, where it joined the Alexander Jones for Cuba.

COSTLY FIRES.

Sixty Families Are Homeless in New York.

New York, May 19.—A fire, which started at 1:30 o'clock this morning at Newark avenue and First street, Jersey City, burned all through the night. Sixty families have been rendered homeless, and the damage to the tenement houses they occupied is estimated at $100,000. No fatalities have been reported.

CALUMET, IOWA, SCORCHED.

St. Louis, May 19.—A special to the Post Dispatch from Des Moines, Iowa, says: Nearly all the business houses, fifteen in number, and several dwellings in the town of Calumet, on the Iowa Central railway, were burned this forenoon, causing a loss of $56,600. The origin of the fire is unknown. There was no fire apparatus in the town, and surrounding cities sent aid.

A TOWN IN DANGER.

Newburg, W. Va., May 19.—The mines on the upper level of the old Scotch hill are on fire, and threaten the existence of the town, which is built over the mines. The fire was started years ago by malicious persons, and has recently grown so large that the residents have become alarmed.

ROASTED ALIVE.

Family of Five People in Tennessee Cremated.

Monticello, Ky., May 19.—News has reached here of the cremation of a farmer named Thomas Biddle, his wife and three children living on White Oak creek, across the line in Tennessee, on Monday night. Some tramps had asked permission of Biddle to build a fire in his barn to keep them warm during the night. Biddle refused to allow them to do this, and ordered them to leave. The same night Biddle's house was destroyed by fire and he and his wife and three children were roasted alive. It is supposed the tramps applied the torch to the house out of revenge.

LUETGERT

Chicago's Suspected Wife Murderer Was Swindled By an Englishman.

It Also Transpires That Luetgert Was In Love With a Widow.

Police Claim He Was Intimate With Her---Other Allegations.

Chicago, May 19.—Back of the history of the downfall of Adolph L. Luetgert, the wealthy sausage manufacturer, who is now in jail charged with wife murder, is said to be a peculiar story in which Luetgert and R. W. Davey, an English promoter, figure as the principal characters. Davey, it is said, came to Chicago last November and placed an advertisement in the papers stating that an English gentleman, representing large capitalists, would be glad to meet with persons with manufacturing property to sell.

Luetgert was attracted by the advertisement and after several conferences a deal was arranged whereby the property was sold for $300,000 to a so-called English syndicate, and the property bonded. Luetgert's attorneys became suspicious, and Davey was unable to get hold of the bonds. Such was Luetgert's confidence in the man however, that Davey succeeded in borrowing $16,000 in cash from him before leaving Chicago last February. It is said that the absence of so much ready money involved Luetgert in the financial difficulties which culminated in his failure.

The police claim there is a woman in the case, in the person of a well-to-do widow. She and Luetgert, it is said, have been friends for years, and it is the theory of the police that Luetgert's anxiety to marry the woman and thus obtain possession of her property, or at least of the ready cash of which he was sorely in need, drove him to the crime.

The police claim to have proof of undue intimacy between the two and also that the day following the disappearance of his wife Luetgert transferred a considerable portion of his property to the wealthy widow.

OSCAR WILDE RELEASED.

He Will Now Resume His Literary Labors.

London, May 19.—Oscar Wilde, who was sentenced on May 25, 1895, with Taylor, a companion, to two years' imprisonment at hard labor, after having been convicted of immoral practices, was released from prison this morning. Wilde, who seemed to be enjoying good health, goes to Paris immediately. He intends, however, to return to this city, to engage in literary work. He says he does not intend to hide his identity, but will write over his own signature.

The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon says that one of the first acts of Oscar Wilde, on regaining his freedom, was to refuse £100 for a story of his prison experiences, a week's vacation.

FOUND AT LAST.

Missing Philadelphia Woman Was Dead at Home.

Philadelphia, May 19.—The body of Mrs. Amanda Hollingsworth, aged 60 years, was found late last night lying at the foot of a stairway in the house of her son, with whom she made her home, at 1836 North Eleventh street. Mrs. Hollingsworth had been missing since last Friday and her strange disappearance had been reported to the police. The stairway where the body was found leads from a back room of the house to the second story. There is a door at the foot of the stairs which was always kept closed and the stairs were seldom used.

The woman was quite wealthy but would occasionally yield to a desire for strong drink. The theory of the police, as well as that of the family, is that the woman fell down the stairs and was injured so badly that she remained unconscious or helpless until death ensued. The odor from the remains led to the discovery of the dead woman last night. For four days the family had eaten their meals within a few feet of where the body had been lying.

THE RANDOLPH MINE.

Development Work to Be Begun at Once.

Wilbur J. Merritt has gone to the Seine River country to take charge of the development work on the Randolph mine. Four or five crews will be employed, and operations pushed to the utmost. A shaft will be sunk not less than 100 feet. Several test pits will be put down and a considerable amount of stripping done, so as to better show up the veins on the surface. As soon as sufficient ore is out, a test run will be made at the Little American stamp mill.

Ex-Sheriff Butchart left today for AD2, where he will spend a couple of weeks superintending the opening of a camp. A force of men will be employed, and extensive development work promptly commenced, with the idea of continuing it steadily and permanently.

The Municipal Court.

In the municipal court, before Judge Edson, yesterday afternoon the case of Houlton vs. White was dismissed at the close of plaintiff's side of the case with costs. In McMartin vs. Lowry, an action for damages for an assault the jury rendered a verdict this morning for the plaintiff giving him $25 damages. At the opening of this morning's session a motion for a continuance in Prault vs. Archambault was made and taken under advisement. The regular calendar melted away, Warner vs. Silberstein and Hamilton vs. Kendall being placed at the foot of the jury calendar.

New Telephone Directory.

A healthy woman will always find Love, Health and Beauty are twins that do not have to seek far or long to find Cupid. It is the woman who suffers from ill-health as a result of weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism, who leads a loveless and childless life. It is in every woman's power to be healthy and consequently attractive. The main-spring of woman's nature is in her distinctly womanly-self. When she suffers in that part of her organism she suffers in every nerve and fiber of her body, and her sufferiug is pictured in her face, and reflected in her disposition and temper.

It is easy for a woman to be well and strong in a womanly way. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acts directly upon the important and delicate organs that constitute womanhood. It makes them strong and healthy. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and gives the tortured nerves rest and tone. It prepares for wifehood and motherhood. Taken during the expectant period it banishes the usual discomforts, makes the coming of baby easy and painless, and insures the health of the newcomer. Thousands of women have said so. All good druggists sell it.

"I lease accept my thanks," writes Mrs. Maud Pearce, of Stoutsville, Fairfield Co., Ohio, "for the good your medicines have done me. I truly believe that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription saved my life. It is a sure and certain cure for 'female troubles.' I am having perfect health. Nothing did me any good until I heard of you. My good health pleases me and certain sure for husband. Every invalid lady should take Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

One line in a good, practical, home medical book will sometimes save a life. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is the best book of that description published. Over a million women own copies and thousands of them have written testifying to its great value. A new edition is ready and will be given away FREE. If you want a paper-covered copy, send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover the cost of mailing only, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y. For cloth binding, 31 stamps.

ITS TENTH BIRTHDAY.

Unitarian Church Anniversary Celebrated Last Evening.

The Unitarian Church society celebrated the tenth anniversary of its incorporation last night at the church, at the corner of Eighth avenue east and First street. The attendance was large, including members and their friends, and the program was exceptionally interesting.

Mrs. W. G. Goffe read a paper on the "Establishment and Early Struggles of the Church." The speaker told of the signing of the articles of incorporation by twenty-one people on May 18, 1887. The struggle was a hard one for several years, and Mrs. Goffe described the trials and the gradual increase of membership. She ended by showing that the church had vindicated its right to existence and had become one of the most firmly established churches of the city.

Dr. Hugo Speler delved still farther back into the history of the church. He spoke of the period before the society was incorporated, of its early meeting places and its early ministers. He told how, after listening to many candidates, the present pastor, Rev. F. C. Southworth, was called in 1892. He said that it was the hope of the congregation that 1902 would find his still occupying the position.

Mrs. F. C. Southworth gave a charming talk upon "The Church as It is at Present." She said that she had found the past history of the church so interesting, that she did not know whether it would be proper to speak of the present. But since her connection with the Unitarian church she had found that we all live very much in the present and that this was especially so of the Unitarians. While the church had a membership of but 150 at present, it must be remembered that the period since the last reorganization of the church had been one of great depression.

F. E. Searle spoke on "How We Can Make the Church More Ective." The way to do, according to him, was to take a long pull, a strong pull and a pull altogether. He told of the birth and history of the church at St. Cloud, with its prosperous beginning, a subsequent lapse of interest, and the rescue of the church by the hard work of the members. The last speaker was L. J. Hopkins and he discussed "The Future of the Unitarian Church." He gave a brief review of the church and its belief, of its steady growth and its present prominent place in the religious world, and he prophesied still greater success.

There was a pleasing musical program composed of selections by Miss Olga Lawitsky, Mrs. C. L. Lewis, Professor Trautvetter and Albert Hoelscher, and at the end of the program a social was held by the Women's auxiliary.

CANNIBAL STORY VERIFIED.

San Francisco, May 19.—The brigantine Galilee, which arrived yesterday from Tahiti, brought information that the news that young Lichtenstein, the wealthy Englishman, had been killed by cannibals on the Santa Cruz islands, was brought by the officers, who had received the story from a vessel that touched a Papete. Nothing is known as to the identity of the missionary who was killed and eaten at the same time.

Pure Spring Water.
Delivered daily. Telephone orders to Stewart's livery, telephone No. 334.

The Spring storms strike hard those who are thin in flesh, whose system is weak and nerves irritable. The sharp, cutting pains of neuralgia tell when the blow has taken effect. Why wait for the signal? Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites will feed and strengthen weak nerves. It should be taken as a preventive in every case of weakness and nerve exhaustion. "Early prevention is better than cure." So says the wise man. For sale by all druggists at 50 cents and $1.00.

GIBSON

Important Witness For the Defense In the Minnie Williams Murder Case.

Murdered Girl Was Seen With Pastor Gibson Just Before the Murder.

They Were on the Alameda Ferry-Boat Going to San Francisco.

San Francisco, May 19.—A very important witness in the Minnie Williams case was discovered yesterday in Mrs. Schwaltzer. She positively affirms that on April 12, 13S, the day before the body of Minnie Williams was found in the Emmanuel Baptist church she saw the unfortunate girl with the Rev. George J. Gibson on the Alameda ferryboat coming to this city. She says her attention was attracted to the person whom she identifies as the Rev. Mr. Gibson, because of his clerical appearance and the further fact that he carried the girl's basket, and seemed very solicitous for her welfare.

The Rev. Mr. Gibson's neck is somewhat disfigured by old scars, and Mrs. Schwaltzer says she observed such scars on Miss Williams' companion, and they served to impress the features of the man upon her memory. Although Mrs. Schwaltzer is a resident of this city, and for the past two years has been aware of the fact that Theodore Durrant is accused of the murder of Minnie Williams, her reluctance to have her name involved in the notorious case in any manner has prevented her from appearing until now.

She explains that she thought her testimony would not be necessary, but after Durrant had been sentenced to death and removed to San Quentin to await the execution of the judgment against him, she considered the matter carefully, and decided it was time to reveal what she knew.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Winners at the St. Louis horse races yesterday were Tim Murphy, Dr. Walmsley, Sorrow, Dan Huger, Pelleas and Jane. Baltimore at the New Yorks races yesterday were Bonaparte, Kinnikinnik, Mystery, Prince, Frohman, Blarney Stone and Kilkenny.

Prince Luigi Amadeo of Savoy, duke of Abbrozzi and nephew of the king of Italy, left Rome yesterday on his way to Alaska, via New York and San Francisco, with the object of ascending Mount St. Elias and later Logan's peak. He will be assisted in his expedition by several Americans.

At Pittsburg, Pa., Stephen Hornutt, the well known sporting newspaper writer, died at his home yesterday of consumption. "Steve" was one of the best posted sporting men in the United States, and his opinion was sought by people not only in Pittsburg but throughout the country. He was a brilliant writer and had hosts of friends.

John Smith, the colored candidate for the naval academy at Annapolis, has failed in three out of four branches of the English examination. Under the rules of the academy he will be allowed a re-examination.

Secretary Sherman has formally notified the British government through Sir Julian Pauncefote, the ambassador there, that the United States senate, having failed to ratify the treaty providing for general arbitration that document has failed.

At Chicago yesterday twenty-four firemen were in the storm, twelve by an explosion of a gasoline tank at a fire and twelve by being overcome by smoke at another blaze.

At San Francisco last evening Jeffries knocked Hellar out in the ninth round.

An action has been commenced in the United States circuit court at St. Paul to test the validity of the Duluth & Iron Range land grant forfeiture act which was passed at the last legislative session. A restraining order has been issued.

HIS VERY LATEST.

Not long ago a citizen of Medford was wending his way homeward, tacking from this side to that, muttering to himself and wondering what Mary would say about his condition and the lateness of the hour, says the Philistine. He had reached the square. It was midnight, but the citizen did not know it, for as he looked up at the clock in the steeple of the Methodist church the dials seemed to revolve like a buzz saw.

"I am drunk," said the citizen, "drunk—too damn drunk to see straight, but if that clock would strike I'm not so drunk—but what I can count!"

He sat down on the steps to think it over. Just then the clock began to strike. The man counted: One—two—three—four—five—six—seven—eight—nine—ten — ("It must be 'leven!") 'leven—(No it's twelve!") twelve. Just then the Presbyterian clock began—thirteen ("Eh!")—fourteen ("Gee!"—fifteen ("D'ye hear that!")—sixteen ("Lord but I'm full!")—seventeen ("T 'ell")—eighteen ("Hully smokes!")—nineteen (——)—twenty ("——, ——!)—twenty-one ("—— ——!!)—twenty-two ("—— —— ——!!!)—twenty-three ("—— ——!")—twenty-four—"Oh but Mary 'ull give it to me! I was never out so late in my life!"

MURDER STORY DOUBTED.

Denver, Col., May 19.—Careful inquiries at Helena and Butte, Mont., have failed to confirm the report that W. H. Hamilton, his wife, son and daughter, were recently murdered in a village near Helena, and is discredited here. It is learned that the family left Denver, March 1, for New Plymouth, Idaho, and nothing has been heard from them since.

NEW POSTOFFICES.

Washington, May 19.—Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow has inaugurated a new policy as to the establishment of postoffices. The last administration exercised a very conservative policy in dealing with this question, holding that there were already too many offices in operation and that it would be better as a general proposition not to have the offices too close together. The present regime has determined to establish offices wherever any reasonable amount of business can be secured, with the idea of accommodating as many people as possible.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The famous Butke well, that has been tearing up the ground near Wheatland so that it has become famous, has been running just a year and is as strong as ever. All attempts to stop it have been futile, though some experienced well men have attempted it. A plug was placed in the end of the pipe through which the flow came; the plug was blown out and the water broke through and came out all around until now there is a hole six feet in diameter. Now the mouth of the well is twelve feet above the level where the hole was started, from which there is a gradual slope to the plain, causing a circular space of about seventy-five acres running down from the well over which the prairie is all sand covered. When the well was dug, a nice flow was struck at about 200 feet, but the Butkes continued to dig and go 200 feet the sand gushed out. Now a continual stream of water about four feet wide and six inches deep flows over one side, while in every five to fifteen seconds streams of sand rush to the top and blow over. There is a ravine about half a mile south, but the water won't run in a trough, so it cannot be drained. The flow, which extended east last fall, has changed to the west since the snow left and has covered the turnpike for about 200 yards. The Butke brothers, August, Peter and Ferdinand, had to move, and now have a fine residence in a tree claim a half mile south of the well. The land near the well is ruined.

Late Tuesday afternoon Nathan James, a well-known traveling man, residing at Fathgate, N. D., was killed by the accidental discharge of his gun. Mr. James started from Halstad, Minn., to drive over to Hillsboro with a livery team and driver. He carried his gun with him, and, when within three miles of Hillsboro, he noticed a covey of partridges at a distance. Taking his gun, Mr. James started across a field towards the birds. In attempting to pass through a barb wire fence, the hammer of the gun caught in the wire and discharged the gun, the entire charge of bird shot taking effect in his side just under his arm, making a fearful wound. The unfortunate man fell to the ground writhing in great agony.

John, the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Brodie, was struck and killed at Dickinson by a special Northern Pacific ten train. The engineer was trying to whistle a cow off the track, and did not see the little fellow until it was too late.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The finding a few days ago of the body of William Lewis, the Nowlin county sheepman, who wandered away during the blizzard last Thanksgiving day, is the closing incident of a series of misfortunes that few are called upon to endure, says a Chamberlain dispatch. The Lewis brothers started in business about seven years ago, with a capital of $20, and at the time their misfortunes commenced were on the high road to success and fortune. Prior to the Thanksgiving storm they owned a herd of 6,000 sheep. The storm destroyed most of the herd, and William Lewis and a herder lost their lives while striving to keep the sheep from drifting away with the storm and perishing. Early in the present year the remaining brother, Charles, lost his 20-months-old child by the roof of their dwelling falling in upon them. The body of William Lewis was found near the head of Buzzard creek, about half a mile north of the old Pierre and Deadwood trail, by Ralph, McGee, the son of a prominent Nowlin county stockman. Several searching parties must have passed within a short distance of the body without discovering it, and it was only by accident that it was at last found.

One farmer on Medicine creek, Lyman county, will put in 100 acres of watermelons the season. He declares them to be the best gosshile paying crop he can raise. The success our farmers on Chamelle creek in this county in the raising of melons show that immense crops can be raised with a small amount of rainfall. The fact that apple trees all over the state are full of bloom and show indications of a good crop is an indication that fruit growing is not the impossibility it has been supposed to be in this state. The principal difficulty has been the heavy winds which whip off the fruit before it matures. The temperature does not trouble in any way. There is no reason that orchards within windbreaks should not be successful anywhere in South Dakota.

FATAL RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Cologne, May 19.—A train conveying a detachment of reserves from Westphalia to Metz ran off the rails today between Hillosheim and Gerolsheim. Nine men are known to have been killed and thirty-five injured. The accident was caused by the train breaking in two, the rear portion subsequently overtaking and crashing into the front part.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage which was duly executed and delivered by Thomas Sharp, of Duluth, mortgagor, to Alexander Macrae, mortgagee, bearing date June thirteenth (13th), 1895, and which was duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis county, Minnesota, on June twenty-first (21st), 1895, at one (1) o'clock p. m., in Book one hundred twenty-seven (127) of mortgages, on page four hundred forty (440); which mortgage, with the debt thereby secured, was thereafter duly assigned by said Alexander Macrae to Margaret Meskill, by an instrument of assignement dated June twenty-sixth (26th), 1895, and was duly recorded in said register of deeds' office, on June twenty-seventh (27th), 1895, at 8:40 o'clock a. m., in Book one hundred seven (107) of mortgages, on page two hundred seventy-seven (277) thereof; such default consisting in the non-payment of the semi-annual installments of interest upon said mortgage debt, and of the coupons given for the same, which became due respectively on June 1st, 1896, and December 1st, 1896, amounting to the sum of $40 each, no part of any of which have been paid; by reason whereof the assignee of said mortgage has elected to exercise the option to her given by the terms of said mortgage, by declaring, and she does hereby declare, that the whole principal sum secured by said mortgage, with all accrued interest thereon, and exchange, and $15 heretofore paid by said assignee of said mortgage, for insurance premiums upon said mortgaged premises, in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage, is now immediately due and payable.

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of one thousand one hundred thirty-six and 5-100 ($1136.05) dollars, principal, interest, exchange and insurance premiums so paid.

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the defaults above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: Lots numbered three (3), five (5), seven (7), nine (9) and eleven (11), in block numbered five (5), in Central Division of West Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof on file of record in the office of the register of deeds for said county; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the twenty-fifth (25th) day of June, A. D. 1897, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt, interest and insurance premiums so paid by said assignee, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Wheat Opened Firm and Higher, Liverpool Cables Being the Factor.

Later There Was a Decline Owing to The Bearish News.

The Heavy Northwest Receipts Had a Tendency to Depress Prices.

Wheat opened firm at an advance of ½c over yesterday's closing prices. The Liverpool cables were the factor, that market opening at about 1d decline, which was less than expected, and immediately advancing ¾@1d, due, it was said, to unfavorable reports from the French crop. Dry, hot weather prevailed in California. The bearish news consisted of heavy Northwest receipts, 525 cars against 261 last week and 228 the year before, and the fine weather. Traders, however, apparently had a bad case of "spring fever," and the market fluctuated within a narrow range on small trading.

The weather was seasonable and therefore favorable for crops. Reports from a section of Ohio, where a good deal of wheat is raised, spoke well of the crop prospect. Oklahoma and Kansas sent bearish dispatches, and St. Louis appeared to fear the effect of early deliveries of new wheat from Kentucky and Tennessee. The heavy arrivals at Duluth, although known to come largely from Minneapolis, and to be therefore, merely duplications of wheat previously counted in the Minneapolis report, had a depressing effect. Only five carloads were received at Chicago and 183,000 has were inspected out of store. That makes over 500,000 bus withdrawn for shipment from Chicago elevators in the last three days. A message from Fort Worth, Tex., mentioned rust as having appeared in some localities, but generally the crop of the state was said to be in splendid condition. The Atlantic port clearances were fairly good, amounting in wheat and flour to 211,000 bus.

Trading was dull on the Duluth board. July wheat opened ½c higher at 73¾c and advanced early to 73¾c, later it declined to 73c and before noon had gone down to 72½c. The close was with buyers at 73¼c, being 5c advance for the day. There was good business in cash stuff, about 500,000 bus altogether being taken by the mills and elevators. The mills paid 1¼c over July early but later gave it over. The elevators delivered 2,060,000 bus on May contracts this morning, and there is not over 500,000 bus more to be delivered. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No 1 hard cash, 73½c; May, 73½c. No. 1 northern, cash, 73¼c; May, 73½c; July, 73¼c bid; September, 70¾c. No. 2 northern, 71½c. No. 3, 69½@70¼c. Rejected, 70@73½c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 73½c; No. 1 northern, 73½c. Rye, 34½c. No 2 oats, 21½c. Flax, 75½c.

Cut inspection—Wheat, 254; oats, 22; rye, 1; barley, 3; flax, 6. Receipts—Wheat, 255,-182 bus; oats, 102,485 bus; rye, 2910 bus; barley, 22,419 bus; flax, 24,071 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 229,001 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 10 Chamber of Commerce and Board of Trade, Chicago, May 19.—Trade in wheat today has been very light and almost local. Closing cables all showed small declines from yesterday's close and our market closed just where it opened but ½c higher. Crop news is uniformly favorable although California sent last weather dispatches. Foreigners were free sellers of the far off futures in New York. Some reports of Hessian fly in Kansas and Michigan but buying orders don't come with them. The receipts in the Northwest continue heavy to come largely from Minneapolis, and to be therefore, merely duplications of wheat previously counted in the Minneapolis report, had a depressing effect. Only five carloads were received at Chicago and 183,000 has were inspected out of store. That makes over 500,000 bus withdrawn for shipment from Chicago elevators in the last three days. A TIMELY INQUIRY.

The senate committee on postoffices and post roads has been directed to investigate and report to the senate full information concerning the nature and operation of postal savings banks systems now in operation in other nations; also to report whether a postal savings bank system can be successfully and advantageously put in operation by this government. This will be a timely inquiry, and it cannot fail to result in a report favorable to the institution of the postal savings bank system in this country. The Herald welcomes the senate's action in directing the inquiry as the first step towards meeting the popular desire that the government should provide institutions where the savings of the people may be deposited under the safe protection of the government. It is another illustration of the fact that, as congress is now constituted, the senate is much more responsive to popular opinion and is closer to the people, than is the house of representatives, where all legislative power is concentrated in the hands of a few leaders, who run things according to their own sweet will, and in almost complete disregard of the people's wishes.

The Herald agrees with the Omaha Bee that the senate committee which has been directed to investigate the subject of postal savings banks should find no difficulty in obtaining the desired information, because it is readily accessible. Perhaps all that is necessary can be obtained from our own state department. It can be safely predicted that the committee will find nothing that is not favorable to the system. The experience of England, France, Belgium, Sweden, Holland, Austria and other countries with postal savings banks is that the masses of the people derive great advantages from having among them everywhere safe depositories for their small savings managed in connection with the postoffice department. A French writer says that it is the postal savings bank which has taught the workman of France how he can become a capitalist in moderating his consumption to bring it within his production, and what is true in France applies also to other countries.

In Great Britain, where deposits are received at 11,000 postoffices, the aggregate deposits in postal savings banks at the end of 1896 was $902,500,000 and the last available report shows, in the United Kingdom, 7,748,220 open postoffice savings accounts. This means that 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 people have direct financial dealings with the government. Can there be any doubt that the effect of such an army of thrifty people dealing with their own government must be beneficial? A writer on this subject says that postal savings banks would furnish a safe place for the earnings of the laboring classes, and stimulate them to habits of saving. At present such sums as they hoard are kept out of use, to the aggregate amount of many millions, whereas if their savings were put in bank they would be restored to active use. "Not only would the moral tone of citizens be improved by becoming depositors," says this writer, "but the stability of the government would be increased by the practical interest depositors would have in its welfare." So great has been the success of this system in England that one out of every seven persons is now a depositor in postal banks. There are 6000 schools in which the children are encouraged to save through the machinery of the postoffice.

The experience of the past few years in this country, when financial, commercial and industrial depression has prevailed, has demonstrated the urgent necessity of encouraging habits of thrift on the part of our people. There is no doubt that many people have been discouraged from saving money because of the inadequate facilities provided for safe places of deposits. The collapse of so many so-called savings institutions has had a bad effect, not only by wiping out the savings of years, but by creating a feeling that it is useless to be thrifty, only to see the results of saving habits swept away after long periods of economical living and even self-denial. There is an urgent demand, therefore, for government savings banks that will offer inducements to the masses of the people to cultivate thrifty habits. It is impossible to conceive of any reason why a postal savings bank system is not as practicable here as in England or France or in Canada, and consequently a favorable report by the senate committee is confidently expected.

GREED VERSUS HUMANITY.

The ringing words of Senator Mason in congress yesterday, in behalf of Cuban liberty, but re-echoed the sentiments of the American people. Fresh from the people, with whom he has always been in close touch, the Illinois senator spoke what every earnest, patriotic and liberty-loving American thinks and believes, and when "Grandmother" Hoar and the other peace-at-any-price crowd referred to such talk as "buncombe" and "jingoism" they again made clear the fact that the Cuban question today is an issue between humanity and greed, between sentiment and dollars.

As the Chicago Journal recently said, there has ceased to be a serious question as to the jurisdiction. "On the one side is the great mass of the American people, the people Lincoln thought could be trusted to do what was right, the people that fought the civil war because they couldn't endure slavery. On the other is a ring of stock jobbers, some sugar planters, a few men who have claims for damages against Spain and cherish the delusion that they can be collected if Spain's attempt succeeds, and a halting, conservative, peace-at-any-price crowd that seems to have more regard for dollars than for human life. These are the pleaders and these their causes. America is watching the annihilation of a people by famine and the destruction of a country by the torch. It is watching the rapid and certain execution of a wanton, ruthless and enormous crime. It is watching Spain destroy because she cannot rule. Hospitals burned, the wounded killed, suspects tortured, women and young girls given to drunken soldiers, plantations given to the flames, the food supply of a population cut off, almost the whole population dying from hunger, and the few who can get food given over to the ravages of pestilence; this is the panorama that is passing before America's eyes. And all a certain minority can see of it is the price of stocks and claims for money damages."

The time for intervention has arrived, and unless immediate action be taken American manhood will be disgraced in the eyes of the world. "Oh," but say the Hoars and the Hawleys and the other senatorial representatives of the stock jobbers of the East, "if we intervene, Spain will declare war against the United States." Such a plea is as cowardly as it is absurd. How would bankrupt Spain, unable to conquer the poorly-armed insurgents in a little island, make war against this great country? The idea is nonsensical. But the American people do not fear the Spaniards. They do not seek war. They are a peaceable people, but they would sacrifice peace rather than see a continuation of the diabolical crimes now being committed by Butcher Weyler and his hired army of assassins in the island of Cuba. The American people endorse the words of Senator Mason: "Mr. President, nobody fears war, but if to keep promises with Cuba and to protect her means war, let it come. If to protect against the butchery of women and children means war, let it come. If to defend the honest daughters of brave patriots means an insult to Spain, and war, then in the name of God, let it come quickly, for I tell you whether we speak or not the civilization of the Nazarene is on us. Whether you sleep bound hand and foot by the rules of order or whether you shall speak like American brave men, the mark of the Nazarene is upon us, liberty shall prevail and the island of Cuba, under the providence of God, shall be free."

The attitude of President McKinley at this time is disappointing to the American people. The Republican platform declared in favor of Cuban independence, and the people looked to the Republican administration to abandon the cowardly, contemptible policy pursued by the Cleveland cabinet, and take decisive action that would end the horrible crimes that are being daily enacted upon Cuban soil. The appropriation of $50,000 to aid starving Americans on the island, recommended by the president, is but criminal paltering with the situation which should be faced courageously and with fixed determination; a miserable makeshift to satisfy public sentiment. Mr. Bailey has taken the right course in declaring that no such measure should pass the house, unless coupled with a resolution recognizing the belligerency of the Cuban patriots. Let him insist upon this step being taken. The sentiment of the people endorses his position. Humanity's cause demands radical action, and the issue in congress today is between humanity and greed.

NOT FINALLY DECIDED.

The Western Electrician asserts that there is serious misapprehension of the scope and importance of the decision of the United States supreme court upon the Berliner patent. That paper insists that there is no thing in the opinion to warrant the statement that a "new lease for monopoly" is granted the Bell Telephone company by the ruling in the Berliner case. What the supreme court does say, on the other hand, is that the charges made by the government regarding corruption and other illegal practices on the part of the owners of the patent while the application was pending have not been sustained, but other grounds upon which the government asked to have the patent revoked have not been passed upon.

In other words, the decision simply exonerated the Bell company from all charges of corruption, but did not determine the rights of the respective parties. There must be another hearing upon the main issue, and the fact that the Bell company is not very anxious to have one leads to the belief that it is not very confident of winning.

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Record says: "There are seven or eight senators who habitually indulge in stocks. There were more in the last senate than in this. Two or three of them are very heavy traders. Mr. Brice and Mr. Cameron always have a large margin on deposit at their brokers, and place orders nearly every day. Senator Smith of New Jersey is also a regular trader. Mr. Elkins deals in industrials. Jones of Nevada, Murphy of New York, Quay of Pennsylvania, Sewell of New Jersey, Wetmore of Rhode Island, Wolcott of Colorado and several others take a shy at the market now and then; but I cannot find that any of these gentlemen took advantage of the action of the finance committee regarding the schedule."

W. J. Ferris, colored, of New Haven, who was graduated from Yale in the class of '95, has just been appointed to the Hopkins fellowship in the Harvard divinity school, which yields $525 per year. He has been working in philosophy in the Yale graduate department for two years and is there at present. And yet the dudes at Annapolis naval academy have made a great fuss because a colored youth of Cincinnati has been named for appointment to the academy.

William C. Harlick of Albany has received an autograph letter from Justin McCarthy which, in view of the latter's serious illness, is of deep interest. Mr. McCarthy discourses upon death and says: "The remembrance of youth," says Ali, the Arabian prophet, 'is a sigh.' Not surely if youth has been spent to any purpose. I prefer the proud recollection of Goethe's Egmont, just about to die: 'I cease, but I have lived.'"

At the reunion of representatives of the different powers which occurred just after the Franco-Prussian war the legates were gorgeous with stars and crosses—all of them, in fact, except Mr. Washburne, the minister from the United States, who came absolutely unadorned. "Dear me," said Bismarck. "He is the most distinguished man present."

Ex-President Harrison is now the only survivor of the remarkable group of statesmen and political leaders prominent in Indiana and national politics since the war. The others were Senator Oliver P. Morton, Governor Porter, Secretary of State Gresham, Governor Gray, Senator McDowell, Senator Voorhees and Vice President Hendricks.

Mayor Harrison of Chicago is demonstrating that he is not only "the son of his father," but has much ability of his own. Even his political opponents admit that he is making a first-class mayor.

Ex-Senator Dawes of Massachusetts, although 80 years of age, is delivering interesting historical lectures before the students of Dartmouth college.

A Wilmington, Vt., man, 92 years old, walked a distance of fifteen miles to the home of his son the other day "just for exercise."

J. Edward Addicks, the gas millionaire, has become a client of Grover Cleveland in an important case. "Birds of a feather," etc.

Fighting between Greece and Turkey has ceased, and now the terms of peace will be arranged.

Turkey will probably scale down her bill considerably, before Greece agrees to pay it.

POINTS ABOUT THE WAR.

Chicago Times-Herald: Maid of Athens, cry we part, hit the Turk below the heart.

Boston Herald: The moral of the latest war is that you should look before you fight.

Washington Star: Greece has awakened to the fact that while it may be safe to trust to inspiration for poetry, the same method is not likely to succeed in warfare.

New York Tribune: Greece has placed herself in the hands of the powers. Whether or not she has placed herself in the hands of her friends remains to be seen.

St. Louis Republic: The report that Greece has put herself in the hands of the powers shows that the fable of the lamb's appealing to the wolf for protection has a foundation in fact.

Louisville Courier-Journal: A company of 1200 Greeks is in the field by Miss Helen Constantinides. Miss Helen must be a pretty fast girl to keep in front of 1200 Greek warriors nowadays.

Chicago Post: It is just possible that the powers have let Turkey get her head swelled until they can't get out of it without having all kinds of trouble. In that case there is a likelihood that the Cretan and Armenian problems may be really settled.

Indianapolis Journal: Miss Helene Eliopoulov is a 16-year-old Greek girl who lives with her sister in New York and is preparing to join the soldiers fighting in defense of her country. She wanted to go with her brothers, who sailed two weeks ago, but was not ready. She had to get her fighting clothes finished, for no true woman will go to war without a suitable costume. They are completed now and she is ready to depart, but, alas! she will have no opportunity either to wear the garments or to battle for her country, since the war is ended. It may perhaps be worth while to mention that the uniform she has prepared consists of a white ruffled blouse, a short white skirt and a crimson, gold-braided jacket, also a big red Bachelor belt with a sheath for a knife and pistol. Miss Helene would certainly make a picturesque soldier, but it is just as well that she must remain a domestic ornament.

BIXBY'S SUCCESSOR.

St. Cloud Times: Governor Clough does not care a fig what people may think or say as to nepotism, he proposes to give his relatives the best there is to be had in the state's service. Last winter he appointed a brother-in-law state oil inspector, the most lucrative place at the executive disposal. Now he has selected his son-in-law, Roland Hartley, of Minneapolis, to be his private secretary, probably the second most profitable position in the state's service. The new private secretary is a brother of G. G. Hartley, of Duluth, and of W. W. Hartley, formerly of Brainerd, who is now out West.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: Governor Clough has appointed R. H. Hartley, of Minneapolis, as private secretary, in place of Tams Bixby, resigned. Mr. Hartley is a bright popular young man and will make an excellent secretary. We predict that he will be one of the best liked men around the capitol, as he has the faculty of making friends, and is entirely trustworthy.

Crookston Tribune: Tams Bixby has resigned his position as secretary to Governor Clough, and Roland H. Hartley, a son-in-law of the governor, has been appointed in his place. Those people who have been kicking about the governor favoring his relatives will now have another chance to kick.

THE SITUATION IN CUBA.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Consul General Lee's statement that the Cuban insurgents are stronger now than when he went to the island is very important. He has as good means of knowing the condition of affairs among the Cubans as any other man outside of the insurgent armies. Of course, like all other Americans, General Lee wishes the Cubans to win, but this consideration hardly biases his judgment of their condition to any material extent.

Detroit Free Press: It was one of the strong arguments against recognizing the Cuban insurgents as belligerents that they had when such recognition was first urged no local habitation as a government and no governmental organization with which this country could treat. In this respect certainly there has been an improvement, judging from the latest reports as to the attempts on the part of the insurgents to establish a government. If there ever was any ground for insisting on their recognition that ground has been materially strengthened by recent events and especially by the gains which the insurgents have made in late weeks.

Chicago Record: President McKinley and congress should now determine whether the situation described in Mr. Cleveland's letter as the limit of our "patient waiting" has not actually arrived. The late reports are more than a hint that it has. If the evidence in the president's possession continues him in this belief there would be no timid half-way measures. Whatever is to be done in the way of intervention must be done with firmness and decision and with a vigor which will leave no doubt in Spanish minds as to the resolute determination of this government. Cuba is lost to Spain already. It is time for the return of peace to that unhappy island.

Kansas City Star: The facts revealed through inquiry at the state department by a subcommittee of the senate committee on foreign relations with regard to Cuba are both surprising and lamentable. That American citizens, free from even the suspicion of crime, should be held in restraint and deprived of the comforts and even the necessaries of life seems to be impossible. But the information comes through official channels and the statements are positive to the effect that hundreds are in a famishing condition and that deaths from starvation are daily reported. Allowing something for exaggeration, these representations are of sufficient gravity to challenge the attention of the government and enlist the sympathies of the people of this country.

Chicago Tribune: The people of the United States do not need to have access to these reports as the basis for their opinions on the Cuban business. They made up their minds long ago, and they have seen no reason to change their opinion that the Cuban Americans should be free from the tyranny and persecution of Spain. Over 300,000 of them voted for McKinley upon a platform declaring in favor not only of the recognition of belligerent rights, but of Cuban freedom, to be secured by the good offices of this government, and millions more who did not vote for McKinley are just as warmly and enthusiastically in favor of that freedom. The attitude of the American people is one of impatience. They cannot understand why the president does not act in accordance with the sentiments of the people and the official acts of congress.

UNCLE PAUL'S DIPLOMACY.

New York Tribune: The Transvaal has done well in repealing its immigration bill, partly because that was a barbarous measure, unworthy of a civilized state, partly because that measure was a breach of the Transvaal's own solemn agreement, and partly because, by this repeal, one of Great Britain's chief grievances is removed and one of her chief pretexts for coercing the Boers is abolished.

Minneapolis Tribune: The proposition of President Kruger of the Transvaal republic to declare the coming diamond jubilee of Queen Victoria an official holiday in his country indicates that Oom Paul is either very shrewd or very generous. Of late he has received nothing but contumely and insults from British statesmen; now he heaps coals of fire on their heads by proposing to honor their beloved queen.

New York Press: Oom Paul Kruger is very cute. His Dutch indignation against English aggression has not made him forget the honey of compliment. He passes growling over British indemnities just long enough to ask the raid to make the queen's jubilee day an official holiday in the Transvaal. Meanwhile his secretaries are busy drawing up plans for defense. Oom Paul may smirk to the queen, but his free hand is in his coat tails.

Denver Republican: The war talk in South Africa is such that one cannot doubt that there is imminent danger of a conflict between England and the Transvaal. The British ministry will come the first before it takes a decided step. It will find out what Germany, Russia and France would do in the event of an attack. Germany would be glad to interfere in behalf of the Transvaal if it had the backing of Russia and France, but it is doubtful if it would do so standing alone. It looks as though war would be declared if some such continental combination against England is not made through the instrumentality, probably, of the German emperor.

Milwaukee Wisconsin: The action of the Transvaal volksraad in repealing the immigration law against which Great Britain entered formal protest clears the atmosphere of South Africa to some extent. But there is some significance in the fact that the law was repealed not because of the British objection, but on account of the attitude of the neighboring South African states, which have disapproved of the alien immigrant enactment. President Kruger is a shrewd diplomat, and his consent to a change of policy involving the retirement of the Transvaal's state attorney is no indication that he has altered his attitude toward Great Britain.

MR. TOWNE IS BUSY.

Washington special to St. Paul Dispatch: Ex-Congressman Charles A. Towne, chairman of the executive committee of the silver Republicans, is a very busy man these days. He has an office in the Washington Loan and Trust building and keeps regular hours at these headquarters. He has a secretary and other clerical assistance to keep up the correspondence, and to arrange for the meeting that is to take place in Chicago next month.

Mr. Towne is frequently in consultation with Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas, chairman of the national Democratic committee, and often meets and confers with silver men who come to Washington to hold council.

In talking with me the other day, Mr. Towne said that he expected to return to Duluth before the real hot weather set in, but at this time he found it more convenient to transact business at the capital than elsewhere. Mr. Towne asserts, with great earnestness, that the silver people are united, and that the reports of disagreement and dissatisfaction are erroneous and misleading. He also denies the story that he is receiving a large salary as chairman of the executive committee, but says that the expenses incurred are met by voluntary contributions, and that he maintains his own office and is paying the expenses.

Mr. Towne is frequently mentioned as the natural standard bearer of the silver legion in 1900, but he scouts the idea.

"I believe that Bryan will be nominated," he said. "He is the logical candidate for the silver supporters."

Asked for his views on the outcome of the efforts of the international monetary commission, now in Europe making overtures to the governments of the old world for a monetary conference, Mr. Towne said:

"About the time that the preliminaries for the next congressional campaign are being arranged there will be a surface indication that something is being done for silver, but we have no abiding faith that anything of a substantial nature will be done."

Mr. Towne still insists that he is a protectionist, but maintains that tariff will not be the issue in the next congressional and national campaigns. In addition to his work for silver, Towne is branching out into literature. He will have an article in a forthcoming issue of the Arena reviewing the speeches of Cleveland and Carlisle, at the recent reform banquet in New York.

Are you sure

that you're using the right thing for washing? If the work is slow and hard, and you have to depend upon rubbing, then you ought to get something else. And even if you have something that saves work, it may be bad for the clothes. You may be ruining them.

Pearline gives the easiest, quickest, most economical washing, of anything that's safe to use. The more you investigate, and inquire and compare, the surer you'll be that Pearline is the only right thing to wash with. 540

Send it Back

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back.

DOMESTIC IDYLS.

Boston Transcript: Greeble—Is that your baby?

Crawdon—No, sir; the possession is on the other side. He is not my baby; I'm his father.

Judge: "You're wasting your time, old man," said Fred to George, "You're courting the wrong girl."

"No; she's the right girl. I'm afraid the trouble is that I'm the wrong man."

Atchison Globe: An Atchison woman who has been married several years blushes like a girl. Usually a married woman does not blush; she has a cold, hard look, indicating that if she would she could tell a lot of things not generally known.

Harper's Bazar: "They say," said Jones, "that the contented woman is going out."

"Yes, there she goes," said Brown, as his pretty little wife tripped down the stairs and kissed her hand to him.

Indianapolis Journal: "They told me," said he to himself, "that when I married her I would be spoken of as Mrs. Bingle's husband. But they lied."

"So they did," said she, who had overheard. "You are not spoken of at all."

Chicago Record: "George is out there beating carpet like a madman."

"How did you get him to do it?"

"I told him he could take care of the baby while I beat the carpets."

Chicago Post: "What is the difference between optimism and pessimism?" asked the boy, and before his mother could reply the old gentleman looked up from his newspaper with the suggestion:

"One is ante-nuptial and the other is post-nuptial."

Somerville Journal: Tom—What did she say when you tried to kiss her?

Ned—She said, "Stop sir!" as forcibly as she knew how.

Tom—And did you stop?

Ned—Yes, I stopped for an hour, and kept doing the same thing.

AS THE SUN WENT DOWN.

Two soldiers lay on the battlefield
At night when the sun went down,
One held a lock of thin gray hair
And one held a lock of brown.

One thought of his sweetheart back a home,
Happy and young and gay,
And one of his mother left alone,
Feeble and old and gray.

Each in the thought that a woman cared,
Murmured a prayer to God,
Lifting his gaze to the blue above,
There on the battle sod.

Each in the joy of a woman's love
Smiled through the pain of death,
Murmured the sound of a woman's name,
Though with his parting breath.

Pale grew the dying lips of each,
Then, as the sun went down,
One kissed a lock of thin gray hair
And one kissed a lock of brown.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage which was duly executed and delivered by Joseph A. Mannheim, and Elizabeth Mannheim, his wife, and Matthias Haug and Ann Haug, his wife, mortgagors, to Mary L. Horton, mortgagee, bearing date November fifteenth (15th), 1890, and which was duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on December third (3rd), 1891, at twelve (12) o'clock m., in Book one hundred twenty-seven (127) of mortgages, on pages three hundred twenty-eight (328) and three hundred twenty-nine (329) thereof; such default consisting in the non-payment of the two semi-annual installments of interest upon said mortgage, and upon the principal note thereby secured, each amounting to the sum of $21, which became due respectively on May 1st, 1896, and November 1st, 1896, both of which have continued to this time; by reason whereof said mortgagee has elected to exercise the option to her given by the terms of said mortgage, and the principal note thereby secured, by declaring, and she does hereby declare, that the whole principal sum secured by said note and mortgage, with all accrued interest thereon, and exchange, is now due and payable;

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the defaults above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: Lots numbered forty-five (45), in block numbered one hundred seventy-nine (179); and all of fractional block numbered sixty-seven (67); all in Duluth Proper, Third Division, according to the recorded plat thereof in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the fifth (5th) day of June, A. D. 1897, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Merit

Made and Merit Maintains the confidence of the people in Hood's Sarsaparilla. If a medicine cures you when sick; if it makes wonderful cures everywhere, then beyond all question that medicine possesses merit.

Made

That is just the truth about Hood's Sarsaparilla. We know it possesses merit because it cures, not once or twice or a hundred times, but in thousands and thousands of cases. We know it cures, absolutely, permanently, when all others fail to do any good whatever. We repeat

THEY MAY APPEAL.

Tug Captains Not Satisfied With the Decision.

There is a probability that the cases of the masters against the tuman tugs will be appealed. Judge West is said to be considering that step on behalf of his clients. An attorney for one or two of the masters made the statement in the United States court office Judge Lochren had rendered his decision thus it was what he had expected and that he had never at any time had much hope that the claims would be allowed. The other attorneys smiled broadly at this admission. If that attorney should now decide to appeal it would surprise the others considerably but it would not be the first time that a limb of the law was doing a surprising thing.

The decision of the court that the masters of tugs are not mariners in the meaning of the law and are therefore not entitled to have preferred claims on the boats for their wages saves the masters of the tuman tugs in a very bad situation. Their claims aggregate a large sum. One man alone had about $800 due him. Under the court's decision they not only have no right to a preferred lien on the boats but have none at all. They cannot even put their claims in with those of the coal company, the machine company that makes repairs, etc., and have a share in the proceeds of the sale. Their only recourse is against the man or company with whom they contracted.

Whether the tug will decide to appeal or not is uncertain. The cases would have to go to the United States court of appeals and it will be an expensive proceeding.

F. T. GATES

Herald Reporter Interviews John D. Rockefeller's Right Hand Man.

Talked Only In a General Way Refusing to Go Into Particulars.

No Reduction in Ore Rate Likely---Iron Manufacturing Possibilities.

Frederick T. Gates, president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company and the other corporations of John D. Rockefeller, in this section of the country, never, or seldom ever, permits himself to be interviewed by newspaper men. In fact he has established a rule never to say anything to reporters that can be quoted. He sometimes gives information for publication, but when he does, prefers that it be printed without mention of his name. Mr. Gates is not the originator of this rule for his own guidance, as it has been strictly observed for many years by his employer, and is one of the unwritten laws that is quite generally observed by the heads of departments in all of the multifarious enterprises of the oil and iron magnate.

When a reporter for The Evening Herald called on Mr. Gates, at the West Superior hotel, yesterday afternoon, and presented his card, that much talked of gentleman said, presenting his hand for a formal shake:

"I am glad to meet you personally, but no, as a reporter. I have nothing to say that would interest the public, and I never talk for publication, except occasionally to newspaper men whom I know personally and have confidence in, and then only when I know that what I say will not be used in the form of an interview. There are excellent reasons why I deem it necessary to adopt this policy."

Then Mr. Gates proceeded to talk entertainingly on a number of subjects of more or less interest to the people of Duluth and vicinity. Some things he said confidentially that cannot, in good faith be repeated here; others, however, can in no way interfere with any of his plans by being given to the public, and while, perhaps, a rule may be broken this once for the benefit of the thousands of readers of The Evening Herald, the breaking of it will in no way injure Mr. Gates, and will give the people of the head of the lakes some idea of the man of whom they have heard so much and seen so little.

Mr. Gates was once a minister of the gospel, but one would scarcely believe it to see and talk with him. He is a large, broad shouldered, well built man, with a finely shaped head and pleasant face. His features are coarse and strong and expressive of the positive, determined character that has gained him his position. He has a well modulated voice, and when he has a receptive listener, talks smoothly and without embarrassment, but when questioned closely in a way that might be considered argumentative, he stumbles, hesitates, evades. One is not often given an opportunity of looking into his eyes, for he has a habit of looking everywhere except into the face of the one with whom he is conversing, but when his eyes are seen, they strike one as being different from what might be expected in a face such as his. To describe them is difficult, but to The Herald reporter they appeared a dull gray, far from bright or piercing, such as usually look out from the face of a shrewd business man. They are not expressive, but rather act as a mask to the emotions of the man.

When Mr. Gates was asked if he thought there was likely to be an improvement in the iron ore situation soon, he said that a furnaceman would be better qualified to answer that question than he.

"All calculations as to the ore business of the season," said he, "have counted for nothing. Usually the furnacemen place their orders for ore in March and April, but this year they have been very backward about buying, and there is now no way of estimating what the output will be. Up to the time I left New York we had made no sales of Mesaba ore, and I now fear that the season's business will be light."

He talked at some length on the subject of iron ore freight rates, but held out no hope that a reduction would be made by the Missabe road. In fact he argued with some force that a lower rate would not be to the advantage of anyone except the furnacemen.

"A lower rate would, instead of being a benefit to independent mine owners," said he, "prove a calamity. It would reduce the price of ore by just the amount of the freight reduction, and just that much less money would find its way into Minnesota. This has been demonstrated on the old ranges. There are just two things to be considered in the purchase of iron lands. First, can the ore be raised to the ground at a profit, and second, can it be transported to market at a profit. Just now there is little or no profit in mining, and all that remains must be obtained from the hauling. In attempting to force a reduction in freight rates the mine owners are biting off their own noses."

The reporter suggested with the same figure of speech that the noses of the mine owners were pretty badly mutilated as it was and Mr. Gates readily admitted this fact, but believed that there was a reasonable prospect of a marked improvement in the nasal organs of the independent operators.

As considerable interest has been evinced in the future of the iron manufacturing industries at the head of the lakes Mr. Gates was asked to throw some light on that subject, but he declared that that was a problem that experts would have to solve. He knew nothing about it personally, but declared that it would be given an exhaustive and thorough investigation and if it was found that iron could be manufactured at a profit here, that the plants already in existence would be put in operation. Mr. Rockefeller, he said, was one of the bondholders of the West Superior Steel plant, and after the property had passed out of the court and into possession of the reorganization committee and finally under the control of the bondholders, steps would be taken to see what could be done with it. It will certainly be operated if on investigation it is deemed reasonably certain that it can be done at a profit. As he was not in any way interested in any other idle plants in this vicinity he declined to express any opinion as to their future.

Mr. Gates had heard since his arrival in West Superior that he was wanted as a witness in the suit of Leonidas and Alfred Merritt against A. A. and Henry Harris. He said that he knew absolutely nothing about the case and could not understand why he should be summoned unless it was for the purpose of annoying him. He did not show any desire to talk relative to the litigation in which he has taken such a prominent part in Duluth and appeared to regret very much his inability to visit Duluth and become acquainted with the people without being subjected to annoyance by reason of being compelled to appear in court in cases in which he has no interest directly or indirectly.

At 4 o'clock Mr. Gates was informed by the reporter that he had but fifteen minutes in which to catch his train and that he had better be moving toward the depot. Acting on this suggestion he settled his bill at the office and started on foot for the station. Neither he nor the reporter was familiar with the location of the depots in West Superior and it is not strange that they drifted over to the Omaha instead of the Union depot, arriving there at exactly three minutes before the time for the departure of the Chicago express on the Wisconsin Central road. Learning of the mistake and at the same time the location of the Union depot, Mr. Gates started down the tracks toward Tower avenue at a record breaking clip that left the newspaper man hopelessly behind. At the corner of the avenue a farmer's spring wagon was standing and John D. Rockefeller's right-hand man lost no time in making a deal with the boy sitting idly on the seat. A moment that must have seemed an hour was lost while the boy rushed into the express office probably for the purpose of informing some one of his destination, then dashed out again and up by the side of his evidently liberal passenger and urged his spiritless horses to their bestgait, which was exasperatingly slow to the impatient railroad president. The reporter by this time had come within hailing distance and shouted good-bye, heard a similar shout in return and in an instant Mr. Gates disappeared from view, reaching the depot just in time to catch the morning train. If that farmer's boy had only known what an opportunity he had he might be considerably richer today. As it is he probably has a shining silver dollar in his pocket as a reward for being the means of enabling Mr. Gates to make connections.

The Cause Seemingly Trivial.—No Less Fatal.

The Indian's Skill. All Praise His Name.

A BROKEN bolt seems harmless enough. Yet just such a little thing as this was the cause of the destruction of one of the finest ocean steamers ever built, the loss of thousands of dollars, the death of over a hundred human beings.

It's just this lack of attention to little things that's the cause of thousands of deaths daily. A slight pain here, a trifling irregularity somewhere else. Nothing of importance you think—a little quinine—a little stimulant a little of this or that. You obtain what appears to be relief, but you're only laying up future trouble for yourself, temporarily patching up a weak spot.

There's but one way. Cure the cause of the trouble—don't be satisfied with dispelling the pain, which is but a result.

There's but one medicine to effectually do this, it's KICKAPOO INDIAN SAGWA, that greatest of blood purifiers, and besides it invigorates and purifies the system by dispelling all poisonous secretions.

It has no equal as an invigorant of the stomach, kidneys, liver and blood, and a cure for all disorders originating from these great vital centres. It cures quickly and permanently. It contains no poisonous minerals or other deleterious mixtures.

It has been used for years by the Indians, and is made today from roots, herbs and barks exactly as it was made by them for centuries. Their notorious health, strength, and longevity, as well as the thousands of wonderful cures made all over the country, speak volumes for the virtue of this wonderful preparation.

Just give it a trial if you suffer from sleeplessness, loss of appetite, despondency, dyspepsia, nervousness, rheumatism, kidney, liver, brain, blood or heart diseases. We know it will help you, and cure if there is any chance, besides saving you enormous doctor bills.

The Kickapoo Indian Remedies are sold by all druggists.

Next Meeting Place For Scandinavian Singers.

The unveiling of the Ole Bull monument having gathered to Minneapolis a large number of Norwegian-American singers from all parts of the country, a business session of the Northwestern Scandinavian Singers' association was held. It was voted to hold the next singing festival at Duluth in 1898, the date to be chosen by the executive committee. The proposition to make a trip over to Europe in a body was turned down for various reasons. Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President, G. T. Halling, Duluth; vice presidents, A. C. Floan, St. Paul, and J. L. Hjort, La Crosse; corresponding secretary; T. Hammann, Sioux Falls, recording secretary; H. Peterson, West Superior; treasurer, O. M. Olson; musical director, Professor Eric Oulle, Minneapolis; chief marshal, G. Ble Rawndal, Sioux Falls.

MR. SMITH'S OPINION.

Work of Hugo and Carroll-Porter Equally Good.

President-elect Smith of the board of public works and City Engineer Patton made a tour of inspection to the pumphouse yesterday, and also inspected the pipe laying upon the Hugo and Carroll-Porter contracts.

As to the pumphouse Mr. Smith said that he did not care to discuss the condition of affairs, considering the report that would be made to the council at the special session tonight. As to the pipe laying he was free to say that he could detect no difference between the methods and the quality of the work upon the two contracts. There were, he said, slight mistakes that had been made, but that they had been rectified as soon as detected, but that the work on the Carroll-Porter section was fully as good as that upon the Hugo contract.

THE TRADE OUTLOOK.

R. F. Fitzgerald Finds Tariff Bill Delay Depressing.

Robert F. Fitzgerald, president of the Duluth Shoe company, has returned from an extended business trip to the East. Speaking of the trade outlook, Mr. Fitzgerald said yesterday:

"I found that business in general was not as good with the jobbers as was expected. People in the East attribute this stagnation in the commercial world to the delay in passing the tariff bill. There are a good many large business interests waiting for the passage of this measure, so as to be sure of the protection that will ensue to their interests, for if the bill were a law now they would have protection that would endure for two years anyway and, in the opinion of many, a good deal longer.

"One feature of the situation at present is the gorged condition of the bonded warehouses. Never before in the history of the nation have these commercial repositories contained such vast amounts of costly goods as they do now. These goods are waiting the settlement of the tariff so that their owners can ascertain exactly how they stand in the market. The goods also have to be paid for, the bulk of them in gold coin at that, and these things are prominent factors in causing the present exports of gold and also a slight temporary stringency in the money market, but, nevertheless, everybody predicts a great fall trade in all lines.

"During my sojourn in the East I have been in many of the larger cities and everywhere I have met with those who are interested in Duluth. Some are property holders in this city and some are not, but one and all seem to have but one opinion, and that a most favorable one, regarding the prospects of this city for the future, and very many predict that once the confidence of the commercial classes is re-established, before long Duluth will feel the impetus of reviving trade and that money will once more flow towards this city, more perhaps than toward any other city in the Northwest."

Harney Was Fined.

Judge Boyle yesterday fined Robert Harney $5 and costs for striking Christ Oleson with a broken shovel. This case has attracted a great deal of attention as it was the direct outcome of the new state of affairs at the Ironton works, where strict orders have been issued to keep all those not engaged in work out of the furnace rooms and mills.

The evidence showed that Oleson was looking for a job and refused to leave the premises. The watchman got him out in a peculiarly decisive manner, accompanied by a good deal of blarney and an equal amount of physical force. Oleson, however, got his hot Viking blood up and grabbed a broken shovel as a weapon. Harney took the shovel away and used it with distressing effect upon the head of Oleson, who, according to his own statement "screeched and tumbled down." When he got up he had Harney arrested, with the result above related.

OBSTREPEROUS DOTTIE.

Miss Farnsworth Pulled Out of the Race.

Miss Dottie Farnsworth upset the kettle of fish at the six days' race at the Lyceum rink last night. Before the race was begun she announced that she had discovered a difference between her contract and Baldwin's. Baldwin's contract said that two laps were to be allowed her for a breakdown, while Farnsworth's called for only one. The latter conceded the point to Baldwin, but she claimed that after Baldwin's breakdown Monday night she—Farnsworth—had gained a lap by superior riding. This lap she claimed, but it was not allowed her, whereupon she kicked over the traces and refused to ride at all, and the race started without her. After it was finished it was declared no go, the race was made a 6-hour race, and Farnsworth consented to run, the riders being put back to their Monday night's scores. The race will start this tonight, then, as though last night's race had not taken place. Farnsworth and Baldwin starting at thirty-nine miles and two laps, the former's score Monday night.

The crowd last night was not quite so large as it was on the first night, but it was still a good crowd, and there was no lack of applause and enthusiasm. On the start Baldwin shot away at a lively pace, but she could not shake Harp, who followed close behind her. The two, however, quickly left the pack, and in a short time all but they were distanced. The action was all between Harp and Baldwin, who stuck together like twin sisters notwithstanding frequent attempts to leave each other behind. On one occasion Brooks led the crowd a smart pace for a time and all the riders braced up and stayed out the spurt. The records of the riders at the close were: Baldwin, Harp, 76 miles, 11 laps; Brooks, 65 miles, 8 laps; Hokenson, 63 miles, 12 laps; Wellington, 53 miles, 2 laps.

Scratch! Scratch! Scratch!

The tortures of Eczema are indescribable. First, a series of small water blisters appear, accompanied by a tingling, itching sensation; these burst, and the skin becomes dry and sometimes cracks and peels; the itching increases in severity and spreads over a larger surface, until it soon becomes almost unbearable. The rough, red skin seems to be ablaze, so intense is the suffering produced.

Only disappointment results from the use of ointments, salves, etc., which are so generally resorted to for this disease. Eczema is a disease of the blood, and local applications can have no effect whatever upon it. They are good enough to allay temporarily the intense itching, but the disease continues to spread and increases in severity.

It is during spring and summer that those afflicted with Eczema suffer most, although they are at no time entirely free from discomfort. The disease seems to break out afresh each spring, and every year seems to spread more, until in some cases the entire body is effected.

Mr. E. D. Jenkins, of Lithonia, Ga., says that his daughter, Ida, inherited a severe case of Eczema, which the usual mercury and potash remedies failed to relieve. Year by year she was treated with various medicines, external applications and internal remedies, without result. Her sufferings were intense, and her condition grew steadily worse. All the so-called blood remedies did not seem to reach the disease at all until S. S. S. was given, when an improvement was at once noticed. The medicine was continued with favorable results, and now she is cured sound and well, her skin is perfectly clear and pure, and she has been saved from what threatened to blight her life forever.

Mr. Wm. Armstrong, of DePere, Wis., writes: "I have suffered terribly for eight years with Eczema, at times all over my body, and no person can describe the burning and itching I had to endure. For three months I never laid down, but was compelled to sit in my chair when not moving around. I was treated by the best of physicians with no success, used various local applications, and tried all the patent medicines recommended for Eczema without any good results. I went to several celebrated medical resorts, but the disease shortly returned. I then tried S. S. S., and after three days the burning and itching subsided, and I continued to improve steadily until I was well—entirely cured.

For Eczema

The only cure is a real blood remedy—one which reaches obstinate and deep-seated diseases, and cures them permanently. The mercurial and potash remedies of the doctors, aside from their harmful effects, do not reach the disease, and hence their inability to cure it. S. S. S. is the only cure for Eczema, because it is the only blood remedy guaranteed purely vegetable, containing no potash, no arsenic, no mercury or mineral of any description. It is Nature's own remedy and is not a drug-shop preparation. It cures Eczema and all other blood diseases of the most obstinate nature, no matter what other treatment has failed.

CONSCIENCE FUND.

Some Novelties in Recent Treasury Contributions.

The smallest contribution to Uncle Sam's conscience fund received up to date was delivered at the treasury on Saturday, April 17, says the Philadelphia Times. Its amount was 1 cent, and accompanying it was a brief scrawl saying: "This morning I purchased a package of newspaper wrappers which overran one, and I enclose a penny to balance accounts." The communication was signed "Honesty," and it is easy to imagine the feeling of virtue which must have puffed up the sender after performing this noble deed. The treasury, however, would have liked it better if he had kept the money, because the receipt of it rendered necessary the making out of a voucher transferring it formally to the national funds. This had to be signed in due form by the assistant treasurer of the United States, after which the documents were filed. Record of the item was also made in the book in which the accounts of the conscience fund are kept.

This fund was opened by the register of the treasury in the year 1811, in order "to show from time to time the receipts of moneys by the government from unknown persons." All contributions to it are covered into the national funds as a "miscellaneous receipt," and, according to law, may be used like any other assets. Remittances "on account of conscience" are received very frequently—sometimes, indeed, as often as two or three times in a week. As a rule the letters accompanying them are not signed. Often they are illiterate. Sometimes fraud is said to be suspected. In some cases it is evident that the illiteracy is assumed to help the disguise. Nor seldom the money is forwarded by clergymen at the request of penitents. Usually there is no clue to the letter except a postmark.

It might be imagined that such contributions would not be of sufficient moment to pay for the trouble they give. This is very far from being the case, however. From 1811 up to the first day of last January the total of remittances to the fund had amounted to $200,933—quite a tidy little sum from the point of view of a poor old gentleman like Uncle Sam, who is living beyond his means. During the last year the largest amount thus far recorded was received. It was $14,225, and was forwarded from London by our consul general there. The consul general had it from the Rev. Pre bendary Basil, vicar of St. Giles' church, Cripplegate, London. The clergyman declined to say whereit came from, and gave no other information except that the cash was rightfully due to the United States treasury from one of his own parishioners. It must be a remarkably severe stroke of conscience that obliges a person to give up $14,225. Nearly all the contributions of the year are very small, most of them being only a few pennies. It was an unusually frank, though long delinquent debtor who walked into the office of the secretary of the treasury on Jan. 1 last and handed him personally $300 in bills, requesting that his name should not be mentioned. Much more typical is the case of a woman residing in Omar, Tex., who not long ago wrote, saying: "Inclosed find 2 cents, which I wish to refund, as I used a cancelled stamp when I took 3 cents to send a letter." Possibly the 2 cents was for interest. Most contributors are satisfied with repaying the principal of what they owe, but now and then the self-accusing monitor demands the addition of the legal usury.

A remittance of 5 cents is signed by "One who wishes to live a Christian life." Fifty dollars, representing an over-payment nine years ago by the government, is from "One who has striven to do right." In another case the sender of $1 is inspired to write by the fact that "he has become a Christian man." This last is for unpaid customs duties. Most people do not hesitate to evade the payment of such duties, but now and then somebody is seized with a stroke of conscience afterward. Probably from a foreigner is a contribution of $2, accompanied by a slip of paper, on which the words, "Two the chonshinsons fund" are written. Somebody residing in Baltimore forwards $50, with a scrawl which reads: "Internal revenue: fruit, distilled spirits, cordials."

In June last a Connecticut ex-soldier sent 50 cents' worth of postage stamps to pay for stamps stolen by him during his service as guard over certain commissary stores during the war. He stated that the sum represented principal and compound interest, inasmuch as sugar was then worth about 12 cents a pound, the officials have been somewhat puzzled to imagine just what quantity of the saccharine luxury was taken. Ninety-five cents in postage stamps comes evidently from a woman; it has to be converted into currency before it can be transferred to the fund. Printed in pencil on an envelope which contained $32 is the inscription: "May be due the United States; don't wish any doubt, so enclose this." From New York city not long ago arrived the sum of $25.56, accompanied by a statement to the effect that the money was due on diamonds which were smuggled through the customs house there.

The biggest conscience contribution, up to the date of the receipt of the $14,225 already mentioned, was $8000. This was forwarded in a very strange fashion, the halves of eight $1000 United States notes being sent, with a letter saying the remitter would furnish the other halves as soon as the first ones were acknowledged in the papers. Remittances to the fund are always acknowledged in the newspapers of the city of Washington, and, no exception being made in this case, the complimentary halves came along in due time. It is believed that a good many of the sums received in this way are from persons in a morbid state of mind. Not really owing the government anything at all, they imagine they do so, or that possibly something may be due from them of which they are not exactly aware. Then there is an occasional hassle whose conscientious feelings are merely phenomena of a disordered mind.

On one occasion $1065 reached the treasury, simply folded in a sheet of paper, with the word "Conscience" written on it. Some time ago a remittance of $3.40 was received from a man who felt sorry for "having beaten his passage on a government train during the war." Not a few debtors of this kind entertain serious doubts as to the honesty of the government officials, and one way they have of guarding themselves against lack of conscience by folks in the treasury is to cut bills in two, sending one-half to the secretary of the treasury and the other half to the treasurer of the United States. One person who sent $2500 was so cautious as to mail at the same time $1500 to the secretary of the treasury, $600 to the United States treasurer and $400 to the assistant treasurer at New York.

A HINDOO CYNIC.

One Who is Not Fascinated With Our Women.

Many women, and especially the mothers of the far West, are guessing as to whether they shall accept Brahmacharian Bodhabhikshu, a white-robed and turbaned Hindoo visitor to the recent woman's congress in San Francisco, as a popular or unpopular representative. Although one of the most enlightened and intellectually superior citizens of the Orient who has ever visited this country, his alleged remarks on the character of Western women have raised an unlimited amount of discussion, and society gossip among the residents of the Pacific coast, says the New York Journal.

Bodhabhikshu is the supremely daring man who declared in effect that the women of the Western United States are savages. This brutal conclusion followed on beautifully worded description of woman as the fine flower of civilization, and it was on account of this all the more cruel. If there is one thing on which the Western woman prides herself it is that she is civilized. She showed at least one quality when she treated Bodhabhikshu mercifully. She did not abuse her power in his case.

Bodhabhikshu is a picturesque character, yet a fine type of the Oriental mystic, of which we hear much and see little. If his audience was one of dressmakers and milliners, his costume alone would make an interesting and entertaining study for them for an hour. While making a speech he is just as capable of holding an enlightened audience.

Robed in white, with a white turban, the dark-skinned Hindoo presented a striking picture when he arose to address the members at the fourth annual meeting of the woman's congress. His outer garment of pure white silk was draped so as to set of the long, lithe lines of his figure to the utmost on of his audience. As a messenger from the cradle of Eastern civilization, he amazed his hearers with his fluent use of the English language and his logical arguments. However, it is to one of his logical conclusions that his hearers take exception, and, if properly quoted, the dusky representative will probably make a proper explanation.

He began his speech by expressing great satisfaction for the privilege of addressing such a representative body of Western women. Then he touched another sympathetic chord in the hearts of his audience by his pathetic reference to the mothers of his own land. His remarks were ended with the following tribute to the woman in general: "She is the heavenly flower stolen from Paradise to adorn the house; as a sister she is the ministering angel; as a wife she is the crowned queen; as a mother she is the goddess, noble and exalted, but when she abuses this great power she is the most dangerous creature on earth." It is to this last remark that nearly his whole audience took somew tat indignant exception.

The Bramacharian's conversation in private is ingenuous, absolutely self-reliant and swift. He has a very lofty conception of life, which is at entire variance from the ideas of the Western hemisphere, and with his careful study and training in science, in philosophy and our methods, he is capable to meet an argument on any basis with the result that he will usually convince his listeners that he speaks whereof he knows.

GOLDEN TREASURE.

The people of Grand Haven were recently considerably excited over the rumor that Peter Deneau had found a large sum of money that had been buried in the sand hills. However, so far Pete has been unsuccessful, says the Detroit Tribune. There is an interesting story concerning this supposed buried treasure, which is as follows:

The story goes that some twenty or twenty-five years ago a big bank robbery was committed in an Eastern state. An amount of money—reports vary from $35,000 to $80,000—was stolen. The thieves managed to get away from that locality. In the course of their flight they reached Grand Haven. Detectives were hard on their heels, and one dark night they buried their booty in a sand hill not far from the lighthouse. Later two of the bank robbers were arrested for another crime in New York state. They were sentenced to Sing Sing for long terms. Some years later both of the convicts died, and on his death bed one of them told as best he could where the money he had stolen some years before was hidden. The dying man described the spot as fully as possible. Acting upon the suggestion, the guard to whom he divulged the secret came to Grand Haven, accompanied by a friend, and made a search. There was such a vast expanse of sand to look over, however, that the search was fruitless, and if the report of an old citizen is true, one who was thoroughly acquainted with the affair from the lips of the Sing Sing guard, then several thousand dollars in gold and greenbacks is buried under the sand hills near Grand Haven lighthouse.

CLEARED

William Mattson, a Soudan Finlander, Acquitted of Grand Larceny.

Charles and Eureka Bornemann Entered Pleas of Not Guilty Today.

Merritt vs. Harris Case Goes to the Foot of the Calendar.

With only a few minutes' deliberation a jury found William Mattson, a Soudan Finlander, guilty of grand larceny this noon. Mattson was indicted for stealing $43 in currency from a grip belonging to Matt Korpi in a boarding house at Soudan, April 9. He claimed that on that day he took a few drinks in the morning and as he had not been drinking for some time it made him intoxicated. The next thing he knew he woke up in jail. According to the verdict of the jury, Mattson will be aware of that fact for some time to come.

Yesterday afternoon Victor Johnson, who was on trial yesterday for stealing $30 from a companion, was acquitted by the jury. When the defendant heard the verdict read and was given to understand that he was at liberty, he stood not upon the order of his going, but went. It was said that he touched the floor not to exceed two times between the chair where he sat and the door.

This morning Charles and Eureka Bornemann were arraigned and pleaded no guilty to a charge of manslaughter in the second degree. Their trial will be held within a few days. George W. Riggin, the old West Duluth medicine manufacturer, who is accused of practicing medicine without a license, was arraigned and pleaded not guilty. William Laplante and William Blanchard, accused of assault in the second degree, entered a demurrer on the ground that the indictment did not state facts sufficient to constitute a public offense. The demurrer will be argued Friday.

DAMAGE CASES.

Two of Them on Trial---Merritt-Harris Case.

In the civil branches of district court this morning the same cases were on trial as yesterday, and the outlook was that no new ones would be reached today. In the case of Isaac Hill against Winston Bros. the defense was putting in its evidence today. The case of Frank L. Dow against the McCord Lumber company was still on trial before Judge Ensign.

There are four cases left on the jury calendar. One of them is the case of Alfred and Leonidas Merritt against A. A. Harris & Son, and it has gone over to the end of the criminal calendar to await the arrival of the depositions of the Merritts from Mexico. The other three cases are all personal injury matters, and as John Jenswold, Jr., is in each of them, they will have to come up in turn.

BIRTH MONTH STONES.

The craze for wearing birth month stones does not emanate from America, nor yet from Paris; London is not responsible for it, either, says the New York Journal. It is from remote Poland that the odd notion comes. Women there, according to an old legend, are saved all manner of ills by wearing the guardian charm of the month in which they were born; and men, too, if given such gems by a woman, are also saved and benefited.

Here is the true list. There are varieties, but the one given is direct from Poland:

January, garnet, constancy; February, amethyst, sincerity; March, bloodstone, courage, wisdom; April, sapphire or diamond, free from enchantment, innocence; May, emerald, success in love, discovers false friends; June, agate, health and prosperity; July, ruby, corrects evils of mistaken friendship, discovers poison; August, sardonyx, means conjugal felicity; September, chrysolite, antidote to madness, free from sadness and evil passions; October, opal, hope; November, topaz, fidelity, prevents bad dreams; December, turquoise, prosperity.

"WHO IS MRS. JERUSALEM?"

Poughkeepsie Star: A good story was told the other day about a bright little girl in this city. She seemed to be in a brown study one afternoon, when she suddenly turned to her aunt and exclaimed: "Aunt Lucy, who is Mrs. Jerusalem?" "Don't be silly, child," said her aunt, "what makes you ask such foolish questons?" "Why," said the little girl, "this isn't a silly question, don't you sing 'Oh, Mother Dear, Jerusalem,' and I just wanted to know who Mrs. Jerusalem was. I have been thinking about her for a long time."

WHAT PLEASES A WOMAN.

Buffalo News: It pleases her to be called a sensible little woman.

It pleases her to be called a well-dressed woman.

It pleases her to be told that she is fascinating.

It pleases her to be told that she improves a man by her companionship.

It pleases her to depend on some man and pretend she is ruling him.

It pleases her to be treated courteously and with respect and to be talked to reasonably.

It pleases her to be regarded sensibly and honestly, to be consulted and questioned and not to be treated as a butterfly, with no head nor heart.

It pleases her to be loved and admired by a man who is strong enough to rule and subdue her and make his way her way, to lead her and take care of her.

TEMPORARILY.

Chicago Tribune: "I believe I have been in every state in the Union," remarked Grimstead. "Of course I haven't resided in all of them, but I have visited or traveled through them, at one time or another."

"Have you ever been in a state of grace?" asked Shawcross.

"Oh, yes," rejoined Grimstead, who is slightly deaf. "I passed through it once when I was a small boy."

MRS. KRINER'S LETTER

About Change of Life.

"I suffered for eight years and could find no permanent relief until one year ago. My trouble was Change of Life. I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and relief came almost immediately. I have taken two bottles of the Vegetable Compound, three boxes of Pills and have also used the Sanative Wash, and must say, I have never had anything helpso much, I have better health than I ever had in my life. I feel like a new person, perfectly strong. I give the Compound all the credit. I have recommended it to several of my friends who are using it with like results. It has cured me of several female diseases. I would not do without Mrs. Pinkham's remedies for anything. There is no need of so much female suffering. Her remedies are a sure cure."—MRS. MARS' NORTH POLE.

What That Point on That Planet Resembles.

Although no human being has ever laid eyes on the north pole, and never may do so, in spite of the efforts being made to "discover" that point, we are now for the first time enabled to know with more or less positiveness exactly what the north pole looks like. The planet Mars, which closely resembles the earth, not only in size and seasons, but in the high degree of civilization which its inhabitants are supposed to have reached, has a north pole, says the New York Journal.

This north pole of Mars has now for the first time been seen and observed, it has been closely scrutinized in a powerful telescope by an astronomer who has given years to the observation of Mars and who waited anxiously until the planet, in the slow revolution of its changes, turned its north pole to the earth.

This observer was Professor Leo Brenner, who has published a technical description of his work in the last number of the Astronomischen Nachrichten. In this article he tells, in the queer language which astronomers use, how he watched the south polar cap of Mars, observing it grow toward the equator when autumn set in upon the planet, then seeing it recede when spring began on Mars and the snow melted, giving water to the numerous canals, along the sides of which vegetation (known by its bright green color) was seen to spring up.

During all this time Mars was slowly getting into a position which brought its north polar cap more and more into view. As this north polar cap, which had been turned away from the earth, came within the field of Professor Brenner's telescope, the south polar cap receded.

Finally the north pole itself rose above the horizon. Many people have an idea that there is a hole or a mountain or some other natural phenomenon at the north pole of the earth.

There was, however, no such peculiarity to be observed about the north pole of the planet Mars. The fact that it was the north pole was only to be determined by the exact science of the astronomers.

Professor Brenner knew precisely what spot in the great, white fields of snow and ice capping the planet was its north pole, and he marked it out with a pencil point upon the map beside him as he looked. A photograph taken of the north pole of Mars showed that it was precisely the same as the adjacent territory for thousands of miles, consisting of immense fields of hillocky ice.

There was no open polar sea such as many explorers have believed to exist about the north pole of this earth. Mars, in the years that have passed since the science of astronomy was begun, has frequently turned its north pole toward the earth. But because of the smallness and weakness of our telescopes, we have been unable hitherto to closely scrutinize that point.

During the past twenty-five years the great Lick telescope has been built, and large American-made telescopes have been set up in Europe. It was through one of these great magnifying instruments that Professor Brenner made his observations, which would not have been possible a quarter of a century ago.

He is the first man who has ever carefully observed the north pole of the planet Mars. These observations would not carry so much weight if they had been of Venus, Saturn or any other planet.

But Mars so closely resembles the earth that it is believed the conditions prevailing on the north pole of one prevail likewise on the north pole of the other. The seasons and the seas and excitements of Mars resemble those of the earth.

Moreover, its inhabitants are believed to be far more advanced than ourselves, as is shown by their elaborate system of artificial canals, built on a gigantic scale, and first observed by the astronomer Schiaparelli. The flash lights they have been making are also believed to be attempts to signal to the people of the earth, but our poor achievements in science are so meager that we are of the present time unable to flash a signal back, our most up-to-date system of illumination being altogether inadequate for the task.

HOW DAKOTANS CATCH MEAT.

Kulm (N. D.) Wind: Many of the Russian farmers west of town are complaining about jack rabbits falling down their chimneys and frequently lodging therein, stopping the passage of the smoke. Their peasant-like houses—which are all provided with large fireplaces and proportionally large chimneys—are mostly very low and covered with the "beautiful." The chimneys, of course, have to be kept clear of snow. After it has been shoveled away several times a large funnel-shaped cone remains, the walls of which are rendered icy by the alternate influence of the fire below and the cold above. Any wild animal prowling around on a bitter cold night, upon nearing one of these smoke cones and feeling the warmth, would naturally seek closer proximity thereto, whereupon their ventures would invariably result in a slide, Mr. Animal landing in the fire box below.

MAKING A DICTIONARY.

The first five letters of the alphabet have now been finished in the new and monumental Oxford dictionary. An interesting table which has been prepared shows the number of words given under those letters to be 89,591. Of these 66,254 are main words. 10,156 are special combinations explained under main words, and 13,181 are subordinate words. An analysis of the main words brings out that 47,736 are in current use, 15,952 are obsolete and 2516 are alien. The figures illustrate the immense amount of labor involved in the undertaking which Dr. Murray and his colleagues have in hand.

EDHEM PASHA.

Romance in the Turkish Commander's Early Life.

Edhem Pasha, the commander of the Turkish army in the present war with Greece, has had a most romantic and interesting history. He is not only of Greek origin, but also of Christian parentage, says the Boston Transcript. However, strange to say, he is an enthusiastic and fanatic Mahommedan and loyal subject to the present sultan. His change of religion was caused by a number of strange circumstances which occurred in his youth. He was born on the beautiful island of Chio, in the Aegean sea. This island was famous in ancient history, and is said to have been the birthplace of Homer. It is seven miles from the coast of Asia Minor and is situated on the gulf of Smyrna. It is known for its great productivity, mild climate and natural beauty. For centuries Chio has been under Turkish rule, although the largest part of its population is of Greek descent. In the many wars and insurrections for Grecian liberty, the people of this lovely island have always borne the brunt of Turkish cruelty and tyranny. This was especially true in 1838, when the Greeks began a long struggle for freedom. Edhem Pasha was then a small child. The inhabitants of Chio did not participate in the insurrections which occurred in that year, but were following their usual occupations. However, a body of revolutionists came from the island of Samos and landed in Chio. They endeavored to excite the inhabitants to revolution, but met with no success. The Chiotes answered that it would be foolish for them to revolt, because the absence of a Greek fleet rendered them almost certain prey to the sultan's troops on the mainland. The Samians, however, refused to obey and laid siege to the citadel, then occupied by a Turkish garrison. The Turkish soldiers were driven out and the fortress reduced to ashes. Soon after an army of 7000 Turks with a host of fanatical volunteers, landed on the island. For weeks after the soldiers and the roving hordes of Ottomans slew, pillaged and tortured the inhabitants. In parts of the island the people took refuge in the monasterics, but were pursued and killed by thousands. Even the sick in the hospitals were not spared. Over 23,000 men, women and children were killed, 5000 escaped and 47,000 were sold into slavery and glutted the slave markets of Egypt, Constantinople and Tunis.

Edhem Pasha's parents were among the killed. He was sold to a Turkish general named Khossee Pasha, who took him to Constantinople. His master, however, gave him his liberty, and with a number of boys he was sent to Paris to be educated. He entered the Institute Barbet, where he remained for years. He evinced great industry and scholarship, and all his teachers predicted for him a great future and brilliant career. After graduating from this school with great honor he entered a school for mines, and four more years were spent in close application and study. After traveling through France, Germany and Switzerland, he returned to Constantinople and was appointed a captain on the general staff of the Turkish army. In 1840 the sultan made him his adjutant, and he also became the French instructor of the late Sultan Mured and of the present ruler, Abdul Hamid. Later on he was intrusted with a number of important political missions. In 1856 he became a member of the council of state and was then appointed minister of the interior, but resigned his portfolio after a year. In 1867 he became minister of foreign affairs and subsequently represented his country at Berlin. In 1877 upon the banishment of Midhet Pasha, he became grand vizier, which position he filled with great ability. In 1879 he was ambassador to Vienna, and from 1882 to 1885 he was again minister of the interior.

Edhem Pasha has always shown great hatred towards foreigners and against Christians. At the peace conference at the end of the Russian-Turkish war in 1877, he was the last of the Turkish ministers to give his consent to the final settlement of hostilities. He had always been an enthusiastic Turkish Chauvinist. He is a zealous member of the Young Turkish party, which has proclaimed the doctrine of the greatness of Islam and Turkey for the Turks.

It is interesting to note that Edhem Pasha's brother was for many years a Catholic priest in the city of Constantinople. He died a few years ago.

OFF THE SCENT.

Detroit Free Press: "One of the brightest and most interesting of men that I ever met," said the citizen just back from Europe, "I fell in with on the way over. In everything that goes to make up manly attractions he was simply superb. He and I were constantly together and he showed much kindness to a pair of old maids who appreciated his little attentions. Moved to confession by his winning ways, they admitted the concealment of certain little jewels that they were taking home as presents, and even told how cunningly they had managed to conceal their treasures. It is very seldom you find a woman who thinks it wrong to smuggle.

"When we landed my new friend was in a surprising hurry I must be off at once for the South, and he had a commanding way that exacted deference, even from the custom house officials. He called one of them aside, and made it more of an order than a piece of information when he told of the jewelry hidden by the maiden ladies, and where it was to be found. I remained with them and managed to settle without much trouble, as you generally can when you know how. They were in a shiver of fright and I was indignant enough to fight.

"In the meantime my perfidious acquaintance had got his baggage through without a piece being examined and was apparently waiting for me after he had seen his trunks hauled away.'

"'I demand an explanantion, sir,' I said, with a very red face and a clenched fist.

"'And you shall have it,' he replied, before I could further relieve my mind. 'I'm bringing in $50,000 worth of diamonds. I had to throw the revenue officers off the scent. Just hand the two ladies this couple of hundred dollars with my compliments and I will disappear.'

"I delivered the money, which was taken with a small storm of protests. But they couldn't throw it away."

WONDROUS GLACIERS.

St. Elias Has Some Which Are Very Large.

To the average mind the Territory is a small piece of land with a few outlying islands far to the north and possessing not few points of interest to any one other than the trader eager to swap brightly tinted calicoes for luxuriant furs, the miner in pursuit of the phantom fortune, the missionary with an earnest zeal to save the savages, and the ubiquitous tourist, who considers the country as a place to be viewed only from the deck of a steamer, says the Alaska News. The latter class stand aghast when informed that Alaska comprises in area almost as much as the entire United States east of the Mississippi. With unmistakable incredulity they receive the statement that there are mountain peaks contained within our boundaries so high and so mighty that other mountains in the United States are as mere mole hills in comparison, and when told of our marvelous glaciers and vast ice fields wonderment is no longer concealed, and they realize for the first time the immensity of the country which to so many is but as a sealed volume.

Paragraphers are ever fond of referring to Alaska as the land of perpetual snow and ice, an imputation the journals of the far North quickly and righteously resent. Nowhere could more ideal weather be found than the past winter in this portion of the Territory. Yet there are sections within our borders where the snow and ice are perpetual and the synonymic application so often connected with Alaska is peculiarly and truly applicable. The largest glaciers, the highest mountains, and the broadest ice fields are never seen by the average tourists, they being back and beyond the beaten line of travel, and only reached by the most intrepid and indefatigable voyagers.

In the vast moraine of ice back of and surrounding Mt. St. Elias, the state of Rhode Island could be placed, and would be only as a fly speck on a sheet of spotless paper; the state of Delaware might be dropped into a crevasse and its sides would never be scratched in its descent to the bottom. Visions of glaciers as seen from an excursion steamer are confined to the Takou inlet and Glacier bay. Soon after leaving Wrangel the first mountain of ice is seen in the distance, looking like a frozen river emerging from the clouds. The sea is glassy and a procession of small bergs, broken away from the glacier, float silently toward the South. It is nature's dead march to the sun, to be melted in its burning kisses and be transplanted into its happy tears. Wild ducks fly past, and from its eary a bald-headed eagle surveys the scene, deeply, darkly, beautifully blue, apparently conscious that he is the symbol of the republic.

At Glacier bay, on the first sight of Muir glacier, one draws comparisons and mentally notes that there are glaciers and glaciers. In Switzerland a glacier is a vast bed of dirty, air-holed ice that has fastened itself like a porous plaster to the side of an Alp, and distance alone lends enchantment to the view. In Alaska a glacier is a wonderful torrent that seems to have been suddenly frozen when about to plunge into the sea. Down and about mountains wind these snowclad serpents, extending miles inland with as many arms frequently as an octopus. Wonderfully picturesque is the Davidson glacier, but more extended is the one named in honor of John Muir, which marks the extreme northerly point of the route traveled by the excursion steamers. Imagine a glacier three miles wide and 300 feet high at its mouth. Think of Niagara Falls frozen stiff, add thirty-six feet to its height, and you will have a slight idea of the terminus of Muir glacier, in front of which your steamer anchors. Picture a background of mountains 15,000 feet high, all clad in a mantle of perpetual snow, and then imagine a gorgeous sun lighting up the ice crystals with all the hues of a multi-colored rainbow, and you will have a vision such as would have delighted the soul of Raphael. The face of the glacier takes on the color of aquamarine, the tint of every particle of floating ice, big and little, that surrounds the steamer, and sometimes proves such an impediment to navigation. These glaciers are constantly moving and tumbling headlong into the sea, and as the huge masses fall the ear is startled by submarine thunder, the echoes of which resound far and near. Down, down, down goes the berg, and woe to the boat in its way when it again rises to the surface.

Far to the north of Glacier bay, some 200 miles, lie the monarchs of all the glaciers, of which it has been said that the world offers no other such field for the study of glacial panorama. The extent and rapid move and change of these vast seas of ice are comparable in their immensity to nothing in any other part of the globe. Their proportions are simply Brobdignagian, as the Muir glacier is as nothing to them. Behring's great glacier, behind Cape Suckling, is perhaps the most extended; the Agassiz and Guyot are likewise enormous, the whole system forming a province of glacial ice measuring hundreds of miles in length, and thousands of square miles in extent. Indeed, it would be difficult to estimate within 10,000 square miles how extensive they are, but with that proviso one might say the whole of the St. Elias glaciers cover not less than 40,000 square miles of ice of a thickness averaging 500 feet, and this in a latitude but little north of England. This is exclusive of the other ranges, and refers only to the country between the Chilcat and Copper rivers. The great Agassiz glacier is now believed to be the Malaspina plateau, so named by the first geodetic coast survey. It measures 600 square miles, and is to a certain extent buried by the immense moraines which cover a fringe of its coast line. The old navigators were uncertain of the nature of the plateaus around Mt. St. Elias, as Vancouver described the Agassiz glacier as a "barren country composed of loose stones." La Perouse, another navigator of nearly a century ago, spoke of it as consisting of "masses of snow and ice, covering a barren soil unembellished by a single tree."

MILKMAN VS. THERMOMETER.

Attorney Robert Redfield, who represents the various milkmen's associations, met with a cool rebuff last week, says the Chicago Chronicle. Robert has been defending milkmen charged with selling milk below grade for so many months that the details of each case are irksome to him now, and when a client comes in with the usual story about being stopped by an inspector and later summoned to court, the lawyer knows all about it by intuition. Last week a German milkman stumbled into the office and told his tale of woe about the inspector taking a sample of milk from the wagon and giving him a duplicate, and then the summons to court.

"But dot milk vas all right, yoost the same, Meester Redfield," said the milkman, "because I tested dot sample myselluf when I go by my depot dot day."

"Ah, you have a testing tube, then, have you?" inquired the attorney.

"Vell, I don't know vot you call him, but it is one like I see dot inspector mit," said the milkman.

"And did the test show that the sample had more than 3 per cent of butter fat?" asked Redfield.

"Oh, sure," said the milkman in surprise, "it vos more as dree."

"Well, I don't see where we will have any trouble winning this case," said the attorney, rubbing his hands, "the inspector has made a mistake, that's all." And he sent his client away happy.

The trial came up in Justice Wood's court, and as soon as the city had made out its case and the inspector swore the sample was far below 3 per cent of butter fat when the test tube was thrust into it, Redfield placed his client on the stand.

"Why, your honor, there is some mistake here," he began, "my client tested the duplicate sample which the inspector gave him and he tells me that his test tube showed over 3 per cent of butter fat." Turning to the milkman he said: "Now tell the court, in your own way, just what the test showed. How much more than 3?"

"Vell, I write him down here," said the witness fumbling in his pocket, "here it is. It vos over 45."

"What?" yelled the inspector. The court rapped for order and asked:

"Do you mean to say that sample showed 45 per cent of butter fat? The standard for cream is only 15 per cent." Redfield began to wonder what would happen next.

"Yes dot was 45," said the witness, "and I write him down."

"Have you your test tube with you?" asked the court.

"Yes, in my pocket," said the milkman, and he drew it out and laid it before the court. Then there was a roar from Woods and a yell from Redfield, and the inspector felt so good over it he took a nensuit. The milkman had been testing his milk with a thermometer.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

In packing away white furs or robes or children's white cloaks for the summer do not forget to scatter pieces of white wax among them. It will help to keep them from turning yellow. A nice way is to roll them in pieces of cotton or linen, made very dark with bluing, before putting them into their boxes, says the New York Sun.

When a dose of unpleasant medicine is necessary, particularly with children, its disagreeable taste may be almost wholly concealed if a peppermint candy is taken just before the medicine. This is a better plan than taking something after the dose.

A room situated so that it does not get any direct sunlight, but only reflected light, may be made more cheerful if the walls are covered with a paper that has a background of some delicate yellow shade. The painted woodwork should be of a creamy tint, and with yellow India silk or muslin draperies at the windows, one can almost imagine one's self in a room with a southern exposure.

A coarse mesh wire tray that fits into a frying pan or spider is of great assistance to a cook when frying. On this frame anything to be cooked can be laid and be browned easily as if in the pan, while any chance of burning is avoided. The tray should have a long wire loop handle.

Wooden moulding boards are no longer used in the up-to-date kitchen. Marble or plate glass with a rolling pin of the same hard substance has taken the place of wood. The new boards require less care to keep them clean and in proper condition.

A little lemon peel makes a delicous flavoring for many things, such as puddings, fruit sauces, croquettes, and meat pies, and is one of the things it is best to have at hand. When using the juice only oftemons save the peel by rinsing it in clear water and letting it dry; then grating it and putting it in a glass jar with a close cover. Treated thus it is always ready.

An agreeable method of changing the atmosphere in an invalid's room is to pour some good eau de cologne into a soup plate and with a lighted match set fire to it. The cologne will make a pretty flame and impart a delightful, refreshing odor to the air.

Loopos for hanging up garments are always wearing out and breaking, particularly with children's cloaks and coats. To make a serviceable loop cut a strip of kid from an old glove, roll it in a piece of coarse string, and sew the edges of kid neatly together. This loop, fastened securely to a garment, will stand any amount of pulling without wearing or breaking.

When a carpet comes to be laid afresh, the colors are apt to look somewhat dingy and certainly not so bright as was expected. To remedy this use a pailful of warm water containing two or three tablespoonfuls of household ammonia and a soft flannel and two fresh cloths for rubbing the carpet dry after it has been washed with the first flannel and water. This treatment will, when the carpet is quite dry, be found to give a most effectual renovation. But it must be remembered that certain greens will not bear ammonia; in such cases clear warm water will freshen and help the carpet very much.

"Sugar curls" are a new form of the old-fashioned sugar cookies. They are particularly attractive to children or for any one desirous of a variety. Roll the cooky dough out rather thin and cut it into strips about eight inches long and three-quarters of an inch in width. Sprinkle them lightly with sugar and place them in a buttered pan. Bake them in a quick oven to a very delicate color. When the strips are baked; as soon as they can be handled, roll them around large pencils or sticks and keep them so until they have cooled.

ITS MEANING.

Chicago Post: She had been looking over a prayer-book and had come upon the marriage service, which she had read with considerable interest, as was natural in view of her sex, although she was still too young to have that absorbing interest in it that comes to a girl well along in her teens.

"Mamma," she said at last, "what does it mean when a bride promises to obey?"

"Mean!" exclaimed her father before her mother could reply. "What inspired idiot ever said it meant anything? It's a cold, heartless bluff."

SECRETLY

Senate Will Now Receive All the State Department's Cuban Information.

But Names of Consuls Must Not Be Furnished to General Public.

Mr. Cannon's Red Hot Remarks on Weyler---The Senate Roasted.

Washington, May 19.—The Cuban resolution again came up in the senate this afternoon, and Mr. Morgan opposed a motion that the senate adjourn from tomorrow until Monday. He gave some details of the recent visit of a sub-committee of the senate committee on foreign relations to the executive in the effort to secure information in regard to the condition of affairs in Cuba. He said he had been a member of the sub-committee, but that he had refused to accept the consular information at the hands of the executive with the injunction of secrecy imposed. He said that two other members of the committee had received the information, but that he would not consent to receive information which he could not impart to other members of the senate. Explaining, he said the injunction of secrecy applied only to the names of consuls. In reply to a question from Mr. White, Mr. Morgan said both the president and secretary of state had imposed this condition.

Mr. Foraker said the department had imparted all the information at its command freely. He had received no injunction, and was not conscious of any restriction upon himself. The state department is now, he said, preparing all the information on hand for the senate. The only restriction has been as to the use of the names of consuls.

The motion to adjourn from tomorrow until Monday was then agreed to. Mr. Vest asked in view of the fact that there was fear of the danger to consuls in giving their names if the government had sent any gunboat to Cuba for their protection in the emergency of the possibility of assassination. No one replied to this question.

Mr. Foraker said another reason for not making known the sources of information was the fear that the publication might cut off the inforamtion. The other remarks as to the danger of consuls was incidental. The intention was to protect them. Every scrap of information at the department's command, with the names of authors, would now be sent to the senate, but it would be sent as private, to be considered in executive session. This injunction applied only to giving the information to the general public. It did not apply to the senators.

Mr. Hoar said he wanted an early vote, and was anxious to avoid collision with the tariff bill. He intended speaking at length on the resolution, but had refrained and he wanted the resolution out of the way for the tariff. Mr. Gallinger said the Cuban resolution had been before the senate forty days, yet complaint was made by its opponents that they had not had time to present their views on it. He thought the senate had made a mistake in agreeing to adjourn over until Monday. He mentioned a current report that an agreement for a vote on Monday would be secured, but said there was no assurance to this effect.

Mr. Cannon said that parties may come and go, but jingoism would go on forever as long as such a mad dog as Weyler was at large. Weyler he characterized as a ravisher of women, an assassin of men, a cruciller of children. He said the senate should be a temple of liberty, but instead he could have believed, from the utterances here, that he was in the Spanish cortes. It was evident, he said, that the money changers were in the temple. He adjured the United States to learn to stand alone in their policies, internationally and financially. To bid for European capital was to invite further enslavement.

PROTEUS FOUND IN OHIO.

Perhaps the rarest reptile that lives, as well as the strangest, is the proteus, a specimen of which, the first discovered in years, was found the other day on a farm near Middletown, Ohio, says the New York Journal. During the recent floods the land was submerged, and when the waters receded muddy sediment lay thick over all the fields. In this George Worcester came upon the proteus.

The creature is about a foot long, with an elongated and cylindrical body. The tail is short, broad and compressed laterally. The lungs, which look like the gills of a fish, are on the outside of the body, and are so transparent that blood can be seen coursing through them. The breathing of the reptile is essentially aquatic, so far as the outside lungs are concerned, though it has internal lungs and rises to the surface when these are inflated.

Its skin is slimy. It has four weak legs, with three toes on each of the fore feet, and four on the hind feet. The body is half an inch in diameter, and of a pale flesh color. The teeth are small and sharp, the head triangular and the snout obtuse. At low water the proteus buries itself in the mud and lives on worms, insects and mollusks.

This is the third specimen of this marvel ever discovered in America. In Europe they are found only in the subterranean waters of caves.

WILL HAVE TO LEARN.

Wonders never will cease. The emperor of China is learning French. Recently he sought a teacher and one Li was recommended by a courtier. His majesty, however, who had acquired a very slight acquaintance with the language, soon found out that Li knew nothing about it, and Li trembled for his life, but the emperor has only condemned him to be kept in duress until he can prove that he knows French—an excellent stimulus to his studies.

MARINE GOLIATH.

Mighty Vessel of War Which Japan is Having Built.

A great vessel, the heaviest battle ship in the world, is being built as fast as men and money can carry on such a task, at the Thames Iron works, for the imperial navy of Japan, says a London letter in the Cincinnati Enquirer. She has no name, but her very proportions are sure to attract the widest attention. In naval circles she is as great an object of interest as the mammoth Oceanic, of the White Star line of passenger steamships, will prove. She will be the feminine Goliath of the seas, if she is not the terror thereof. Her length is 428 feet over all. She is 75 feet 6 inches beam, and 27 feet 3 inches deep.

These proportions mean that the new craft is to be ten feet longer and six inches wider than the largest battle ship which now floats in any water or has been contracted for. Her total displacement is to be 14,850 tons. The class of British warships which comes nearest to her in size carry 900 tons of coal each, yet the Japanese vessel's bunkers will only contain 700 tons, which, with her improved fuel system, will more than equal 1200 tons. The new ship, in fact, will have 150 tons greater displacement when she is in seagoing trim than any other battle ship afloat. To the naval mind, this fact at first does not reveal the immensity of the vessel. Perhaps it cannot better be indicated to the layman than to say that she is to the ordinary battle ship what the new German steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosso will be to the vessels that are now considered of ordinary capacity in the passenger traffic.

She is to be armored as few ships have ever been. There will, for instance, be a continuous belt of armor from stem to stern. This is an entirely new departure from the method of construction adopted with the other ships of Japan's navy. It is accounted for by the fact that the British idea, rather than the French, is being followed as a model. Japan has already had two battle ships built in this country—the Fuji and Yashima—but neither was anything like the equal of this craft that is rapidly assuming form on the stocks.

Over the central part of the ship the continuous belt of armor referred to will be nine inches thick and eight feet two inches deep. At the ends of the vessel the thickness is less, the decrease being gradual until a minimum of from four to seven inches is reached. This line of armor is known as the lower belt. Above this belt, between the barbettes, or in what the landsman calls the middle of the vessel, there is another belt of 6-inch armor, this latter extending to the height of the main deck, its total length being 250 feet. Curved transverse bulkheads of 14-inch armor protect the ends of this space. The bulkheads extend from the protective to the main deck. Thus it will be seen a complete citadel 250 feet long is formed.

The steady improvement that is taking place in the equipment, or rather the protection, of battle ships and other war vessels is demonstrated by the way in which the barbettes are arranged, this being very different from the plan ordinarily adopted. The barbettes on the Japanese vessel are contained within the curved bulkheads, an improvement that is instantly manifest to the students of naval architecture and of the best methods to protect these modern triumphs of the shipbuilder's art. The bulkheads are protected by 14-inch armor, with 4-inch teak backing. They rise to a height of four feet above the upper deck. Screened bulkheads, extending from the barbettes to the ship's side, are worked between the main and upper decks. A continuous armored deck extends from stem to stern. This deck is three inches thick in the flat part and five inches thick on the slope, tapering toward the ends. It rises from the lower edge of the armored belt to a height of three feet above the water line. The construction is of the usual double-bottomed system, the double bottom connecting with water-tight flats at the ends of the vessel, thus carrying the double bottom practically to the ends of the ship. The value of this method of construction is inestimable. Thecraft will be protected from torpedoes to a far greater extent than almost any other vessel of any navy. This very fact will make her exceedingly formidable, and, in the eyes of British naval officers, England would do well to copy the enterprise of the naval authorities of the country she once scorned. Indeed, it has been a mooted question whether Britain should permit a foreign power to have constructed within her own gates, as it were, a vessel that is really more formidable than any craft that flies the British flag. The navy of the United States has made the British naval authorities uneasy enough, and for Japan to step in with a project of this sort is a little more than that old salt, John Bull, is ready to submit to.

In addition to her splendid construction, the Japanese battle ship will have a superb armament. The main ornament consists of four 12-inch forty-caliber guns, two being in each barbette. On the main deck are eight 6-inch rapid-firing guns, while the upper deck boasts of six more. These are all above the armor side, and are, therefore, placed in separate casements having 6-inch armor. These casements can be transformed into water tight chambers. There are also twenty 12-pounder rapid-fire guns on the upper deck and eight 47-millimeter rapid-firing guns on the upper and main decks and in the military tops. There are also four 47-millimeter quick-firing guns on the bridges and upper works. There are five 18-inch torpedo discharges, one of which is protected by armor, being in the stern.

A PASTEL.

Life: A young girl sits at her window. Without the rain falls, silently, ceaselessly.

The young girl blushes.

Love has touched her maiden heart with its magic wand.

Ever and anon she sighs.

The sighs of a young maid make music for the gods.

A tear falls from the long lashes of her northeast eye.

Some day her tear will crystallize into a diamond.

Then it will be worn upon the bosom of a member of some trust or syndicate.

Until then the member will have to content himself with a rhinestone.

The young maid writes to her lover.

He is a blue-eyed boy who works in a glass factory for $4 a week.

Here is her letter:

"Bill: Kum up twonite. Dad's on a drunk. The old woman is lade up with the roomatiz. You kan rush the growler. I will swipe sum crackers off'n the baykur. We will have a loavly time.

"MOLLY."

Such is the love of the young, the true and the beautiful.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—Default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly made and delivered by Twin City Packing Company (a corporation) of St. Paul, Minnesota, mortgagor, to Granite Savings Bank and Trust Company, of Barre, Washington County, Vermont, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of January, 1895, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 9th day of January, 1895, at 1:40 o'clock p. m. in Book 101 of mortgages on page 278.

Said default consists in the non-payment of the sum of twenty-four dollars interest, which became due and payable by the terms of said mortgage, and the notes secured thereby on January 1st, 1897, all of which is yet due and owing upon said mortgage. Now by reason of said default it has become optional with the holder of said mortgage and mortgage notes to declare the whole debt secured by said mortgage to be immediately due and payable, in the exercise of which option the whole amount of said debt has been declared and is hereby declared and claimed to be due, amounting at the date of this notice, to the sum of six hundred forty and 22-100 dollars.

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale which by reason of said default has become operative and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described and situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, to-wit: Lot number seven (7), in block number one hundred forty-three (143). West Duluth, Fifth Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, which premises, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house of said county, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on Thursday, the 10th day of June, 1897, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, together with fifty dollars attorneys' fee, stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as by law provided.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage which was duly executed and delivered by Charles Larson and Rebecca Larson, his wife, mortgagors, to Marion E. Bacon, mortgagee, bearing date December thirty-first (31st), 1891, and which was duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on December thirty-first (31st), 1894, at four o'clock p. m., in Book one hundred twenty-seven (127) of mortgages, on pages three hundred fifty-two (352) and three hundred fifty-three (353) thereof; which mortgage with the principal note and coupons thereby secured, was thereafter duly assigned by said Marion E. Bacon to Addison M. Farwell, by an instrument of assignment bearing date January twenty-sixth (26th), 1895, and which was duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on February second (2d), 1895, at four (4) o'clock p. m., in Book one hundred eight (108) of mortgages, on page two hundred one (201) thereof.

And whereas said Addison M. Farwell thereafter died testate, and his will has been duly admitted to probate, and letters testamentary thereon duly issued, by the probate court of St. Louis County, Minnesota, to Maria F. Sterling and Zilla F. Wardwell, the executrices named in said will, who have heretofore qualified, and are now acting, as such executrices.

And whereas the default above mentioned consists in the non-payment of the semi-annual installment of interest upon the debt secured by said mortgage, and of the coupon given for the same, amounting to the sum of $105, which became due on January 1st, 1897, which default has continued to this time; and also in the non-payment of insurance premiums upon the premises covered by said mortgage amounting to the sum of $72, which said mortgagors have neglected and refused to pay, in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage.

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of one hundred seventy-nine and 19-100 ($179.19) dollars, interest, exchange and insurance premiums paid upon said mortgage, in accordance with the provisions thereof.

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the defaults above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: Lot number three hundred eighteen (318), of block sixteen (16), Duluth Proper, Second Division, according to the recorded plat thereof in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the fifth (5th) day of June, A. D. 1897, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt, interest and insurance premiums, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and seventy-five dollars attorney's fees, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 10th, 1897.

SUSPECTS ARRESTED.

Three Men Supposed to Have Entered the Cohen Store.

The police this morning landed two more suspects behind the bars. They are Albert and Joe St. Arnaut, and they are suspected of being the accomplices of the man Brigham who is under a charge of burglarizing the Cohen premises. Brigham had a semi-confession sweated out of him in which he implicated these two men and he also told a story about another man whom he claimed was now in Indiana. The police believe that Albert St. Arnaut is the man who is supposed to be in Indiana and that he helped Brigham to commit the robbery and that Joe kept guard outside, receiving part of the plunder as a reward.

The three men charged with the Goldberg burglary are still being detained.

Truelsen-Christensen.

There was a quiet family wedding at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mayor Truelsen, and Louis Christensen and Lena Truelsen were made man and wife. Only a very few friends outside the members of the families of the high contracting parties were present at the ceremony. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mayor Truelsen and is liberally endowed with all the attributes that combine to make an adorable woman and an estimable and devoted wife. The bridegroom is well known to the people of Duluth. He has been engaged in business for several years and has represented his ward in the council. Mr. and Mrs. Christensen will for the present make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Mitchell at the West End.

Wants it Sprinkled.

J. C. Carey, who resides upon London road, is an earnest advocate of the sprinkling of that thoroughfare. He says that the top dressing of crushed rock is so finely pulverized by the traffic during the dry weather, that it drifts all over the country in clouds, leaving the top course of the macadam sticking up through the surface covering of the road, which necessitates frequent employment of the road rollers, frightening teams and causing extra wear and tear of the nerves of the adjacent householders. If Mr. Carey thinks, the roadway were sprinkled regularly this fine dust would bind and perform the duty as a surfacing for the macadam for which it was intended.

The Gun Club Shoot.

The Central Gun club will try its new inaugurap at a shoot tomorrow afternoon at the new grounds, near Brantigan's summer garden, at Thirty-third avenue east. The grounds are on the lake shore, where last year's tournament was held, and they are very pleasantly and conveniently located. The sport will be open to all, and the regular club rate for throwing birds will be made for outsiders, instead of the double rate usually charged.

Municipal Civil Cases.

In the police court this morning Dan Coleman and John Kennedy, drunks, each got a sentence of $12 or ten days on the rock pile. Gus Magen, drunk, drew a prize package containing a reprimand and a suspended sentence. James Doland, the veteran vagrant and general all round nuisance, pleaded not guilty to the last charge of vagrancy preferred and James Millen, James Brown and G. Wilson, an oddly assorted trio of vags did the same. They will all be tried late this afternoon.

D. A. Reed Has Added Another Surety to His Bond as Engineer.

Resolution Was Passed in 1887 Requiring the Engineer to Give a Bond.

Pumphouse Committee Will Report to the Council Tonight---Other Matters.

When the aldermen meet tonight at the adjourned meeting of the council, the bond of D. A. Reed will be presented to them for approval, with the name of an additional surety thereon. Who this third bondsman may be is at present kept a profound secret, but he is said to be a gentleman whose financial standing is good beyond doubt.

The reason that impels Mr. Reed to present a bond for the acceptance of the council is due to a discovery made in the clerk's office of a resolution passed by the council in 1887, at the request of the board of public works, requiring the city engineer to give a bond, which resolution has not been rescinded, and which, therefore, it is said, holds good today. The acceptance of Mr. Reed's bond will not end the difficulty, as it is claimed that Mr. Patton will not yield up his office until ordered to do so by the court. He will take this course, he says, to protect his bondsmen.

The report of the special committee appointed to examine the pumphouse, the reception of which is the reason for the holding of the special meeting, will be presented, and it is expected that the council will resolve itself into an indignation meeting, and that some one will get a rich roast. Who it will be remains to be seen. The city engineer is willing to shoulder any blame that may justly attach to his office, but no more. The board of public works is disposed to disclaim the responsibility for any blunders, or misdeeds, and the contractor is prepared to swear that as far as he is concerned that his conduct has been upright and angel-white. Alderman Sang, however, does not agree with any of them, and he will find an able coadjutor in Alderman Jefferson in his efforts to properly locate the blame for the pumphouse fiasco.

In view of the recent severe criticisms upon the laying of the force main pipe, it is not improbable that President-elect Smith may make a short report, giving the results of his visit of inspection, made yesterday, to the scene of the pipe laying operations.

The confirmation of the appointment of John Flood as a member of the board of public works and of the election of President Smith may be brought up, but this is by no means certain.

The city attorney is due to deliver any number of legal opinions upon many momentous questions, and he may take the opportunity presented by tonight's meeting to fire some of these at the council.

The Gilbert Entertainment.

The elocutionary and musical recital at the First Christian church last evening was a delightful entertainment. The program consisted of violin solos by W. H. Gilbert numbers on the piano by Mrs. E.W. Gilbert and readings by Miss Mamie Gilbert. Every number on the program was well received, the readings by Miss Gilbert being especially good. Miss Gilbert's appearance was prepossessing, and her powers as an elocutionist were shown with good effect in the selections, "A Visit to Chicago," and in the widow's lament for "Poor Mr. Doodle." The last mentioned number created great laughter. The entertainment throughout was refined and pleasing.

Has a Big Contract.

John Agnew, the contractor, who resided in Duluth a number of years ago, has secured a big contract in Chicago. He has the job of building the pumping stations, and the contract will amount to about $2,800,000. With the extras, etc., it will undoubtedly run to over $3,000,000. Mr. Agnew and his father built the Spalding hotel. His father is now dead.

MARINE MATTERS.

The E. M. Peck. Coal Laden, Stranded at Chicago.

Chicago, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer E. M. Peck missed the harbor entrance this morning in the dense smoke which was blown on the lake from the city by the southwest wind, and stranded on Hyde Park reef, five miles south of the harbor. The Peck, it is said, had sighted the light on the breakwater, which had been mistaken for the Grosse Point light, thirteen miles north of the harbor. She was running at a good speed, supposing her arbor to be directly ahead when without warning the steamer grounded on the reef. Before she stopped she had run out four and one-half feet forward. Forty men were sent out on the tug Charnley to jettison the coal cargo, and at 10 o'clock this morning they were throwing it into the lake as fast as it could be shoveled. No attempt had been made to pull the steamer off the reef at that time.

HE MADE ENEMIES.

Cleveland, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The skipper who placed a block of Lake Superior iron ore a few days ago, has made enemies among the vessel owners who did not get a part of it, notwithstanding the low rates. Even the ore companies have surplus tonnage in a few cases and are trying to place it with other shippers at 70c for the season.

MUST SLOW DOWN.

Col. Lydecker cautions masters of steam vessels not to speed through the 20-foot channel in Lake St. Clair. This dredged cut has a uniform width of but 800 feet, with soft bottom and sides, and the practice of running through it at high speed threatens the durability of the improvement as well as the safety of navigation. The question of promulgating restrictive regulations has recently been under serious consideration, but the secretary of war hopes a cautionary notice to vessel owners and masters against high speed in this cut may be all that is necessary.

STEAMER CADILLAC RELEASED.

After 8000 bushels of wheat had been discharged upon lighters from the steamer Cadillac tugs pulled the craft off Starve Island reef and accompanied her to Sandusky, where the cargo is consigned. The nature and extent of the steamer's damage cannot be determined until after she has been placed in drydock at Cleveland. It is now thought that the cargo suffered no damage from water.

MARINE NOTES.

The body of Leander Guion, engineer of the tug Blazer, who was lost overboard in Lake St. Clair, several weeks ago, was found near Grosse point on Friday.

A Cleveland shipper says he cannot understand why owners are sending their vessels to the head of Lake Superior with coal at 30 cents when there is nothing in sight to come back. "If the oremen are unable to get business for their own vessels," he said, "there is not much chance for outsiders."

The longshoremen's strike at Detour has been amicably adjusted.

Shipments of coal from Buffalo last week were 72,000 tons.

At West Bay City on Saturday Capt. James Davidson launched the new wooden tow-barge Crete. She is 300 feet long over all with 45½ feet beam and 24 feet molded depth, and will carry 130,000 bushels of wheat on 16 feet draught. On the same day Capt. Davidson also launched two unrigged barges, which are to be utilized in carrying ice from Lake St. Clair to Detroit.

The tug Raber, of the Barry line, arrived this morning and the line is now complete with four tugs.

SPRING SUGGESTIONS.

Take Special Care During Nature's House-Cleaning Time.

Avoid draughts and sudden changes of temperature.

Do not discard your warm winter clothing too soon. It is better to suffer a little inconvenience than to take cold.

Remember that one is especially liable to contract a bad cold or chill at this season of the year.

A cough or cold contracted between the seasons is the most annoying kind, and may last through the summer.

To make the home happy, keep the health secure. Poverty may come, but it can be endured if the health remains.

No health was ever maintained without assistance. Health, like the body, must be supported. But do not make a mistake and do it foolishly.

If you feel a cough or a cold coming on, take a drink of pure whisky at once. It will keep the blood in circulation, and is the best preventive against the diseases of the season.

Remember that only pure whisky should be taken. Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky has the strongest recommendations from the leading scientists and medical men. It is the only standard medicinal whisky. Take no other from your druggist.

INTEREST RUNS HIGH.

Ball Game Saturday to Be Red Hot.

The Chester Terrace and Ashbala baseball clubs are in daily, almost hourly practice for the match game to be played in the West End ball park Saturday afternoon for the benefit of the women's and children's home. This game promises to be not only the principal sporting event of the season but possibly a sanguinary conflict of a cerulean hue. A brass band, attractive uniforms, two balls, a bat and a modern mascot have been provided for the occasion.

As the rivalry between the two teams has been growing to such great proportions recently it has been agreed, in order to prevent any disastrous conflict on the diamond, that each club shall select its own umpire and if any disputed decision proves too difficult to settle amicably, the umpires will be permitted to fight it out on behalf of the respective clubs which they represent. Although the players in each team, model athletes each and every one of them, have taken a binding oath not to interfere with any differences that may come up between the umpires, precautions have been taken in the event of the excitement of the day being so great that they are made to forget their obligations, and take a hand in the expected conflict, to provide for the maimed and wounded. A corps of efficient surgeons consisting of Drs. V. Smith, McCormick, McComb and Magie, will be on the field under the protection of the police to perform this service. G. Fred Stevens will perform the dangerous office of umpire for the Chester Terrace club, while G. A. Tomlinson will undertake a similar duty for the Ashtabulas. The game will be called at 3 o'clock. Following is the list of players and their positions:

Chester.		Ashtabula.
Edson	Catcher	Baldrick
Wade	Pitcher	Mosher
Sterritt	First base	Larke
West	Second base	Crass
Adams	Short stop	Bagley

MANY MODELS RECEIVED.

Historical Society Receives Additions to Its Museum.

The Duluth Historical and Scientific association yesterday received from the patent office at Washington, eight cases of models, a part of the lot secured by Capt. J. W. Miller for the association. The models are not donated, but merely loaned, but as the government seldom or never asks their return it is practically a gift. The lot received yesterday includes 439 models, which will be added to the museum as soon as possible. At present the museum is in a very well-filled condition. It is so full that its two large rooms will hold no more exhibits comfortably. Consequently the models will have to wait until some arrangements are made for their reception. The cases will remain unpacked for several days at least, and the exact nature and description of their contents will remain a mystery.

Report Not Ready.

The report of the pumphouse investigating committees was expected to have been completed this afternoon, but at 2 o'clock it was announced that it would take two or three hours more to get it ready. No idea as to what it will be would be given.

Another List of Lands.

Another list of railroad lands was received at the auditor's office this morning, to add to the lists already received to be placed on the lists for taxation under the Anderson amendment to the constitution. They belong to the Wisconsin, Minnesota & Pacific railroad and include about 12,000 acres.

CLEVEDON

"Tourists" Now Rule Supreme in a Deserted Village in Wisconsin.

Hotel and Homes Given Up to Weary Wiggles and His Tribe.

The Former Industrious Inhabitants of Clevedon Have Left En Masse.

Postmaster Hellnski, it was stated the other day, has received word from the postoffice department that the postoffice at Clevedon, a little town in Wisconsin, on the south shore of Lake Superior, has been closed, and he is instructed to take charge of the office furniture, etc., and bring them to Duluth. Thereby hangs a tale. Clevedon is situated in Douglas county, on a clearing cut out of a dense pine forest, where the river Brule gives up its rippling waters to Lake Superior, and has an average population of not less than 200 souls. But its name has been changed in recent years. It is now called Trampville, because it is the home of tramps exclusively and has been for nearly three years. Previous to that time it was known as Clevedon, but that name is seldom heard now, notwithstanding that it was once a thriving little village with graded streets, broad sidewalks and rows of dwelling houses and stores.

Clevedon was founded about fifteen years ago by a syndicate of English capitalists, whose scheme was to build up a lake port town to rival Duluth and Superior. The Englishmen thought there should be one more lake port city on the south shore of the "great unsalted," and accordingly determined to establish one at the point suggested by a resident agent. They purchased the required land, appropriated vast sums for the purpose of improvement, and there sprung up a magic city in the pine woods, which seemed at one time to be the Lake Superior city of destiny. Neat little cottages, handsome store buildings, boarding houses, a hotel and a costly wood working mill equipped with expensive machinery for the manufacture of various hardwood products were constructed in a remarkably short space of time. All of these buildings were faced upon a broad and winding main street, which was turnpiked at the expense of the promoters.

The town was built, however, before a tide of migration had been turned toward it, and it seemed provokingly difficult to induce people with more or less capital to believe that in Clevedon they would find their fortunes, but the zealous labors of the promoters were at last crowned with success, and had it not been for an unfortunate disagreement between the promoters, Weary Wiggles and his associates might never have acquired title to the handsome little burg by right of possession. Prospective residents came in droves for awhile, and it was claimed for Clevedon at one time that she had a population of 1000 people. But these people, though at first impressed with the location and prospects for future greatness, discovered after living on hope for some months that the bubble was no more; that the great resources of the town had failed of development. They left the place as they had come—in droves—and Clevedon, the magic city, dropped into the lethargy of a deserted village.

Several attempts were made to revive Clevedon, but without avail. But the turnpike street is still there and the buildings are occupied, but the tenants have no calling, except to be merry, and the Englishmen make no attempt to collect from the invaders.

As before stated, Weary Wiggles discovered Trampville about three years ago. He took possession of it in the name of his tribe and the growth of the village from that time on has been healthy, though perhaps not very clean. During last winter the tie-walkers entered Trampville in small bands, and by Christmas time there were said to be 300 residents in the place, all without visible means of support, but all comfortably situated in quarters of their own selection with plenty of wood to burn. Just how all these people saved themselves from starvation is a secret that can only be told by the tramp himself, but it is a well-nown fact that they did live there 300 strong last winter and no cases of starvation have thus far been reported to the authorities. Some say they lived upon fish taken out of Lake Superior and the deer that abound in that region. Others say they robbed the root houses of the numerous settlers, and it is probable that both theories are correct, but the settlers made no general complaint and the game warden made no arrests, though there were reports in general circulation that deer were being slaughtered wholesale all winter.

During the first two years of its existence Trampville was simply a half way resting place for the wayfarers. They went and came in pairs and dozens, but seldom remained in the town over a day or two, but last winter many of them made Trampville their rendezvous for weeks and even months. It was an exceptionally hard winter for traveling, because the weather was severe, and the handouts were scarce, but they could always find a cheerful welcome in their own town, and it was convenient of access, while the prospects for "grub" were just as good as on the road, all of which conditions had the effect of swelling the population of the place. Since the weather became mild there has been an exodus from the town, and now it is claimed it is deserted save for the presence of a few straggling "travelers," but the old-established residents will have made the rounds in another month, and then the tide will turn again toward Trampville.

The big frame building once occupied as a hotel now furnishes the principal roosting place of the inhabitants of the town. Its lobby, containing a great old-fashioned fireplace, serves the purposes of kitchen, smoking room, dining room and sleeping room, and every night during the winter great curls of smoke may be seen coming from the chimney, while dozens of seedy individuals may be seen huddled about the blazing log engaged in the regulation pastimes, some smoking, some chewing, some telling stories, others listening and still others sleeping the slumber of the weary traveler. The smaller houses are usually occupied for sleeping places, probably because of their fairly well preserved condition, but the hotel is the general rendezvous and every traveler registers there when he comes to town. All this time Trampville has been without a municipal organization, but the residents have finally determined that an organization shall be effected without unnecessary delay. Just how to get at the matter of organization has been the all-absorbing topic of discussion in Trampville for two years, but now a plan has been agreed upon which is concurred in by the masses and which is expected will provide the town with a novel, but effective system of government. Conspicuously posted on the buildings of the town is the following notice:

"To All Residents of This Town: Take notice that on the 5th day of July, 1897, there will be an election held at the hotel at 8 o'clock in the evening for the purpose of electing a mayor of the city, a treasurer, a clerk and three trustees in accordance with a resolution adopted by a meeting of citizens held March 5 last. The officers so elected shall hold office as long as they remain in the city, but in the event of their departure from the city to be gone more than twenty-four hours, it shall be their duty to resign and appoint successors.

"It shall be the duty of the mayor to preside at all meetings of citizens, to enforce the laws made by the board of trustees, to do all in his power to protect the rights of citizens in all respects and to encourage in every way the growth of the town.

"It shall be the duty of the clerk to make and preserve the record of meetings and the trustees will be required to retain the custody of all property in the city and to make the laws for the people's government. COMMITTEE."

It will be interesting to learn how much ballot box stuffing will take place at the election.

THE BANKER'S BLUFF.

Detroit Free Press: "You can never realize that there is skill to be exercised in the making of an effectual bluff. Nearly every man at a pinch is anxious to frighten the opposition, but everything depends upon the way in which it is done." This was the philosophy of the retired banker, and a story went with it.

"In one of the Colorado towns that has since become a city I was running a private bank and there was another institution of the same kind in the place. We loaned heavily on real estate in those days and a sudden collapse of the boom left our securities greatly depreciated. Under such circumstances rumors that we could not pay soon gained circulation and we had to make the best preparation we could for a run.

"It came in true Western fashion, with a rush, with threats and a flourish of guns among the more excited. My rival took the old plan of paying in but one window, making each transaction as long as possible and thus staving off the inevitable while hoping against hope. He announced to the crowd every few minutes that he could pay dollar for dollar, but his anxiety was so apparent that it made the depositors more insistent.

"I took the other tack in making my bluff. I had rake-t together enough to stand a good stiff pull, so I told all hands to stop everything else and ordered each one to become a paying teller. I also posted notices that the doors of the bank would remain open till every one was paid, even if it took all night. This set the crowd to guessing and they eased up a good deal. My next move was to place money in the hands of friends, have them mingle with the mob besieging the other bank and then rush over and deposit with me. This ruse turned the tide and by 6 o'clock I had more on deposit than when the run began."

WAR MAY RESULT

The Senate Has Passed the Morgan Resolution to Recognize the Cuban Belligerency.

Motion to Refer It to the Foreign Relations Committee Was Voted Down.

The Vote Against the Reference Was Thirty-Four, Indicating the Resolution's Strength.

Washington, May 20.—Only the front rows in the senate galleries were occupied when the session opened today as the Morgan resolution would not come up until 2 o'clock, but at 1:30, after a brief debate on the lack of facilities of shipping supplies to India, at the request of Mr. Morgan the resolution was taken up and Mr. Thurston addressed the senate.

Senator Thurston finished his Cuban speech by declaring that the United States should send her strongest battleship to Cuba, station her in the harbor of Havana where her frowning guns might awe the spirit of tyranny and revive hope in those struggling to be free. Mr. Thurston in the course of his speech warmly demanded immediate action on the resolution; he declared the question rose above party. He scorned the idea that fever existed in Cuba. The only fever he said was the fever of ravished women and starving men, the fever sung by uncoffined dead. He had full confidence in the president he said, but in this crisis congress, as well as the president, had responsibility.

Senator Elkins followed in opposition to the resolution.

The motion to refer the Morgan resolution to the foreign relations commitee was lost. Thes vote was: Yeas, 19; nays, 34. The detailed vote follows: Yeas—Allison, Barrows, Caffrey, Davis, Fairbanks, Gear, Hale, Hanna, Hansbrough, Hawley, Hoar, McBride, Perkins, Shoup, Spooner, Wellington, Wetmore, White and Wilson—19.

Nays—Bacon, Baker, Bate, Berry, Butler, Cannon, Carter, Chandler, Chilton, Clark, Cockrell, Daniel, Gallinger, Harris of Kansas, Heitfeld, Jones of Arkansas, Kyle, Mantle, Mason, Mills, Morgan, Pasco, Pettigrew, Pettus, Pritchard, Rawlins, Roach, Stewart, Thurston, Tillman, Turner, Turpie, Walthall and Warren—34.

Mr. Fairbanks offered an amendment for intervention by this government for Cuban independence. Mr. Caffrey followed in a set speech.

The yeas and nays were ordered on the Morgan Cuban resolution. Mr. Hale said nothing more could be done to delay it. He said it was evident the opposition was trying to shape the policy of the administration so far as the senate could go. He expressed the opinion that the adoption of the resolution would involve us in war.

Later—The Morgan resolution has passed the senate.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 20.—The house has unanimously passed the Cuban resolution appropriating $50,000 for food and supplies. Mr. Bailey offered a motion to recommit with instructions to report a resolution recognizing Cuban belligerency, but it was tabled by the solid vote of the Republicans.

Only For Pleasure.

President Hayes of the St. Paul & Duluth, accompanied by Mrs. Hayes and their two daughters, arrived in a special car last night from the Pacific coast, where the family have been on an excursion trip. Mr. Hayes was accompanied by Vice President Plough and Assistant General Manager L. S. Miller. The visit of Mr. Hayes is not his annual trip of inspection. That will occur later and at present the president and his family are only on pleasure bent. The party leaves tonight for Philadelphia.

Confirmed the Sale.

The barge S. Clement, a part of the B. B. Inman estate, has been sold by the Duluth Trust company, Inman's assignee, to the Northern Steamship company, which is using it as a lighter, for $25. The petition of the assignee for the confirmation of the sale was filed this morning and it states that the estimated value of the barge is $2000, that it is encumbered by an overdue mortgage for $4000 held by Hawgood & Avery, of Cleveland, Ohio, and by claims amounting to $600. Judge Cant confirmed the sale.

Miss Elsie Prescott Dead.

Miss Elsie Prescott died last evening about 6 o'clock, at Phoenix, Arizona. She had been suffering for some time with lung trouble and about two months' ago left for Colorado and Arizona. She seemed to be improving and the last report received here was very encouraging. No particulars have been received, but it is believed that the end must have come rather suddenly. Miss Prescott was 16 years of age and was an exceptionally bright young lady. She was one of the most popular scholars in the high school, and at the literary society contest last year won in the elocutionary contest. The body will be brought to Duluth for burial and is expected about next Monday.

MARINE MATTERS.

Wild Ore Freights Continued to Rule Weak.

Cleveland, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wild ore rates are weak, especially from the head of Lake Superior. Quite a large fleet of vessels is bound to the head of the lakes without charters for the return trips, and if shippers were so disposed they could reduce the 60-cent rate and the vessels would probably be compelled to accept the reduction in order to get anything to come back.

COAL CHARTERS.

Buffalo, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charters: Street, Losen, Godfrey, Duluth, all-rail 25 cents. A leading coal shipper is of the opinion that there will be plenty of coal to go in good time. He looks for only a moderate dropping off frm last season, possibly 10 per cent.

CANADIANS COMPLAIN.

The Americans Undersell Them on Wire Nails.

Montreal, May 20.—The wire and cut nail manufacturers have been shut out of the Western Canadian market by American rivals as a result of the changes in the tariff. There is consequently much complaint. Americans laid down the wire nails in Duluth at 55 cents per 100 pounds, as against 67 cents for Canadian. Large orders have ben procured by Americans in Winnipeg. There is no base price for wire nails now in Eastern Canada, Pittsburg prices controlling the market. Cut nails have fallen to $1.90 a keg, a decline of $1 since the tariff changes.

CYCLONE'S RAVAGES.

Carthage, South Dakota, Now Mourns Ruined Buildings.

Omaha, May 20.—A special to the Bee from Howard, S. D., says: A cyclone passed over the northern part of Miner county last night. The greatest damage was done at Carthage. Patton & Jackson's elevator, the Northwestern depot and several smaller buildings were destroyed. No lives were lost. The damage is large to farm property.

ERIC COTTA CAUGHT.

Sepola's Assailant at Fergus Falls is Captured.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eric Cotta, the assailant of John F. Sepala, was captured last night after an exciting hunt. He admits the trouble with Sepola but says he struck him in self defense. Sepola is still in a critical condition.

JURY DISAGREED.

Progress of the Durnam Bribery Case at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, May 20.—The jury in the bribery case against Alderman George Durnam, after considering the evidence two days, found itself unable to agree and was today discharged.

The case against John A. Gilman, trustee of the state soldiers' home, for exacting money from a contractor, was dismissed today on motion of the state. The principal witness told a different story on the stand from that he told the grand jury on which the indictment was based.

TO STOP THE PRACTICE.

St. Paul & Duluth Railroad Causes Two Arrests.

In the police court today, before Judge Boyle, Richard Five and Edward Olson, two respectable looking lads, were charged by Detective Murphy of the St. Paul & Duluth special police with "boarding a train while in motion," contrary to the city ordinance.

Mr. Murphy explained to the court that the company's trains had to come to a stop near Garfield avenue that being a junction point, and that it had become a practice among a lot of men and half grown boys to board the train just as it started again and take a ride to the Union depot. He explained also that these arrests were not made because the company cared about the people riding a few blocks, but because it was highly dangerous to the people themselves and a menace to the company.

Judge Boyle fined both boys $1 apiece and remitted the costs and in so doing the court took occasion to say with considerable emphasis that in future persons who persisted in boarding moving trains after being warned by the trainmen not to do so, as in the case of the two defendants, if brought before him would be fined to the limit prescribed by the ordinance which fine is $20.

Lane McGregor, as agent for the property, paid $7 costs for a dirty cellar at 624 West Superior street, and one drung and a vag, who pleaded not guilty were remanded.

DOYLE CASE DISMISSED.

Error in the Complaint Was Discovered.

Yesterday afternoon the case of Frank L. Doyle against the McCord Lumber company came to an unexpected end. The plaintiff discovered an error in the complaint and asked leave to amend it. The request was denied, whereupon the plaintiff moved to dismiss the case without prejudice. This motion was granted. As there were no more jury cases, except those in which John Jenswold appears, and as he is engaged in Room 2, Judge Ensign could take up nothing more. The case of Hill against Winston Bros., is still on trial before Judge Cant.

Next week one of the judges will take up the court calendar while Judge Moer continues with the criminal cases and the third judge carries on the personal injury cases. The following call of court cases for next week has been made:

Monday—73½, 159, 4, 17, 19, 20.
Tuesday—28, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41.
Wednesday—43, 44, 48, 49, 50, 51.

Clan Stewart Social.

Clan Stewart held its usual meeting in its hall in the Kalamazoo block, Chief W. D. Gordon presiding. Two candidates were balloted for, one new application was read and Secretary Macauley reported the receipt of a large batch of certificates for the new members. Simon Clack and John Christie reported progress on arrangements for the Fourth of July games to be held at the fair grounds. Every effort is being made to have a great time on that occasion and a good prize list is being made for the contests so as to insure success.

At 9 p. m. the clan meeting was closed and the hall thrown open to the lady friends of the clansmen. The orchestra soon was at it and dance succeeded dance till daylight. Of course Professor Moon was there and the noise of the pipes let the passers-by on Superior street understand that the clan piper had recovered from a sickness that had laid him up for a couple of weeks. Quite a delegation was present from Superior.

General Presbyterian Assembly Begins Its Annual Session at Lake Eagle.

Many Prominent Divines of the Church Present at the Session.

Sermon By Dr. Withrow, the Retiring Moderator Was a Fine Effort.

Winona Assembly, Eagle Lake, Ind., May 20.—Alternate rain and sunshine today greeted the opening of the 109th general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America. At the hour appointed for the opening session the platform was occupied by a long line of commissioners waiting to be assigned to permanent seats. This feature, by which delegations were seated together, was an innovation. Fifteen minutes later the assembly opened with prayer by Dr. Arthur J. Brown, secretary of the board of foreign missions. The devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. John L. Withrow, the retiring moderator. The scriptures were read by Dr. George L. Spingler, of Orange, N. J., and the assembly was led in prayer by the Rev. Dr. "Father" Byron Sunderland, of Washington.

The platform was occupied by a number of prominent divines, besides those already mentioned, the clerks of the assembly, Drs. William and S. Roberts, and William E. Moore; Dr. Wilson, of New York; Dr. Logan, of Scranton; Dr. Worrall, of Danville, and several others. The opening sermon by the retiring medorator, Dr. Withrow, was upon the "Chiefest Grace of Christianity," and was based on first Peter, fourth chapter and eighth verse.

He first examined the nature of the grace, saying that not a few confined the idea of charity to alms-giving. But there was more than alms deeds meant by the Holy Spirit when he bid us "above all things have fervent charity among yourselves." The substantive term in the original, translated charity in the text, was one of two that stood for love in our language. It was not love as defined in Ticker's philosophy, nor was as described in Tennyson's graceful verse. It was not such love that holy scripture extolled and called upon us to have among ourselves. The life of definition must be dropped many a fathom lower to touch the bottom sense of this divinest term. And when we did take soundings in the depths of scripture what riches were found reposing in that one little word "love." For it, and it alone of the words of the language was ample enough to comprehend, complete and crown our conception of God, for "God is love."

Eliminate from the gospel what it had concerning the love of God, and nothing left would serve a human heart more than an empty cupboard would a hungry man. To make the message of God's love impressively plain was the supreme responsibility of those who knew it, more than to do anything else. Here, then, was discovered the source and spring of the charity which the text demanded. It was the deepest pulse of the life of the city, which must be kept beating in every one who would hope to pass the great crisis which is yet to come on Christians and the visible church. It was but as we "loved one another" that "God abideth in us." Thus the question of one's tolerance towards others of opposite opinion, and our practice of principles was made a criterion of Christian character.

He next considered the greatness of the need of this grace and said its possession alone proved one to be a member of the Lord's body. Eloquence of Christian profession did not prove the possession of Christian principles. Though he should subscribe his belief in every vowel point, paragraph and portion of the Hebrew scriptures, and to every accent and affirmation of the revised New Testament; and though we were ready to drive out of the church, or to put to death any who would not agree to such an extreme doctrine of inspiration, yet if his heart were not gentle and tolerant, and tenderly careful of the faith and feelings of others, then he was nothing, of no account, according to Paul's estimate of what it took to make a Christian. Let conscience do its perfect work and place each where he belonged, whether inside or outside the lines of believers.

We live in the most restless age our earth has had since Adam came upon it. Everywhere there was disquiet and dissatisfaction with existing civil, economic, social and religious conditions. Idolatries were dying and atheism was succeeding in heathen states, because nothing better than the discardede belief as offered in their stead. And in countries where the cross of Christ had a supremacy over all other insignia of religion, there was a withholding of acceptance of Christianity, and a looseness of loyalty in many who did accept, which might well awaken apprehension for the future. And there was enough evidence to indicate that the intelligent and thoughtful were apprehensive.

For what plentiful devices were invented to induce the unchurched to come into the fold. Even the sobriety and solemnities of religion was sacrificed to sensationalism in hope of catching the careless. But the decoy did not succeed more than fairly well with such as showed a studied shyness of the church. What would draw them? Would wider learning and sharper criticism of creeds multiply the followers of Christ? With all the service that learning had rendered to Christianity it had never been sufficient of itself to fill empty pews on Sunday, nor greatly multiply names on the sacramental rolls. Still it was a most common remark, that something is wanting more than they had to recommend the religion they professed to those who were passing it by.

Was there any reasonable grounds for doubting that the topic pointed to the supply of the need; "above all things have fervent love among yourselves." Could anyone estimate the salutary effect it would have upon those making no claim to the Christian name, if from this day on there should never be heard one harsh word between those who profess to be brethren in Christ? Divergence of views there must be arising out of constitutional and educational causes. But what was needed was such fervent charity among them that conflicts between Christians would be unknown. When such a condition should prevail among Christians, men of the world would not mock at the next. "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." For they would no longer see faction pulling the hair of faction, as soon as the amen ended a pious service of prayer and song.

In that happy and halcyon day which they might hope for, the world outside the church, tossed as the world was with troubious thoughts and civil convulsions, would see such condition of amity and calm within the communion of saints as would make multitudes crave admission as ever a sailor did a safe harbor. Thus could the world be won and by no other means. The poor heart of humanity never became so hopeless as not to believe in the power of clirity and the felicity of fervent love to lift it to a better life and make it happy there. And this it expected first and most from those who claimed to be His, who said "I command you, that ye love one another."

ROMEYN'S CASE.

Findings Will Be Submitted to the President.

Washington, May 20.—The judge advocate general of the army has completed his examination of the record of the courtmartial in the case of Capt. Henry Romeyn, Fifth Infantry, who was convicted of assaulting Lieut. Michael O'Brien of the same regiment at Fort McPherson, Ga. The case is now in the hands of Secretary Alger for review. The secretary may recommend to the president what action shall be taken, but he is powerless to take such action of his own accord. The president may in turn approve the findings and abate the sentence or send the case back to the court for further proceedings. It is understood that the president will act within a short time for the reason that the officer would in the regular course be placed on the retired list of the army by June 1.

NEW YORK'S CAPITOL FIRE.

Albany, N. Y., May 20.—A temporary roofing over the eastern approach to the capitol caught fire at 1 o'clock today. A stiff east wind was blowing and in five minutes the entire capitol was filled with stifling smoke. Great excitement was occasioned throughout the departments. The structure which is burning is directly in front of the private rooms of the judges of the court of appeals, which are filled with valuable law libraries and documents.

ITS LICENSE REVOKED.

Topeka, Kan., May 20.—Wedd McNall, superintendent of insurance, today revoked the license of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of New York, and ordered the company to cease doing business in Kansas.

Costa Rica's President Sends a Cheerful Message to Congress.

The Country Is Entirely Peaceful With All Other Nationalities.

A Judicial Congress of Central American States to Be Held.

Washington, May 20.—A copy of the message of the president of the republic of Costa Rica, to the national congress of that country which opened its regular session May 1, has been received by Senor Calvo, the minister of Costa Rica in Washington. It speaks of the encouragements which have characterized the year and of the largely satisfactory solution arrived at in questions engaging the government's attention. The president says that public order has not suffered the slightest change and that since Costa Rica has entered upon the fullness of her sovereignty at no time has the status of her international relations appeared in every sense more satisfactory than at the present.

The message speaks of the establishment of the greater republic of Central America, composed of the states of Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua, and says it constitutes an act of sufficient significance in the political march of Central America. This new political entity, inspired in sentiments highly patriotic, is directed towards reconstruction of the former Central American fatherland. Mention is made of the cordial relations maintained by Costa Rica with the new political entity from which the former government has received unequivocal proofs of sympathy. The union is regarded by the president as a guarantee of peace to Central America. Costa Rica has not yet joined the compact. The government regarding it necessary for the present at least, for reasons which are set forth.

Reference is made to the Central American exposition promoted by Guatemala, to which Costa Rica has contributed. Costa Rica has also received the idea, proposed by Guatemala, to organize in that republic a judicial congress to engage in the study of the varied legislation of the sister republics, in order to obtain, as far as possible, uniformity in their respective codes, the adoption of a single monetary system and a system of weights and measures, and of a law for public instruction.

PARIS AGREEMENT.

Canadian Government Will Not Amend Conditions.

Ottawa, Ont., May 20.—A statement was made by the government in the house of commons last night that on account of much dissatisfaction having arisen among the Americans concerned in the Bering sealing, the government of the United States had represented to the imperial government the urgent necessity of amending the rules laid down by the Paris arbitrators in order to allay the irritation occasioned among the American sealers by the operation of the regulations.

The British government had referred the request to the Canadian government, being the parties mainly affected by the proposal of the United States. The Canadian government, however, saw no reason to accept the proposed amendment to the present sealing regulations, and had therefore refused to consent. The result is that there will be no modification of the Paris agreement, which will go on undisturbed in its operations until abrogated by expiration of time. The agreement was in force for five years, dating from 1893.

LAKE FRONT CASE.

Commissioner Hermann Has Made His Decision.

Washington, May 20.—The Chicago lake front case has been decided by Commissioner Hermann of the general land office, and the opinion will probably be announced on Friday. Judge Hermann said today that his decision would be formally filed and promulgated through the proper bureau of the land office before it would be made public, in fact, he said that he would not make the decision public at all, but would deliver it to the secretary of the interior, and the onus of giving out the decision will therefore rest on that official. Judge Hermann said that the experience of his predecessor, Judge Lamoreux, had induced him to take extreme precautions in this case.

CHICAGO LABORER SUICIDES.

Chicago, May 20.—Standing beside the Indian monument, commemorating the Fort Dearborn massacre, which stand adjoining George M. Pullman's residence at Calumet avenue and Eighteenth street, an unidentified man put an end to his existence. He fired a bullet into his right temple and fell upon his face behind the statue with the revolver clasped in his hand. Albert Luettich, a gardner employed by Mr. Pullman, was standing but a few feet distant when the man drew his revolver and attempted to prevent him from shooting himself, but was not quick enough. The suicide had evidently been a laborer, but there was nothing about him which could identify him.

IDAHO TOWN DESTROYED.

Boise, Idaho, May 20.—Information has been received here that the town of Bonanza in Caster county, was destroyed by fire a few days ago. There are no particulars.

A SILVER CONFERENCE.

Washington, May 20.—Twenty-five of the most prominent leaders of the three silver parties dined with Chairman Jones at Newland's Monday night. Butler and Towne were present.

The dinner developed into a conference relative to resisting the efforts of the gold Democrats to dominate the party, and all the silver Democrats present declared in

The measurements of death are a few inches of trivial disorders, multiplied by many feet of neglect. If a man or woman will take care of the little trivial disorders, there is no need to fear the big maladies, and long-life and happiness will be the reward. The little disorders that cause the majority of big sicknesses, are the trivial derangements of the digestion that most people pay no heed to. Good digestion feeds and builds up a man; bad digestion starves him in every tissue, muscle, nerve-fiber, and brain-cell.

Bad digestion leads to consumption, blood and skin diseases, and nervous exhaustion and prostration. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver and prevents and cures consumption, blood and skin diseases, and nervous troubles. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, and nerve tonic. Druggists sell it and have nothing else "just as good."

"I have lately given Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery a trial," writes Miss C. M. Malette, of Houston, Harris Co., Texas, "and it has completely cured me of very serious and obstinate disorders in which the heart's action was impaired. I took it for two weeks. I began to experience less discomfort from my illness, after about the fourth dose, and in four or five days still less, and several days after I was surprised to find that I was actually better. Two weeks having passed every symptom had disappeared."

The man or woman who neglects constipation is stering up in the system a store of disorders that will culminate in some serious and possibly fatal malady. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a safe, sure, speedy and permanent cure for constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Druggists sell them.

minds table terms that such a result as this was impossible, and that there would be neither compromise nor surrender.

Silver representatives and the Populists present announced the loyalty of their parties to Democracy while remained true to the Chicago platform and under the present leadership.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Ex-Judge W. A. Vincent, attorney for Adolph Luetgert, the sausage manufacturer at Chicago, accused of murdering his wife, has issued a statement to the public in which he asserts that Mrs. Luetgert is alive, or was four days subsequent to the date upon which the police claim the murder was committed.

In Manyaska township, about seven miles south of Sherburne, Minn., four boys were struck by a bolt of lightning. Two of them were instantly killed and the other two were severely injured and at this time it is doubtful if the injured will recover. It was shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and the children were coming from school.

At Kingston, Jamaica, the case against Capt. Edward Murphy, of the steamer Marburg, who was arrested on Sept. 1, 1896, charged with filibustering has been dismissed with costs. The British steamer Fifth Lord Cairn, which sailed from Philadelphia on May 12 for Port Antonio, Jamaica, has arrived there and reports having been chased by a Spanish gunboat when off Cape Maysi.

The Wisconsin Central has announced that it will meet the round trip rate of $18.75 made by the Soo line from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Detroit for the meeting of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. The rate is something under one fare for the round trip and the Western roads are looking for the rate to demoralize the regular one-way tariff between St. Paul and Detroit.

Illness of students prevented a sale to satisfy a court judgment and drove a college professor and attending officers from the campus of Macalester college in St. Paul yesterday. J. J. Trask was two years ago a professor at Macalester and when his service ended there was still due him about $250. He secured a judgment and a sale of college effects was to have been made yesterday to satisfy the judgment.

At Greenville, S. C., the condition of Senator Earle is such that his recovery is almost hopeless.

THE PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

Constantinople, May 20.—Although it is not definitely decided, it is thought the peace negotiations will be conducted between Turkey and Greece direct and that, afterwards following the precedent of the treaty of St. Stefano, the terms will be submitted to a European conference, which will probably meet in Paris.

BURNED

Meridian, Mississippi, Loses Its Famous Southern Hotel By Fire.

Narrow Escape of the Guests at a Very Early Hour.

Queer Accident at a Natural Gas Well in Pennsylvania.

Meridian, Miss., May 20.—The Southern hotel, one of the finest blocks of its kind in the South, was damaged to the extent of $150,000 by fire early this morning. The fire broke out in the kitchen on the top floor and spread with such rapidity that the firemen had a hard time saving the block from destruction. The hotel was well filled with guests and a wild panic ensued when the alarm was sounded, but so far as known no lives were lost, though there were several narrow escapes. There were a number of stores and offices on the ground floor of the hotel building, all of which suffered great damage from fire and water.

The Southern hotel carried only $65,000 insurance on the building and $20,000 on the fixtures. The individual losses and insurance cannot be ascertained at this hour. The fire was miserably managed on the part of the volunteer firemen and has created such dissatisfaction that it will probably result in the abolition of volunteer fire protection and the establishment of a paid department by the city government.

The money and books of the First National bank were safely removed to the Meridian National bank. The Southern hotel will be rebuilt.

NATURAL GAS EXPLODES.

Queer Accident Resulting From Lighting a Cigar.

Bradford, Pa., May 20.—Near Sugar Grove, Warren county, yesterday, a test well drilled for oil, was being shot with a torpedo. There was no flow of oil, but natural gas in great quantities gushed from the casing. A spectator wanted to light a cigar and the flame of his match ignited the gas. There was a terrific explosion which scattered the spectators in all directions.

Postmaster Balton, Dr. Kelly, L. W. King, and two other persons named King, were frightfully burned about the head, face and hands. Several others were slightly burned.

HORATIO KING DEAD.

Buchanan's Postmaster General Succumbs to La Grippe.

Washington, May 20.—Gen. Horatio King, who was postmaster general during a portion of Buchanan's administration, died in this city at 8:20 this morning. He was in his 86th year and died from the effects of an attack of la grippe. His wife survives him. Mr. King was appointed first assistant postmaster general in 1854, serving under Postmaster General Holt, and President Buchanan, less than a month before his term expired, appointed Mr. King postmaster general. He served in the capacity from February 12, 1861, until March 5 following, when he was succeeded by Montgomery Blair.

INTERESTING DIVORCE SUIT.

Tacoma, Wash., May 20.—In the superior court yesterday Mary Seattle, said to be a niece of the old Indian chief Seattle, appeared to testify in a divorce suit she has brought against John Seattle, her spouse, who is over 90 years of age. John married the widow Seattle five years ago and after a stormy experience of two years, went back to his own ranch, consisting of eighty acres of valuable valley land which Mrs. Seattle wants given to her. The complainant alleges cruel treatment and failure to provide.

TORONTO'S COSTLY BLAZE.

Toronto, Ont., May 20.—The John Eaton company's departmental store and stock, approximating $250,000, went up in flames at 3:30 late this morning. The origin of the fire is unknown and will remain a mystery. John Eaton, whose name the operating firm used for business purposes, states that the loss is fully covered by insurance. Buildings adjoining suffered from smoke and water to the extent of about $25,000.

BRAINS AND KIDNEYS

Abusing One Brings on Diseases Affecting Both.

Why Men Die of Bright's Disease —This Disease, as Well as any Other Kidney Ailment, May be Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—Men who use their brains are prone to Bright's disease. No class of brain-workers more than editors and newspaper men. The intense activity compelled by their calling consumes great quantities of their vital energies. They are constantly "on the go," physically as well as mentally. They eat irregularly, and, like most other people, eat food that is not good for them.

But none knows better than they how prevalent is Bright's disease. The dispatches are full of obituaries of men cut down in the prime of life by kidney maladies. One of the brainiest editors this country has know—J. B. McCullaugh, of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, actually killed himself because he found he was dying of Bright's disease. He suicided by dashing his brains out, leaping from his window to the pavement beneath.

No doubt his life could have been saved by the recent discovery of a medicine that is a true and efficacious remedy in all cases of Bright's or other kidney diseases—Dodd's Kidney Pills. Many a life has been saved by it. Incalculable suffering has been allayed by it.

Here in St. Paul, a printer and a barber on Newspaper Row testify to cures of kidney complaint.

BARBER.

Dodd's Medicine Company:

Gentlemen: I was a sufferer from lumbago for two years. I could get no relief by taking medicines. I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills and purchased a box. After using them, I can safely say they are one of the best medicines I have ever used. I have none of that heavy backache now, and am certain that they effected a permanent cure. A. U. SCHILLING, 161 Newspaper Row, St. Paul, Minn.

PRINTER.

Dodd's Medicine Company:

Gentlemen: I was troubled for three years with my back, caused by my kidneys being out of order. My work compels me to be constantly on my feet and bending over. It has always been hard on me. I tried several so-called kidney cures, but none could touch the spot like Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have used two boxes and am now cured of this painful disease, and any person who calls at my printing office I will be glad to talk with them about my cure. JOHN E. DEMPSEY,

STEEL BILLET POOL.

Some Talk of Reorganizing That and Rail Pool.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 20.—The smaller manufacturers of steel rails and billets are advocating the re-organization of the billet and rail pools. They were not satisfied with their allotment, but the disruption of the pools, it is said, brought no relief. All kinds of rumors have been in circulation within the past few days about such a step, but the large manufacturers say they have no intention of going into another pool arrangement, at least not for the present.

The trade papers intimate that there is some talk of reorganizing the rail and billet pools and also the wire nail pool, and when it is effected steel rails will be advanced to $28 and billets to $20 a ton. A prominent steel manufacturer said today that the reports emanate either from the brokers, who, have large stocks on hand and want to unload, or else from the smaller manufacturers who would now be satisfied with the pool allotment.

MURDERED BY WHITE CAPS.

Mountain Grove, Mo., May 20.—Six miles north of here on the banks of Whetstone river a mob of White Caps murdered two men last night, and burned the home of another. There has been much thieving in that district of late, and suspicion attached to Lige Mayfield and the Mitchell brothers, John and Dave, who had been warned to leave the country. The men did not find Mayfield at home, so his house was burned. The Mitchells had barricaded their house and the raiders fired upon the place, killing John Mitchell and his brother-in-law, Jack Coffman, and seriously injuring Dave Mitchell. The Mitchells have been in the penitentiary.

A ROMANTIC SUICIDE.

St. Louis, May 20.—George A. Taylor, a teller at the Third National bank, was found dead in a room at the Normandie hotel this forenoon. He had committed suicide by shooting himself with a revolver. When found, Taylor, who is a married man, had clasped in his hands a letter from another woman and her photograph.

DIED AT SEA.

New York, May 20.—Traugott Schmidt, of Detroit, Mich., a saloon passenger on board the steamer Trave, died on the passage from Bremen to this city. His body was brought into port. Cancer of the stomach was the cause of death.

THREE ENTRANCES TO NEW YORK.

With the opening of the new Twenty-third street entrance to New York by the Pennsylvania lines, passengers over this route may now enter that city at three different points: Cortlandt street, Desbrosses street and Twenty-third street. All are in the heart of New York, convenient to business blocks and hotels. Six through trains from Chicago every day. Ask H. R. Dering, assistant general passenger agent, No. 248 South Clark street, Chicago, Ill., about them.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The railroad application to Judge Amidon for an order restraining the North Dakota board of railroad commissioners from putting into effect the proposed reduction in freight rates on July 1, has been quickly granted. The matter was argued at considerable length, and Judge Amidon at Fargo issued a temporary restraining order against the publication of the proposed tariff, and served an order on the board to show cause why a temporary injunction should not issue. The order is returnable May 25, and if the board does not show sufficient reason in its answer why the temporary injunction should not issue, it will be in force. In that case the law will, of course, be nullified, for it will require four or five years to get the case through all the courts. The board was not represented at all at the session, and it thinks Judge Amidon should not have allowed the railroads an ex parte hearing, thus putting the board in a difficult position at the start.

At Bismarck in the district court the case of Wurtzer against Guessner for $10,000 damages for the alienation of the affections of his wife was dismissed.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

During a heavy storm at Redfield, lightning struck the house of August Mutze, about twelve miles southeast of here, and killed a boy, 5 years old, and a girl 7. The father sat within six feet of the children when the bolt struck. His pipe was knocked from his mouth, and the mother, in an adjoining room, was stunned and face blackened. The storm covered nearly all of the county, and was accompanied by heavy rainfall.

Charles Brown, the colored fiend, who so brutally murdered Mrs. L. P. Stone last Saturday morning at Deadwood, has made a full confession of his crime to the officers. Mrs. Stone's watch and other articles of jewelry have been recovered from their hiding place on Brown's ranch near Whitewood. He implicates one or two others. An extra guard has been placed about the jail, but this precaution is considered unnecessary, as the better judgment of the citizens prevails and there will be no lynching.

At Carthage Tuesday evening a severe windstorm did great damage to small buildings and in some instances to larger ones. No definite estimates can be made at this time, but the loss will be considerable. Several structures in town were demolished, including the power house and a barn or two, many outbuildings being wrecked, and windmills for a considerable area destroyed.

BRYAN REFUSES.

Too Busy to Attend a Gold Mining Convention.

Denver, May 20.—The following reply to an invitation to attend the international gold mining convention has been received from the Hon. William J. Bryan:

"Lincoln, Neb., May 20.—To Irwin Mahon & Co., Denver, Col. My Dear Sir: Your favor at hand. It will not be possible for me to attend the convention called in the interests of gold mining owing to the fact that engagements already made cover these dates. I thank you for the invitation and trust that the convention will be successful in arousing greater interest in both gold and silver mining. I do not think that the interest of the two metals should be separated in a convention even. Yours very truly,

"W. J. BRYAN."

Mahon immediately sent another letter to Mr. Bryan explaining that the convention is to be in the interests of mining generally and not in the interests of monometallism and assured him of a sincere and hearty welcome from the people of Colorado if he should find it possible to attend.

BAPTIST MISSIONS.

General Officers Elected at the Pittsburg Meeting.

Pittsburg, May 20.—The second day's session of the Baptist Home Mission society was called to order by President Porter at 10 o'clock this morning. There were fewer present than at the opening yesterday, but the church filled up before the meeting was well under way. After devotional exercises the first business of the meeting was the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President, S. Greene, Massachusetts; vice presidents, W. G. Brimson, Illinois; C. W. McCutcheon, New Jersey; treasurer, D. A. Watterman, New York; assistant treasurer, W. H. Hunt, New York; recording secretary, A. S. Hobart, New York; corresponding secretary, T. J. Morgan, New York; auditors, Edgar L. Marrion, New York; L. P. Payne, New York. Members of the board, William Phelps, Stephen P. Burr, D. A. Watterman, R. B. Hull, L. J. P. Bishop and C. B. Canfield, all of New York; Edward J. Brockett, of New Jersey.

President B. L. Whitman, D.D., of Washington, D. C., then presented the report of the committee on educational work. The rest of the session was taken up with a discussion of the president's report.

Houghton, Mich., May 20.—Nathan F. Leopold, of Chicago, who negotiated the sale of the Huron, Isle Royale and Portage mines to the Isle Royale Consolidated company, is here and announced the resumption of these properties in a few weeks. When developed and equipped with modern machinery, the consolidated mines should employ about 1000 men.

LANGEVIN'S SON SUICIDES.

Ottawa, Ont., May 20.—Laforce Langevin, the only son of Sir H. Langevin, the minister of public works in the cabinet of the late Sir John A. Macdonald, committed suicide at the residence of Sir Hector. Laforce Langevin was known as a man of peculiar disposition. He took an active part in the labor agitation and of late has shown signs of despondency and ill health, and to this cause his suicide is attributed.

ADVANCED

The Wheat Market Was Very Dull Today But Prices Rose.

Weakness at Opening Due to a Bearish Illinois Crop Report.

An Advance at Liverpool and at Antwerp Caused the Strength.

Wheat opened easy and lower this morning but firmed up the first hour and ruled fairly strong although trading was dull. The Illinois crop report was the bearish influence at the opening. It made the prospective yield 35,000,000 bus or 16,000,000 bus more than last year's crop, in addition to the outside markets were weak and Northwest receipts heavy, 486 cars, against 312 last week and 254 the year before. On the other hand reports of Hessian fly in Michigan were more numerous, dry hot weather prevailed in California and Liverpool was steady at ¼d advance. It opened ½d higher and closed with a further gain of ½d. It was reported that the Antwerp market was higher because of reported poor prospects for the Austria-Hungary wheat crop. Receipts at Chicago were 155 cars, and the quantity inspected out of store 223,000 bus. The Atlantic port clearances of wheat and flour were again liberal, being equal to 356,000 bus.

July wheat opened here 3c lower at 72¾c but before 11 o'clock had advanced to 73½c and at noon sold at 73¾c, with very dull business. The close was firm with buyers at 73⅞c, an advance of ⅜c for the day. The mills bought 40,000 bus of cash stuff at 1c over July and the shippers took 31,000 bus at 1c over July. Following were the closing prices:

GOSSIP.

Received over leased wire of H. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade Chicago, May 20.—Wheat closed 3c higher than yesterday with nearly all the important short interest eliminated from the market. The cause of the advance was the upset at Berlin which was credited to reports of damage to the winter crop of Austro-Hungary. Other European markets were unaffected to any extent. Some early weakness was caused by the continued excessive receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth and by Thomas's report which indicated a total yield of winter and spring wheat about 100,000,000 bus larger than last year and a spring wheat area seeded 18 per cent larger. Clearances from Atlantic seaboard ports again larger and some new business done there. In Chicago there were various rumors of shipping business but no details are given out and none can be confirmed for the past two days, except one cargo of 55,000 bus late yesterday. Chicago stocks are decreasing rapidly and will show about 800,000 bus reduction for this week, making the total over 2,000,000 bus decrease in the visible. The trade is mainly of the professional sort which takes quick profits or losses and the largest short in the market is reported to have been frightened in today.

Corn firmer with a slight lot up in the country selling. The large shipping business of yesterday, 500,000 bus, also helped today. Oats steady for same reason.

Provisions firmer with some decrease noted in hog receipts and some exceedingly good buying for long account by leading local tracers.

Puts, July wheat, 71¾@71¾c.
Calls, July wheat, 72¼@72¾c.
Curb, July wheat, 71¾c bid.

PUMPHOUSE REPORT.

Result of the Deliberations of the Committee.

The full report of the special pumphouse committee which was not presented last night is given in full below. Contractor Fredrickson offered yesterday to make all the necessary changes for the sum of $1700, but to-day he withdrew his offer and up to noon had not submitted a new one, so that the report of the board of public works and its recommendations upon the committee report have been withdrawn by the board. The report is as follows:

"The committee appointed at the conference composed of the waterworks committee of the common council, the board of experts on the condition of the pumphouse, the building inspector, your honorable body and the city engineer, to propose necessary changes in the construction of the pumphouse and to report a proper price for building the structure in accordance with the modified plans and specifications, and to report to your honorable body, would respectfully report that having considered the present condition of the pumphouse walls, the proper rebuilding of the same and the necessary provisions for carrying the traveling crane would recommend:

"First—That the walls now standing be torn down to and including the water table.

"Second—Take down such portions of the foundation walls as are necessary to secure proper foundations for the columns supporting the crane and stiffening the walls, and rebuilding the foundations as shown on the plans, this work to be done in the very best manner, to be as strong and as well bonded as though built with the walls originally.

"Third—The two basement windows on the south wall of the engine room near the east end to be moved as shown on the plans.

"Fourth—Furnish and set Kettle River cap stones for all column footings and girder seats of the dimensions shown, set perfectly level and true and furnished with bush-hammered top to secure the iron work.

"Fifth—The columns, girders and other steel to support the crane track to be furnished by the city, but the contractor for the building be required to set the same as shown on the plans and to build and anchor the columns in the best possible manner, taking especial pains to continue courses of brick through the lattice work, and making a first-class job in every particular.

"Sixth—Rebuild the walls from the foundation to the window sills of the first story (except the east wall of the boilerhouse, which will be of brick) of cut stone, backed with brick, 24 inches thick on the engine room and 16 inches thick on the boilerhouse, machine shop and tower; use alternate headers and stretchers in the stone work as specified in the original specifications, except in the 24-inch wall the stretchers are to be 8-inch bed and bond instead of 10 inches, and the headers 16-inches bed and bond instead of 20 inches. In the 16-inch walls the stretchers to be 4 inches bed and bond and the headers 8 inches. The contractor shall also provide the other out-stone trimmings as shown on the plans and elevations. Stonework to be laid in Portland cement mortar, mixed 3 to 1.

"Seventh—The backing of stone and the remaining walls to be built of brick in conformity with the specification No. 1, as to kind and quality and the method of laying, except that they will be laid with regular heading courses instead of blind bond and the further exception that they will be laid with cement mortar, using native cement 2½ to 1 instead of mixed lime and cement as specified.

"Eighth—Turn relieving arch over each group of openings in the east wall of the boilerhouse as described.

"Ninth—The changes in the openings and elevations will make it necessary to provide some new frames and to rebuild some of these heretofore furnished, also furnish necessary mullions and lintels as shown on the elevations.

"In the above work it is understood that the contractor may use such portion of the materials on the ground and in the building as are suitable and will pass inspection, making such changes in the material, etc., as are required by the changed conditions in the character of the opening, etc.

"These specifications are to be considered as amendatory and do not annul or modify the original specifications except in the parts specifically mentioned herein.

"As to the cost of this work we will present the following estimate of its proper value:

Putting piers in boiler room foundations, for columns in engine room walls and changing windows in engine room foundation	$ 250
Additional material in piers and walls in engine room and boiler room	250
Tearing down present walls	100
Changing window frames and furnishing new ones	150
To change from lime and cement mortar to cement mortar	200
To allowance for change in the price of brick since opening bids	200
To rubble stone, mortar and labor useless in reconstruction	700
To contractor's price for constructing similar building without extras named above, made in December, 1896	18,518
Total	$20,268

"We recommend that if the contractor is willing to accept it, that he be allowed $20,3200, less the amount heretofore paid on the contract."

This report will be submitted to the council on Monday night by the board of public works, who probably will counsel certain modifications and made recommendation as to Fredrickson's offer.

Looking For Trouble.

The "bulls and bears" is the title of the latest aggregation of persons who think they can play baseball and they hail from the board of trade. They extend a challenge to play the winner of the Ashtabula-Chester terrace game of Saturday, and want the game set for Wednesday next. Whether or not the participants in the Saturday game will have recovered sufficiently by that time to enter another game is a question open to much doubt.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (Central time), May 20.—The depression which was central yesterday morning in South Dakota has developed into a storm of considerable strength during its passage eastward to Lake Michigan, where it is now central, attended by cloudiness and rain throughout Michigan and Wisconsin. The rainfalls have been heaviest in the vicinity of La Crosse, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie, the amounts reported at those stations being .36, .60 and .30 inch, respectively. Light rains have also fallen in Manitoba, Iowa and North Dakota, elsewhere the weather has continued fair.

A decided increase in pressure in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, where the barometer is now highest, has caused a general change to cooler northerly winds in those provinces, Montana, the Dakotas and Minnesota.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 40; maximum yesterday, 44; minimum yesterday, 29; rainfall, .02 inch.

Local forecast: Duluth and vicinity: Generally cloudy and continued cool tonight; Friday fair and slightly warmer by afternoon; brisk and high northeast and north winds, diminishing by Friday morning and backing to northwest.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, May 20.—Forecast until 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Fair and cooler tonight; Friday fair, brisk northwest winds. For Minnesota: Fair tonight and Friday; cooler in southern portion tonight; brisk northwest winds.

CONSULAR FEES.

The Detroit Journal takes several newspapers to task for erroneous ideas concerning alleged abuses in the consular service, before the fee system was abolished by Secretary Olney, and it demonstrates that the majority of the journals which have been discussing the subject have labored under a serious misapprehension. One paper, for instance, said that "under the law consuls may take a fee of $2.50 for verifying an invoice." The Detroit paper points out that the consul not only may, but he must if a salaried consul, for the $2.50 is an official fee that must go to the government of the United States. If a salaried consul does not collect that fee from the shipper for every invoice made out in triplicate the consul must pay the fee to the government out of his own pocket and be out just that much. The notion seems to prevail to a large extent that this official fee goes to the consul in addition to his regular salary, but it is a mistake.

The "unofficial fee" is another thing, or was. That has been cut off, but there are erroneous notions about that also. For instance: The shipper is supposed to make out his own invoices of goods for export shipment, but not one shipper in many knows how to make out one correctly. Besides, the invoice must be made out in triplicate and there is a good deal of work in it which most shippers would rather pay to have done than do it themselves. It is not the official duty of the consul to write out the invoices, but he may do so and it is often necessary that he should to accommodate the shipper. For this extra service the consul was entitled to charge a reasonable fee, and in Canada the usual fee for such work has been 50 cents for each invoice made out in triplicate. This was an "unofficial fee" which went to the consul and it was small enough for the work performed.

This is what some newspapers have called "robbery" and "blackmailing," but, as the Journal shows, it is nothing of the kind. It was entirely legitimate and regular and had the just sanction of the state department. If there have been cases of irregularity or unlawful speculation in the consular service, so there have in other departments of public service, but that doesn't necessarily condemn the whole fee system. Many consulates pay such small salaries that without any unofficial fees going to the consuls they cannot live on their incomes. If consuls are to be allowed no fees for themselves for performing such extra work for shippers as we have described, which extra work they are not officially required to do, then their salaries should be increased so as to make them fairly compensatory. Inasmuch as congress is not disposed to increase the appropriation for the consular service, Secretary Sherman should countermand the order issued by Mr. Olney and give the small-salaried consuls a chance to earn enough legitimate fees to support themselves comfortably. If American consuls are not assured incomes sufficient to maintain their positions as representatives of this country, they should be recalled and their positions abolished.

BANKRUPTCY LEGISLATION.

A Minneapolis gentleman has received a letter from one of the Minnesota members of congress, presumably Congressman Fletcher, in reference to the prospects of bankruptcy legislation during the present session. He says that, after a long conference with Mr. Reed, he was pleased to find that he is not as hostile as reported to the consideration of the subject at this session, and is fully convinced of the necessity of legislation to relieve men who have met with misfortunes in the past four years. The congressman says further:

"I find in conversing with the leaders of the house that they have the impression that the people in the West would not be satisfied with anything but a simple voluntary bankruptcy act, and the fear on their part is if the matter is brought into the house that the friends of voluntary bankruptcy alone will be strong enough to pass a bill of that kind. Mr. Reed argues that that will not accomplish the purpose which we seek so far as that purpose relates to the public interest or improvement of business. His position as stated to me is that unless the men who seek a discharge in bankruptcy can secure credit, they will not be able to engage in business for a long time and will therefore not contribute to the prosperity of the community in which they reside; while if they can secure credit after obtaining their discharge, the result would be different. He considers an involuntary clause in any bankruptcy legislation essential for these men to obtain this credit. In this way, only, will the person who extends the credit have an opportunity to protect himself against possible future misfortunes or mistakes on the part of the debtor. There is considerable force in this suggestion and I think if the friends of bankruptcy legislation in the West would ask for a passage of legislation that would be equitable and right both between the creditor and debtor affording no greater advantage to one than to the other, that we would have no difficulty with this influence exerted in this direction to secure favorable action."

Inasmuch as Speaker Reed undoubtedly has the power to prevent or promote legislation by the house, it is pleasing to learn that he is not hostile to the subject of bankruptcy legislation being considered, and certainly no one in the Northwest will find cause to criticize his desire for a bill that will be equitable to both debtor and creditor. The Northwest is not wedded to the idea of a purely voluntary bill, and in fact would prefer a measure framed on the lines of the Torrey bill, but as it seems impossible to get the latter bill through the senate, it is disposed, rather than have no bankruptcy legislation at all, to accept a measure with less of involuntary features. The suggestion that the business men and the leading Republicans of the state should write to Speaker Reed and the Minnesota members, urging that an opportunity be given to consider the subject in the house, is a good one and should be acted upon promptly.

WRETCHEDNESS IN INDIA.

The famine in India has made more terrible the wretched condition of child widows and homeless young girls in that country. Extracts from a printed sheet issued in India by the well-known Hindu lady, Ramabai, whose heroic struggle to relieve the miseries peculiar to the child-widows of India, and the pathetic eloquence with which she has pleaded their cause, have deeply touched many hearts in America as well as in England, have been published by the editor of the Modern Medical Science, of New York. The Pundita Ramabai gives some shocking incidents that have come to her personal knowledge in connection with girls whose parents have died of starvation. The appeal to her sympathy and protection is irresistible, as she knew of like suffering and fear in a time of famine in India when she was a young girl.

In her appeal she says: "My girls and I are quite ready to forego all our comforts, give up our luxuries and live as plainly as we can. We shall be quite contented to have only one meal of common coarse food daily if necessary and so long as we have a little room or a seer of grain left in this house we shall try and help our sisters who are starving. It seems a sin to live in this good house and eat plenty of good food and be warmly clothed while thousands of our fellow creatures are dying of hunger and are without shelter."

In the presence of the awful famine and plague now devastating the central provinces this Hindu lady is endeavoring to expand her retreat for child-widows, at Poona, into an orphanage for 200 of the many thousands of young girls whose parents have perished or are daily perishing from the famine, leaving them a prey to demons in human form who take advantage of their unprotected helplessness, to appropriate them or dispose of them by wholesale, for infamous purposes. Like efforts are making by the missionary families and stations in India, of every denomination, to stretch their narrow means and quarters as refuges for as many as possible. In this way, multitudes might be not only relieved of present distress, but permanently rescued, uplifted, Christianized, and enabled to carry a new and purer life into the homes of new generations in India.

The Bible House in New York is sending food to the famishing, and contributions of money, wheat and corn will be gladly received for that purpose. The British government is now giving aid to over 80,000 people in India, but there is much more relief needed than is now being dispensed and the wretchedness of these poor people should enlist the practical sympathy of the whole world.

A remarkable man is Hon. Rudolph Lehfeld, state senator from Crawford county, Iowa. Not only is he a Republican elected from a Democratic district, but he has returned a warrant for $675 as salary sent him by the state treasurer. Mr. Lehfeld's explanation of his extraordinary conduct is even more puzzling and raises doubts as to his sanity. He returns the money, giving as a reason that, owing to his unavoidable absence from the legislature, he did not attend to the duties assigned him, and he therefore does not consider himself entitled to the warrant. The state treasurer was so overcome by this unparalleled act that he has been ill ever since, and the matter is puzzling the whole state government. Just fancy one of the members of the Minnesota legislature being accused of doing such a strange thing! His friends would have him committed to the Anoka-Hastings insane ward.

A clergyman in a Chicago suburb has decreed that in the future women attending his church will uncover themselves. He says he does not propose to have the theater more civilized than the church. "Why," he exclaims, "I recently attended a city church, but could not see the preacher because of three high hats worn by women who sat before me." He thinks that the church of the future will have dressingrooms to accommodate the headgear of women who attend. Between bicycle check rooms, dressing rooms and dining-rooms and all the other accessories, there will be small chance for any religion to gain even standing room in the future church.

Sugar Broker Chapman has gone to jail for refusing to tell about sugar speculations by senators. Havemeyer and Searles of the sugar trust will soon keep him company.

He is a son of Sir Edward Burne-Jones, thus Philip Burne-Jones who painted "The Vampire," the picture which is the present sensation of the New gallery in London. The picture is thus described: "It shows a room flooded with moonlight, in which a dying man, with a wound in his breast, lies sleeping. Over him leans a beautiful woman—the vampire—who has just drained him of his life blood. The work shows strong artistic qualities, but it is hardly necessary to say that it is the subject more than the execution that draws attention to it."

The revelations in connection with the workings of the dispensary law in South Carolina read like the history of the constables enforcing prohibition in Iowa a few years ago. The South Carolina officials seized contraband goods and turned them to their own profit. Although the state made a profit out of the business, it was not a marker to the profit of the officials. The whole system is said to be permeated with corruption.

The especial pet of Washington society at present is the new secretary of the Turkish legation, Selfeddin Bey, whose Apollo-like form and features have earned for him the name of "the Greek god." He is one of the handsomest and most dashing men attached to the diplomatic corps for many years and is a striking figure in the daily promenade of the West End. No doubt he will find some American heiress ready to join his harem.

Jubilee processions in London are rather dull, according to a lady who saw the show ten years ago, when Queen Victoria completed her half century of sovereignty. There is not enough music, and most of the princesses ride in closed carriages, and the stolid populace does not show enthusiasm and is not given to applause or gayety or cheering.

The sultan joined the other crowned heads of Europe the other day in condoling with France upon the Paris tragedy. He "prays the Providence which protects us to protect France in the future." Sarcastic London comment was to the effect that it was a great pity the "great assassin's prayers did not extend to the Armenians."

The smallest men in congress are Senator Chandler of New Hampshire and Representative Wheeler of Alabama, "Fighting Joe" of Confederate fame. Mr. Chandler is 62 years old and Gen. Wheeler is 61 but both have slender, boyish figures and affect somewhat youthful dress in wearing trim, natty little sack coats.

Ex-Secretary Herbert has gone into the business of pressing claims against the navy department. He says in a circular letter to claimants that he is "in a position to prosecute claims and get prompt action." He certainly should know how to overcome the delay incident to the red-tape methods of the department.

The Galveston News says Texas raises cotton enough to make a shirt "that would fit a man 20,000 miles tall." Just wait until a man 20,000 miles tall visits Texas and then see if Texas will live up to the contract. He will be the not much bigger brother of some of the Texas tall talkers.

EDITOR PEASE'S PROGRAM.

Anoka Union: Ever since it was a county, Anoka has been strong and sure Republican. The leaders knew that she was all right and have governed themselves accordingly. Of the 500 state positions, more or less, not a single Anoka Republican has been remembered. Many a less deserving county has been considerately taken care of. Several times she has had a candidate for some position but invariably they have been turned down and the office went to a Democratic or Populistic stronghold. Her claims have been ignored; she has been laughed at, scoffed at, bluffed, sold out, worsted. The Union, in its innocence and virtue, for thirty-one years has ever supported the grand old party, giving the best years of its life and its influence, limited though it may be, to further the interests of that party. Every call was heeded, every battle entered into with vigor, every victory gained received with applause and pleasure, and what has the city and county of its adoption received and the answer must be nothing, simply nothing. The time has come to cry halt. The time has come to stand back and let those who have been remembered do battle. The time has come when good judgment and good politics cry out "Don't do so any more." The time has come to plug a few guns and destroy many rounds of ammunition, scattering consternation and havoc in the ranks with no let up, until our claims, our rights are accorded us. Until that time comes we shall remain outside the breastworks, murmuring what fools the Republicans of Anoka county have been.

SPEED OF CORKED BOTTLES.

Numbers of experiments have been made to test the speed and destination of corked bottles thrown into the sea at various portions of the world. The most remarkable example ever heard of was that in which a bottle traveled 6000 miles in about two years and a half, roughly at the rate of six and a half miles a day. It traveled from 65 degrees south latitude and 60 degrees west longitude to Western Australia.

MONEY IN BELGIUM.

Washington special: In the report of the director of the United States mint for 1896, on page 326, is given a letter dated Aug. 12, 1896, from Mr. Allard, the director of the mint at Belgium, addressed to the United States minister at Brussels, from which the following extracts are taken. The letter was in reply to various questions which had been officially addressed the writer.

"At its birth (in 1831) Belgium adopted the French monetary system, based on the two metals, gold and silver—i. e., bimetallism. But about 1851, when the gold mines of California and Australia produced gold in large quantities, Belgium demonetized gold and became silver monometallic. About 1865, however, business became so depressed in Belgium that the people forced the minister, M. Frere-Orban, to retire and obliged the government to become again bimetallic. About 1873 France prevailed upon the Latin states—France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland—to suspend the coinage of silver, which suspension established here a kind of limping monometallism, for though silver can no longer be coined, the then existing silver is still a legal tender in Belgium. Since 1873 a crisis, consisting in a fall in all prices exists continually, nor does it appear possible to surrest its progress. This fall in prices reacting on wages is now involving a social and industrial crisis.

"Why did Belgium decide to go to monometallism, limping though it be? I can conceive of no other reason unless that it was to please a certain class of financiers which profited thereby—a class supported by theories, invented and defended at that time by some political economists notably by members of the institute of France.

"You ask what influence these monetary measures have had in Belgium on industry and wages. Money, which was already scarce in 1873, has become still scarcer, and that fall in prices which was predicted has taken place. The average fall in the price of all the products of labor is 50 per cent since 1873; that of cereals over 65 per cent. Industry is no longer remunerative, agriculture is ruined, and everybody is clamoring for protection by import duties, while our ruined citizens think of wars—such is the sad condition of Europe.

"For the last twenty years no new gold nor silver has been coined in Belgium."

Such reports as these ex-Secretary Carlisle was careful not to let the public see before that fall's election.

SICK MAN QUITE WELL.

Chicago Tribune: Turkey's demands when they are formally made, will undoubtedly be in excess of what the powers will concede, and the struggle will come in arriving at an acceptable compromise. There is yet a chance that Turkey will remain so obdurate as not to give way to the powers, trusting to the apparent fact that the powers in the end would be forced to yield rather than risk a general war in an effort to coerce Turkey. There are many serious complications possible in the work of clearing up this war muddle, and the aftermath, when it begins to unfold its events, may prove much more exciting than is now generally expected.

Chicago Record: The fighting material now under Edhem Pasha has been fashioned by the military skill of the German officers, who since 1880 have totally reorganized the Turkish army and made it as a fighting machine not less redoubtable than the German army itself. In addition, this army is even better led under commanders of its own faith than any similar army in Europe could be, as to its discipline and bravery is added the altogether incalculable force of religious fervor and fanaticism. Should this magnificent army be turned against one of the great powers of Europe before the Grecian question is settled Europe may have reason to regret its coddling of the Turk for the last fifteen or twenty years.

Philadelphia Record: Because Greece defied their demands that she evacuate Crete the powers let the Turks loose upon Thessaly. Whom will the powers set upon the sultan because of his defiance of their demands for a truce? The biggest of the six bullies of Europe seems disposed to make common cause with the sultan; for the sinister hints that it would be impracticable to drive the Turks out of Thessaly proceed from St. Petersburg. It is the policy of Russia to deprive the nations of the Balkans of any rallying point unless it be under the hunger of Pan-Slavism. The western powers seem slow to realize the fact that in crushing Pan-Hellenic aspirations they have destroyed the one force capable of ultimately and finally defeating the Muscovites in their desire to plant themselves astride the Hellespont.

New York Tribune: Interesting also is it to observe the more or less official suggestion put forth in Russia that Turkey may be allowed to retain Thessaly as her spoils of war and thus practically to force the Greek boundary back to where it was before the treaty of Berlin. From the Russian point of view that would be quite the proper thing, for Russia can never forgive Greece for resisting the triumphant Slav march through the Balkans, and she cannot overlook the fact that as all Turkey is to be hers one day the more Turkey gets now the more she—Russia—will get then. But what has become of the valiant declaration, so freely made a few weeks ago, that, no matter what might happen, it was inconceivable that Turkey should ever be permitted to enlarge her territory in Europe at the expense of a Christian power?

POINTED REMARKS.

Boston Transcript: Fogg says he is immoderately fond of red because it looks so much better after it is turned gray.

Harlem Life: Young lady (to married sister)—Do tell me an appropriate present to give a new baby. Married sister—I know just the thing—these little jeweled safety-pins. Baby, darling, had one given him six months ago and I have worn it ever since.

Philadelphia North American: First ourglar—Did you git anything up at the bank yu' broke? Second burglar—Not a cent. The president was there ahead of me. How're you fixed? First burglar—O. K. I waylaid the president.

Chicago Post: "Yes," he said, "I am up to my neck in debt, but it is my misfortune, not my fault."

"Your misfortune?"

"Yes. You see, I have a faculty for making such an excellent impression upon people that they still persist in trusting me."

Cincinnati Enquirer: "Who is that lank party with the medals?" asked the drummer.

"That is our town champion," the rural grocer explained. "He has got his picture in the papers more times for bein' cured of more different diseases than any man in the United States.

Detroit Free Press: "Did you ever hear about that book agent's hard luck?"

"No; what was it?"

"He struck a mesmerist; she hypnotized him into the back yard and made him beat carpets for five hours."

Illustrated Bits: "My good man, do you ever do anything to bring light and purity into the homes of your fellowmen?"

"Yuss, lots."

"You distribute tracts?"

"No; I cleans windows and beats carpets."

Indianapolis Journal: "Well, old man, I guess I better go home. My wife will raise a holy row, even as it is."

"Why don't you do as I do, when you find you have stayed out too late?"

"What do you do?"

"I just keep on staying out, until I know she is scared and will be overjoyed to see me."

Truth: It was getting late, and still the venerable ex-United States senator lingered in the parlor with the young people. Evidently something had to be done. "I hope, papa," said his daughter, gently but resolutely, "that you will not be offended if I now move a call of the house, during which all persons not entitled to the floor will please retire, while Charlie and I discuss a question of personal privilege."

THE CUBAN SITUATION.

Buffalo Express: The only sensible course to take is that of Secretary Fish during the last Cuban war, when the Spanish were attempting a similar policy. It is to send a sharp, clear notice to Spain that the United States cannot tolerate such barbarism under the guise of war.

Philadelphia Ledger: The recognition of Cuban belligerency turns wholly upon the rules of international law. When the insurgents have established the conditions which justify such recognition they the United States government. It will be given as a matter of legal right, as well as of sympathy for a struggling people. This is a matter which may safely be confided to the administration.

Chicago Chronicle: Charity begins at home. While the number of unemployed in the republic of the United States is figured by the hundreds of thousands there cannot honestly be expended a penny of public money for the alleged citizens of America in Cuba. When they set themselves in opposition to the constituted government they took their lives and fortunes in their own hands. They have no claim upon American charity.

Indianapolis Journal: All the circumstances combine to make a situation so peculiar that there is no precedent for dealing with it. In the absence of such precedent, perhaps the promptest way would be the best, and that would be to demand of the Spanish government the immediate liberation of all American citizens now under restraint in Cuba, with a permit to leave the island, this demand to be accompanied by the dispatch of one or more war ships with a sufficient land force upon the island at the price of enslavement under the Spanish yoke. After they have endured so much in the same noble cause that inspired our revolutionary fathers, now, when victory is so near, we cannot crush the hopes of the patriots. Alike for our own interests and for the sake of humanity, the government should devote itself to putting an end promptly to a war that for Spain must become hopeless, and the basis of its efforts must be indemnity.

New York Tribune: In any case such a state of affairs would demand attention. It was little worse in Armenia a year or two ago, and the whole civilized world was profoundly stirred with pity and rage; even countries which had no citizens among the stricken. But the case of Cuba appeals with special force to the United States, partly because of its proximity to this country and partly because hundreds of American citizens engaged in peaceful and lawful industries in Cuba, are credibly reported to be among the objects of Weyler's persecution. It would not be a pleasant thing, nor a thing to be done lightly and hastily, for this country to interfere in Spain's domestic troubles. But it is not a pleasant thing, nor a tolerable thing, for this nation to see its own citizens, guiltless of wrong, exterminated at its very doors.

DEEPENING ERIE CANAL.

Washington special to the Chicago Record: At the election last fall the people of New York voted to expend $9,000,000 in deepening and widening the Erie canal and improving the locks so that they can admit two boats instead of one. When the improvements are completed the canal will accommodate boats of eight feet draft, instead of six feet, as at present, with the capacity of 400 tons, instead of 240, as at present. The length of the boats can also be increased from ninety-eight to a maximum of 115 feet. Mechanical lifts will also be introduced upon the locks, which will be operated by the direct application of power, and at Lockport, where there are five locks together, it is proposed to combine them in one and raise the boats by compressed air. This will save about 50 per cent in the time and cost of transportation and enlarge the tonnage capacity of the fleet about 70 per cent. It will also enable the boats to make several more trips a year, and permit the same tug to haul two more boats than at present. Taking all these advantages into consideration, the capacity of the canal will be practically doubled, and the economy of transportation increased nearly 40 per cent, according to the calculation of experts. That is, when the improvements are completed, 1,000,000 bushels of wheat can be carried from the lakes to tidewater at 60 per cent of the present cost. Very few horses or mules are now used on the Erie canal. Most of the boats are propelled by steam engines or are built for tows. A steam canalboat will push one barge and tow two which are lashed together, making four in the fleet. Sometimes two more can be added if the power of the tug is great enough. Electricity has not been a success. There have been a number of experiments, which are still going on, and there is also a scheme to run canalboats from Buffalo to New York on a trolley. A company was formed some time ago for this purpose, but after spending a good deal of money in experiments the plan was abandoned.

MARY ELLEN LEASE.

Funny Conversation She Had With a Drummer.

Mrs. Mary E. Lease last night boarded the Santa Fe train here for Atchison, where she had a lecture date. She found the car crowded, the only vacant seat being by the side of a Chicago traveling man, says the Topeka State Journal. Of course the traveling man moved his big grips and made room for her. This brought from the "uncrowned queen of the Kansas prairies" a "thank you" and a pleasant smile.

The ice thus broken, the traveling man proceeded to make himself agreeable. One word brought on another, and the traveling man soon had got far enough along in the conversation to ask Mrs. Lease where she lived.

"At Wichita," she replied.

"Ah! Wichita," said the traveling man, "I suppose you know the famous Mary Ellen?"

"I know her quite well."

"She's a great old girl; I'd like to meet her."

There was a merry twinkle in Mrs. Lease's eye. She saw some fun ahead.

The traveling man continued: "I learned a good deal about Mrs. Lease through a Topeka friend of mine who was her attorney—Hagan, Eugene Hagan—that's my friend's name—defended her the time Lewelling tried to remove her from the board of charities. Hagan said she was a great fighter, but notwithstanding her reputation as a crank was a very easy client to get along with. Hagan said she paid his fee of $50 without a question, and he thought she would have paid $1000 just as willingly. She is the first woman I ever heard of who wouldn't quarrel about a bill, that is, if she had to pay it herself."

Mrs. Lease beamed upon the traveling man, and said she had heard the subject of the chat was that kind of a woman.

"What sort of a family has she?" asked the traveling man.

"She has a number of very bright children," Mrs. Lease replied, "two boys and a girl. The older boy is grown."

"Is her husband living?"

"Yes; he is a druggist."

"He must be a queer kind of a man?"

"Why?"

"Well, Mrs. Lease is bright and famous and all that, but she is such a curiosity that I should think a man would hate to live with her."

Mrs. Lease bit her lip. "He has managed to stand it a good while—nearly a quarter of a century," she said.

"There's no accounting for tastes in this world," the traveling man remarked.

W. Sheridan Guthrie, the Atchison attorney, who was sitting across the aisle and had overheard the conversation, could contain himself no longer, so he roared. Then Mrs. Lease laughed and handed the traveling man her card.

"Nortonville!" the brakeman called out. "I must get off here," said the traveling man, and, grabbing his grips, made a dash for the door. He left the train at Nortonville, but "Dad" Griffith, the conductor, said his ticket read St. Joseph.

THE STORY OF A CAPTURE.

Detroit Free Press: "If I hadn't seen it with my own eyes," said the old fortune-teller, "I wouldn't be a-tellin' it. In our camp we had got kinder civerlized and unless a feller was strung up immediate fur litfin' that what didn't belong ter him, or ridin' off with a hoss not havin' title ter th' same, we locked him up and held him fur a fair trial. We had reg'lar officers an' guards an' the convicts had ter work gettin' in wood an' cleanin' up 'round camp.

"One fine-lookin' feller came in there with his wife, an' she war finer lookin' nor he was, I never yet knowed whether he done it or not, but it was charged that he was caught crawlin' out from a tent with his pardner's swag. We caught him an' put him inter th' workin' gang till the gran' jury could sit on him. He had a mighty fine hoss that a lot of us wanted ter buy, but his wife wouldn't sell an' took care of him as good as a man could do.

"On a Saturday night that feller broke guard. While we was chasin' 'round a Chinerman notified us os how th' man was at home with his wife. They must have heerd us comin', fur there was a rush from th' back door, there wuz as purty a spring inter th' saddle as you ever see an' all of us went clatterin' after th' big hoss while his rider waved a hat an' mocked at us. We followed fer miles, droppin' out one by one, till me an' th' sheriff had th' trail. We could change hosses, but fur ten hours that there big black kept th' lead an' showed us his heels. Then his rider jist coolly got off and set down on a log ter wait fur us. We galloped up with guns in both han's an' ordered a surrender. Durn me if it wasn't the purtyest woman an' we never see either of 'em again."

ATTACKS

Iron Range People Assume the Offensive as to the Land Grant.

Walter F. Cobb, as Trustee, Sues State Officials and the Railroad.

Interesting Legislative History as to the Transfer of the Grant.

The Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company whose land grant the legislature sought to forfeit has evidently become impatient at the committee appointed to press the claims of the state, and has precipitated the case by the institution of injunction proceedings. Walter F. Cobb, as trustee for the land grant bond holders has brought the suit making not only Governor Clough, Auditor Dunn and State Treasurer Koerner defendants, but the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company as well. The action seeks to restrain the state officials from disposing of the lands claimed by the road under the state grant.

Just now the title of the entire grant not otherwise disposed of rests in Walter E. Cobb, to whom it was deeded in trust by the railroad company last March. And thereby hangs a tale. Representative Jacobson, of Kandiyohi county, was very active last winter in promoting anti-corporation legislation and he was the father of the land grant forfeiture bill. He sprung the measure very suddenly and expressed his intention of pushing it to immediate consideration.

Joseph Sellwood, who was looking after the interests of the Duluth & Iron Range as a member of the "third house" went to Mr. Jacobson and asked for delay, informing him that the company would like to be heard before the committee through its solicitor Joseph Chandler. He said Mr. Chandler would be unable to come to St. Paul for two weeks, and he asked that the consideration of the bill be deferred until that time. Mr. Jacobson would not consent to this proposition, but finally compromised on a week which was sufficient for Mr. Sellwood's purpose.

During that week the Duluth & Iron Range prepared and signed a trust deed to the property and conveyed the title to Mr. Cobb as the representative of the bond holders thereby permitting him to become a principal in the expected litigation in the guise of an innocent purchaser. Mr. Chandler did not appear before the committee, and the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company offered no serious opposition to its passage.

The committee to whom was entrusted the duty of urging the state's claim to the grant, consisting of the governor, auditor and treasurer, were served with the papers in the injunction suit brought by Mr. Cobb. Tuesday and yesterday they held a meeting in St. Paul and employed W. P. Warner, of St. Paul, and Judge Henry C. Belden, of Minneapolis, as counsel to represent the state.

Yesterday Jacob L. Greatsinger, president of the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company, was served with a summons to appear in the case. To an Evening Herald reporter President Greatsinger said that he was anxious to have the case brought to a settlement and determine for all time the title of his company to the grant. He said that with every succeeding session of the legislature the railroad company had been harassed by the appointment of investigating committees that were forever aiming to place a cloud over the company's title, and that by means of the present and prospective cases a last decision of the supreme court will be speedily reached. He maintains that the court has already decided the case in favor of the company in the suit brought by the Minneapolis & St. Cloud Railroad company against the Duluth & Iron Range, intervenor, in which the land grant was held legal and valid.

The Duluth & Iron Range land grant has not proven a very valuable gift to the company as up to the present time it has cost over $60,000 more than has been realized from the sale of lands and this deficiency will doubtless be materially increased before the termination of the present litigation. There is now no demand for lands included in the grant and no sales are being effected.

The committee that has charge of the state's interests in the land grant investigation is also empowered to investigate the state's interest in the Mountain Iron property owned by the Consolidated mines and now being operated by Andrew Carnegie. The policy of the legal department of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company will be to wait for the state to take steps, as it will not take the initative as the Duluth & Iron Range has done. J. B. Cotton, the general attorney of the company, says he has no fear as to the outcome and is confident that when the courts decide the case that the title of the company will be found to be good.

GIVEN FIVE DAYS.

Joe Allen Sent Up to Reflect Upon His Conduct.

Old Joe Allen was brought before Judge Boyle yesterday charged with vagrancy, the heavier charge of attempting to destroy personal property being mercifully withheld by Frank Smith, whose large plate glass window the old man attempted to smash, so that he might be committed to jail.

To those who were not aware of old Allen's perversity during his four years' residence at the poor farm, it was a pitiable sight to witness the tremulous pleading of the old man to be committed to jail and to hear his oft-repeated protestation about being unable to work, his homelessness, his aches and pains, but to those who were acquainted with the seamy side of the history of Allen's case the performance was slightly nauseating. From the reports of the poor farm officials it appears Allen had gained such an ascendancy over the chronic inmates of the county poorhouse that it was at times almost a question whether he or the superintendent was running affairs, and as the only discipline available, in case of continued fractiousness among the paupers, is dismissal, after mature consideration it was decided to bounce the old mischief maker and give him a lesson. Judge Boyle learning these particulars sent Allen to the county jail for five days as a vagrant and told him to put in the time reflecting upon the course that he intended to pursue for the future.

BLEEDING PILES

And all other forms of this common and often dangerous disease readily cured without pain or inconvenience.

Thousands of men and women are afflicted with some sort of piles, without either knowing the exact nature of the trouble, or knowing it, are careless enough to allow it to run without taking the simple means offered for a radical cure.

The failure of salves and ointments to permanently cure piles has led many to believe the only cure to be a surgical operation.

Surgical operations are dangerous to life and, moreover, not often entirely successful, and at his time are no longer used by the best physicians or recommended by them.

The safest and surest way to cure any case of piles, whether blind, bleeding or protruding, is to use the Pyramid Pile cure, composed of healing vegetable oils, and absolutely free from mineral poisons and opiates. The following letter from a Pittsburg gentleman, a severe sufferer from bleeding piles, gives some idea of the prompt, effectual character of this pile cure. He writes:

I take pleasure writing these few lines to let you know that I did not sleep for three nights except for a short time each night because of a foul case of bleeding piles. I was down in bed and the doctors did me no good. A good brother told me of the Pyramid Pile Cure, and I bought from my druggist three 50 cents boxes. They cured me, and I will soon be able to go to my work again. WILLIAM HANDSCHU,
49 Street, Cotton alley, below Butter St.,
Pittsburg, Pa.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is not only the safest and surest remedy for piles, but is the best known and most popular. Every physician and druggist in the country knows it and what it will do.

Send for little book on cause and cure of piles, describing all forms of piles and the proper treatment.

The Pyramid can be found at all drug stores at 50 cents per package.

There Are All Kinds.

Capt. J. W. Miller returned from Washington a day or two ago. He has been selecting the patent models for the Duluth Historical and Scientific society which have arrived here as stated in The Herald yesterday. They will not be unpacked for some time, and until then the public will have to guess as to what they are. Capt Miller was asked yesterday as to their nature. "Well," said he, "that would be hard to tell; there are more than 50 of them and they are all different. There are all kinds of devices all of more or less interest. A mechanic will find plenty of material to interest him. To give an idea of what there is in the collection would be possible only by giving a detailed list of the models."

Bothers the Cyclists.

Cyclists are complaining that the streets of the city are covered with tacks and glass in many places. They do not know whether to believe that it is a result of the winter's accumulation or the work of malicious persons. In any event the condition does exist.

A few days ago one wheel repairer alone had twenty machines brought to him with tires punctured by tacks.

Delayed a Day or Two.

The Duluth Boat club oarsmen were to have begun work in the shells yesterday, but did not go out on account of the chilly weather. It is hardly probable that they will go out tonight unless the weather should change and become much more inviting. The oarsmen like to start in on a bright warm day. After a start is once made they do not mind the cold days very much, but to have them in the first days of rowing rather dampens their ardor. The Minnesota oarsmen at St. Paul have been rowing for a month or more and are already in fairly good condition. The Duluth men, however, have a couple of months to get in shape and that is as much as most any of them want.

TRAVELING IS EXTRA HAZARDOUS

If the tourist be unprovided with some medicinal resource. Changes of temperature, food and water of an unaccustomed or unwholesome quality, and a route that lies in the tropics or other regions where malaria exists, are each and all fraught with danger to one who has been improvident enough to neglect a remedial safeguard. The concurrent testimony of many voyageurs by land and sea establishes the fact that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters enables those who use it to encounter hazards of the nature referred to with impunity and that, as a medicine adapted to sudden and unexpected exigencies, it is peculiarly valuable. Disorders of the liver, the bowels and the stomach, fever and ague, rheumatism and nervous ailments, brought on by exposure, are among the maladies to which emigrants, travelers and new settlers are most subject. These and others yield to the action of the Bitters promptly and completely.

New Telephone Directory.

The Duluth Telephone company will issue their midsummer directory on July 1. New subscribers desirous of having their names appear in this issue should place their orders before June 10, as the book goes to the printer on that date.

AMUSEMENTS.

HEINRICH MEYN.

Tonight the Heinrich Meyn concert will be given at the Lyceum. The sale of seats opened this morning and was large. All of the Duluth people who attended the May festival at Minneapolis speak highly of Mr. Meyn and say he has a magnificent baritone voice. The Cecilian choral will sing several numbers and a mixed chorus will sing "Hail Bright Abode," by Wagner.

Following the concert there will be a reception at the Spalding to which all subscribers are invited.

ROBERT DOWNING.

Robert Downing and his company of players will appear at the Lyceum tomorrow and Saturday evenings in a magnificent classical tragedy, "The Gladiator." Mr. Downing is an actor who needs no introduction to the people of any city in the country. He has in the past few years made for himself a name which throughout the length and breadth of the land is synonymous with all that is finest in dramatic art. He is supported by a strong and capable company, headed by the beautiful and accomplished Miss Jennie Dalley, whose portrayal of the most difficult roles in classical drama have won for her the enthusiastic praise of the critics throughout the country.

A. A. FARLAND'S CONCERT.

Tomorrow evening the recital by A. A. Farland, banjo virtuoso, will be given at Mission church, corner of Twentieth avenue west and Second street. The numbers which Mr. Farland will present are of a very high order. There will be selections by Beethoven, Dussek, Mendelssohn, Moszkowski, Chopin, Schubert, Paderewski, Wieniawski and by himself. The Duluth Mandolin club will play, Frank Mellands will sing and Guy Williams will give a banjo solo.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.

Committees Named to Arrange For the Celebration.

At last Friday's meeting of the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution, Chairman Lovett was instructed to appoint the necessary committees to arrange for a successful celebration to be held on July 4 next at the High School Assembly hall, if possible.

A prominent feature of the exercises will be the reading of a prize essay by the winner of the prize offered for competition between the students at the high school by the society. It is hoped that the very best speakers will be obtained to deliver fitting orations of a patriotic order.

The personnel of the committees appointed by Mr. Lovett is as follows:

Program—Maj. C. B. Sears, chairman, W. C. McAdam, Victor Stearns, Mrs. D. B. Smith, Mrs. Page Morris.

Finance—Thomas S. Wood, chairman, Ward Ames, W. M. Prindle, S. L. Frazer, Howard T. Abbott.

Decoration—Mrs. W. F. Davey, chairman, Mrs. C. C. Ames, Miss Julia Barber, Mrs. W. E. Wicks, Miss Elizabeth C. Selden.

Speakers—R. S. Munger, chairman, H. R. Spencer, Rev. F. C. Southworth, Mrs. C. d'Autremont, Mrs. E. R. Bruce.

Prize essay—Rev. C. H. Patton, chairman, Rev. G. H. Humason, W. C. White, Mrs. Julia M. Barnes, Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge.

Chairman Lovett requests all members of the various committees to meet him tomorrow night at 8 p. m. at the Spalding house parlors to perfect arrangements for the work entrusted to them.

NO COUNCIL MEETING.

Quorum of City Fathers Failed to Attend.

Eight aldermen made an unsuccessful attempt to hold a special meeting of the council last night, but the lack of a quorum thwarted their desires. Those present were: Aldermen Sang, Richardson, Tescher, Shannon, Crassweller, Simpson, Dutch and Hanson, all but one of them staunch supporters of Mr. Reed.

At 8 o'clock the mellifluous voice of the city clerk was to be heard calling the aldermen to order. He called the roll and announced no quorum present. It was moved and seconded that a wait of fifteen minutes be had and this was agreed to, the aldermen relighted their perfectos, the audience fired various brands of Peerless and dogleg and all hands indulged in conversation and smoke.

At the end of fifteen minutes there was another call to order, but still no quorum and another interval was proposed and allowed. Finally, however, those present gave it up as a bad job and when some one aptly remembered that the girls were wheeling around the Union rink about that time a general stampede of city fathers took place, most of them going up hill in a northwesterly direction as if bound for the county courthouse via East First street, upon which thoroughfare stands the building in which the lady cyclists were performing.

Comments were freely indulged in as to the cause of the absence of the missing aldermen and it was hinted that the Patton men had stayed away in order to prevent any snap acceptance of Mr. Reed's bond.

Dr. Hobbs

ASTONISHING VICTORY.

Hundreds of Those People Who Received a Sample of Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Kidney Pills

From S. F. Boyce, Druggist, 335 W. Superior Street, Corner Fourth Avenue.

Astonishing as it may appear, of the total number of persons who procured a sample of these pills for trial, nearly every one of them have been entirely cured or greatly benefited.

Many of those who have been cured of their ailments by using Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills, live in towns outside of Duluth. The cures have been so marvelous that they have created quite a sensation in all the towns outside of us.

This shows conclusively how closely the test of Dr. Hobbs has been watched by the people who live in surrounding towns where the Duluth papers circulate, as well as by those who live in this city.

From the large number of letters received daily from persons testing these pills, they indicate clearly the interest being taken by men and women who have suffered for years with distressing and dangerous kidney and kindred ailments, which doctors have been unable to cure, and who are rejoiced to know that there has at last been discovered an absolute specific for their complaint.

Read What the Secretary of the Lawrence Mining and Milling Company, Lawrence, Colo., Has to Say About Hobbs Sparagus Kidney Pills.

Canton, O., Oct. 12, 1896.

Hobbs Remedy Co., Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: After using the sample box of your Sparagus Kidney Pills, which I obtained of the Paine Drug Co., of Rochester, N. Y., I was so much benefitted that I purchased two boxes of the same in Albany, N. Y., and have now taken about one box. I feel so much improved, that I anticipate soon to be entirely free from kidney trouble. At times for the past ten years, I have been so afflicted as not to be able to lift a ten-pound weight. Since taking your Sparagus Kidney Pills, my back has not troubled me at all, and I am able to carry about my sample case, weighing over thirty pounds, with usual ease. I thank my lucky star that I obtained one of your free samples.

Very truly yours,
S. S. C. GASKILL,

ASPARAGUS.

Palatable as a Food.—Powerful as a Medicine.

Few who enjoy eating asparagus know that in that plant is found Nature's greatest blood purifier.

Experiments with Asparagin, the officinal extract of asparagus, proved that if the active medicinal principles of the plant could be extracted and condensed into a quantity not too large for medicinal use, it would prove of great value in curing diseases of the kidneys.

The officinal extract, however, does not contain sufficient of the curative properties of the plant to do any appreciable good. More than the stomach could bear of the plant itself would have to be eaten to derive as much benefit as is contained in one dose of the extract obtained from the roots, stems and berries of asparagus, by the process discovered by Dr. Hobbs.

This newly discovered extract and five other active vegetable medicines, viz., Buchu, Pareira, Uva Ursi, Corn Silk and Juniper Berries, are contained in the now world-famed and powerful Kidney, Bladder, Rheumatism and Blood remedy known as

Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Kidney Pills.

These pills restore power to the kidneys to do their natural work of filtering the poisons and impurities out of the blood and into the urine.

Pure blood means no Bright's Disease, no Rheumatism, no Bladder Troubles, no Backache, nor any other disease caused by sick Kidneys. These pills relieve and cure quickly.

THE SIX DAY RACE.

Hot Struggle Between Baldwin and Farnsworth.

The race at the Union rink settled down last night to real business, all the difficulties having been settled, and last night's race was the prettiest yet. Yesterday afternoon it was agreed that instead of throwing out Tuesday night's score Farnsworth should be started even with Baldwin and the scores should stand. The race therefore started off smoothly last night, but the rivalry between the ladies was only deepened, and the three of them settled down to hard work each with an eye to gaining a lap on their competitors.

The attendance last night was the largest of the race, and the excitement and enthusiasm was intense. The riders sped away promptly at 8:30, and Farnsworth at once took the lead, followed by Baldwin and Harp. Several miles were traversed without any change in this order. After awhile there was a spurt between Farnsworth and Baldwin in which Harp failed to keep up, losing a lap. After ten miles had been covered the race settled into a contest between Farnsworth and Baldwin, with Harp hanging closely behind waiting for a slip.

Later Farnsworth sped ahead in a lively mile, gaining a lap on Baldwin. Then Baldwin had an accident and dismounted to have her wheel examined. She lost so much time that Harp passed her and gained second place. The distance covered last night was not so great as on the night before, the leader covering thirty-eight miles and eleven laps. The score at the close last night was as follows for six hours: Farnsworth, 115 miles, 5 laps; Harp, 114 miles, 1 laps; Baldwin, 110 miles, 11 laps; Brooks, 100 miles, 1 lap; Hokenson, 97 miles, 3 laps; Wellington, 85 miles, 2 laps.

THE FIELD DAY.

Great Interest in the High School Events.

The annual field day of the Duluth High School Athletic association will be held at the fair grounds in the West End Saturday afternoon. This is the first time that the field day has been held in a location so convenient to the city, and a large crowd is expected. There are eighteen events on the program, all of an interesting nature, and there are plenty of entries in each. There is a considerable amount of rivalry attached to the field day, as the winners will make up the field and track team which will represent Duluth in the outside field days.

The material for the various events is all good, and while few were in last year's event, there are a large number of new men who have attained considerable proficiency in their various lines, and Duluth will be represented by a strong team. The team will be in Ashland next Saturday for the field day there and on the following Saturday, June 5, it will meet the Minneapolis high school team.

MR. THOMPSON'S LECTURE.

An Interesting Talk With Fine Stereopticon Views.

S. A. Thompson's lecture on "What I Saw in Venezuela" attracted a large audience at the First Presbyterian church last evening. The lecture was from personal observations made by Mr. Thompson during an extended visit to Venezuela and Trinidad and was illustrated by stereopticon views. The speaker gave a brief review of the early history and struggles of Venezuela for freedom and referred to Simon Bolivar, a native patriot, as the George Washington of his country. Mr. Thompson's descriptions of the scenes and customs of that distant country were graphic and interesting, and the views of the rich tropical foliage, and manners of the natives of that sunny land made the lecture exceedingly interesting. In closing Mr. Thompson said that the United States had gained the warm friendship of the Venezuelans by its attitude toward England when the boundary question was in dispute. He referred in this connection to the struggles of Cuba against the atrocities of Spain and Gen. Weyler, and thought the United States should help the Cubans in their fight for freedom.

CORPSE IDENTIFIED.

And the Presumed Slayer is Under Arrest.

Memphis, Tenn., May 20.—The mutilated dead body which was found Monday evening in an old cistern on a farm rented by Frank Paror, has been identified. The murdered man is Ernest Stanley, the 19-year-old son of a wealthy merchant of Tuscumbia, Ala. Frank Paror, an Italian truck farmer, is under arrest and must, at his trial, battle against a strong chain of circumstantial evidence, which points to him as the perpetrator of the murder.

From the indications, Stanley, a handsome youth, enjoying the first flush of young manhood, was cruelly murdered while he lay asleep in the house and his body thrown into the cistern by the murderer. Paror admits striking Stanley, but says he did so because Stanley, with a pistol in his hand, was trying to rob him. He says Stanley dropped his pistol when he struck him and that he (Stanley) then ran and fell into the well.

NOT SATISFACTORY.

Berlin, May 20.—The committee of the lower house of the Prussian diet, to which the bill amending the law of public meetings and associations was referred on May 18, today rejected the clauses providing that meetings and associations which contravene the criminal law or endanger the safety of the state of public security may be dissolved by the police.

MOST ORIGINAL CLUB.

Indiana has the most original woman's club in America, in that broad and breezy state, perhaps, there is room for such a thing. The possibility of its existence in a more narrow minded community is doubted, says the New York Journal. Its membership is small, being at present limited to thirteen; its main object is to increase the fascination of each and every member. Every woman who joins pledges herself to divulge the secret of such charms and accomplishments as she may possess, and, as far as possible, to impart them to her fellow members. Accomplishments such as singing, playing, dancing, even cooking, known by some are to be taught to the others.

So far, so good but the difficult part is in the next group of by-laws. Defects are to be weeded out. Any young woman observing serious faults in a fellow member is to labor with her until such mental or moral blemishes are removed. All peculiarities of temperament are to be closely watched and fully discussed, with a view to the improvement of their owner. This is the point at which the tolerance and broad mindedness of the Indiana woman is expected to show itself.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

Capt. Flynn Thinks it Caused the Manistee's Loss.

[illegible] contained an altered message from Capt. McKay, which it is claimed [illegible] picked up near Bayfield, Wis., is not the first of the kind that has been discovered. A number of years ago a similar [illegible] with what purported to be a letter from Capt. McKay on the ill-fated Manistee was found near Bayfield and sent to Jay Flynn in this city. He promptly pronounced that fake as he has the more recent discovery.

There are many reasons for believing these do have been placed where they are found, principal among which are statements in the notes that are known to marine [illegible] that Capt. McKay could not have made. The note in first hand bears a fairly good counterfeit of Capt. McKay's signature but the long attempt to imitate his handwriting the body of the note was an absolute failure.

Mr. Flynn has undoubtedly devoted more attention to the collection of evidence that could throw some light on the causes that resulted in the disaster to the Manistee than any other person. He has for years been convinced that the boat was destroyed by a boiler explosion and not by the storm. He has established the fact to his complete satisfaction that the Manistee was lost before the storm struck her for there was no sea for three hours after she left Bayfield harbor, and if the ship had been in distress Capt. McKay would have signalled for help from boats that was in the vicinity of her course at the time the storm would have reached her had she sailed without interruption after leaving Bayfield. Mr. Flynn believes that when but a short time out from Bayfield some accident happened to the machinery and that a stop was made to repair it. While the engines were at rest the water in the boilers became low and when the throttle was opened for a fresh start the superheated steam caused an explosion. He has many reasons for believing this theory to be true.

A short time after the disaster an enterprising newspaper man in Oregon discovered an alleged survivor, who was interviewed as to the Manistee's loss, but on investigation he proved to be a creature of the reporter's vivid imagination. It is not likely that the story of the calamity that befell the Manistee will ever be told, and those acquainted with the few facts known in connection with it will be apt to accept the theory advanced by Mr. Flynn.

Indictment Against Thomas and Rachel Spellman For Arson Knocked Out.

Attorney Baldwin Convinced the Court of a Fatal Defect in It.

Failed to Show the Corporate Existence of the Insurance Company.

The cases against Thomas and Rachel Spellman, indicted for arson in the third degree for setting fire to their building at 1801 West Superior street, went by the board this morning after a jury had been drawn, Judge Moer sustaining an objection to the introduction of any testimony because of a defect in the indictment.

The cases were taken up yesterday afternoon, and as the defendants demanded a separate trial the case against Thomas Spellman was taken up first. A jury was drawn yesterday afternoon, and this morning the state was to introduce its testimony. Jacob Rozek was called to the stand, but before he was allowed to give any testimony C. O. Baldwin, who with J. C. Hessian appeared for the defendants, objected on the ground that the indictment failed to set forth the corporate capacity of the insurance company in which the house was insured. This, he argued, would subject the defendant to the danger of a second trial on the same offense, as if he was cleared on the state showing that the company was an individual and his proving that it was a corporation the state could then try him again by showing that it was a corporation.

After an argument lasting some little time Judge Moer said he considered the objection fatal to the indictment and sustained the objection. He stated that when he first read the indictment he noticed the defect and he would have to refuse to hear any testimony.

When County Attorney Arbury asked for an order remanding the case to the grand jury Judge Moer said that it should be made, as the case was too important to go in this manner. The bonds of the defendants in the sum of $2500 each were continued and the case will come before the September grand jury.

County Attorney Arbury next called the case against John Coventry for violating the game laws, and a jury was being drawn at noon. This case has been on the calendar for several terms. The defendant is accused of receiving game outside of the open season.

Yesterday afternoon C. P. Robbins, of Tower, was convicted of grand larceny in the second degree, notwithstanding the fact that he acted as his own attorney. He was accused of geting $30 from C. H. Oppel & Sons, of Tower, on his check accompanied by the representation that he had money in the First National bank of Duluth. Robbins showed a familiarity with the administration of justice in his handling of witnesses, but it availed him nothing.

J. Schuhe, indicted once for grand larceny and four times for forgery, yesterday withdrew his plea of not guilty in one of the forgery cases and pleaded guilty of forging the name of W. C. Sargent to a check. J. L. Steele, accused of destroying personal property, and George W. Riggin, accused of practicing medicine without a license, this morning withdrew their pleas of not guilty and pleaded guilty as indicted.

CROWDED WITH WORK.

Treasurer's Office Force Cannot Keep Up With It.

The posted receipts in the treasurer's office for the three days ending last night amounted to $60,000, as against $33,000 for the same period last year. This does not by any means indicate the real difference between last year's payments and this, however. Last year at this time the work came in in such a leisurely manner that the force was able to keep the receipts posted. This year, however, the rush is so great that although the office is packed with clerks the whole force is engaged upon making out statements and no attempt has been made to keep up with the receipts. Hence the safe is piled up with receipts not yet entered on the books, which when entered will greatly increase the excess of this year's receipts over those of last year.

Tomorrow the entire force will be put on extra hours and will continue to work that way till the rush ends with the month.

INJURED

Rosy Stone, Age Ten Years, Struck By a Switch Engine Today.

Dashed Into the Tender at the First Avenue East Crossing.

Sustained a Fracture of the Skull and May Not Live.

Little Rosy Stone, age about 10 years, was struck by St. Paul & Duluth switch engine No. 17, on the level crossing at St. Croix avenue at the foot of First avenue east, at noon today and sustained a fracture of the skull and other injuries which may prove fatal. Dr. Magie removed the child to St. Mary's hospital where she is at present.

Shortly after the noon hour today a crowd of school children were running down the avenue on their way home. The little Stone girl was chasing around with several of her school fellows, and started to cross the railroad tracks, evidently not noticing the engine that was backing down to a siding at a fair rate of speed. The child ran at full speed against the tender and was struck by the corner of the tank and hurled senseless to the ground.

Her sister and companions carried her at once to her home, which is on the lake front of St. Croix avenue within half a block of the crossing and a hurry call was sent for the ambulance and a doctor. Both were speedily in attendance and as soon as the doctor had stanched the flow of blood the inanimate child was lifted into the ambulance and taken to St. Mary's hospital.

The dagman at the crossing said that in spite of shouts or warnings the whole bevy of children ran headlong down the avenue across the tracks. Rosy was in the lead and if she had been a foot ahead of the spot where the corner of the tank struck her she would have gone under the wheels of the engine.

Several of the bystanders who witnessed the occurrence said that the engine bell was ringing and that the engineer and fireman were both on the lookout, but that the little girl darted headlong across the track so suddenly that it was impossible to avoid striking her. Dr. Magie said that he had hopes that the injuries would not prove fatal, but he would express no positive opinion.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

A CYCLER

Chicago's Mayor is a Wheelman Who Has a Good Record.

Is Expected to Lead the University Club Run Next Sunday.

Believes That Bicycling is Better Exercise Than Horseback Riding.

Chicago, May 20.—One of the largest Union cycle club runs ever held in the West will take place Sunday. The officers [illegible] of the associated [illegible] every organized club of this city and vicinity will participate. The event will be specially interesting this year as "this honor," the mayor, has consented to take part. Mayor Harrison is a bicycle rider with a considerable record. Last year he rolled up a total of 1,000 miles and has stated that this year his record will be doubled that. As Chicago is a very large, at one edge, [illegible] persons from enjoying the [illegible] as much as he desires. The mayor would like to see the presence of the bicycle [illegible] does his fathers in [illegible] and their wears [illegible]. He says reading does not [illegible] as cycling, but likes it only [illegible] and mind side.

This is how he compresses the wheel [illegible]. "What I don't think they [illegible] is all," said the mayor. "Cycling is so much better that there isn't any [illegible]. When I am back in office [illegible] to the streets. [illegible]

MAYOR HARRISON ON HIS WHEEL.

[illegible] doesn't exactly get it all, but he gets the best of it. On the other hand, when I go bicycle riding all the exercise is mine. I do all the work and have all the fun. A man can feel that he is doing something for himself when he is riding a wheel and there is a great deal of satisfaction in that. Another advantage of a bicycle over a horse is that a man can go much farther on a bicycle. A fellow in good physical condition and accustomed to riding can go on the road and reel off sixty or seventy miles without feeling that he has been on his wheel. A jaunt of that distance would tax a horse all up, of course. Last summer I used to start out frequently at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, ride out to Glenview for dinner with my brother-in-law and then ride back in the evening. It was just a fine distance for a ride and I used to enjoy every bit of it."

THE SUGAR DEAL.

Senate Schedule Denounced as an Outrage.

Washington Star (Rep.): The surrender to the sugar trust by the sub-committee of the senate finance committee in the amended sugar schedule of the Dingley bill is denounced from one end of the country to the other. Men of all shades of political opinion—Republicans, Democrats and Populists—unite in characterizing it as an outrage on the public interests and as calling for prompt and emphatic redress. Nor is any of the language used at all too strong. The transaction is nothing short of scandalous, and the senate could not ratify it without inflicting on itself a lasting disgrace.

This is the time for plain speaking. The Republican party has come into power—not without much difficulty—to right wrongs and give the country good government. Its campaign promises are well remembered, and its politics well defined. It is under obligations to revise the tariff in the interests of raising more revenue and of affording a reasonable protection to home industries. But it has always held that such protection should never be permitted to foster monopolies, or to become a means of oppression, being spurned to that declaration by the charge of the opposition that protection served such ends.

The Dingley bill, as originally drawn, was a sound and just measure. It provided for the raising of enough revenue for the support of the government, and for a reasonable protection of American industries. It was a national bill, in that all sections were remembered in it and would benefit by it. The men who drafted it were not only competent for their work, but enjoyed a very high reputation before the country. But no sooner had the bill reached the hands of the senate sub-committee appointed to examine and report it than influences presented themselves to mangling surgical claims in its provisions. And of all among those influences was the sugar trust, and other causes [illegible] changing a tariff [illegible] for the benefit of the [illegible] is plain. The reason is plain. We sell at fair, honest prices the best and handsomest bicycles it is possible to produce. The same quality to all, the same prices to all.

MORE PROSPECTING.

Johnson Nickel Company Looking For More Land.

Henry Pfund, engineer for the Johnson Nickel Mining company, arrived here from St. Paul Wednesday evening to continue the work of exploring the properties owned by that company, says the Grand Marais Herald. He brought with him a large amount of mining utensils, supplies and provisions, and a number of men. He also hired a number of men here before leaving for the scene of operations.

The Johnson Nickel Mining company is one of the heaviest owners of mineral lands in Cook county. It now owns several thousand acres of land and has taken options on nearly as much more. The lands owned by this company were not purchased upon hearsay nor guess-work, but were all thoroughly explored by competent men employed by the company before the purchase, therefore we may look for rich developments as soon as they begin operations.

This company has some nickel lands in Cook county which they claim produce the richest yield of ore ever mined, and they intend to develop the property as soon as they are through prospecting land which they intend to purchase.

SECRETARY PORTER'S RULES.

Owing to the pressure of office seekers at the White House Secretary Porter has been compelled to formulate a set of rules and placards to enable him to transact public business, says the Chicago Tribune. There are five of these placards, inclosed in oak frames about one foot square. Arthur Simmons, the colored messenger at Mr. Porter's door, posts the first frame in position before he leaves the White House at midnight. It reads:

"This office opens at 9 a. m."

Under no circumstances will callers be admitted to Secretary Porter's office a moment earlier, and orders to the said guardian of Secretary Porter's door are explicit on this point.

A few minutes after 4 o'clock in the afternoon another placard is hoisted, which says: "The office will be closed at 4 p. m." This suffices to clear out the corridors of office seekers and other White House visitors until another sign is posted saying: "This office will be reopened at 9:30 a. m."

By this arrangement the president and secretary are enabled to get an hour and a half to themselves in which to dispose of the importunities of office seekers. The next step in order is to the effect: "This office closes at 1 p. m."

There is one other sign which strikes terror to the hearts of callers upon the president's secretary, and this reads: "No visitors received on cabinet days."

Everybody will be treated alike on these days, and no exceptions will be made under any circumstances. It has been found necessary to formulate these rules in the interest of the public and the transaction of business.

CIPHERS

A Good Code is Easily Sold and Comes Quite High.

Some Amazing Examples of Condensation Attained by Code Use.

Armour's Private Code Said to Have Cost Him $20,000.

The extent to which the use of the telegraph enters into the transaction of business at the close of the century is in many instances learned by the fact that a commission house of New York has recently paid $10,000 for a cipher code to be used in the transaction of real estate business, and that the cost of this will be more than made up in the saving effected in telegraphic messages in one year, says the New York Sun. Owing to the rapid extension of land values and sales the old code which for the last five years all the world, where formerly the mails were used for the transmission of commercial messages, their business now is largely chiefly limited to the verification and confirmation of communications previously sent by wire. The telegraph company, on a no longer limited charge, is forced to increase the rates, which is one reason that the cipher codes are flourishing. The function of a code is conducted in commercial circles has reference to those to secure less expensive, prompter and more satisfactory results in the transmission of messages. Codes include [illegible] privacy or secrecy [illegible] by governments and individuals, but those cryptographic systems are simple and valid as contrasted with the elaborate and scientific that latter, and serve the purposes of economy in the business world.

To such an extent has the code system already been affected that the majority of the cablegrams passing between New York and the outermost ports of the earth contain no more than two or three words in addition to the name and address, with large numbers of groups of but a single word each. Names and addresses are usually condensed into cipher to secure the rate of transmission. For example, a message addressed to "Clarence Mayo, Paris," would be delivered to Clarence Eddy, resident, care of Munroe & Co., 7 rue Scribe, Paris, France—a saving of about twenty out of fourteen.

The executive departments of the United States government are each supplied with different cipher systems, and these are used both for secrecy and economy. It is easy to see why concealment is necessary when the treasury department is transmitting directions or information with a view to a raid for stock jobbing purposes, and the necessity would be essential in stating the amount of smuggled [illegible] which each word should differ from every other word by at least two letters and three elementary Morse signs. Otherwise, the error of a single letter or the similarity of telegraphic signals might convey a word totally different in meaning from that handed in by the sender. For example, "generalize" might be rendered "mineralize," "acetyle" might be made to read "actyle," and so on. It was found, on examination, that the official vocabulary as adopted at Budapest did not meet its own requirement, and that out of its 225,000 over 20,000 words were given in which the dissimilarity of at least two letters and three telegraphic signs did not exist.

John C. Barfield, a New York compiler of codes, was the first one to weed out the faulty words by a system of double checking. A force of women in New York and another in London were employed to make the search, and their labors were then compared. In this way 20,000 words were eliminated from the official vocabulary and its total reduced to 226,000 words. It is understood that the enlarged vocabulary to be adopted at the London conference in 1901 will contain nearly 500,000 words, and in order to obviate as far as possible the objections urged by persons already possessing codes obtained at large expense, the International bureau will introduce into the new collection such words now found in private codes as shall meet the general requirements, namely, that they shall be dictionary words in either the English, French, German, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, Dutch, or Latin languages, and shall be dissimilar in letters and telegraphic signs as already stated. Owners of such codes have only to send them for collation to the bureau at Berne, which then charges itself with the execution of the work.

Many people imagine that a business code is merely a printed book, a dictionary or an encyclopedia. It is true that a cipher code having for its object the concealment of the meaning of a message from all persons except the one to whom it is addressed, is constructed on these relatively simple lines, but a cablegram business code is a very different affair. Some of the code words now used by business houses are vast compilations of phrases and special arrangements of words designed to cover the multifarious details of business in reference to a single article, to say nothing of the variety of subjects that can come up in connection with every kind of merchandise which the United States buy abroad and sell abroad, as well as financial and speculative matters of the utmost importance.

Among the business houses which have paid big prices for private codes the more conspicuous are Eliot, Eddy & Co., of New York, and Armour & Co., of Chicago. The code used by Eliot, Eddy & Co. is said to have been produced at a cost of $10,000, and the cost of Armour & Co.'s code is given as $20,000. The last named house is probably an exaggeration as the size and complexity of a code seem to [illegible] the system used by [illegible] and expecting house does not necessitate [illegible] Legitimate trade is better than it was in [illegible] period, but the transactions of the stock and produce bonds are better.

JUNK SHOPS.

Chicago Has Some Which Can Meet Any Demand.

Two manufacturers sat before a big fireplace of a Chicago hotel recently, and as they enjoyed their post-prandial cigars and stretched their legs toward the fire exchanged ideas on business, touched upon general topics, and finally drifted into a discussion of the city itself, says the Chicago Tribune.

Said A: "A man has a right to be proud of Chicago. It's the coming center of American life. We have everything here—great manufactories, fine parks, immense interests of all kinds."

"True," said B, "and there is an additional source of pride among us that a vast majority overlook."

"And that is—"

"Our junk shops."

A received this information with so decisive a laugh that B turned in his leather chair and said, "Friend A, I was only half in earnest when I spoke, but I mean it just the same; and to prove my words I will tell you what I will do. I'll wager $25 that you cannot come with me now to a junk shop I know of in this city and ask for any three things that a man might reasonably want and not be at once supplied from the stock on hand."

"Done," said A promptly, and they at once got into their overcoats and started out on the quest.

At a little dilapidated store on Clark street B paused with his hand on the latch. "All ready," he asked, tentatively.

"All ready," returned A. "I have been cudgeling my brains on the way down here and I count that money won."

Behind a counter heaped with knickknacks of almost every description stood a little weazen-faced man in a blue waistcoat and roundabout, who smiled cheerfully on the men as they entered and remarked brightly upon the coolness of the weather. "And what is to be to-night, gentlemen?" he inquired with professional brevity.

"I am in search of a Rose Noble of the time of Henry VIII," said A. "Have you any in stock?"

"Ah, how fortunate! Only one. But here it is, and I don't believe you could have found another in town."

"Thanks," said A, "but I am not through yet. Just give me a nice Mug of a Zambesi warrior. I need one to complete my Indian cabinet."

"With pleasure, sir. Anthropology is my specialty. Would you like a triangle or the ordinary ring?"

"The regular thing will do me," this rather curtly. "But I have to trouble you once more."

A drew himself up for the final effort, shot a side glance at smiling B, and said slowly, "Be good enough to show me a second-hand altar cloth."

B trembled for his $25 and turned in alarm to the junk dealer. The little man was somewhere under the counter, searching among the debris that filled the room.

"With lace upon it, or plain velvet or plush? Here is a beauty with lilies of the valley in silk, and here is a French cloth worked with golden fleur de lis. Have you any preference?"

"None whatever," returned A dryly. "Here is your money, but you may keep the goods. I have reward enough in confirming a former suspicion that my friend is an authority on junk shops."

IMPROVING BUSINESS.

Evidence of Better Times Visible on All Sides.

St. Louis Globe Democrat, (Rep.): Dun's Review is correct in saying that most persons will be surprised to learn that "general sales in April by leading houses in each line of business in the principal cities east of the Rocky mountains average only about 10 per cent less than in April, 1892, the year of largest business hitherto, and were 6.1 per cent more than in the same month last year. Most persons will be surprised at this revelation because there has been a great deal of reckless talk in the past few months, and especially since March 4, by peripatetic newspapers and politicians about a pretended decline in business since the election. These alarmist reports by their frequency and vociferousness, have imposed on the general public, because the general public have neither the time nor the opportunity to submit these stories to the test which would necessarily reveal their falsity. The stories, indeed, have been told so often that even the authors themselves, in some cases, probably believe them to be true.

There can be no doubt of the reliability of the testimony that business, on the whole, is improving. The financial authority which we have quoted has carefully gathered the data on which are based the figures of April's increase in business over that month in 1896, and its slight decrease from that of the high level of 1892. This evidence comes from 275 reports to that paper, each covering actual sales of leading merchants in the different cities. A good test of the business situation is that presented. The ability of people to buy is ordinarily a trustworthy criterion of their material condition. On this basis of comparison there is more employment for workers than we had last year at this time and at better wages. An approach to a certain degree at least, to the normal business condition has been made since twelve months ago.

Confidence can be had from many sources to strengthen the assumption. Business failures are fewer in number and in the amount of liabilities involved than they were last year at this date. Iron production is greater than it was then, and the loans of the New York banks are larger. Railroad earnings, too, show signs of better movement. Bank clearings, in the country as a whole, have been slightly below those of last year at this time, but this is largely due to a comparative absence of activity on the speculative exchanges. Legitimate trade is better than it was in [illegible] period, but the transactions of the stock and produce bonds are better.

A MOA'S EGG.

British Museum Has the Only Specimen in Existence.

Carefully guarded here, with a glass case to the British museum authority, in London, is an egg, the duplicate of which is not to be found in the world, says the Philadelphia Times. It is an egg of a moa, or dinornis, for it was a species of that very ancient bird, which is now extinct. This curious bird, like the dodo, was of immense size, being from ten to fourteen feet in height. It was a cousin of the ostrich, and like the ostrich, depended on its running powers to carry it out of harm's way. In the fall of 1851, word came all over Europe were interested in an unexpected discovery which appeared in several London newspapers, announcing that on Nov. 26, J. C. Stevens would offer at auction, at his King street, Covent Garden, a specimen, in only perfect of this very rare and remarkable egg. The egg arrived from Auckland per ship Barwon, and Edward Newman announced upon the story of the egg's discovery, printed early in 1851, in the Wellington papers, as it was sold by Capt. James Daniels, of the schooner Rifle, a lady passenger in the vessel, Miss Wilkinson, who was then trading between Wellington and Kai Koras islands, it appears from the captain's account, was in the employ of a Mr. Tyffe who, digging the foundation for a house, and when on the side of a small mound he suddenly came upon the egg about eight feet below the surface. The two was also the specimen of a man, and beside him Maori chief, whose body had evidently been buried in a sitting posture. The arms were contracted and clasped in the hands, and on a chest line with the man's mouth was the egg. This it is assumed, was in accordance with the Maori custom, and was done for the purpose of giving the individual who was buried an opportunity of sustaining himself if he [illegible] people, or if in the course of things, he required sustenance. Between the legs of the skeleton were found native tools cut from greenstone, including an ax, spears and several implements, showing that the dead man had been a chief of great importance. All the bones were in a state of excellent preservation, one arm and hand being entirely without blemish.

Unfortunately, before the man who was digging discovered the egg, the implement he was using came in contact with the shell and chipped a small piece out of its side. This was secured, however, and again fastened skillfully in position. The egg was of enormous size, being 8 1/2 inches long and seven inches in breadth, the shell being of a dirty brownish color, and slightly thicker than our silver quarter. The locality where the egg was found was no doubt used as a cemetery at one time, ages ago. When the egg reached London hundreds of ornithologists from every section of Europe went to see it, and on the afternoon of the sale the bidding for the treasure was quite spirited. It was finally secured by a private collector, who paid £200, or $1000, for it. Later it was sold to the British national museum for a much larger sum. It is the only known specimen in existence.

MARK TWAIN'S FRIEND.

It's a Denver newspaper tradition that the funniest bit of journalistic work ever done by Mark Twain was strangled by a too friendly proofreader. Mark was given an assignment to write up the opening of a saloon—quite a noteworthy event in those days in the Colorado town.

He thought it would be funny to make his account of the festivities near silent witness to the potency of the free refreshments dispensed. The article began soberly enough, but soon the diction became misty, then the spelling grew confused, and finally the whole thing degenerated into a maudlin, incoherent eulogy of the saloonkeeper.

It was funny. Mark read it over and laughed until he cried. But the next morning when he eagerly scanned the paper he could not find his work. In an obscure corner he saw a two-line item stating that "the Alcazar saloon was opened with appropriate festivities last night." That was all.

He rushed down to the office and inquired about his article. The managing editor knew nothing about it. The city editor couldn't tell what had become of it. The foreman said he hadn't seen it.

As Mark was snorting about the "outrage," and was running about the office trying to get track of his missing "copy," a proofreader slyly nudged him and said confidentially: "You owe me a cigar."

"How is that?" inquired the humorist.

"I've earned it," was the reply. "I saved your job for you last night. Maybe you don't know how the old man here feels about such things, but he won't have it if he finds it out. He's fired three men since I've been here—just that way."

"Just what way?"

"Why, just as you were last night, you know. Your stuff wouldn't do at all. It was simply awful. I knew if the old man saw it you were gone, so I fixed it up myself."

WAS A MIND READER.

She stood at the window of the Illinois Central ticket office and compared her watch with that of the depot clock, says the Chicago Tribune.

"You're too fast," she said to the ticket agent. "According to that clock my train won't be gone ten minutes."

"Which is your train?" asked the man, [illegible] mild.

"No . . . it's gone. It is now 10:25."

"You mean that your time is 10:15. Now you want a new; was wrong since I owned it, and it just 10:25. I've lost a minute looking for the train. It's too bad that things should be run in that way."

"We run all our trains on schedule time," said the ticket agent.

"I should think there would be collisions and all sorts of happenings with such time as that. You might set your clock by my watch if you like and start your next train on the right time."

The man smiled good-naturedly, and then, as a sudden thought struck him, said:

"Is your watch going?"

"Sir! You don't think I carry a dumb watch do you?"

"Sometimes ladies' watches run down." She put the watch to her ear and looked very grave. Then she tried the other ear. "I believe my ear has made me deaf. But you can hear for yourself."

He listened and shook his head. Then he handed it back to her.

"It's as dead as a door nail. You must have forgotten to wind it last night."

"You must be a mind reader," said the woman, looking for delinquent dimples on her face as if the charge against it had not been proved. "I took that watch off to wind it last night when the fire engines went past our house, and I forgot all about it. I shouldn't wonder if your time is right after all." And she walked cheerfully away, while the ticket man said to a waiting customer that life would be a dull, dreary Sahara of commerce if such little diversions didn't happen frequently.

WHERE FISHING IS GOOD.

Those looking for the best fishing grounds are reminded of Lake Tetonka, at Waterville, and Madison lake, on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad.

Wall-eyed pike, bass and crappies are found in great abundance at both of these lakes, which have not been fished out to the extent of some of the older and better known localities.

Excellent hotel accommodations, boats, bait, etc., on hand, and all charges are very reasonable.

A CYCLER

Chicago's Mayor is a Wheelman Who Has a Good Record.

Is Expected to Lead the University Club Run Next Sunday.

Believes That Bicycling is Better Exercise Than Horseback Riding.

Chicago, May 20.—One of the largest Union cycle club runs ever held in the West will take place Sunday. The officers having charge of the run state that nearly every organized club of this city and vicinity will participate. The event will be specially interesting this year as "his honor," the mayor, has consented to take part. Mayor Harrison is a bicycle rider with an enviable record. Last year he rolled up a total of 1100 miles and he states that this year his record will be double that, although he is very busy at his office, which prevents him from enjoying the wheel as much as he desires. The mayor worked hard for the passage of the bicycle bill, and in fact, uses his influence in favor of wheelmen and their wants wherever he is able. Bicycle racing does not interest him and he cares nothing for the sporting side of the cycle, but likes it only for its social and amusement side.

This is how he compares the wheel to the horse: "Why, I don't think they compare at all," said the mayor. "Cycling is so much better that there isn't any comparison. When I go horseback riding," he says, "the horse gets the exercise. He doesn't exactly get it all, but he gets the best of it. On the other hand, when I go bicycle riding all the exercise is mine. I do all the work and have all the fun. A man can feel that he is doing something for himself when he is riding a wheel and there is a great deal of satisfaction in that. Another advantage of a bicycle over a horse is that a man can go much farther on a bicycle. A fellow in good physical condition and accustomed to riding can go out on the road and reel off sixty or seventy miles without feeling that he has been on his wheel. A jaunt of that distance would use a horse all up, of course. Last summer I used to start out frequently at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, ride out to Glencoe for dinner with my brother-in-law and then ride back in the evening. It was just a fine distance for a ride and I used to enjoy every bit of it."

THE SUGAR DEAL.

Senate Schedule Denounced as an Outrage.

Washington Star (Rep.): The surrender to the sugar trust by the sub-committee of the senate finance committee in the amended sugar schedule of the Dingley bill is denounced from one end of the country to the other. Men of all shades of political opinion—Republicans, Democrats and Populists—unite in characterizing it as an outrage on the public interests and as calling for prompt and emphatic redress. Nor is any of the language used at all too strong. The transaction is nothing short of scandalous, and the senate could not ratify it without inflicting on itself a lasting disgrace.

This is the time for plain speaking. The Republican party has come into power—not without much difficulty—to right wrongs and give the country good government. Its campaign promises are well remembered, and its politics well defined. It is under obligations to revise the tariff in the interests of raising more revenue and of affording a reasonable protection to home industries. But it has always held that such protection should never be permitted to foster monopolies, or to become a means of oppression, being spurred to that declaration by the charge of the opposition that protection served such ends.

The Dingley bill, as originally drawn, was a sound and just measure. It provided for the raising of enough revenue for the support of the government, and for a reasonable protection of American industries. It was a national bill, in that all sections were remembered in it and would benefit by it. The men who drafted it were not only competent for their work, but enjoyed a very high reputation before the country. But no sooner had the bill reached the hands of the senate sub-committee appointed to examine and report it than influences presented themselves demanding radical changes in its provisions. And chief among those influences was the sugar trust, and chief among the changes was that, made at the trust's dictation, by which the sugar schedule was transformed in to a means of enriching the trust almost beyond computation.

This would have been a surprising performance in ordinary circumstances, but in the circumstances that actually exist it is simply amazing. The sugar trust was the source of scandal in the preparation of the existing tariff law, and more than any other one cause was the means of changing a large Democratic majority in one house to a very small Democratic minority in the next house. The record was fresh, and still foul. The president and the secretary of the trust stood indicted for refusing to testify in the investigation of the matter which the senate had conducted, and full sentences confronted them. Yet this did not restrain the trust from reaching out its grasping hand again, and seeking to control this senate to its shame as it did the senate of 1894. Nothing bolder than this has occurred in this country since the fate of Jesse James made robbery at the point of the pistol a bit too risky and therefore unfashionable.

There is some mention of a contribution made by the sugar trust to the Republican campaign fund last year. The trust, it is understood, always contributes, and usually to both sides. The trust has no political principles. But whatever the circumstances attending this latest contribution may have been—what the amount, to whom handed, under what power promises—to enact specific legislation in return for that, and such as the trust itself dictates, to the detriment of the people, would be to invite such a storm as would justly hurl the Republican party from power. The sugar trust amendment to the Dingley bill ought to be instantly kicked out of the senate.

MORE PROSPECTING.

Johnson Nickel Company Looking For More Land.

Henry Pfund, engineer for the Johnson Nickel Mining company, arrived here from St. Paul Wednesday evening to continue the work of exploring the properties owned by that company, says the Grand Marais Herald. He brought with him a large amount of mining utensils, supplies and provisions, and a number of men. He also hired a number of men here before leaving for the scene of operations.

The Johnson Nickel Mining company is one of the heaviest owners of mineral lands in Cook county. It now owns several thousand acres of land and has taken options on nearly as much more. The lands owned by this company were not purchased upon hear-say nor guess-work, but were all thoroughly explored by competent men employed by the company before being purchased, therefore we may look for rich developments as soon as they begin operations.

This company has some nickel lands in Cook county which they claim produce the richest nickel ore ever mined, and they intend to develop the property as soon as they are through prospecting land which they intend to purchase.

SECRETARY PORTER'S RULES.

Owing to the pressure of office seekers at the White House Secretary Porter has been compelled to formulate a set of rules and placards to enable him to transact public business, says the Chicago Tribune. There are five of these placards, inclosed in oak frames about one foot square, Arthur Simmons, the colored messenger at Mr. Porter's door, puts the first frame in position before he leaves the White House at midnight. It reads:

"This office opens at 10 a. m."

Under no circumstances will callers be admitted to Secretary Porter's office a minute earlier, and orders to the subordinate guardian of Secretary Porter's door are explicit on this point.

A few minutes before 1 o'clock in the afternoon another danger signal is hoisted, which says: "This office will be closed at 1 p. m." This suffices to clear out the corridors of office seekers and other White House visitors until another sign is pasted saying: "This office will be reopened at 2:30 p. m."

By this arrangement the president and secretary are enabled to get an hour and a half to themselves for luncheon free from the importunities of office seekers. The next sign in order is to the effect: "This office closes at 4 p. m."

There is one other sign which strikes terror to the hearts of callers upon the president's secretary, and this reads: "No visitors received on cabinet days."

Everybody will be treated alike on these days, and no exceptions will be made under any circumstances. It has been found necessary to formulate these rules in the interest of the public and the transaction of business.

CIPHERS

A Good Code is Easily Sold and Comes Quite High.

Some Amazing Examples of Condensation Attained by Code Use.

Armour's Private Code Said to Have Cost Him $20,000.

The extent to which the use of the telegraph enters into the transaction of business at the close of the century is in no one measure indicated by the fact that a prominent shipping house of New York has recently paid $10,000 for a cipher code to be used in the transmission of business messages, and that the cost of this code will be more than made up in the saving effected on telegraphic messages in one year, says the New York Sun. Owing to the rapid extension of land wires and submarine cables within the last few years, all parts of the globe are now connected by electricity, and the bulk of the world's business is done by its aid through the medium of codes, which have been constructed to meet the requirements of the commercial and financial world. Where formerly the mails were used for the transmission of commercial messages, their business now is nearly chiefly limited to the verification and elaboration of communications previously sent by wire. The telegraph account on a merchant's balance sheet is, therefore, an important item, and it is for this reason that the cipher codes are invented. The function of a code as employed in commercial transactions has reference less to secrecy than to economy, though both results are accomplished at the same time. Codes having particular reference to concealment and privacy are used extensively by governments and individuals, but those cryptographic systems are simple and lucid as contrasted with the elaborate and complicated forms that serve the purposes of economy in the business world.

To such an extent has the code system of today been perfected that the majority of the cablegrams passing between New York and the uttermost ends of the earth contain no more than two or three words in addition to the name and address, which fringe numberless cables. But a single word each. Names and addresses are also condensed into cipher to reduce the cost of transmission. For example, a message addressed to "Clarence Munroe, Paris," would be delivered to Clarence Eddy, organist, care of Munroe & Co., 7 Rue Scribe, Paris, France—a saving of eleven words out of fourteen.

The executive departments of the United States government are each supplied with different cipher systems, and these are used both for secrecy and economy. It is easy to see why concealment is necessary when the treasury department is transmitting directions or information which might be used for stock jobbing purposes, and that secrecy would be essential in sending out the announcement that a train loaded with gold bullion would, on a certain day and hour, start from the mint at Carson for San Francisco. The navy department's cipher is a very extensive and complicated one, and is used in all correspondence pertaining to the movements of vessels and fleets. When the Trenton and Vandalia were lost in a hurricane, off the Samoan islands, nine years ago, a cipher could not be used in advising the department at Washington of the catastrophe, as the code book was on board the Trenton, and went to the bottom with the ship. The message was sent in full, and its transmission by way of Auckland cost the United States nearly $1000. The weather bureau uses a cipher code for economy in the transmission of reports from the 150 signal stations. Anson Stager devised the first cryptographic code for the use of the war department, early in 1861, and the first key to it was intrusted to Allan Pinkerton, the detective. Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln, was captured by means of a cipher message sent to Washington, and the operator who telegraphed the message received $300 out of the reward offered.

It is a rule of the cable companies that no word shall contain more than ten letters without an extra charge, and that in cipher messages colled words shall not be used. An official code vocabulary for universal use was adopted by the International Telegraphic convention, sitting at Budapest in June and July of last year, and steps were taken toward making the use of this code compulsory throughout the world, commencing with Jan. 1, 1898. This measure called out a storm of protests and remonstrances from merchants and commercial bodies in the United States, and the plan of making the new vocabulary compulsory was abandoned. The convention decided not to enforce the use of the first edition of the new vocabulary, and ordered the International bureau of telegraphic administration at Berne, Switzerland, to prepare and issue a second enlarged and modified edition. It was also decided the date of the compulsory use of this second edition should be fixed by a convention to be held in London in 1901.

It is one of the requisites of a satisfactory cipher code vocabulary that there should be a typographic and telegraphic dissimilarity in the words used, and that each word should differ from every other word by at least two letters and three elementary Morse signs. Otherwise, the error of a single letter or the similarity of telegraphic signals might convey a word totally different in meaning from that handed in by the sender. For example, "generalize" might be rendered "mineralize," "acetyle" might be made to read "actyle," and so on. It was found, on examination, that the official vocabulary as adopted at Budapest did not meet its own requirement, and that out of its 250,000 over 20,000 words were given in which the dissimilarity of at least two letters and three telegraphic signs did not exist.

John C. Hartfield, a New York compiler of codes, was the first one to weed out the faulty words by a system of double checking. A force of women in New York and another in London were employed to make the search, and their labors were then compared. In this way 20,000 words were eliminated from the official vocabulary and its total reduced to 226,000 words. It is understood that the enlarged vocabulary to be adopted at the London conference in 1901 will contain nearly 500,000 words, and in order to obviate as far as possible the objections urged by persons already possessing codes obtained at large expense, the international bureau will introduce into the new collection such words now found in private codes as shall meet the general requirements, namely, that they shall be dictionary words in either the English, French, German, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, Dutch, or Latin languages, and shall be dissimilar in letters and telegraphic signs as already stated. Owners of such codes have only to send them for collation to the bureau at Berne, which then charges itself with the execution of the work.

Many people imagine that a business code is merely a printed book, a dictionary, or an encyclopedia. It is true that a cipher code having for its object the concealment of the meaning of a message from all persons except the one to whom it is addressed, is constructed on these relatively simple lines, but a complete business code is a very different affair. Some of the code words now used by business houses are vast compilations of figures and special arrangements of words designed to cover the multifarious details of business in reference to a single article, to say nothing of the variety of subjects that can come up in connection with every kind of merchandise which the United States buy abroad and sell abroad, as well as financial and speculative matters of the utmost importance.

Among the business houses which have paid big prices for private codes the most conspicuous are Flint, Eddy & Co., of New York, and Armour & Co., of Chicago. The code used by Flint, Eddy & Co. is said to have been produced at a cost of $10,000, and the cost of Armour & Co.'s code is given as $20,000. The last named figure is probably an exaggeration, as the size and complexity of a code govern its cost, and the system used by importing and exporting house dealing in merchandise of almost every known description would naturally be more elaborate than that used by a company which handles a relatively limited number of its own manufactured products. The code used by Flint, Eddy & Co. contains a general vocabulary of 226,000 words, and a special vocabulary of 30,000 words, making a total of 256,000. It is estimated that by the use of this code the firm will save from $12,000 to $15,000 a year in telegraph expenses. This does not mean necessarily that the receipts of the cable companies are to be decreased in that proportion. It means that by the use of code systems the cables are utilized for the transaction of business which could not be handled by telegraph at all if full word rates had to be paid, and it may happen that in the long run the receipts of the cable companies are increased, rather than diminished, by the use of cipher codes. Every large shipping house, and many of the leading financial establishments are provided with separate code systems which are guarded closely and carefully from the knowledge of outsiders. The gross sum of the money saved by the code is enormous. An ordinary message, sent to a remote part of the world to which the cable rate is $3 per word, would cost from $20 to $100 if sent in the language of conversation, whereas the code message involves the expenditure of only a small sum. An example of the extent to which words and their numerical co-agents can be used in telegraphing detailed information was furnished to the Sun reporter, as follows:

"New York, May 1.—To Smith & Thompson, Cape Town, South Africa: We offer, cost, insurance and freight at $1.27 per case, 15,000 cases of kerosene oil; shipment by sailer early next month; with deck load of staves, freight rate to Cape Town, $4.10 per 1000 feet, subject to reply by wire before 12 M. tomorrow. To other points add 1 cent per case on oil."

This message of fifty-eight words, aside from the address and signature, was conveyed in the following code words and figures:

"Reportabam—011255. Aqueduct—508102."

It should be understood that only the words are cabled, and that the figures are contained in the key book in the possession of the person receiving the message, and are used by him to translate the message. The system by which all this is given in two words is one of extraordinary complexity, but the cable code experts employed in the large shipping houses are so skilled in their work that not above ten minutes would be occupied in either sending or translating this two-word message. In the office of a representative Broad street firm four clerks are employed in the cable code department, all of them high-priced men.

From ten to fifteen messages from different parts of the globe are received every day, and the cable book has completely displaced the letter book in importance. The following are average types of one and two word messages in the grain trade:

"Fracasando." (Translation)—"We offer 3000 quarters No. 2 spring wheat, shipment by steam to your port, at 5s 4½d."

"Remixed. Fastidiar." Translation—"We offer 10,500 quarters No. 2 spring wheat. In force for reply Wednesday. Shipment this month. Others have sold at this price. 5/2½ 6d."

In the single word message the saving is nineteen words out of twenty, and in the two-word message twenty-six out of twenty-eight words. The average savingt in the larger codes is estimated at 25 to 1. The importance of this saving can be gathered from the fact that by one route the cable rate of Cartagena in Colombia is $3.15 per word; to Puerto Cabelo in Venezuela, $3.15 per word, and to points in the Cape colonies of South Africa $1.48 to $1.50 per word. This is why a business house can pay $10,000 for a cipher code and save its price in less than one year.

IMPROVING BUSINESS.

Evidence of Better Times Visible on All Sides.

St. Louis Globe Democrat, (Rep.): Dun's Review is correct in saying that most persons will be surprised to learn that "actual sales in April by leading houses in each line of business in the principal cities east of the Rocky mountains average only about 10 per cent less than in April, 1892, the year of largest business hitherto, and were 6.1 per cent more than in the same month last year. Most persons will be surprised at this revelation because there has been a great deal of reckless talk in the past few months, and especially since March 4, by popocratic newspapers and politicians about a pretended decline in business since the election. These alarmist reports by their frequency and vociferousness, have imposed on the general public, because the general public have neither the time nor the opportunity to submit these stories to the test which would necessarily reveal their falsity. The stories, indeed, have been told so often that even the authors themselves, in some cases, probably believe them to be true.

There can be no doubt of the reliability of the testimony that business, on the whole, is improving. The financial authority which we have quoted has carefully gathered the data on which are based the figures of April's increase in business over that month in 1896, and its slight decrease from that of the high level of 1892. This evidence comes from 257 reports to that paper, each covering actual sales of leading merchants in the different cities. A good test of the business situation is thus presented. The ability of people to buy is ordinarily a trustworthy criterion of their material condition. On this basis of comparison there is more employment for workers than we had last year at this time and at better wages. An approach to a certain degree at least, to the normal business condition has been made since twelve months ago.

Evidence can be had from many sources to strengthen the assumption. Business failures are fewer in number and in the amount of liabilities involved than they were last year at this date. Iron production is greater than it was then, and the loans of the New York banks are larger. Railroad earnings, too, show signs of improvement. Bank clearings, in the country as a whole, have been slightly below those of last year at this time, but this is largely due to a comparative absence of activity on the speculative exchanges. Legitimate trade is better than it was in 1896 at this period, but the transactions of the stock and produce boards are lighter.

JUNK SHOPS.

Chicago Has Some Which Can Meet Any Demand.

Two manufacturers sat before a big fireplace of a Chicago hotel recently, and as they enjoyed their post-prandial cigars and stretched their legs toward the fire exchanged ideas on business, touched upon general topics, and finally drifted into a discussion of the city itself, says the Chicago Tribune.

Said A: "A man has a right to be proud of Chicago. It's the coming center of American life. We have everything here—great manufactories, fine parks, immense interests of all kinds."

"True," said B, "and there is an additional source of pride among us that a vast majority overlook."

"And that is—"

"Our junk shops."

A received this information with so derisive a laugh that B turned in his leather chair and said, "Friend A, I was only half in earnest when I spoke, but I mean it just the same; and to prove my words I will tell you what I will do. I'll wager $25 that you cannot come with me now to a junk shop I know of in this city and ask for any three things that a man might reasonably want and not be at once supplied from the stock on hand."

"Done," said A promptly, and they at once got into their overcoats and started out on the quest.

At a little dilapidated store on Clark street B paused with his hand on the latch. "All ready," he asked, tentatively.

"All ready," returned A. "I have been cudgeling my brains on the way down here and I count that money won."

Behind a counter heaped with knicknacks of almost every description stood a little weazen-faced man in a blue waistcoat and roundabout, who smiled cheerfully on the men as they entered and remarked brightly upon the coolness of the weather. "And what is to be tonight, gentlemen?" he inquired with professional brevity.

"I am in search of a Rose Noble of the time of Henry VIII," said A. "Have you any in stock?"

"Ah, how fortunate! Only one. But here it is, and I don't believe you could have found another in town."

"Thanks," said A, "but I am not through yet. Just give me a nose ring of a Zambesi warrior. I need one to complete my Indian cabinet."

"With pleasure, sir. Anthropology is my specialty. Would you like a triangle or the ordinary ring?"

"The regular thing will do me," this rather curtly. "But I have to trouble you once more."

A drew himself up for the final effort, shot a side glance at smiling B, and said slowly, "Be good enough to show me a second-hand altar cloth."

It trembled for his $25 and turned in alarm to the junk dealer. The little man was somewhere under the counter, searching among the debris that filled the room.

"With lace upon it, or plain velvet or plush? Here is a beauty with lilies of the valley in silk, and here is a French cloth worked with golden fleur de lis. Have you any preference?"

"None whatever," returned A dryly. "Here is your money, but you may keep the goods. I have reward enough in confirming a former suspicion that my friend is an authority on junk shops."

A MOA'S EGG.

British Museum Has the Only Specimen in Existence.

Carefully guarded beneath a glass case in the British national museum, in London, is an egg, the duplicate of which is not to be found in the world, says the Philadelphia Times. It is an egg of the moa, or dinornis, a bird of a species that was very plentiful a century ago in New Zealand, but which is now extinct. This curious bird, like the dodo, was of immense size, being from ten to fourteen feet in height. It was incapable of flight, and like the ostrich, depended on its running powers to carry it out of harm's way. In the fall of 1865, scientists all over Europe were interested in an advertisement which appeared in several London newspapers, announcing that on Nov. 21, J. C. Stevens would offer for sale at auction, at 23 King street, Covent Garden, a specimen, nearly perfect, of this very rare and remarkable egg. The egg arrived from Australia per ship Rangatira. Following the announcement appeared the story of the egg's discovery, printed early in 1865, in the Wellington papers, as it was sold by Capt. James Davidson, of the schooner Rifle, which vessel was then trading between Wellington and Kai Koras islands. It appears from the captain's story that a man in the employ of a Mr. Tyrie was digging the foundation for a house, and when on the side of a small mound he suddenly came upon the egg about eight feet below the surface. There was also the specimen of a man, undoubtedly a Maori chief, whose body had evidently been buried in a sitting posture. The arms were outstretched and clasped in the hands, and on a direct line with the man's mouth, was the egg. This, it is assumed, was in accordance with the Maori custom, and was done for the purpose of giving the individual who was buried an opportunity of sustaining himself if he thought proper, or if, in the course of things, he required sustenance. Between the legs of the skeleton were found numerous tools cut from greenstone, including an ax, spears and several implements, showing that the dead man had been a chief of great importance. All the bones were in a state of excellent preservation, one arm and hand being entirely without blemish.

Unfortunately, before the man who was digging discovered the egg, the implement he was using came in contact with the shell and chipped a small piece out of its side. This was secured, however, and again fastened skillfully in position. The egg was of enormous size, being ten and one-half inches long and seven inches in breadth, the shell being of a dirty brownish color, and slightly thicker than our silver quarter. The locality where the egg was found was no doubt used as a cemetery at one time, ages ago. When the egg reached London hundreds of ornithologists from every section of Europe went to see it, and on the afternoon of the sale the building for the treasure was quite spirited. It was finally secured by a private collector, who paid £280, or $1400, for it. Later it was sold to the British national museum for a much larger sum. It is the only known specimen in existence.

MARK TWAIN'S FRIEND.

It is a Denver newspaper tradition that the funniest bit of journalistic work ever done by Mark Twain was strangled by a too friendly proofreader. Mark was given an assignment to write up the opening of a saloon—quite a noteworthy event in those days in the Colorado town.

He thought it would be funny to make his account of the festivities bear silent witness to the potency of the free refreshments dispensed. The article began soberly enough, but soon the diction became misty, then the spelling grew confused, and finally the whole thing degenerated into a maudlin, incoherent eulogy of the saloonkeeper.

It was funny. Mark read it over and laughed until he cried. But the next morning when he eagerly scanned the paper he could not find his work. In an obscure corner he saw a two-line item stating that "the Alcazar saloon was opened with appropriate festivities last night." That was all.

He rushed down to the office and inquired about his article. The managing editor knew nothing about it. The city editor couldn't tell what had become of it. The foreman said he hadn't seen it.

As Mark was snorting about the "outrage," and was running about the office trying to get track of his missing "copy," a proofreader slyly nudged him and said confidentially: "You owe me a cigar."

"How is that?" inquired the humorist.

"I've earned it," was the reply. "I saved your job for you last night. Maybe you don't know how the old man here feels about such things, but he won't have it if he finds it out. He's fired three men since I've been here—just that way."

"Just what way?"

"Why, just as you were last night, you know. Your stuff wouldn't do at all. It was simply awful. I knew if the old man saw it you were gone, so I fixed it up myself."

WAS A MIND READER.

She stood at the window of the Illinois central ticket office and compared her time with that of the depot clock, says the Chicago Tribune.

"You're too fast," she said to the ticket agent. "According to that clock my train would be gone ten minutes."

"Which is your train?" asked the man.

"The 10:15."

"Yes, it's gone. It is now 10:25."

"You mean that your time is 10:15. Now my watch never was wrong since I owned it, and it is just 10:25. I've lost a minute looking for the train. It's too bad that things should be run in that way."

"We run all our trains on schedule time," said the ticket agent.

"I should think there would be collisions and all sorts of happenings with such time as that. You might set your clock by my watch if you like and start your next train on the right time."

The man smiled good-naturedly, and then, as a sudden thought struck him, asked:

"Is your watch going?"

"Sir! You don't think I carry a dumb watch do you?"

"Sometimes ladies' watches run down."

She put the watch to her ear and looked very grave. Then she tried the other ear.

"I believe my cold has made me deaf. But you can hear for yourself."

He listened and shook his head. Then he handed it back to her.

"It's as dead as a door nail. You must have forgotten to wind it last night."

"You must be a mind reader," said the woman, hailing the delinquent timepiece to her ear as if the charge against it had not been proven. "I took that watch off to wind it last night when the fire engines went past our house, and I forgot all about it. I shouldn't wonder if your time is right after all." And she walked cheerfully away, while the ticket man said to the waiting customer that life would be a dull, dreary Sahara of commerce if such little diversions didn't happen frequently.

WHERE FISHING IS GOOD.

Those looking for the best fishing grounds are reminded of Lake Tetonka, at Waterville, and Madison lake, on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad.

Wall-eyed pike, bass and crappies are found in great abundance at both of these lakes, which have not been fished out to the extent of some of the older and better known localities.

Excellent hotel accommodations, boats, bait, etc., on hand, and all charges are very reasonable.

NO WAR

Colorado's Senator Says Spain Cannot Force This Country Into War.

McKinley's Administration Is Too Pusillanimous to Offend Spain.

Resolution Sure of Defeat In the House---A Hot Roast.

Denver, Col., May 21.—"Spain cannot drive this country into war," said Senator Teller today in discussing the action of the senate in passing the Morgan resolution directing the president to declare that a state of war exists in Cuba.

"This administration is too cowardly to do anything. It is afraid of offending Spain. The passage of that resolution does not mean anything at all except that the president cannot control the senate as he does the house. It will be downed in the house as sure as it gets there. Reed will say it shall not pass. Hanna will say it shall not pass and the truckling Republicans in the house will yield. It does not matter at all what the private opinions of the members may be.

"It is evident that the administration is entering on a foreign policy as contemptible and pusillanimous as that of Cleveland was. It is a shame, but there is no help for it. The people can only speak through their representatives and they are dominated absolutely by the administration. I cannot conceive of any public demonstration so vigorous enough to have any effect on the president's policy."

CRETAN AUTONOMY.

There Appears to Be Some Lively Opposition.

Candia, Island of Crete, May 21.—The Cretan insurgents have received instructions from Athens to accept an autonomous form of government on condition that the Turkish troops shall be previously withdrawn from the island. The insurgents appear to approve of this plan for the settlement of their grievances.

The Mussulmans of Crete, however, have telegraphed to the sultan protesting at "being placed in the power of the majority which betrayed such hostility to the Mussulmans by the carnage at Sitia and the destruction of all the Mahommedan villages," adding: "Autonomy under such circumstances cannot fail to perpetuate race wars and will only briefly postpone the revival of the annexation question with all its disastrous consequences."

FOR SOLICITOR GENERAL.

Bob Evans' Appointment Urged By Senator Davis.

Washington, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Davis called at the White House today to discuss the Cuban question with the president, and it is understood that he incidentally urged the appointment of R. G. Evans as solicitor general. This position is almost equal to a cabinet office.

WILL ENDORSE GRYGLA.

Minneapolis Man Would Be Immigration Commissioner.

Washington, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Grygla, of Minneapolis, immigration agent for the Great Northern railroad, who is a candidate for commissioner of immigration, will be presented to the president by Representative Tawney on Monday. He will have the endorsement of the entire Minnesota delegation.

THE GOLD MOVEMENT.

New York, May 21.—Lazard Freeres, agents for the Bank of France, will ship $1,200,000 in gold by the French liner tomorrow. This is the first engagement for the week.

YERKES LENS IN PLACE.

Williams Bay, Wis., May 21.—To the accompaniment of a howling northwest wind and the squeaking of many pulleys the great objective lenses of the Yerkes observatory were lifted into position last evening. An hour later the eye piece was adjusted and the world's greatest telescope became a reality. The sky, however, was too cloudy last night for observation.

City Wants Judgment.

In the case of the Duluth Trust company against the city, in which a demurrer to the plaintiff's reply was sustained some time ago, the city has given notice of a motion for judgment in its favor on the ground that no amended reply has been served. The matter will be heard in special term tomorrow.

A Silver Wedding.

The silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. William Deichsel was celebrated last evening, at their residence, 606 East Tenth street. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Ottinger, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Ottinger, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Hampel and daughter, the members of the North Pole lodge, No. 22, Order of Sons of Hermann, of which Mr. Deichsel is a member, were also present in a body, and gave each a beautiful present. Many other presents were also received. A very delightful evening was spent in dancing.

THE PRESBYTERIANS.

A Gavel Presented By Ex-President Harrison.

Eagle Lake, Ind., May 21.—The Presbyterian general assembly today was opened with devotional exercises led by Rev. A. Forbes Irwin, of Hutchinson, Kan. Before taking up the docket a gavel was presented to Moderator Jackson by ex-President Benjamin Harrison on behalf of the Presbyterians of Indiana. The donor spoke at length upon the symbolism of the woods used in its construction and the moderator announced the chairmen of the committees and afterward the first order of the morning was made the report of the committee of eleven on the Presbyterian building in New York.

The committee offered for adoption the following resolutions:

1. That the disposition of the two properties in question (at Twentieth street and Fifth avenue and at Fifth avenue and Twelfth street) shall now be left to the boards of home and foreign missions as agents of our church.

2. That the general assembly hereby expresses its cordial appreciation of the laborious services, the sacrifices of time as well as the contributions of money made by the members of the board, and others also in the conduct of these enterprises.

3. That the general assembly approves of the action of the committee and herewith discharges the committee of eleven.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Market Opened Low But Soon Firmed Up.

New York, May 1.—Initial prices were mostly a shade lower but the market quickly recovered and tended quite strongly upwards. New Jersey Central opened from 70 to 70½ as compared with 70 at yesterday's close, and made an additional gain to 70⅝. Chicago Gas also moved up 1⅛ to 81¼, and Burlington rose ⅝. The bears made strenuous efforts to check the rise and selected the coalers as vulnerable points of attack. New Jersey Central declined 1⅜ and Delaware & Hudson 1 per cent. The general market sympathized to a moderate extent with the recessions accelerated by revising and short sales induced by the announcement of the engagement of $1,200,000 gold for export tomorrow. Manhattan gained a point on the report that the motive power would be changed thereby insuring a large saving in operating expenses, but reacted ⅛c.

Speculative interest continued to center in the coalers and wide fluctuations occurred in the prices for the group. A demand by the short interest advanced Delaware & Hudson a point, Lackawanna 2 and New Jersey 1⅛. The latter, however, fluctuated very feverishly and soon lost a point with a subsequent sharp improvement. General Electric received better support than for some days and advanced 1½. The railways were quiet and without marked change in values. Chicago Gas held firm at the reaction but sugar manifested marked heaviness. London was a small purchaser of the international shares. The bond market ruled very quiet but there was a marked undertone of strength. Sales of stocks up to noon 59,000 shares.

MURDERED AND ROBBED.

Pittsburg, May 21.—E. S. Fleisher, a well known real estate man, was robbed and murdered while on his way home shortly after midnight. The deed was committed on the Lincoln avenue bridge in the East End. After robbing Fleisher of his money and valuables his assailant threw him over the bridge into the ravine, ninety feet below. When found half an hour later, he was still living, but died on his way to the police station. The murdered man was one of the most prominent secret society men in Allegheny county, being a member of high degree in the Masonic fraternity, Odd Fellows and other organizations. There is no clue to the murderer.

A MURDERER'S SUICIDE.

Wichita, Kans., May 21.—Wesley Seelebock, of Grant county, Oklahoma, in a fit of jealousy killed Joe Hagek while he was visiting the girl for whose hand they were rival suitors. The sheriff found Seelebock and arrested him. On their way to town Seelebock died in great agony beside the sheriff in the buggy after having first confessed that he had swallowed strychnine with suicidal intent.

Bought Mountain Wagons.

Charles Jessmore, manager of the Tower Transportation company, sold last night that his company had sent for two mountain wagons for use upon the Crane Lake portage road. The vehicles are Concord built with double springs on the sides and ends and are specially constructed for use upon rough road. They will carry twelve passengers each, well and easily, and are fitted with a canopy top and side curtains for shelter in inclement weather. With these wagons the company hope to put passengers over the portage in from four to five hours. The company has also purchased four new stage teams and four freight teams.

Fowler against the state of Minnesota, involving the se¼ of se¼ of section 24, 58-19, the state's claim is held to be intact and the contest is dismissed. POOLING

Interstate Commerce Commission States Its Views to Senator Cullom.

In Answer to His Request For the Pooling Bill Suggestions.

Commission Makes Several Important Statements as to Conditions.

Washington, May 21.—The interstate commerce commission has sent to Senator Cullom of Illinois the following letter in response to a request for suggestions regarding the pooling bill:

Washington, May 19, 1897.—Hon. Shelby M. Cullom, chairman committee on interstate commerce, United States senate: Dear Sir—Referring to your verbal request for suggestions from this commission, or any of its members, respecting the pending senate bill, No. 1497, or proposed legislation to amend the act to regulate commerce, it is not practicable in a single day to prepare a bill or to add much to the suggestions made to your sub-committee yesterday.

On Jan. 28, 1897, this commission sent to the honorable committee on interstate and foreign commerce of the house a communication, a copy of which is herewith enclosed, stating some reasons why at that time all the members of this commission opposed the passage of a bill then pending, the main provisions of which are substantially as that now under consideration by your honorable committee. The reasons for non-action then are stronger now, there being five or more cases pending before the United States supreme court involving the most important provisions of the act. These cases have been already tried and await the decision of the court. When decided we shall know what the law is and better know in what respect, if any, it should be changed.

The carriers, whether by railroad, lake or river—for all are included—before being allowed to pool should specify their rates on the traffic or business to be pooled and the contract, with maximum rates established as a part of it, should be subject to approval by the commission before taking effect. The provision in the proposed bill that the commission may set aside the pooling contract after it has taken on and become operative is misleading. Any such attempt at the annulling of a contract by the commission the carriers will resist as unreasonable and unlawful, and will but result in vexatious, expensive, interminable and, to the commission, unsuccessful lawsuits.

The authority of the commission to ascertain and declare the reasonable and legal maximum rate in cases so heard and tried has been raised and is involved in several of the cases awaiting decision by the supreme court already referred to. If it is the purpose of the congress to make the commission only a bureau of investigation, without authority through the courts or otherwise to correct abuses found on investigation to exist, we submit that it should be plainly so stated in the law, to the end that the public may not be misled in the belief that there is in existence a statute under which ascertained transportation abuses may be corrected.

In our opinion the authority of the commission, now that its authority is questioned, to determine and order reasonable rates in cases tried wherein the rates are challenged, should be granted and stated in unquestionable terms, and proper means provided for enforcing such determination; and, as we believe, a provision of law making such determination and order of the commission obligatory on the carriers at once and until reversed or set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, will afford the best guarantee for the observance and enforcement of such orders. If such provision for making the orders of the commission effective shall be deemed unjustifiable, then other adequate means should be provided for carrying such orders into effect.

Respecting other amendments of the act to regulate commerce, we have in our annual reports, as provided by said act, recommended several which are deemed essential for making the act effective in accordance with its purposes. Two of these are so urgent that we respectfully ask they may be made a part of any legislation amending the act. One of these is an amendment providing for uniform classification. The other relates to rates and charges from the seaboard on imports.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Winners at the Morris Park horse races yesterday were Doland, Billali, Sagacity, Rensselaer, On Deck. Sixth race was a dead heat between Sir Walter and Volley Bastian.

Winners at Chicago yesterday were Inga, Knowles, Cossack, Paladin and Thurston.

Winners at St. Louis yesterday were Corfus Joco Sol, Charlie Christy, Nepper, Marquise, Dr. Walmstern and Nimrod.

Hoboken, N. J., had two bad fires last night, the aggregate loss being estimated at $650,000. One block was reduced to ashes and 140 families made homeless and a big factory was destroyed.

A Cuban filibustering expedition left Fernandino Wednesday night and was taken out to sea and transferred to a steamer, presumably the Dauntless. The Dauntless is thought to have on board the cargo of the tug Alexander Jones, which left Wilmington, N. C., on Tuesday. The plans of the Cubans seem to have been to send several expeditions from the Florida coast, two special trains having taken a large number of Cubans down the coast early this week.

The president has finally decided to go to the Nashville exposition next month. He has fixed upon June 12 as the date and will doubtless be accompanied by some members of his cabinet.

Word has been received in Hong Kong from Kweishen Kwangsi that the French mission at Lo Lix has been pillaged and a missionary named Mr. Mason murdered. He was about 25 years of age and had been only a short time in the vicinity. The chapel at Sy Lin has been threatened by marauders and it is feared will meet a similar fate.

The first of the so-called bank cases at St. Paul ended in the dismissal of what is known as the Huldah Peterson indictment against William F. Bickel, president of the failed Minnesota Savings bank. The state failed to make out a case against William F. Bickel in the charge that he had appropriated $268.00 from Huldah Peterson.

At St. Paul James Nolan committed suicide yesterday by blowing his brains out with a revolver. He was 70 years old and lived in the rear of 630 Rice street. Nolan had been a resident of the city thirty-five years. He was janitor at the Minnesota Savings bank up to the time of suspension. He had $620 on deposit there and the loss proved upon his mind.

People who want to engage in farming in St. Louis county will be able to buy any amount of state land about July 1. State Auditor Dunn is preparing to hold a sale of all state lands in that county lying south of the north line of township 52. The tract comprises about 50,000 acres of land. Some of it is good for agricultural purposes and some of it is not so good, but all of it will be offered for sale.

Assistant Adjt. Gen. Saylor has received word that the family of W. T. Boxell, who with his wife, was murdered at Howard Lake last Saturday, has offered a reward of $500 for the capture and conviction of the murderers. Wright county has added an offer of $250 to those already made.

A. Monte Vista, Col., William T. Bryant, an inmate of the soldiers' home, has made an affidavit that he saw D. Emanuel Baptist church in San Francisco the day of the murder of Blanche Lamont and saw Pasqua Gibson carrying her body to the belfry.

At Copenhagen, Denmark, Olef Hansen, United States vice consul and a large ship owner of the port, is dead.

Senator Joseph Earle died at his home in Greenville, S. C., at 5:30 yesterday afternoon.

"O woman! lovely woman! nature made thee to temper man; we had been brutes without you." Woman more than merits all the good things that have been said of her by the wits and poets of all times. When man lauds woman and her charms and virtues, he has in his mind's eye an ideal. That ideal is always a healthy woman. No man makes pretty speeches and witty toasts about woman, with the picture in his mind of a weak, sickly, nervous woman, tortured by pain, and suffering from depression and despondency. It is in the power of every woman to be some man's ideal if she will but build up and guard her womanly health.

The best of known remedies for all forms of disease peculiar to women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It works directly on but one set of organs in a woman's body. It allays and eradicates pain. It soothes inflammation. It invigorates and purifies. It restores complete health to the organs distinctly feminine and banishes weakness, depression and despondency. It is the discovery of Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalid's Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. If you wish to know more about it write to him.

"This is to tell you," writes Sister Eliza L. de Falcon, of Corpus Christi, Nueces Co., Texas, "that I had been ill for twenty-one years and was finally cured by your medicines, the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription.'"

It is as easy to be well as ill—and much more comfortable. Constipation is the cause of many forms of illness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, two a mild cathartic. All dealers in medicines.

SILVER SENTIMENT.

Said to Be Growing Strong in Massachusetts.

Washington, May 21.—T. E. Wardner, proprietor of the Boston Traveler, is here and reports to Chairman Towne that the silver sentiment in the New England states is greatly on the increase. Many business people who voted for McKinley, he says, have given up the hope that the tariff bill will bring relief and that the continual pinching of the currency would finally bring prices so low that bankruptcy would be inevitable. The silver feeling in large towns, which always was very strong, is increasing rapidly and will make itself felt in the next campaign.

Skilled labor is more than ever in favor of free silver. The shoemakers are almost to a man bimetallists. There will be at least six silver congressmen in the next Massachusetts delegation and the chances are pretty good that the next legislature will contain a silver majority. "I sincerely and honestly believe," said Mr. Wardner, "that if Massachusetts were to vote to morrow she would case her vote on the side of bimetallism."

FORGERY

Queer Hiding Place For an Alleged Will of a Millionaire.

Found in the Funeral Urn Which Held His Wife's Ashes.

Disinherited Relatives Say It Is a Forgery and No Good.

San Francisco, May 21.—A will, declared to be a forgery and discovered in the urn containing the ashes of the testator's dead wife, is one of the sensational features that will be presented in the contest over the estate of the late Jacob Z. Davis, the San Francisco millionaire, philanthropist and patron of arts and sciences. Davis was born in Philadelphia, and was a man of hobbies. Not the least of these was a desire to collect the remains of his relatives in the old Dunkard church yard at Germantown, near Philadelphia, where he expended over $10,000 in erecting white marbel headstones over their graves. He also caused to be built an addition to the old church, and it was during a visit to Philadelphia to attend to the completion of the structure that he died, in October last, at the Continental hotel.

Davis was at one time a professor of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, an active member of the academy of sciences, and took a deep interest in the state mining bureau. During his life, he not only gave them a great deal of money, but made them presents of statuary and rare minerals. On the night of his death, it is stated, Davis sent for John Senderling, a relative, requested him to write at his dictation what he intended to be his will. Senderling had nearly completed the document when Davis suddenly declared that his pulse had stopped beating. A few minutes later he died. This uncompleted document Senderling submitted to the American Trust company and to a lawyer in Philadelphia. He was advised that while there was no signature to the paper, such documents have been construed by courts to be wills, and he accordingly filed it with the trust company.

About three weeks after Davis' death, and after Alexander Boyd, his partner, and E. B. Mastyck, his life-long friend and attorney, had searched high and low for a will without avail, the document now before the probate court, making Lizzie Muir and Mrs. Belle Curtis the sole legatees of the dead millionaire, mysteriously appeared. It is alleged to have been found in the urn containing his wife's ashes. The document was filed for probate, and is now being contested by the nephew and niece at the East, Catherine Stead and Joseph Wilson, who set up that the paper is a forgery, is not he last will of Davis, or if it is a will was made at a time when he was of a weak mind and undue influence.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks and the immediate vicinity were visited with much-needed and gently refreshing showers. Hillsboro, forty miles south, was deluged with something approaching a cloud burst. Fargo was visited by a heavy rain, and for fifteen miles north of that city the land was flooded and water standing on the ground in every direction, as far as the eye could reach. In other respects, the crop prospects are described by those who have come into the city as being most flattering. In many localities wheat is up and high enough to cover the ground, and where germination has already taken place, the growth is very rapid. In some places farmers say the wheat has come up unevenly, owing to a lack of moisture.

The present home of the Hillestad family, for the murder of two of whom Normand is awaiting trial, is in a couple of old railroad boarding cars, located about half a mile from the Hillestad home, near Grand Forks, where the two unfortunate children were murdered two weeks ago. The members of the family, after the murder, refused to remain there, and the two disused cars, located near the track and but a short distance from the little farm cottage, were at length appropriated as a home.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The city council at Chamberlain has placed the saloon license for the city at $250 per annum. Mayor Burkholder vetoed the ordinance fixing the amount of license on the ground that it was too low, and not in proportion to the amounts fixed by the large majority of South Dakota cities and towns. Attention was called to the fact that licenses of less than $100 per annum are the exception under the new liquor law, while in such towns as Aberdeen, Armouh, Elk Point, Milbank, Spearfish, Pierre, Madison, Belle Fourche, Redfield, Alcester, Beresford, Mitchell, Plankinton, White Lake and Deli Rapids the amount of license was placed at the limit of $600 per year. Chamberlain, so far as known at this time, considered a good saloon town, now has the lowest saloon license of any South Dakota city of its class and population, and taxpayers will be called on to make up a deficiency from this source, compared with the revenue of last year, of $700. Although the ordinance was passed over the veto, as was known it would be, it is only a question of time until the amount of license will be placed at a figure more in keeping with the size of the town and the volume of saloon business transacted.

The village of Irene, which has been getting in readiness for the past year to incorporate as a village, yesterday handed its application for articles of incorporation to the board of county commissioners of Yankton county. The application was rejected by the board. The law requires that there shall be filed a record of the census of the town within thirty days after the completion of the census. This has not been done, and for that reason, and also for some mistake in the plat, the application was not accepted. The village lies partly in Yankton, partly in Clay county and partly in Turner county, and it is, no doubt, owing to this fact that omissions and mistakes are easily made. Irene will now have to commence anew.

Yankton will soon have a long distance telephone connection with outside cities. The Northwestern Telephone company will soon commence operations in putting in their poles. All of the right-of-way for the line has been secured, except about forty-eight locations in this county, and condemnation proceedings will have to be instituted against these. The company has paid a uniform price of 50 cents per pole, but a large number of farmers in this county refused to accept that figure, and they held a meeting at Volin at which they decided to demand $3 per pole. At this rate they would be asking $250 an acre for their land. The company think this demand altogether unreasonable, as they only want a piece of land three feet wide, and allow the farmers the use of all of it except what is actually taken up by the poles. The company has experienced more trouble in this county getting its right-of-way than in all other counties combined.

HOW THEY VOTED.

Morgan Resolution Adopted By Seventeen Majority.

Washington, May 21.—The passage of the Morgan resolution by the senate yesterday afternoon was received with great applause by the galleries. The resolution that was passed was as follows:

"Resolved, that a condition of public war exists between the government of Spain and the government proclaimed and for some time maintained by force of arms by the people of Cuba, and that the United States of America shall maintain a strict neutrality between the contending parties, according to each all the rights of belligerents in the ports and territory of the United States."

The vote on the final passage of the resolution was as follows:

Yeas—Bacon, Baker, Bate, Berry, Butler, Carter, Chandler, Chilton, Clarke, Clay, Cockrell, Cullom, Davis, Deboe, Foraker, Gallinger, Gorman, Hansbrough, Harris (Kan.), Heitfeld, Jones (Ark.), Kenney, Lindsay, McBride, Mantle, Mason, Mills, Morgan, Nelson, Pasco, Pettigrew, Pettus, Pritchard, Rawlins, Shoup, Stewart, Thurston, Tillman, Turner, Turpie, Walthall—41.

Nays—Allison, Burrows, Caffery, Fairbanks, Gear, Hale, Hanna, Hawley, Hoar, Spooner, Wellington, Wetmore, White and Wilson—14.

An analysis of the vote shows that the affirmative was cast by 18 Republicans, 19 Democrats and 4 Populists and the negative by 12 Republicans and two Democrats.

RUIN AND DAMAGE.

Disastrous Result of a Washington Cloudburst.

Asolin, Wash., May 21.—A cloudburst at some point as yet unknown up the little valley of Asolin creek sent a wall of water down the valley last evening which carried devastation in its train. Stock was drowned, houses were wrecked, bridges washed out and orchards ruined. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The valley was a continuous orchard and garden for fifteen miles above the town.

So far as reported no lives were lost. The houses of Robert Campbell and John Dill were wrecked. Many other places were more or less damaged. Between Asolin and a point four miles up the creek all the bridges, five in number, were washed out. The chief loss was in the destruction of orchards and gardens.

GAMBLING JOINT.

One of the Uses of Grant's Mexican Concession.

San Francisco, May 21.—It has leaked out here that the concession obtained by Jesse Grant and his associates from the Mexican government for lands surrounding the famous Hot Springs of Tia Juana, across the boundary line, covers also a provilege for running a lottery and gambling device. It is said that Grant does not intend to enter the business but as soon as the people are prepared to take control of this concession Grant will attend to the colonization and development of the mineral waters.

The identity of the Eastern people is not known but since it has been learned that the Dwyers are dickering on the purchase of the Rierson and San Antonio ranches some miles below Tia Juana to be used for raising racing stock.

A local real estate man, who is handling the matter for Grant and his associates, is authority for the statement that the intended purchasers declare they will build the finest gambling house in the world at the springs to cost $2,000,000, every game of chance known with a lottery in connection. The deal is to be closed this week.

DURRANT'S NECK.

His Attorneys Make Another Attempt to Save It.

San Francisco, May 21.—Theodore Durrant's attorneys, having exhausted every legal means to save the neck of their client, have again appealed to the supreme court, this time basing their motion for a stay of execution upon alleged errors on the part of Judge Bahrs, at the time of his passing sentence upon the convicted murderer.

The main point relied upon by counsel for the appellant is that Judge Bahrs refused to grant Durrant's motion for a postponement of his sentence or permit of his offering additional testimony. It is also claimed that the court erred in having ordered that Durrant be confined at San Quentin until the date set for his execution. The authorities are confident that the appeal will not interfere with the execution.

GRAIN FOR AFRICA.

New York, May 21.—It leaked out on the Brooklyn water front that the rush of grain to South Africa is about to be resumed. The British steamship Kurdistian, which sailed from the north central pier, took 80,000 bushels of wheat, and the British steamship Mount Shepar has commenced to load 60,000 bushels of wheat at the iron elevator. It is the best No. 1 spring wheat, and is worth here about $1 a bushel. Freight costs 25c, bags and sewing 13c, so that it will cost about $1.40 per bushel by the time it reaches its destination. It is said that for the next three months the shipments to the Cape and to the East African ports will be as great as those of last year, which were unparalleled in the history of South Africa. At the same time enormous quantities of mining and agricultural machinery and other American products will complete the cargoes.

PARK IMPROVEMENT MOVERS.

Louisville, Ky., May 21.—The first national convention of men interested in park improvement was held at the Galt house and Col. John B. Castleman, of this city, was elected temporary chairman. There were present about twenty delegates, representing all the larger cities in the United States with park property, amounting to over $20,000,000. Papers were read by John C. Olmstead, Brookline, Mass.; James Gurney, St. Louis; Harry W. Jones, Minneapolis; Col. Andrew Cowan, of this city; H. S. Edgerton, Albany, N. Y., and Thomas McBride, Iowa City, Iowa. The convention will last two more days, after which the delegates will visit the Nashville exposition.

SHORT EVERYWHERE.

Cincinnati, May 21.—George Hobson had been recorder of Hamilton county for six years previous to entering on his duties last September as clerk of the courts. It has since been found that he was short about $50,000 as recorder. Now the experts examining his records as clerk find that he is already short $23,464 as clerk, although he held that office only six months. His trial begins next Monday on three indictments for forgery, embezzlement and obstructing public records.

SPANISH CRUELTY.

Brutal Treatment of a Captured Insurgent.

New York, May 21.—A special to the Journal from Havana, via Port Tampa, Fla., says: A shocking story of Spanish cruelty, verified by a consul and representative from the United States, comes from Santa Clara province. The Cuban leader, Charles Aguirre, who was officially announced to have been killed by Spanish troops under Gen. Obregon, in an engagement near Sancti Spiritus, a fortnight ago, was as a matter of fact made a prisoner, after having been seriously wounded.

Learning that he claimed American citizenship, his captors are said to have tied him to the tail of a horse and dragged him through the streets of the village of Arroyro Blanco until death claimed him. In justice to Gen. Obregon, it is said that, after learning the facts, he severely reprimanded the minor officials directly responsible for the brutal action, and directed that the body be properly interred.

GASOLINE'S DEADLY WORK.

St. Louis, Mo., May 21.—An explosion of gasoline last night resulted in the death of Mrs. Ada Mohr, 33 years old, her 18-months'-old baby, and Hugo Howard, 15 months old. Mrs. Bessie Howard and William Howard, her 5-year-old son, were probably fatally burned, while Max Gumpert and Henry Surman were badly burned in attempting to rescue the unfortunate victims. The explosion occurred in the upper rooms of 2311 Menard street, occupied by Mrs. Mohr. In order to make the fire in the cook stove burn faster Mrs. Mohr pouren gasoline over the wood.

Later—William Howard is dead and Mrs. Howard will not live until night.

PORT TOWNSEND'S HOPE.

Port Townsend, Wash., May 21.—A committee composed of five members of the board of trade is at work here getting up a company which proposes to incorporate with $500,000 capital for the purpose of constructing a railway from this place to a point where connection may be made with continental lines. Much stock is being taken to be paid for in land. Other towns along the preposed line will be asked to take stock, in which case the capital stock will be increased to $1,000,000. The projectors claim that with railroad connection with a trans-continental line this would be the terminal for Oriental and other vessels, especially wheat carriers.

BRAZILIAN SKIRMISHES.

Rio Janeiro, May 21.—Reports have reached Rio Janeiro that the government troops have again met defeat at the hands of the fanatics near Canudo. It is also reported that Juan Brandas, one of the leaders of the fanatics, is dead. It is stated that the vanguard of the government troops has been destroyed.

LABOR STATISTICIANS.

Nashville, Tenn., May 21.—The national association of officials of bureaus of labor statistics have elected Carroll D. Wright, United States commissioner of labor, president. The second vice president is Halfred Erockson, of Wisconsin. Detroit was selected as the next place of meeting.

WILL HELP STOCK RAISERS.

Kansas City, Mo., May 21.—The Armours, of Kansas City and Chicago, and several other large stockholders of the Interstate National bank, have organized a trust company to be known as the Kansas City Cattle Loan company, which will lend money to farmers and stock raisers through local live stock commission merchants, taking as security chattel mortgages on stock and corn. The company will deal in "cattle paper," buying from commission men and selling to Eastern stock brokers. The new corporation will furnish money for which commission men and stockmen have hitherto gone to St. Louis or the East.

AT GRAND RAPIDS.

The Merchants' Carnival Was a Great Success.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A novel entertainment called the "Merchants' Carnival," held at the village hall last night by the ladies of the Methodist church, proved to be a great success. Handsome young ladies represented the business houses of the town and their cordial good nature added greatly to the attractiveness of the affair.

A suit for $10,000 damages has been entered in the district court here by W. P. Nisbett against the Chicago attorneys who recently brought a criminal action against him in undertaking to collect a debt which was included in his assignment for the benefit of his creditors.

"DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Thomas Benton and Maggie Benton, his wife, mortgagors, to The Union Building and Loan Association, mortgagee, bearing date February 3rd, 1894, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on February 6th, 1894, at 5:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 60 of mortgages, page 251; which default consists in the non-payment of monthly interest and premium on the principal sum of said mortgage for more than a space of six months after the same has become due.

And whereas the four shares of stock described in said mortgage have been sold for the non-payment of dues.

And whereas, said mortgage contains a provision that in case of default in the payment of monthly interest or premium, or any part thereof, for the space of six months after the same shall have become due, or should the said four shares of stock described in said mortgage be sold for the non-payment of dues, then in either or any such case, the whole principal debt secured by said mortgage shall immediately become due and payable, and the mortgagee in either such case is authorized to sell the mortgaged premises at public auction to satisfy the mortgage debt, interest and premium and all costs and charges, and also the sum of fifty dollars ($50.00) attorney's fees. Said mortgagee has elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole debt due because of such defaults as aforesaid, and there is claimed to be due and is actually due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of seven hundred seventy-three and 50-100 dollars ($773.50).

And whereas said mortgagors made default in paying insurance premium for insurance upon the buildings upon said premises, and the mortgagee paid six dollars ($6.00) on April 30th, 1897, for insurance premium, which the mortgagee had the right to do under the terms of the mortgage, and said amount is to become a part of the mortgage debt and be secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, will, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt of seven hundred seventy-three and 50-100 dollars ($773.50) and six dollars ($6.00) for insurance premium, and fifty dollars ($50.00) attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 26th day of June, 1897, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

The premises described in and covered by said mortgage and which will be sold as aforesaid are situated in St. Louis County, Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit:

The easterly twenty-five (25) feet of lot fifteen (15), in block fifty-five (55), Endion Division of Duluth, being a strip of ground of uniform width of twenty-five (25) feet of the easterly part of said lot and of the full depth of said lot, all according to the recorded plat of said division.

DECLINED

Extreme Weakness at Liverpool Was Responsible For Lower Wheat Prices.

The Northwest Receipts Again Heavy and Trading Was Very Dull.

Weather in California Favorable---Duluth Stocks Will Decrease 250,000 Bus.

As usual, the Liverpool cables were responsible for the early tone of the wheat market. The opening here was weak and lower, due to the extreme weakness at Liverpool, that market showing an initial ½@¾d decline and dropping that much more in a short time, this notwithstanding an advance in American markets yesterday. Northwest receipts were again heavy, being 618 cars, compared with 336 last week and 285 the year before, and the weather in California was more favorable.

Trading was dull on the Duluth board. It was estimated that local wheat stocks will show a decrease of 250,000 bus this week. July wheat opened 58c lower at 73½c and sold down to 72⅝-73c during the first hour. Then extreme dullness set in and no more transactions were recorded during the session. The close was with buyers at 73c, showing a decline of 5c for the day. Shippers bought fifteen cars of cash stuff at 5c over July. The mills were not in the market. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 73½c; May, 73½c. No. 1 northern, cash, 73½c; May, 73½c; July, 74c bid; September, 66½c. No. 2 northern, 71½c. No. 2, 69¼@71½c. Rejected, 59@66c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 73½c; No. 1 northern, 73½c. Rye, 36c. No. 2 oats, 21½c; No. 3 oats, 21c. Flax, 77c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 257; oats, 40; rye, 2; barley, 24; flax, 21. Receipts—Wheat, 240,458 bus; oats, 74,400 bus; rye, 3825 bus; barley, 7350 bus; flax, 13,791 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 223,286 bus; barley, 3047 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 21.—The wheat crop situation and general foreign advices were in set back to our advance and strength of yesterday. Wheat opened 5c lower and closed 5c lower than last night after a dull day and small but nervous fluctuations. The market ruled heavy but had an undertone of strength which could be ascribed mainly to the rumors of new cash business said to be quietly working and to the rapid depletion of our stocks of wheat as shown by the week's statistics. The Liverpool weakness was credited to the bearish crop news reported received from this side. California weather was reported more favorable and San Francisco market lower. One of our Texas correspondents wired that harvesting would commence next week in the vicinity of Fort Worth. Shipments from primary points as well as seaboard clearances continue liberal. May wheat again gained largely in premium over July and shippers were interested bidders. About 10,000 bus cash business here today and possibly more than was not reported. Advices from the Northwest continue very bearish except that the Minneapolis mills seem to have little trouble grinding and disposing of the enormous amount of wheat which is going that way. We advise purchases on all the soft spots but while trade is so dull profits should be quickly taken.

Corn, oats and provisions exhibited no new features and attracted only ordinary attention. Corn receipts do not increase so rapidly as expected.

Puts, July wheat, 70¾@70¾c.
Calls, July wheat, 71½@71¾c.
Curb, July wheat, 70¾c.

A NEW INTOXICANT.

An extraordinary discovery in intoxicants is announced. The new drug causes absolute mental irresponsibility, but otherwise it is stated has no unpleasant effects, says the New York Journal.

It is extracted from charas—a resinous exudation found in the leaves, young twigs and bark of the hemp plant. Dr. C. R. Marshall, of England, who took from one and a half to two gallons of it as an experiment, testifies to its remarkable intoxicating qualities. Shortly after the substance had dissolved in his mouth he became weak in the legs, and had a tendency to wander aimlessly about the room. He was immensely tickled by the information that a chemical experiment he had started before taking the intoxicant had gone wrong and was likely to produce an explosion.

While under the influence of the drug he was, indeed, little more than an irresponsible idiot, devoid of feeling, fearless of death, and insensible to the feelings of others. Upon another occasion four-fifths of a grain of the substance made him light-headed and dreamy, but he did not pass into that condition of sweet contentment and happiness produced by the larger dose. It is not, however, on account of its intoxicating qualities that the active principal tested by Dr. Marshall is likely to prove of value, but as a hypnotic and a remedy for sleeplessness. The substance is as active as any preparation used to induce sleep, and no unpleasant effects are experienced after taking it.

WEST END

Victor Wilson May Lose a Leg Because of an Accident.

Bone Badly Crushed at St Louis Company's Sawmill This Morning.

Proctorknott and West Duluth Teams to Play Ball Next Sunday.

Victor Wilson, a young man employed on the night force at the St. Louis Lumber company's mill, met with an accident at 5:30 o'clock this morning, which may result in the loss of a leg. He was working by the log carriage, when a board fell of, and striking against a post, caught Mr. Wilson's leg and crushed the bone in a terrible manner. He was taken to Loftgren's drug store, where he received surgical attendance. While this injury is very severe, it is hoped that the injured member will be saved.

BASEBALL GAME.

The Proctorknott and West Duluth baseball clubs will play their game at the West End ball park Sunday afternoon. Each club now has a game to its credit, and the contest Sunday will be a decidedly interesting one. They are evenly matched, and put up a strong game.

WILL NOT GO.

Rev. Dr. Forbes had intended to be in Carrington, N. D., Sunday, to dedicate a new Methodist church, but upon the receipt yesterday of the news of the death of Miss Elsie Prescott in Arizona, he notified the church people by wire that he could not be present. Dr. Forbes had arranged with Rev. R. H. Craig to occupy his pulpit in Asbury M. E. church, Sunday morning, and with Rev. W. A. Shannon, presiding elder, in the evening, so he will not preach. He will go to St. Paul next week to attend the Memorial day exercises, for which he has been engaged to deliver the oration.

GRAND MASTER COMING.

Grand Master Workman C. G. Hinds, of Shakopee, will be in West Duluth next Wednesday night to attend the meeting of the West Duluth lodge of United Workmen. A number of candidates are to be initiated. The lodge will be commenced early, and after the regular work is done, members of the Degree of Honor lodge and the wives and families of workmen will be admitted to the hall, and a reception tendered the distinguished visitor. The grand master workman will deliver an address "for the good of the order."

AT THE PRESBYTERY MEETING.

Rev. George E. Kelthley, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, is in Eagle Lake, Ind., attending the national presbytery, as a delegate from the Duluth presbytery. Mr. Kelthley was elected an alternate at the meeting of the presbytery, and Rev. John McKay, of Brainerd, was chosen delegate, but the illness of Mrs. McKay prevented the latter from attending, and Mr. Kelthley went in his stead. After the adjournment of the presbytery, Mr. Kelthley will pay a visit to his former home in Missouri, and will not return to his charge in West Duluth for about a month.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The Proctorknott band will give another concert in the village hall Monday night. It will be followed by the customary dance.

Mrs. E. T. Smith, accompanied by her son, has gone to Green Bay, Wis., for a short visit.

Charles Smart will leave in a short time for Seattle, where he expects to make his future home.

Delegates from the American and Swedish Baptist churches in West Duluth have been chosen to attend the meeting of the Duluth Baptist union, to be held in the First Baptist church, Sunday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

J. S. Rollins, who lives on Sixty-first avenue west, is ill with typhoid fever. This is the second time that Mr. Rollins has been afflicted with this disease.

The baseball grounds at Proctorknott are being put in first class condition for the season.

Proctorknott now has a well organized volunteer fire company. O. J. Simons has been elected chief of the company, and twenty-five young men have volunteered their services. The company will be thoroughly drilled, and will soon be in condition to cope with fires successfully.

The remains of Miss Elsie Prescott, who died in Arizona Wednesday night, will arrive in West Duluth Monday afternoon, and the funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon. Dr. Robert Forbes will preach the funeral sermon.

The funeral of Helen Gilbert, the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Gilbert of Proctorknott, who died Wednesday night, will be held at the family residence Sunday morning. The services will be conducted by Rev. Robert Forbes.

W. J. Merritt left yesterday for the Rainy Lake country in the interest of the Rainy Lake Exploration company. This company intends to do some test-pitting on their property adjoining the Ferguson mine, and Mr. Merritt will have charge of this work.

Mrs. C. C. Merritt writes home from Pasadena, Cal., that she is well pleased with that section of the country, in fact, so well pleased that she has purchased a tract of fruit land near Pasadena, and will move there with her family early in the fall.

Alvin Hill, while riding a bicycle, got his right foot into the gearing, and is now nursing a badly maimed foot.

Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (Central time) May 21.—The barometer has risen in the upper lake region and the Upper Mississippi valley, the center of the high pressure area having moved from Manitoba to Wisconsin. A storm has advanced from British Columbia to the region north of Montana.

Frosts are reported this morning in Upper Michigan.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity: Fair tonight; probably showers by Saturday afternoon; decidedly warmer; winds mostly southwest and south, and becoming fresh to brisk.

JAMES KENEALY,

CHANGING THE CLIMATE.

A great plan has been evolved from the seething brain of a Boston man. All Boston men are conceded to have brains, and some of them having seething brains. This is the condition of the Bostonian in question. He has a wonderful idea; he thinks that he can improve upon the methods of nature, and change the climate of the region in which he dwells. His plan is to convert the bleak and chill coast of New England and all the water front south of the Gulf of St. Lawrence into a zone of almost tropical warmth and salubrity. He is of the opinion that the New England states and Northeastern Canada are afflicted with ice-locked harbors and arctic coldness during six months of the year because a fierce arctic current sweeps down through the straits of Belle Isle across the Gulf of St. Lawrence and down the coast to Cape Cod, where it is diverted from its course and sent out into the ocean. He declares that this current is the source of the cold east winds which make Boston so disagreeable, and that it also carries with it the cold atmosphere of the far north to make all the region south of Labrador as cold as Greenland itself.

To change the climate from the arctic to the semi-tropical he would dam up the straits of Belle Isle, and thus send the cold current into the ocean above Newfoundland. He estimates that a viaduct could be thrown across the straits from Newfoundland to Labrador, a distance of ten miles, within a year's time at a total cost of $9,000,000. The maximum depth of the straits is 260 feet. He would have Great Britain, Canada and the United States share the expense. The effect of such a dam would be to modify the climate of the northeast coast from Boston to Labrador, open all Canadian ports to winter traffic, and convert Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Boston into habitable places even in winter time. Besides changing the atmospheric conditions, he would build a railway from Boston to St. Johns, N. F., by way of the straits' viaduct, thus making it possible to reduce the ocean voyage to three and one-half days by transporting passengers from Boston to St. Johns by rail, where they could intercept New York steamers bound for Southampton three days after sailing.

The chief obstacle at present to the carrying out of the great scheme, which is seriously published as altogether feasible, is the $9,000,000 needed to build the dam in the straits, but no doubt this amount will soon be subscribed by the Bostonese, because we are told that the "scheme is based on scientific data," and "scientific data" can always command a hearing in the Back Bay district. When he has succeeded in this little scheme, he might use his intellect on the project of converting the Arctic regions into a winter resort.

MR. WOLCOTT ET AL.

The bimetallic commision has arrived at Paris, and Messrs. Wolcott, Stevenson and Payne are enjoying life at the gay capital of the French republic. They are undoubtedly having a pleasant outing. This is a beautiful season of the year to be in France, and the American commissioners will have an enjoyable time at the expense of the American people. They have made preparations also for a lengthy stay, and why not? They can hardly expect to accomplish very much at this time, but they have an expense fund at their disposal and why should they not use it? At present they are awaiting the arrival of Ambassador Porter. When he has presented his credentials, he will request an audience for them with President Faure. No doubt the French president will be pleased to see them. They are all pleasant and agreeable gentlemen, and President Faure will find that they are excellent judges of the contents of his wine cellar and good after dinner raconteurs.

Having satisfied themselves with the pleasures of Parisian life, they will cross the channel to England and determine upon their future plans. Why they have concluded that it is necessary to go to London to arrange their program is not stated. If they should happen to reach the British metropolis when the festivities attending the queen's jubilee are at their height, it might naturally happen that the arrangement of their plans would have to be deferred until the end of the celebration, because the excitement attending that event would no doubt interfere with a calm and deliberate consideration of the proper policy to be pursued.

They will do well, however, to stay in London, if they desire to accomplish anything towards securing a bimetallic conference. The holding of a conference depends entirely upon what the British government decides. A Paris dispatch says: "According to the French premier, M. Meline, there is not the remotest likelihood of France taking the initiative in calling a monetary conference until Great Britain agrees to take part in such a conference if it is called." If Messrs. Wolcott, Stevenson and Payne can secure an introduction to the prince of Wales and induce him to use his influence with Lord Salisbury, perhaps they may succeed in their mission. Otherwise it is to be feared that they will be obliged to return to America, when their appropriation is exhausted, without having accomplished anything.

THE POPULAR WILL.

The Morgan resolution, adopted by the senate yesterday afternoon, voices the sentiments of the American people. It is refreshing to see at last one branch of the government act in response to the popular desire. The senate has registered the public will by declaring in favor of recognizing the belligerency of the Cuban insurgents. If the house of representatives desires to be what it purports to be, a representative body and not a mere machine run by a few men, it will promptly assert its independence of these so-called "leaders," and take up and pass the Morgan resolution. By taking such action they will discharge their duty as representatives of the American people, who are heartily sick and disgusted with the manner in which the Cuban question has been handled by the Cleveland administration. They can earn the people's gratitude by following in the senate's footsteps.

It is safe to say that no action by either branch of congress has so strongly struck a responsive chord in the public breast as has the senate's adoption of the Morgan resolution. The sentiment in this country in Cuba's favor is strong, and it is just. The American people sympathize with the martyrs of Cuba, with those who are under arms as well as with those who are being cruelly massacred by Gen. Weyler's orders. The Hoars and Hales of the senate fought until the last moment before the vote was taken against giving expression to the public will, but they found only a small minority of sypathizers in that body. As the Chicago Journal says, their policy has been to tie the hands of this country while Weyler shot prisoners of war and butchered wounded soldiers in their beds, in order to keep up the price of stocks and protect the claims of Boston investors for money damages against Spain. Hale and Hoar may have been representing the investors of New England, but they have not been acting for the American people. It is time their influence ended. Brokers and stock jobbers can not dictate the policy of congress and defeat the will of the people forever. There is a rising power of public sentiment, growing stronger every day, that demands the people's representatives shall carry out the people's will and take some active steps to end the burning and murdering and pillaging and ravishing that makes Cuba an earthly hell and Spain a stench in the nostrils of Christianity. It is better for the Cubans in arms to win liberty themselves if they are able. But in the struggle they are entitled to fair play and the rights of civilized war. This is what the Morgan resolutions aims to secure for them. And for this reason it should be promptly passed by the house and put into execution by the president.

HAWAII'S LABOR PROBLEM.

The growing complication which threaten the peace and security of the Hawaiian republic are discussed at considerable length by the New York Mail and Express. These complications have their foundation if not their original source in labor conditions. Industrial elements in the islands are in a transition stage. Great changes are developing, and beneath the surface of things a quiet but relentless struggle for the mastery is in progress between powerful and irreconcilable interests. The Japanese want to control Hawaii. Deny it as they may, the fact reveals itself in every feature of their policy in the islands. They aim first of all to dominate labor interests in the territory, and with that accomplished, their eventual control in political affairs will follow as a logical consequence. They have overrun the islands, they already outnumber the members of any other race, and they are bent upon driving the people of other nationalities from the fields of competitive industry.

The government at Honolulu keenly appreciates this rising danger. It sees in the aggressive policy of Japan a purpose which, unless speedily checked, threatens to place their territory under the control of Oriental influence. To avert that peril Hawaii is already employing practical measures of self-protection. In advertising, for instance, for bids for the construction of important public works, it is stipulated that he contract will be awarded only on condition that at least 50 per cent of the unskilled laborers employed in the undertaking shall consist of Hawaiians, Americans and Europeans. This is a direct and deliberate discrimination against Japan. It is a plain hint to the Orientals that they are not wanted, and it is because of its clear intent, together with the recent deportation of 400 Japanese immigrants from the port of Honolulu, that the Japanese government has dispatched two cruisers to Honolulu for the ostensible purpose of protecting its subjects.

The discrimating policy thus adopted by Hawaii is simply a direct application of the protectionist principle, says the Mail and Express. It is the instinct of self-preservation, clearly expressed in action. It will be heartily approved by the American people, and should be loyally supported by the the American government to any extent which emergency may require. The right of Hawaii to discriminate in favor of one class of labor or against another is inherent in her institutions. It is a mere assertion of the principle enforced by our own governemnt against the Chinese, and any attempt on the part of Japan to nullify its operation in Hawaii should be promptly resisted by the United States.

An interesting delegate to the postal congress is the postmaster general of Egypt. He calls himself a Syrian Catholic and was pleased to find in New York city a church of his own faith, and that the service was conducted in Arabic, the language his mother had taught him. He says, however, that, although a Christian, he has the greatest respect for the Mohammedan religion, and that if the Turks are ernest and fanatical, they must be unlike the followers of the same religion in Egypt.

The Philadelphia Record says: "It is humiliating to think of it, but very few acts pass the legislature of Pennsylvania without they have first received the stamp of approval of Senator Quay or his representative; a bill bearing that stamp can be stopped only by an overwhelming expression of public sentiment, if at all. The situation is discouraging."

Swami Vivekananda, the Hindoo religious fakir who visited this country recently and was feted by society, repays the hospitality shown him by speaking contemptuously of American women. "When she falls," he says, "in her attempts to get a husband, she becomes what they call an old maid and joins church."

Do not fail to secure a copy of The Saturday Herald tomorrow. It will be bright, breezy and filled to overflowing with all the news of the day, both at home and abroad. In addition to many interesting features that always make it the favorite in the home circle.

A convention of cripples is the latest idea. Unfortunates in various stages of surgical dismemberment are to assemble in St. Louis for consultation and cogitation. The selection of St. Louis is doubtless a compliment to its recent crop of tornado cripples.

State Auditor Dunn counts that day lost when he fails to get an interview in the Twin City journals relating how solicitous he is for the state's interests. But the people have long ago sized up the cheap demagogism which is his stock-in-trade.

Broker Chapman is having such a luxurious time in the Washington jail that Messrs. Havemeyer and Searles will not feel very nervous about joining him. It seems to be an excellent institution for those desirous of trying "the rest cure."

John Wanamaker's complaint that congress and the administration are not carrying out the pledges made at St. Louis to produce prosperity does not please the politicians, but it represents the sentiments of the people generally.

The News Tribune is the only newspaper in the country that endorses the deadly cigarette. Humane Henry Haskins should try to convert it from the pernicious habit.

The Herald was the only newspaper in Minnesota yesterday that announced in its regular edition the passage of the Morgan resolution by the senate.

A Chicago bank wrecker says his conscience does not trouble him. Perhaps he has mistaken something else for a conscience.

Russia cannot be very well pleased by the exhibition of the astonishing vitality of the sick man at Constantinople.

The people are getting very much disgusted with the house of non-representatives.

A TENDER HEARTED MAIDEN.

My darling's heart is tender;
All her ways are passing sweet;
She's a radiant ray of splendor
From her topknot to her feet;
There's a look of sweet, sweet sadness
In her great, big liquid eyes,
And she deems it awful badness
To enmesh and torture flies.

Yesterday she saw a fellow
Flying fearfully his goal;
She implored in accents mellow
That he might decrease his loud,
Ah, her heart is true and tender,
Yet she wears a bluebird's wing
Just to gain a little splendor—
But that's quite another thing!

AFTER THAT $250,000.

Pittsburg, May 21.—When the question of adopting a plan to raise the balance of the money needed to obtain the $250,000 offered by John D. Rockefeller is taken up Saturday by the Northern Baptist Missionary societies now assembled in convention in this city, it is probable that a sugestion offered by the Baptist Home Missionary society, that all the Baptist Missionary societies combine and employ the same agents to collect for all the societies will be agreed to. The money thus collected is to be paid into a general treasury and divided pro rata betwen the societies in proportion to the size of the debt of each. This plan, if adopted, will result in a reduction in the number of collectors to such an extent that at least $75,000 in salaries and expenses will be saved during the year.

NEW MEXICO FLOODS.

Ranchers' Villages Inundated--Hail Kills Stock.

Denver, Colo., May 21.—According to dispatches from New Mexico heavy rains have swollen the Rio Grande and other streams so that considerable damage has ready been done and more is threatened. The valley north and south of Albuquerque is inundated. The small Mexican villages of ranchers, De Attisco, Los Padillos, Barelas and Atrisco near Albuquerque are partly submerged and a number of houses are surrounded by two feet of water. A number of men are watching the dyke north of Albuquerque. It is believed that there is no imediate danger of its giving way.

A heavy hailstorm killed thousands of lambs, besides a great number of sheep. Near Las Vegas and Springer and up the Red river country, streams are reported out of their banks and bridges washed away, impeding travel for several days. Considerable damage is reported in the Las Vegas hot springs canyon. It is impossible to ford the Canadian river. Wires along the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe and Denver & Rio Grande railways in New Mexico are prostrated.

AN OREGON COLONY.

Albany, Ore., May 21.—M. A. Lang and Dr. F. A. Ahrens, of Minneapolis, representatives of the St. Michael Colony company of that city, have closed a deal with Jefferson Myers, of Scio, for the purchase of 2740 acres of land, three miles southeast of Scio, for the purpose of locating a colony of 140 families. The price paid for the land was $35,000. The colony is composed of German families from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Indiana. They will come to Oregon this fall and next spring.

THE THEOSOPHISTS' TEMPLE.

San Diego, Cal., May 21.—Theosophists have closed a deal by which forty acres of land at Point Loma were added to their holdings, which now include more than half a mile square in the choicest situation on the bay. Their temple, which is to be erected upon this tract, will cost at least $250,000 and improvements contemplated will cost $150,000 more. They have already expended $50,000 on the property.

AERONAUT'S FATAL FALL.

Pittsburg, May 21.—Mons Lee, an aeronaut, employed with the "Silver Plate" show, which exhibited at McKeesport yesterday, fell from his balloon last night while making an ascension and was fatally injured. Lee began to ascend about 7 o'clock and had gone but a short distance when he found the wind was too strong. He cut loose from the trapeze and fell on the sharp roof of a building. An arm and leg were broken and his skull fractured. When picked up he was unconscious and it is thought he cannot recover.

BAPTIST WORK.

American Publication Society Submits Annual Reports.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 21.—The second day's session of the American Baptist Publication society opened at 9:45 this morning with the smallest attendance at the opening of any session so far held. Fifteen minutes were occupied in religious exercises and at 10 o'clock President Croser called the business sesion to order. About 200 delegates were present. The first business was the report of the publishing department. The annual report of the board of managers was read by General Secretary Rowland, of Philadelphia. The summing up of the year showed very encouraging results. The total amount of sales in merchandise and periodicals was $697,396.86. This was an increase over the preceding year of $48,896.53. In the publication department 122 new publications were issued, 48 more than during the previous year. Of these 2,769,028 copies were printed.

The report further showed that the society had kept 98 misionaries in the field, had given away 7?8 books, distributed 638,920 pages of tracts, aided 113 Sunday schools with donations of scriptures, books, etc., and aided 243 pastors and ministerial students with grants for their libraries.

The report of the treasurer showed the total receipts from all sources to have been $1,106,315.54. A cash balance on hand April 1, 1896, of $5?61.88 brought the total to $1,112,017.42. This is equaled by the expenditures, to which amount is added $31,-685.26 due from open accounts. The assets are $972,708.30, while the liabilities are $102,104.86, leaving the net assets $870,-603.53.

In the missionary department the total receipts were $114,445.87 and the expenditures $128,862.71. The deficit was paid out of a balance in the Bible department.

RELIEF AUTHORIZED.

Consul General Lee May Commence Buying Supplies.

Washington, May 21.—The secretary of state has directed Consul General Lee at Havana to draw for immediate purchase of supplies and medicines for the relief of American citizens and transportation of such as are without means and desire to return to the United States, not to exceed $10,000. He is also instructed to furnish United States consuls in Cuba at his discretion funds for this purpose. United States Consul Brice, at Matanzas, has been instructed by the secretary of state to apply to Consul General Lee for funds with which to relieve American citizens there.

NOT PROPERLY SIGNED.

Washington, May 21.—The resolution appropriating $50,000 for the relief of the suffering Americans in Cuba was signed yesterday by Speaker Reed, but owing to the absence of the vice president and president pro tem. of the senate, could not receive the signature of either of them on behalf of the senate. As the senate has adjourned until Monday it cannot be signed before that date.

A DAY AT MONTICELLO.

Washington, May 21.—A party of about sixty members of both houses of congress left Washington this morning for a day's outing at Monticello, the old home of Thomas Jefferson. The sergeant-at-arms of the senate, Col. Richard Bright, was in charge of the party. Speaker Reed was among the representatives of the house side. The party occupied three Pullman cars. The trip will occupy about three hours, and after a day spent at Monticello the party will return to Washington tonight.

NEW AND POWERFUL LIGHT.

Extraordinary power is claimed for the new signalling light of Col. Mikhashevski of the Russian engineers, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. Its signals have been read at a distance of thirty-four miles, and it is hoped that the distance may be increased to nearly sixty miles by the use of reflecting mirrors. The light is produced by spirit which is colored by a red and green powder of secret composition. The lantern embraces two tubes, ending with pear-shaped balls, which on being pressed emit respectively brilliant red and green flashes, by which the signals are transmitted. The apparatus weighs seven pounds.

ROBERT DOWNING.

Tonight Robert Downing will appear at the Lyceum in "The Gladiator," Saumet's great tragedy. Mr. Downing's conception of the title role is remarkably true and fine, and it takes rank with the worthiest and noblest of his many achievements. No one who has ever seen his "Gladiator" can forget its dignity, sublimity and passionate fervor, and it is one of the finest impersonations to be seen on the stage. The star is supported by a strong and well-selected company, which is headed by the beautiful and talented Jennie Dailey, who plays the opposite roles to Mr. Downing.

THE FARLAND CONCERT.

The Farland concert this evening will be given under the auspices of the Second Presbyterian church, but is to be given in the Swedish Mission church as it has seating capacity for nearly 1000 people. All lovers of good music will desire to hear Mr. Farland who unquestionably ranks as the greatest banjo player in the world and whose rendition of classical numbers is marvelous.

PINE LAND

The Legislative Investigating Committee May Attempt to Recover a Strip.

Some State Tracts Claimed to Have Been Improperly Secured.

Sensational Charge Made as to Matt Clark Having Received Money.

When the legislature, at its recent session, made an appropriation and authorized the governor, state auditor and state treasurer to push the claims of the state to the Duluth & Iron Range land grant, the Mountain Iron mining property and several other land grants which, it is claimed, had not been earned, the committee's work was not limited to the work specified. It was authorized to investigate any claims which the state might have to other valuable property in the possession of individuals or corporations. The attention of the committee has been directed, among other things, to a large tract of pine timber in St. Louis county in township 60, range 14, which is estimated to contain 50,000,000 or 60,000,000 feet of first class timber that he Howe Lumber company has been engaged in cutting for the past two seasons, it is alleged, without due warrant of law.

It appears that in 1892, at a public sale of pine on state land, held in St. Paul, the Howe Lumber company bid in two 40-acre tracts, agreeing to pay $1.75 a 1000 feet for it, the logs to be scaled when cut by the state inspector. It is alleged that although but two forties in this township were offered publicly, that when the contract was drawn up, it was made to appear that the company had purchased between 140 and 150 forties, or a total of nearly 60,000 acres. As there is no provision made by law for the disposition of pine timber in state lands privately, it is claimed that the sale of none of the township in question is valid, with the exception of the two forties that were purchased in open competition with other bidders.

The Howe Lumber company has for two seasons been cutting timber in this township in large quantities on the strength of the contract, which, it is alleged, was issued for the major portion of the tract illegally.

The report hat has been prepared for the consideration of the committee further alleges that Matt Clark, who at the time the transaction took place was employed in the state auditor's office, was paid the sum of $5000 for making the contract cover all of the desirable land in the township, besides the two 40-acre tracts that were offered at public sale. It is claimed that the value of the pine, even in the present depressed condition of the lumber market, is greatly in excess of the price being paid by the Howe Lumber company, and that it is the plain duty of the agents of the state to make a thorough investigation of the facts, and if they are found as stated to take possession of the property and bring an action against the lumber company for the recovery of the real value of all timber cut from land which it had no authority to operate on.

It is expected that the committee, or its authorized representatives, will visit Duluth at an early day, and that the facts connected with the deal in township 61-14 will be looked into as well as those that have reference to the Duluth & Iron Range land grant and the Mountain Iron.

ROBBINS OBJECTED.

Did Not Want His Face in the Rogues' Gallery.

C. P. Robbins, John Roleau, Thomas Mattson, Abram Levant and John Luendberg, who have either been convicted or have pleaded guilty at the present term of district court, were taken to a local photographer's studio yesterday to have their faces protographed and placed in the gallery of criminals at the city hall. All except Robbins submitted meekly. Robbins who is a tall, intelligent appearing man, who was convicted of passing upon C. H. Oppel & Sons at Tower a check on a bank where he had no deposit, strenuously objected. He protested that he had been abused, that his conviction was an outrage, and that he would be with the angels before they ever got a likeness of his face. He screwed up his face, shut his eyes and absolutely refused to "look pleasant." He was taken in that manner and a fairly good likeness was the result. Robbins acted as his own attorney during his trial, and his cross-examinations were brisk and sufficiently to the point to indicate that he had had some experience before.

CLEVELAND TALKS.

W. S. Cleveland, the Well Known Minstrel Manager, Tells of the Most Critical Moment of His Life.

A Matter That will be of Interest to all Sufferers from Nervous Prostration and Similar Troubles.

W. S. Cleveland, the great Minstrel Manager is probably one of the best known men today in his profession. He, like many others in his line of business, overworked and broke down a short time ago. Avery few words will describe his predicament, and how he got out of it. He says:—

"After a season of hard work, with three companies on the road I nearly wrecked myself with a series of disorders—loss of appetite and loss of sleep and numerous other troubles, until my friends and enemies alike had me booked for the Happy Hunting Grounds. I began to take Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. I surprised them. I recovered rapidly, and am now on the war-path as well as ever. Nonervous prostration, and landlords everywhere will agree that I have a most excellent appetite."

Such troubles as Mr. Cleveland's, begin in a small way. Loss of appetite, dizziness after eating, pains in the head, sleeplessness, feeling of oppression, moments of deep depression, followed by exhilaration, an inability to compose oneself, and many other similar symptoms, which continue to grow worse and worse, until at last the patient finds himself afflicted with that most dreaded of all maladies—Paresis—a disease that is veritably a living death, and for which, once firmly established, there can be no cure. The only means of treatment is the insane asylum, where the patient, unable to think for himself, is unable to even hear the irritating effect of the clothes on his back, becomes an object of loathing, even to his friends, until death releases him from his misery.

To all such sufferers, we would advise the use of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, it is the best blood purifier and stomach, liver and kidney regulator known to man. Keep these organs right, and good health, both of body and mind, will be the result, accompanied by a good appetite, the power to sleep and enjoy sleep.

Kickapoo Indian Remedies are sold by all druggists. Kickapoo Indian Sagwa is sold at $1 per bottle.

A GREAT BARITONE.

Heinrich Meyn Captivated His Audience Last Evening.

Heinrich Meyn captivated everyone at the Lyceum last evening with his magnificent baritone voice and no singer ever received a greater ovation in Duluth. His voice is one of wonderful flexibility, powerful to a very high degree when strength is called for and soft and gentle as a zephyr when he wills. He modulates it exquisitely and throws it into marvelous sympathy and beauty. To the brilliant numbers like the "Toreador" song from "Carmen," which he sung as one of his encore selections, he gives remarkable dash and dramatic effect. It may not be out of place to compare him with that other famous baritone, Max Heinrich, who was here recently, and it will be pretty generally conceded that he is superior to the latter in vocal quality. Max Heinrich however, has more of the dramatic instinct which comes not from training alone, but is largely the gift of nature. Heinrich Meyn is not pleasing in personal appearance while singing. He has a nervous way of opening and closing his hands sharply shaking himself as he takes a high note, and a few other mannerisms. It is probable that he is more at home on the operatic than on the concert stage. But as to his vocal quality and the manner in which he rendered his songs last evening there could be no criticism.

Mr. Meyn's opening numbers were "Thy Glorious Deed," by Handel; "Widmung," by Schumann, and "Am Rhein und heim Wein," by Ries. For an encore he sang a touching and very dainty love song, "Adieu, Marie." "Dio Possenta," Valentine's aria in "Faust," was his next number, and it was superbly sung. In response to the great applause which followed he sang the great "Toreador" song from "Carmen" as it probably has never been sung here before and an ovation followed it. His closing numbers were "Ouvre Les Yeux Bleus," by Massenet; "An Die Lyre," by Schubert, and "A Madrigal," by Victor Harris. The enthusiasm grew with each number and Mr. Meyn recognized another encore by singing "O Thou Sublime Sweet Evening Star," from "Tannhaueser," and there are many who will insist that it was the greatest song of the ten which he sang.

The Cecilian choral appeared to excellent advantage and won great praise for itself and its director, Mrs. Stocker. "Hesperus," a cantata by John Hyatt Brewer, was the opening number and it was delightfully sung. Miss Anna Farrell and Mrs James McAuliffe took the solos and sang them beautifully. "Treachery," by the same composer, was the second number, and then a lullaby by Hawley was given without accompaniment and was very pleasing. A mixed chorus, consisting of the choral reinforced by a number of male voices, sang "Hail, Bright Abode," from "Tannhauser," and it was excellently rendered.

Following the concert there was a reception at the Spalding and a large number attended.

Baldwin Was Injured.

When the racers at the Union rink last night had gone but a few laps, Baldwin was crowded against the fence in a mixup and thrown. She was badly bruised about the head and face and one knee was injured. She was removed to the St. Louis and promised to be on the track again tonight. The score at the end of last night's race was: Farnsworth, 154 miles 6 laps; Harp, 151 miles 4 laps; Hokenson, 131 miles 5 laps; Brooks, 130 miles 5 laps; Willington, 114 miles 8 laps; Baldwin, 110 miles 15 laps.

NEW RULE

Poor Orders Will Not Be Received in Payment of Taxes.

Auditor Takes a Stand Against Them and the Treasurer Accedes.

Many Have Bought Them at a Discount to Pay Taxes.

Between them County Auditor Halden and County Treasurer Whipple raised an issue yesterday which will be an important one to a good many purchasers of poor orders. The opinions of the two officers regarding the question were different, but Auditor Halden stood firm in his belief, and as it was the safest, the treasurer's office gave in to avoid friction and to be on the safe side.

An impression has become prevalent that county poor orders would be accepted at their face value for taxes, and this it is that gave rise to the question. The poor fund is now about $41,000 overdrawn, and floating poor orders are at a considerable discount. While one man has offered to purchase any amount at 3 per cent discount, and many orders have changed hands at 5 per cent discount, the average discount is about 10 per cent. Cases have been known where the possessors of poor orders, anxious to get money, have disposed of them at 25 per cent discount or greater. Of course these discounts afford a good opportunity for speculation, as they are sure to be redeemed some time, probably when the June settlement is made up.

A number of people, as usual, are taking advantage of this opportunity of making a little money while they are resting, and if the holder of a poor order puts his discount down far enough he is sure to get a purchaser. It is said, also, that several large taxpayers, believing that the orders would be received in payment of taxes, have made heavy purchases of orders at large discounts with the intention of securing in this manner a reduced rate on their taxes. It is claimed also that the treasurer has given as his opinion that they could be accepted, and that he based his opinion upon that of the public examiner.

County Auditor Halden thought different, however, and he so expressed himself yesterday when a taxpayer presented a statement for taxes amounting to about $150 and accompanied it with poor orders amounting to about $12, which he offered in part payment, making up the balance in cash. Deputy Treasurer Williamson took the matter before Mr. Halden and asked him if he would accept the orders if the treasurer's office did. Mr. Halden flatly replied that he would not. He rejected the opinion of the public examiner as that of a mere employe and said that the only qualified opinion was that of the attorney general.

He stated that the poor orders were issued in their order and numbered, and they were to be paid in that order when they were paid. It was not just to single them out and slight the order by receiving them at the treasurer's office in payment of taxes which is equivalent to cashing them. Furthermore, he said that it was unlawful to mix up the funds. The poor orders might be accepted for that proportion of the taxes due which went into the poor fund but beyond that they could not be accepted. Even receiving them that way would run counter to the first objection. Mr. Halden said that he would receive the orders in that way, which would be somewhat less than one-fifteenth of the amount of taxes.

Upon this basis the matter was settled. This will throw out, however, some of those who have loaded up on orders for this purpose. Their orders will be good, however, and if tax payments keep up they will undoubtedly be taken up after the June settlement.

JUDGE LOCHREN'S RULING.

Memorandum in His Decision as to Tug Masters.

The written decision of Judge Lochren in the cases involving the right of masters of tugs to have liens for services on their vessels was received today. The claims of the masters were excepted to and the exceptions were sustained. The memorandum is as follows:

"The common question presented in all these cases involves the right of lien against a vessel for services as master either under the general maritime law or the provisions of the statutes of Minnesota. There is no dispute as to the fact. The vessels are all harbor tugs owned and enrolled at the harbor of Duluth, and used for towing upon Lake Superior. The several libellants were the masters, and assert the right of lien upon the vessels for services in that capacity.

"In support of their contention that they are entitled to such liens under the general maritime law, it is urged that they are masters but in name, without the prerogatives and powers of masters as commonly understood in maritime law, and are in reality no more than navigators or pilots and that the reasons for denying liens to pilots do not apply.

"The same contention was urged in the case of the Nebraska 75 Fed. 568, and is there so fully disposed of by the court that only a reference is necessary.

"But such lien is also claimed under vol. 2 General Statutes of Minnesota, 1891, chapter 88, section 6085, which provides: 'Every boat or vessel used in navigating the waters of this state liable: First, for all debts contracted by the master, owner, agent or assignee thereof on account of supplies furnished for the use of said boat or vessel, on account of work done or services rendered on board or for the benefit of such boat or vessel, or on account of labor done or materials furnished by mechanics, tradesmen or others in and for building, repairing, fitting out, furnishing or equipping the same.

"A fair interpretation of this language does not warrant the conclusion that it was the intention to confer the right of lien upon the masters of vessels for services performed as such. The act plainly recognizes the master as the representative of the vessel, authorized to create liens upon it. The general language used more aptly describes only the work and services of seamen and subordinates. I am therefore constrained to disagree with what appears to be the decision of the court in the case of William Hoag 69 Fed. 762. But tugs engaged in towing upon Lake Superior, generally, are not navigating the waters of the state of Minnesota exclusively, and that state has no power to legislate on the subject of liens for services performed in such navigation. The subject falls within the exclusive domain of the congress of the United States, and its general legislation with reference to the rights of merchant seamen has ousted the several states of any power on that subject. The exceptions are therefore sustained."

The Third Bondsman.

D. A. Reed has secured a third bondsman upon the bond that will be presented to the council next Monday night, in the person of Edward Fiebiger, the hardware man opposite the city hall. There are no new developments in the city engineer embroglio, both sides apparently resting on their oars awaiting for the word to go the final heat next Monday.

The Steamers Florida and G. W. Roby Collided In Lake Huron Yesterday.

The Florida Sank In a Few Minutes But the Crew Escaped.

Much Damage Done to the Roby---Will Go Into Dry Dock.

Port Huron, Mich., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Florida of the Lackawanna line, bound from Chicago to Buffalo with grain and general merchandise, was sent to the bottom of Lake Huron by collision with the steamer George W. Roby, at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, between Middle Island and Presque Isle. The crew of the Florida were all rescued by the Roby, which steamer, being badly damaged, turned back, arriving here this morning. It was very foggy at the time of the collision. The two steamers exchanged passing signals, but they had not sighted each other in time to avoid coming together.

Capt. William Smith, who is in command of the Roby, states that when he first sighted the Florida through the fog he stopped and backed his engines, but the two boats were so close together that it was impossible to avoid the crash. The Roby struck the Florida on the starboard side about amidships. A hole twelve feet long was cut in that steamer's wooden side. It was instantly seen that it was only a question of minutes before the Florida would go down. The Roby steamed alongside of the doomed boat and took off part of her crew. The remainder of the crew had instantly lowered the yawl boat, and had succeeded in getting free of the sinking steamer. They were picked up subsequently by the Roby.

In about twelve minutes after the crash the Florida went to the bottom, sinking stern first and breaking in two about amidships. As she went down the imprisoned air in her hull blew off the cabins and upper works. The debris is now scattered over the surface of the lake, and had been reported by several steamers which had passed through it. The Roby was badly damaged in the bow and will go into dry dock here.

So quickly had the Florida to be abandoned by her crew in their hurried flight that they were unable to save any of their personal belongings, all their effects being abandoned in their cabins. After the collision the Roby, which was bound for Lake Superior without cargo, and towing the schooner Becker, turned the Becker over to the V. H. Ketchum.

The cargo of the Florida consisted of 56,000 bushels of wheat and about 500 tons of merchandise. Most of the latter was flour shipped by Chicago and Western millers. Between thirty and forty mills were represented in this item. The loss on the cargo is estimated at about $60,000. The Florida belonged to Kellerhouse, of Buffalo, but for many years has been under charter to the Lackawanna line, running regularly between Chicago and Buffalo. She was built by the Union Dry Dock company of Buffalo in 1880, and had a gross tonnage of 2102. She was 270 feet long by 40 feet beam. Her valuation was about $100,000. She was insured for $80,000 with the McCurdy syndicate, of Chicago.

The place where the collision occurred has been the scene of many marine disasters, and there is probably not a square mile on the bottom of the lake in that region without one or more wrecks which have been caused by collision. It is at the point where the great highways of lake commerce between Lake Michigan and Lake Superior converge. The last big collision in that vicinity resulted in the loss of the steel steamer Norman.

SHORTAGES AND OVERRUNS.

To guard against shortages some lower lake vessel owners now hire experts to supervise the weighing of grain in and out of their crafts. Thus Walter Finney weighed out the wheat cargo of the steamer Lansing at Sandusky and encountered an overrun of 1318 bushels, representing a value of $1118. D. C. Whitney, of Detroit, employed Finney to go to Fort William on the steamer Merida and watch the weighing of the cargo. The vessel took on 40,000 bushels of oats and 110,000 bushels of wheat. Under Finney's eye the cargo was weighed at Buffalo and found to be 40,040 bushels of oats and 109,681 bushels of wheat. He also watched the loading of the wooden steamer W. H. Gratwick at Fort William and discovered a mistake and could get no satisfaction from the elevator men. The cargo was discharged under protest and ran short.

THE WELLAND CANAL WRECKED.

Port Colborne, Ont., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Welland canal was badly wrecked and the country around St. Catherines flooded by the rush of water this morning on acount of a collision between the steamer Outhwaite and the gates of lock 7. Three gates were carried away. The big rush of water carried away the canal banks. The whole country in the vicinity is completely flooded. It will take a week to make repairs so that traffic can be resumed. The Outhwaite was bound up without cargo. She is held by the Canadian government for $10,000 damages.

TOMORROW'S BALL GAME.

Everything is in Readiness For the Slaughter.

Tomorrow is the day for which the residents of Chester and Ashtabula terraces, and a host of their friends and partisans, have been awaiting with bated breath. Not only the members of the two nines of mighty baseball swatters, which have been selected from the most ablebodied residents of the respective terraces, but the public at large, are hanging upon the issue of the game, and war, rumors of war, and matters of state are cast into a melancholy shadow by the interest attached to tomorrow's battle. Every man of both nines is in prime condition, and prepared to play the game of his life. Practice has been most assiduous. T. H. Larke has been in training for a week, making a specialty of 10-mile runs before breakfast. W. C. McAdam has been juggling 750-pound dumbbells by way of light exercise, and the other members of both teams have been training and developing their muscles in various ways. So strong is the rivalry that no means of bettering either club or adding to its chance for success have been neglected, and it is fully predicted that the game is not a tie, one side or the other will win.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock sharp, and nine innings will be played, if it can be done without intruding on the Sabbath. Special costumes have been prepared, of which it may be truthfully stated that there like has never been looked upon before. The umpires will be G. Fred Stevens, for the Chester terrace nine, who will announce his decisions in Lowland Svenska dialect, and G. A. Tomlinson, for the Ashtabula people, who will interpret them. The line-up will be as follows:

Chester.		Ashtabula.
Edson	catcher	Baldrick
Wade	pitcher	Mosher
Sterritt	first base	Larke
West	second base	Cross
Adams	short stop	Bagley
McGregor	third base	Clark

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

A SINGING CANARY.

One Which Really Sings a Well Known Ballad.

She's my sweetheart, I'm her beau,
She's my Annie, I'm her Joe;
Soon we'll marry, never to part;
Little Annie Rooney is my sweetheart.

That chorus of the out-of-date song "Annie Rooney" was sung by a canary bird in New York yesterday for the first time. The canary is the property of August Luchow, whose place of business is in Fourteenth street, opposite Irving place. Mr. Luchow bought the bird in Philadelphia two weeks ago for a large sum of money, on the guarantee that it could sing the song literally like a bird, and sing it did, says the New York Journal.

For days together it had sulked in its cage and resisted every effort to induce it to raise a tuneful lay of any kind, but it finally responded to encouraging sounds made by a young man with his lips. Next he whistled the notes of the song, the canary meanwhile hopping from perch to perch and occasionally spreading its yellow wings as if trying to escape from its pretty wire prison. Suddenly it paused in a corner of the cage and thrust its bill between the bars toward the young man. Once again he whistled the notes, and the bird began to chirp. The next instant it had ascended to a perch, raised its head high in the air and became strangely agitated. Its little body trembled violently and its throat throbbed perceptibly. Then it began to sing ever so sweetly, and the familiar air of "She's My Sweetheart" rolled melodiously from its amber beak. It had broken its long and sullen silence, and proved itself the Patti of birds—in fact, the only bird of its kind that was ever able to sing the song. Every note rendered was clear and distinct and the bird, after more coaxing, repeated its effort, much to the delight of its group of auditors. Then it gazed knowingly but sedately at the upturned faces, hopped to another perch and settled down for a nap.

Of course the canary had been carefully trained by a patient man for a long time before it was able to even partly accomplish the feat of yesterday, which patience was finally handsomely rewarded. The methods employed in training were exceedingly simple, although to the layman they may be mysterious and apparently impossible.

When the bird was very young, in fact, almost a fledgling, it was placed in a cage in a dark room, alone. Then the cage was enclosed in a cloth. At frequent intervals the trainer would quietly enter the apartment with a small musical instrument of the organette type. This was operated with a crank, and when the crank was turned by the trainer it would give forth just one tune, and that was "Annie Rooney."

Nobobdy knows, except the Philadelphia man, just how many hours he stood before that bird cage in that darkened room and played that tune, which, though old, is still fresh to most boys and girls; nor the months before the canary bird began to try to sing it, which it finally did. It was slow work, though, the little thing, not being a mimic bird, finding much difficulty in chirping the first notes. After that it was easy, and the song, in part, at least, was finally mastered by the wonder in yellow feathers.

The Mayor Vetoes It.

Mayor Truelsen has prepared an exhaustive veto message, returning unsigned to the council the resolution refusing to pay the bill of E. R. Cobb for attendance upon the uniform charter committee.

The grounds for his honor's veto are that Mr. Cobb honestly earned the money; that he performed valuable services for the city; that he was not employed to do the work by the school board, and finally that the city cannot afford to refuse to pay a just and lawful debt.

BICYCLING IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

While in South Dakota last summer a book agent had occasion to cross one of the great cattle range districts, says the Northwest Magazine. He was making the trip on a bicycleand up to this time the journey had been very enjoyable. Now, however, he was destined to meet with trials and tribulations that would be worth telling to his unborn grandchildren. He knew nothing of these untamed range cattle, and, alas, the cattle were equally as ignorant of scorching bicyclers.

According to our correspondent—a veracious chronicler of South Dakota happenings—the agent was making good time and lifting a free and easy soul to heaven, without a single fear of the browsing herds upon the rolling plains, when all at once the proverbial change came over the spirit of his dreams. One of the steers, more curious and observant than the others, spied the strange looking vehicle and was tempted to follow it. By and by other cattle joined in the chase, and then the entire herd became interested.

The agent began to grow nervous and increased his speed, but this only whetted the curiosity of the cattle, and they pounded along after him at a rate that was incredible to the agent.

The situation grew decidedly alarming. The mild inquisitiveness of the steers had changed to anger, and they were going to run that peculiar species of cowboy down if it took all summer. Fortunately for the agent, the cowboys on the range saw the peril, rode to his rescue, and succeeded in diverting the cattle from the hapless rider. It is probable that he will not care to canvass in that part of the country any more—not on his bicycle.

ON PLEASURE BENT.

Four women faced each other in a Third avenue L car the other evening, having been fortunate enough to secure two cross seats, says the New York Herald. They were young, fairly comely and were on pleasure bent, for they carried dancing slippers wrapped in newspapers and there were glimpses of gaudy gowns beneath their long, coarse cloaks.

"Do you mind ridin' backward?"

"Yes; it always makes me sick to my stomach."

"Well, you take my seat, Annie; I don't mind it a bit."

The exchange was made and the conversation became general.

"My husband said I had no business to be thinkin' of dancin' when I had a baby an' housework to look after. But I guess when he wants a drink or a cigar he gets 'em, and why shouldn't I have a little dance if I like?"

"Sure," was the response of the youngest women. "The men think they own us, that's the trouble."

"There ain't any man ownin' you yet," retorted the first speaker with a chuckle, "and you'd better hurry up, Mary."

Mary's face grew crimson.

"Oh, there's time enough," she replied. "I ain't obliged to marry to keep from starving, like some people."

"What d'ye mean by that?"

"Oh, nothin'."

"If you meant that for me—"

"Why, you didn't marry to keep from starvin', did you?" queried mischievous Mary. "Well, that's news to me."

"See here, Mary Martin, if you ain't careful I'll give your face a good slap."

"If you did," was Mary's angry reply, "it'd be the last thing you did on this earth."

"Ladies! Ladies!" cried the others, "please quit. Everybody is laffin' at us."

"If you just wait till I see my husband, he'll settle this with your brother mighty quick."

"Eighty-fourth!" shouted the brakeman, and the quartet left the car, still wrangling and clinching the plan for dragging in their peaceable and innocent male connections to settle their dispute.

HE WANTED WINGS.

An official who accompanied one of the boats sent by Uncle Sam for the relief of sufferers by the Mississippi floods aptly describes the condition of affairs in the South with a story of an old darkey who was encountered by the relief expedition, says the Chicago Tribune. Uncle Eph was in a dilapidated-looking skiff or dugout, which he was having considerable trouble to keep afloat. He was busy paddling with one hand and bailing out his craft with the other when the relief boat came within hailing distance of him. It was on the outskirts of a village toward which the old man was evidently trying to make his way when the captain of the relief boat called to him:

"Hello, there, Uncle! What do you want?"

"Nothing but wings, boss," was the answer, and the old man and his skiff were soon astern of the relief boat.

CAT RAISING A DUCKLING.

Mrs. W. R. Rowland is the owner of a young Pekin duck hatched by one of her hens, and which she is raising by hand, says the Orlando (Fla.) Reporter. She also has a cat with several kittens about the same age as the duck. The kittens and duckling have become strongly attached to each other, and run and play together as though they belonged to the same species of the "animal" kingdom. The mother cat, following the example of her offspring, acts as if she was the maternal ancestor of the duck, and when the little thing happens to stray away from the kittens the old cat never relaxes her efforts until her little family is reunited. The little duck seems perfectly satisfied with her feline companions, and amuses itself by catching fleas from their black and shiny coats.

ASSAULT

Attorney Marshall Tried Today For Kicking Attorney Van Rosencrance.

Five Brother Attorneys Are Defending Marshall From the Odious Charge.

Complainant History of the Circumstances Leading Up to the Kick.

Attorney Marshall appeared before Judge Boyle today to answer to a charge of assaulting Joe Van Rosencrance, a brother attorney, by kicking him violently while on a public thoroughfare. The municipal court room was crowded to the point of suffocation to hear the evidence. The defendant was accompanied by a formidable array of legal talent and his interests were ably looked after by Judge Jaques, assisted by Judge Potter and Attorneys Quinn, Whitely and Brigham. The assistant city attorney prosecuted the case and the complainant was the first witness put upon their stand.

After the usual preliminary questions had been put and answered the complainant poured forth his tale. On May 17, he said, while he was engaged in the occupation of partaking of his evening meal he suddenly became aware of a hostile presence in the room. Quietly raising his eyes he saw a man looking intently at him with a baleful stare and that man was the defendant. Mr. Van Rosecrance said that he discretly lowered his usual organs so as to avoid even the semblance of offense to the baleful glarer, as he had reason to fear that some unpleasantness might arise.

The defendant, however, he found afterwards, was only examining the bill of fare apparently debating in his mind as to the comparative merits of Boston baked pork and beans with brown bread on the side and a dish of ham and eggs. The complainant hastened to the conclusion of his repast, and accompanied by a friend returned to his law office in safety.

Later in the evening Mr. Van Rosencrance felt impelled to visit the Y. M. C. A. rooms, and while on his way thither he encountered Mr. Marshall in front of the Woodbridge building. Again he modestly allowed his gaze to rest anywhere else but upon the stalwart figure of Mr. Marshall, even going so far as to feign an absorbing interest in some jewsharps and zithers in the window of the music store. The defendant, however, plucked him by the sleeve and said:

"Rosencrance, what are you going to do in that matter of ours?"

"Van Rosencrance, if you please," corrected the complainant.

"Well, then, Van Rosencrance, what are you going to do?"

To this demand the complainant made no reply and walked away when suddenly Mr. Marshall violently kicked the complainant in a place and in a manner most hurtful to the feelings and anatomy of the young attorey and contrary to the peace and dignity of the state of Minnesota and of Mr. Van Rosencrance. Although, the complainant averred, at least thirty people saw the assault they all gave him the merry ha, ha, when he appealed to them for their names so that he could call them as witnesses, and failing to find an officer, upon second thought he decided that it would be an unbecoming act upon the part of an attorney to resent violence by violence, so he returned to his office.

Upon the opening of the cross-examination of the complainant Judge Jaques began with:

"Now, Mr. Rosencrance—"

"Van Rosencrance, if you please, "blandly said the witness.

The judge colored up, evidently annoyed with having unconsciously committed an offense against the dignity of the witness and thereafter rolled out the word "Van" with such emphasis that it shook the court room windows.

The cross-examination by Judge Jaques turned largely upon the two affidavits made by Mr. Van Rosencrance in the McDonough divorce case in support of a motion for continuance and which reflected severely upon the moral character of the defendant. A counter affidavit from a Mrs. H. D. Stanley utterly refuting the charges was offered in evidence and refused and most of the morning was taken up with legal squabbling over the admision of evidence during which a good deal of heated debate was indulged in. At the close of Mr. Van Rosencrance's evidence the court adjourned until afternoon.

THE DISTRICT COURT.

Case Against Kangas Taken Up ---John Coventry Acquitted.

Assistant County Attorney McPherson this morning took up before Judge Moer the case against Bunhart Kangas, of Virginia, a Finlander, who is accused of slashing a countryman with a dirk in a pleasant little argument in a saloon at Virginia. The indictment was returned at the last term of court, and when the defendant was brought in he was found to be so plastered with knife cuts himself that the case was continued until this term. The assault is alleged to have been committed last March. The case was still on trial as noon.

Yesterday afternoon it took the jury in the case against John Coventry of the Booth Packing company only fifteen minutes to find him not guilty of receiving game out of season, he having succeeded in showing that he did not know what the cases of birds contained when they were delivered to him. This morning William Laplante and William Blanchard, accused of assault in the second degree withdraw their demurrer and pleaded not guilty.

In the case of Isaac Hill against Winston Bros., the testimony on both sides was all in this morning and the defendant's attorney, Theodore Hollister, was arguing a motion to direct a verdict for the defendant on the ground of contributory negligence. The jury was excused until 2 p. m., though it was not considered likely that the argument would be concluded at that time.

Quesnil Was Dismissed.

Bellamy Quesnil was brought before Judge Boyle today charged with having sold tobacco to a minor. Mr. Quesnil admitted the charge but he told the court that the boy to whom he sold the stuff, Harry Bennison, was often sent to his store by his father, George Bennison, to buy tobacco for him and also for the boarders of the Hotel Bennison. Mr. Bennison, who was present in court, corroborated Quesnil's statement and said that he had frequently sent his boy to buy a paper of tobacco as well as upon other errands. Judge Boyle dismissed the case, but cautioned the defendant to be very careful not to sell tobacco to minors upon any pretext whatever.

New Lester Park Resort.

Lester Park has become the finest summer resort anywhere in the vicinity of Duluth, and a new pavilion, to be known as Harmonia hall, has been added by John Bush and Frank Hodges. It is 150 by 75 feet in size, has a hardwood floor, and is admirably adapted for dancing. It has a check room, ladies' dressing room and refreshment stand, where lunches are served. C. W. Dorsey is the musician. The hall will be rented for private parties, and the proprietors intend to make it a pleasant and popular resort.

Not Yet in Effect.

The county treasurer has received a number of inquiries regarding the new tax law which provides for dividing the payment of current taxes, allowing the taxpayer to pay half his due in May and the rest before Nov. 1, the penalty not going on before the latter date. A great many people seem to have the idea that that law becomes effective this year, but such is not the case. The law provides that it shall go into effect in 1898, so that this year the full penalty of 10 per cent will on June 1 go on all taxes unpaid before that date.

John Wanamaker Stands By His Recent Speech to Business Men.

Adds Some More Remarks Very Unpalatable to Republican Politicians.

Something Must Be Done, If Prosperity Is to Be Produced.

New York May 21.—A Philadelphia dispatch to the Mail and Express is as follows:

"I am not apologizing for that speech, nor do I propose to defend it," said John Wanamaker to me today, when I directed his attention to the wide discussion of his utterances in this city last Friday night at the meeting of the Business Men's league of Pennsylvania.

"The speech stands for itself. I meant every word of it. It did not occur to me that any great importance would be attached to it by the people. I am rather surprised that it should be so, but since it has attracted some attention, I may say I am glad of it, for the result may do good. I am not a pessimist. I could not afford to be one even if my inclinations were that way. I have too much at stake. It would be against my interest as a business man to breed pessimism. I do not believe, however, that the way to correct an evil is to gloss it over. I have always taught myself to look every subject or emergency straight in the face, and that is why I spoke as I did last Friday night. It will do the country no good to sing itself to sleep or to try to believe that facts are different from what they are."

"Your speech was to business men, not to politicians?" I asked.

"Yes, I spoke to about 100 hard-headed business men of this state. I felt we could be useful to each other by counting the pulse of business and making a truthful diagnosis of the country's long-nursed sickness. Nothing but a fair, frank talk, without concealments of any kind would have suited the purpose of the hour or the intelligence of those to whom my words were addressed. I think I made between sixty and seventy speeches in this state during the last presidential campaign, some of them in silver districts, where I pleaded with the people to vote against Bryanism and argued that not only the tariff but the currency questions would be taken up and pushed vigorously to a satisfactory solution—that the filling of offices would not be the first or only business of the administration at it is beginning. So much was said by political speakers in that campaign that the popular expectation was aroused that the old McKinley tariff law would be restored in some form within sixty days of inauguration and the industries of the country started up. Some of the men who spoke with me in the canvass were in my audience last Friday night, and I endeavored to show them that popular expectation had not yet been met and that there was still great need for them as business men to continue their organization. It is boasted that of the thirty-two Pennsylvania congressmen thirty-one are pledged to vote as one man with the boss, a part of whose field of labors is where the whole machinery of government stops while sugar speculations go on.

"The people are not all fools," continued Mr. Wanamaker, "and they naturally cry out against those who have the power to relieve them, when they see the Dingley tariff bill, framed four months ago, hanging in midair, as though the whole nation were taking a summer holiday instead of going through a slow fever, as it really is, with every state and city a kind of hospital of fear and trembling. The people do not forget very easily, and it will not be enough when the next senatorial investigation is made to evade or to bluff with a nochalent 'Yes, I bought those stocks. What of it?' Let me recall to you from New York city that the people in that great commonwealth listened with patience for a time to the sullen, defiant inquiry: 'What are you going to do about it?' but one day they arose in their strength and said: 'We will show you,' and they did.

"I confess that five years of listening to a steady stream of people passing through this office with their tales of woe, sorrow and starvation, have worn upon me," Mr. Wanamaker continued, "and I confess also that I am alarmed by the increase in the numbers of that procession the last few months, so many have used up their hard-earned savings. My very soul cries out when I meet this daily procession here and then see the tariff bill practically aground in the senate and no sign of any intention to take up currency questions, which, to the minds of many people, are the largest half of the problems which the last administration, after four years of bungling, handed over to the Republican party for solution. While I believe that the good times anticipated will grow out of the employment of the people through a return to a protective tariff, it must not be forgotten that there are thousands of business men in this country who believe that there will be no permanently settled prosperity until definite deliverances have been had from congress upon monetary questions. If there is to be any enlarged use of silver, why not promptly determine upon it? If it is the intention that nothing shall be done on the silver question, and we are to stand exactly where we are, it were far better to say so frankly and at once, and not drift or shilly shally.

"We want something or nothing, and that very quickly, if the country is to start forward on its promised career of prosperity. It is not right that the house should meet only to adjourn in the hope that a do-nothing policy of that sort will force the senate to act on the tariff bill. The tariff is only one of many pressing problems that must be taken up, and the sooner the better."

"What I have been saying is the kind of talk a merchant hears in his daily contact with the business world and with people," said Mr. Wanamaker. "It is possible that cabinet officers and congressmen, who are not facing hundreds and thousands of unemployed week after week, may not have all the facts before them quite so clearly. What the people want is the promised action with as little delay as possible. The drain and strain are too great to be borne any longer than is imperatively necessary. I grant that it may appear like impatience, considering how brief the time is since inauguration, but the country is in no mood to be trifled with now by a dawdling senate. Having had the promises of thousands of public speakers that prompt attention would be given to altering the conditions that brought about disaster, the people will charge us with treachery if we are silent or sleeping, while the remedy is within our quick reach. I believe there are 1,000,000 men who would stand up tomorrow and applaud President McKinley if he were to deny to every officeholder a place until the tariff at least is settled. In saying this I am not speaking as a manufacturer, for I long since left that long-suffering class. I speak as one whose concern is the same as the great mass of business men interested in the general prosperity."

UNIVERSAL POSTAL UNION.

One Direction in Which the World Works Together.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: One of the very few directions in which the world has practically agreed to work together in amity is that of the development of international postal facilities. It is greatly to the credit of the United States that the idea of the union originated with one of our citizens and that its establishment is due to the persevering support of this country. Montgomery Blair, postmaster general under President Lincoln, was the first to see the importance of a general system in the handling of foreign mails, and at the height of our civil war a preliminary international postal congress was held at Paris, most of the countries of Europe sending representatives. Uniform rates were agreed upon, and within ten years the maximum foreign letter rate from the United States was reduced from $1.02 to 24 cents. The universal postal treaty dates from the congress held in Berne in 1874, and subsequent congresses met in Paris, Lisbon and Vienna, all the participants agreeing to constitute "a single postal territory for the reciprocal exchange of correspondence between their postoffices." Every civilized nation on the globe, except two or three in Asia and Africa, are taking part in the international postal congress assembled in Washington.

Now that the statistics of the postal departments of the world are carefully gathered at the central headquarters of the universal postal union, at Berne, the United States is able to see at a glance its national conspicuity in postal affairs. It is easily first in the number of postoffices, 70,591; the number of employes, 184,607, and the length of all routes, 454,380 miles. Germany is second in number of postoffices and employes. The number of pieces of mail matter handled for each inhabitant of New South Wales is 92.6, while in the United States, standing second in this respect, the number is 79.9. In proportion of postoffices to area, Switzerland heads the list, with one office to every 4.6 square miles, the United States ranking sixteenth, with one office to 56.3 square miles. This country is immensely ahead in the total length of railroad postal routes, 169,773 miles, Germany, which is second, having 27,243 miles. Congo is at the foot of the list, with a total of ten offices, or one to every 104,220 square miles, and 1,000,000 inhabitants, but, of course, not much is yet expected of Africa.

The poet's thought of "the parliament of man, the federation of the world," has been substantially realized in the universal postal union, and its increasing benefits will doubtless lead to international combinations along other lines in which political questions do not enter. Among the duties entrusted to the general bureau of the union in Switzerland are to act as a clearing house of balances, collate international statistics, conduct correspondence relating to the congress, distribute postal information, revise the list of the world's postoffices and publish a monthly sheet of postal news in three languages. Much of this can be done before all international postal deals can be reduced to uniformity, and several important changes are now under consideration in Washington. But the overshadowing fact is that a universal postal union is now firmly founded, and that its operations have been marked by an intelligent sense of fairness to all nations, large and small.

TO REBEL

Members of the House May Turn Down Speaker Reed Soon.

They Are Very Much Worked Up Over the Cuban Question.

Anxious to Have a Chance to Consider the Morgan Resolution.

Washington, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The press dispatches of the past few days have told of the revival of interest in Cuban affairs in this country. For a time it seemed as if all interest in poor Cuba's fate had vanished in the scramble for office and the tariff consideration; but there is no lack of interest now. If some of the statements now being made about the condition of affairs are true, the interest will continue, and no one need be surprised at any outcome of it. The letters read at the meeting here the other day showing that American consuls were cautioned by the last administration to tone down their reports or to mark them "confidential," so they needn't be sent to the senate, on the ground that it might cause trouble if our people learned the real condition of affairs on the island ate having muchefect upon people all over the country, and members of congress are likely to be forced to do something whether they want to or not. I predict that if Speaker Reed does not allow the Morgan resolution to be speedily considered when it gets to the house, there will be such a rebellion on his hands that he will be turned down. He and the other "managers" of the house, as they are now styled, have Republican members under good discipline, but enough will break away on this Cuban question to make a good majority in favor of taking it up. In this connection here is an interesting bit of information: In the closing days of the Cleveland regime Secretary Olney made the prophecy that the new administration would have a war on its hands before itwas six months old. Well, there are still three and a half months before the six will be up.

* * *

Sunday evening Brooks Adams gave a dinner to Secretary Gage, Chairman Towne of the Silver Republicans, Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee and Representative Newlands of Nevada. The silver leaders and Mr. McKinley's financial minister are said to have discussed the currency question in a frank and profitable manner. The dinner was to enable the secretary and Messrs. Towne and Jones to meet. Comptroller Eckels was to be of the party, but was ill.

* * *

Prophets now put the adjournment of congress off as far as Sept. 1.

* * *

I am told by employes in the pension office that there is more liberality in considering claims than was shown by the last administration, and that technicalities cut little figure now. Commissioner Evans is certainly making a good impression on the office force. His appointments of chiefs of divisions, etc., are from the most popular employes and the most capable. Said one employe to me: "The administration certainly ought to make a record, for the commissioner has gathered around him for his assistants the flower of the bureau, the most experienced and most intelligent workers." Still, one Republican congressman complained to me this week about delay in taking up cases, adding that he was not altogether satisfied with the manner of running things in the bureau.

CONSPICUOUS ANACHRONISMS.

A writer at this critical day must be very careful not to get anything or anybody into a story or a poem that did not belong to the epoch of which he is writing. Such an error, which is called an anachronism, subjects him to ridicule, says the Youth's Companion.

It is well known that the works of Shakespeare, as was inevitable in the case of a comparatively unlearned man, abound in errors of this sort. He introduces clocks into ancient Rome, and in the production of his plays dressed Cæsar and Coriolanus in the uniform of a British officer.

This was well known in Shakespeare's day, but when a living novelist introduced a typewriter into a scene which was supposed to have occurred at a time not more than five years before typewriters came into common use, he was ridiculed unmercifully.

One modern writer who cared very little for the charge of unachronism, though he wrote in the age and in the country of "the document" was Victor Hugo. He introduced into a drama of the time of Charlemagne a priest of the Sorbonne—the famous theological school of Paris—though the Sorbonne was not founded until 400 years after Charlemagne.

But perhaps the mistake which is entitled to be called the "champion anachronism" of all literature is one which is to be found in Hugo's admirable poem, "Boaz Sleeping," which deals with the story of Ruth. The poet sparks of the earth at this period as "still wet and soft from the deluge."

According to the most commonly accepted chronology, the flood occurred in the year 2348 B. C. By the same chronology, Ruth was married to Boaz in the year 1226 B. C. By this calculation, upward of 1100 years must have elapsed between the two periods—which would seem to have afforded ample time, with ordinary weather, forthe earth to get dry.

THE SUGAR SCANDALS.

SENATE'S DUTY TO INVESTIGATE.

Omaha Bee: There will be a pretty general feeling it is safe to say, that the senate should take steps to ascertain whether or not there is any truth in the allegations, proceeding from responsible sources, that members of the senate have been speculating in sugar trust stock and that several of them realized considerable sums from this source immediately after the tariff bill was reported to the senate. Such a charge implying a corrupt deal with the most rapacious of monopolies, the senate cannot ignore or treat with indifference without inviting greater popular distrust of that body and sinking it lower in public respect. There is no place, in a case of this kind, for "senatorial courtesy." Every honest and honorable man in the senate must feel that duty to himself—the duty of protecting his character from unjust suspicion—demands that the charge publicly made that senators had profited in sugar stock speculations by the change in the sugar schedule shall be thoroughly investigated.

AT A CONVENIENT TIME.

New York Evening Post: The importance of the case legally lies not so much in the punishment which has overtaken Mr. Chapman as it does in the complete demonstration of the power of the senate to get at facts touching the corruption of its own members if it desires to do so. But its political importance is far greater, for it comes just at the moment when a new sugar schedule is pending in the senate and "speculation" is beginning again, and a new scandal is openly promised. It could not come at a more inconvenient time, for it directs all eyes to the senate and to the one great trust which everybody knows wrings half its swollen substance out of the public by the aid of senators through votes obtained under circumstances which those cognizant of them are obliged to conceal, lest the ring be broken up by the courts.

HAND IN GLOVE WITH TRUST.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: Close upon the introduction of the new schedule by the senate committee on finance comes the announcement of sundry deals in sugar stock in the New York market by which certain senators are said to have profited to the amount of tens of thousands of dollars apiece. When similar occurrences were reported at the time of the Wilson-Gorman tariff discussion there were senators whose sense of deficiency did not prevent them from avowing their speculations in sugar stocks. And indications are not wanting to show that the senate sugar schedule now proposed was modeled, not at all with a view to the interests of the nation, but solely to subserve the purposes of senators working hand in glove with the sugar trust.

IT HAS MANY BELIEVERS.

Worcester Spy: Scandals concerning the influence the sugar trust is exerting on members of the senate are afloat in Washington. A very strong lobby has been steadily at work there in its interests. A direct statement has been published to the effect that a broker in Washington filed an order for 900 shares of sugar stock for three senators before the tariff bill was reported, and after it was made public the same stock was sold at a profit of $30,000 to his three customers. Whether this is a fact or a "fake," it has many believers, and it is but one of many unpleasant rumors that are in circulation.

MORE THAN IT NEEDS.

Milwaukee Sentinel: It is not easy for an outsider, who is in this instance anyone not engaged in the refining of sugar, or not possessed of as much special information as if he were engaged therein, to explain the meaning of the new sugar schedule, complicated as it is by the presence of both specific and ad valorem duties. But it is generally reported, and generally believed, that the schedule in the bill prepared by the senate finance committee gives the sugar trust, as the American Sugar Refining company is still called, more protection than it needs.

OBLIGING "BUSINESS" BROKERS.

New York World: Every senator who shall hereafter want to sell his vote and influence and knowledge for a bribe, every senator who shall desire to "operate" on his knowledge or control of legislation, will naturally "place his orders" with a broker who stands ready to go to jail rather than "give away" the corrupt senators who pay him for "doing the business" for them. Sympathy with Chapman is wasted sentiment. He is "doing business."

GUILT OF HIS PRINCIPALS.

Philadelphia Ledger: It is not Chapman's guilt that the country cares about, but the guilt of senators who have used their high office for illicit speculation. It is not believed that there are very many of them, but it is feared that too many of their colleagues will become accessories after the fact by refusing to push the inquiry to the discovery of the guilty ones.

KNEW WHAT THEY WERE ABOUT.

Philadelphia Record: It is evident that the owners of sugar shares knew what they were about when they advanced prices after the senate sugar schedule was made public. If they could only be assured of its passage their joy would be unconfined and their profits enormous.

HAND THAT RULES.

Detroit Tribune: The hand that manipulates the sugar ticker is the hand that rules the United States senate.
